Farmers and users of horses that are in need of good work horses or desiring to match a horse they may now have will find a splendid opportunity of making their purchases at the Farm Bureau Horse Sale to be held at Pierson's sale barn in Norwich on Saturday, February 23, at 1:30 P. M.

This cooperative shipment of 20 head of horses will arrive in Norwich a few days before the sale and you will be afforded an opportunity to inspect the horses and have them hitched, if you so desire. Before shipping the horses have been examined for age, type, quality and sound ness. They will range from 5 to 9 years in age and from 1,300 to 1,700 pounds in weight. They have been assembled where grown, are shipped in special slatted delivered express cars and reach your community without being exposed to the diseases infesting the regular horse markets. J. A. Simms, Extension Animal Husbandman at Storrs, Connecticut has checked up on the Farm Bureau horse shipments into Connecticut and finds the buyers of these horses quite thoroughly satisfied with their purchases and with this system of buying horses.

The Farm Bureau sales held in the past two years have established the merits of the North Dakota horse for our conditions. Those who have bought horses at these sales say that the horses arrive free from disease, are hardy and unsurpassed for endurance and working quality, and are ready to be put to work as they do not have to be conditioned and shrunk as do the horses purchased through the regular horse markets. The New London County Bureau has appointed a local committee consisting of E. L. Waterman, J. L. Raymond and G. G. Grant to inspect, hitch and test out the horses during the forenoon of sale day. At which time the committee will make its report on each horse so that the buyer will know what sort of an animal is being offered. Every horse will be sold on its merits for cash to the highest bidder under a positive guarantee. No horses will be sold at private sale and there will be no by-bidding at the Farm Bureau Sales.

Mildred Pearson to Sing

Miss Mildred Pearson's song recital is scheduled for Monday evening, the 18th, at Slater Hall under the auspices of the Norwich Music association.

Norwich should know for itself what is coming out of Norwich—know for its own self, not take it from others. The town can not lay claim to many artists of outstanding note, and when by chance there is one giving promise of breaking into first rank, the Home Town support and encouragement should be hearty, generous and substantial.

Miss Pearson's voice is one to be proud of, and she deserves a cordial, warm reception from a full house at her appearance in Slater Hall on Monday evening.

The program she has chosen is one calculated to interest and please all who hear her — experts, critics and mere lovers of music. There are selections for all—the high-brow, the sophisticated and those that just like what they like when they like it.

Reserved seats can be secured at Cranston's store for $1.50 each, tax exempt. Waiting until Monday it will be possible to sit behind a post, or, selecting the seat today the posts may be avoided.

Moving Picture Classic at Y. M. C. A.

On Sunday, February 17th, at 4 o'clock, at the local Y. M. C. A., the second part of the moving picture classic "Les Miserables," by Victor Hugo, will be shown. The first part, shown last Sunday, deeply interested the audience and doubtless the showing of the second part will have the same effect. This is considered Hugo's masterpiece. Jean Val Jean, the hero of the story is shown to splendid advantage. The lesson to be learned by the picture is of great value, and it is hoped many will take advantage of the opportunity. Hugh Elsdon will render vocal solos and furnish music for the picture. All men and boys 14 and over are cordially invited.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Under The Red Robe

What is said to be one of the most thrilling and tensely dramatic duo scenes ever staged before a motion picture camera is that fought by John C. G. Mills who won fame with the Dragoon Guards of Australia during the war, in Under the Red Robe Thomas, who is making his motion picture debut in the new feature and who with Robert B. Mantel and Alma Rubens, is featured, impersonates Gil de Berault. Captain Mills appears as a trooper.

The duel, which is made doubly dramatic in that it is fought on horseback as well as on foot, was filmed at the 104 Field Artillery Armory, Sixty-eighth street and Broadway, New York city. Here one of the biggest scenes in the film was made. The scene is from Under the Red Robe, the $1,500,000 picture, which comes to Breed theatre for four days starting Sunday. The scene representing part of a French village in the time of Louis XIII, necessitated the construction of one of the largest sets ever built and one that cost $25,000. In this scene, Thomas, as Berault, is making an escape through the village when he encounters the king's troopers. He evades all but the first trooper (Mills and the two engage in a sword fit on horseback that was fought with such realism that even Director Alan Crosland gasped. Thomas finally rides from his horse, rushes to the roof of a dwelling and when cornered there makes a daredevil swing on a rope straight through the window of a house on the opposite side of the street.

In addition to Mantell, Thomas and Miss Rubens, the cast of Under the Red Robe, includes such well known players as Sydney Herbert, William H. Powell, Genevieve Hamper, Inez MacLaren, Mary MacLaren, Rose Coghlan, Otto Kruger, Andrew Dillen, Evelyn Gosnell, Gustav von Seyffertitz, and Arthur Housman.

Under the Red Robe will be shown once on Sunday evening at 7:30 and twice daily at 2:30 and 7:30. At the evening shows all seats are reserved and tickets for all performances are now on sale at the box office.

Today's bill consists of Harry Carey in Desert Driven the opening chapter of The Way of a Man, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy. Continous show today from 1:30 to 10.15 and a special showing for school children this morning at 10.30.

PALACE THEATRE

When Charles H. RossKam brings his Chicago Stock Company to the Palace theatre the entire week of February 18th the theatergoers of this city will have the opportunity of witnessing six of the greatest New York hits that have ever been presented at popular prices. Each of which will be staged in exact replica of the original New York production and acted by one of the finest companies that has ever appeared in stock, headed by Miss Jean White the former star of the notable stage success Turn to the Right and W. James Bedell who is said to be a typical matinee idol. The cast also includes Jack Berry, Edmund Moses, Freddie Beaudoin, Anthony Brewer, George M Bradley, Carl B. Sherred, Ernest Gale, Fred Bender and the Misses Dorothy Burns, Rae Mack, Lauella Arnold, Elizabeth Bently, Racheal Garwood and Estelle Gable.

The opening production of the engagement Monday matinee and night will be Allan Langdon Martin's remarkable fantasy Smilin' Through, which the New York critics styled the "wonder play." Miss Jane Cowl starred for two solid years in this play on the spoken stage and Miss Norma Talmadge made the movie production, which is without question the hit of her long and brilliant career.

Other famous plays to be found in the Chicago Stock repertoire are Six Cylinder Love, the automobile comedy that ran a year at the Harris theater in New York, Nice People a clever expose of the jazz life in which Francine Larrimore won stellar honors, Her Temporary Husband the comedy in which William Courtnay starred, Getting Gertie's Garter the screaming comedy by Avery Hopwood, the smashing dramatic success The White Sister and the American sweetheart play The Love Test.

There will be a change of play daily, matinee every day and pleasing popular prices will prevail.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

THE PEOPLE'S FIGHT.

It would seem that interest of the people of this country in tax reduction was enough so that it would not be necessary for the president to urge them to make their wishes known to congress in order to secure the passage of the Mellon bill. It is known that a great many of them have let it be known in no uncertain terms that they desire the benefit of the non-partisan, scientific cut in taxation as worked out by the head of the treasury department. The time for the remainder to declare themselves in a similar manner is now. President Coolidge has placed emphasis upon this.

But even if he had not spoken, the fact that the democrats in congress have caucused upon the matter of a tax bill and have voted to support the Garner bill, which was conceived for political purposes and put forth solely for the purpose of raising opposition to an administration measure, makes it clear that the people must do their part in winning their own fight. Politics should have no place when it comes to a matter of cutting taxes and yet that is the intention of the democrats in both houses.

There are those democrats who will not be bound by the caucus. There are some that have pledged themselves to the Mellon plan and there are others who are favorably disposed and will probably vote for it. Even this support of the measure will not be sufficient to give it any more votes than are needed, if the trouble making radicals cling to the course which they have been following.

Congress has been giving much more attention to the subject of tax reduction than it had planned to do it has found it necessary to do so because of the expressions that have come from the people of the country. What might have happened to the Mellon bill, except for the public demand that has been made, is decidedly uncertain. It isn't by any means assured that it will be adopted even now, but the opportunity to impress congress with the wishes of those represented, who are of course particularly interest should not be lost. It means a telling influence.

NEW IMMIGRATION LEGISLATION

When the immigration question is tackled, especially when it comes to adopting new legislation, it must be looked at from many angles. Conditions either here or abroad are not always the same, and while we must look carefully to our own welfare in admitting newcomers it is wise to also give a bit of thought the effects that may be involved for others.

Concerning the Johnson immigration bill now before congress in which there would be further restrictions placed on immigrants, protests have already been received from Italy and there are other nations which are not pleased at the plan to allow less of their subjects to come to these shores. Japan has for a long time felt injured that its subjects were debarred, and Secretary Hughes has considered it proper to direct attention just now to the provision in the Johnson bill concerning the Japanese and to advise against it. He believes that we ought not to make them feel that we are discriminating against them, but that we should treat them the same as others.

The Japanese are not the only ones that would be excluded, but there is at the present time an agreement between the two countries relative to immigration. With the nations working together in behalf of restriction there are about 7,000 Japanese who come here yearly. It is to the credit of Japan that it stands up for its nationals. It believes that they should be allowed to come in on the same basis as other nations. Possibly the greatest opposition to such a plan in the past has come from the Pacific coast where there are better known. Because they have been practically excluded in the past there are so few Japanese in the country now, or at the date selected upon which to base the quotas, that even the placing of Japan upon the same basis as the others it would mean less than 300 Japanese immigrants a year, or much less than are coming in now, and there would be no upsetting of the good relationship between the nations. It is a matter that needs to be considered before the new immigration legislation is adopted.

LIMITING ALL NAVIES.

A most favorable impression was created by the Washington conference which brought about a limitation of the naval equipment of five nations. It was felt at the time that there had been included the leading nations, and that inasmuch as it was the example of the leaders that prompted the action of the others in naval construction the guidance of that conference would be generally accepted.

Notwithstanding such a possible result the league of nations has called a conference which is now in session at Rome for the extension of the principles set forth in that treaty to the nations that are not involved in the naval agreement. There is involved of course not only the desire to prevent war but to do away with the great amount of needless expenditure of money for the building of warships. Such bears quite as much upon the other nations as it does upon the five concerned in the existing treaty.

Calling a conference of nations with such an object in view and getting the desired result are decidedly different propositions. According to the plan the navies of the respective nations would be restricted to their equipment at a certain date. That would leave their relative strength as it is now, but it would be a limit which the nations could not exceed. Whether the idea of what is fair for one is fair for the other will prevail remains to be seen. There will be those which will take the view that they should not be restricted in providing for their proper security, and that such security is governed by different conditions in each case.

Apparently much reliance is being placed upon the agreement that now exists among nations having much more at stake, but the individual security idea, which made it impossible to come to any such agreement at the Pan American conference, is likely to be one of the stumbling blocks. It is well that the nations have gotten together for the discussion of such an understanding, and the hope is that it will have a successful outcome.

BLOCKING SLANDER.

What Frank A. Vanderlip had to say at a banquet in Ossining and what he had to say before the senate committee in Washington were no more alike than black and white, and the manner in which he said them was also in marked contrast.

The fact of the matter is that Mr. Vanderlip was dealing with nothing but gossip, those stories that are distorted as they are handed about. He takes the view that he didn't believe them, that he regarded them as scandal, but he adopted an unfortunate course in giving them far wider publicity by the course that he followed.

Not only was he dealing with things about which he knew nothing when he made a reference to the sale of the Marion Star but he was giving an entirely wrong impression concerning the conduct of the senate committee in not insisting upon further Fall testimony.

Concerned, as he declared himself to be, in behalf of having the scandal branded for what it is and thus stopped, he took what must be regarded as a very bad method of accomplishing it. He hopes that his testimony will be able to overtake his banquet assertions and nullify them. That is often the desire after some wrong has been done, but he should have known how difficult it is for the branding of a scandal as such, to reach those to whom the scandal was told. Mr. Vanderlip has heard many stories about other things which he must have decided ought not to have been spread broadcast because of their apparent falsity. That was the view that Washington was taking about the things which he took it upon himself to exploit.

Mr. Vanderlip's testimony before the committee caused him some uncomfortable moments, it was reported. It can be easily imagined. Those who spread scandal to say at the end it isn't so frequently find that the denial gets the soft pedal.

THE BREAK AT LUXOR.

Of course if you are interested in Egyptology, or have been making plans so that you might make a pilgrimage to the tomb of King Tutankhamen, there will be keen disappointment over the disagreement that has arisen between Mr. Carter, the successor of Lord Carnovan in the search for King Tut's remains, and the Egyptian government. For the most part it will be of little concern to others.

There are those who have felt that the tomb should not have been disturbed in the first place, that it should have been left undiscovered or at least unopened, quite the same as there has been an opposition to the digging up of graveyards in Europe in the search for bones to be brought to this country.

The difficulties at Luxor seem to have arisen all of a sudden. The denial of the ladies of the Carter party to look at the mummy, immediately after its discovery, seems a strange reason for upsetting the agreement between the excavators and the government. It only indicates that stress was really placed upon the so-called divisions of the spoils.

It is always unfortunate where there is a failure to carry out the terms of a contract. A situation has arisen in Egypt which ought to be susceptible of adjustment. It is evidently the culmination of friction that has been experienced in greater or less degree from the first. Having rested in his tomb for a period of about 4,000 years King Tut seems destined to remain there a bit longer. Just how long is the question.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

On Tuesday of this week, the mind of this nation, and to a considerable extent the mind of the world, was reminded of an event that occurred on February 12, 1809. His career is a good illustration that Fate or Providence—which ever way you look at it—knows just where the man is to do a particular job. Does not all the evidence go to show that he was as directly selected to emancipate the southern slaves as Moses was to release the Hebrew bondmen? And if there was now a Bible in the process of making his spirit and deeds would occupy about the same place in it as the life and spirit of Moses do in the Bible we have. The age in which men live has nothing to do with the splendor of their deeds or the moral grandeur of their characters. Greatness is always and everywhere greatness, the only difference being in the channels of its manifestation. The place which this great spirit made for himself in the hearts of the American people is absolutely secure.

It is generally admitted that the presidency of the United States is the most difficult position on earth. The king of England has a "soft snap" compared with the routine duties that fall to the lot of our presidents. It seems a little strange that our presidents who are chosen by the people should have far greater power than those who are supposed to rule by divine right, but such is clearly the case. The virtual ruler in England is the prime minister, whom parliament by courtesy allows the king to select. But the question is being more and more debated in this country whether or not we are piling upon our presidents a vast amount of work of secondary importance; work that might be relegated to others, and so let the president devote all of his attention to the more important matters of state. For instance, why bother him with the appointment of the postmaster for Frog Hollow, Maine, or Devil's Den, Cal? Why should this matter even be brought to his notice?

The housing problem has reached a very critical stage in many quarters, to that extent that family living in the fuller and better sense is quite handicapped. Many suggestions of relief have been made of varying value. The cost of building material and especially the present expensiveness of labor make it impossible for the average laboring man to build as he would like, and as family conditions require. The question has been practically settled in Norway by making it a municipal question. The average municipality has greater credit than the average business concern? There is no property on earth more secure today than real estate in the United States. This is seen in the fact that it has been going up in value for a quarter [illegible] century it could be mortgaged at low interest rates, and thus relieve the people from the present hold ups on the part of landlords.

Since the last installment of these talks we have been having a touch of weather more like the typical New England February. We are not quite satisfied to let this winter touch go by without showing just what we can do along the line of the spectacular. She has given us a very respectable ice-storm. It takes some one of the Ruskin rank to correctly translate the beauty of trees and shrubs when ice-coated and sparkling in the sunlight to our common appreciation. As the writer rambled through the woods on Feb. 7 some lessons were pointed out to him. The birches, unable to bear their extra burdens, were bent over to the ground. It reminded him of a young fellow taking on so much of the elixir of life as to that he bent himself because his backbone was weak. But oaks, elms and walnuts with a much heavier coating of ice, stood up under the heavy load because they were strong. Men as well as trees are tested.

"I never had a policy. I have simply tried to do what seemed best each day, as each day came." These wise words were spoken by Abraham Lincoln. To get the exact meaning these words were intended to convey, one needs to know the circumstances under which they were spoken. It is quite evident that they did not apply to the trend of his great political duties, because as the head of the new republican party is was necessary to have a clearly defined policy. And this he had, and this he proclaimed until the ends of the earth heard his voice. He was probably refering to the routine of his daily life. And as far as this goes there is no call for a policy on the part of a high minded man. If one's life is based on principle one will do rightly all the time. There is a difference between doing a thing because it is right, and doing it because it is policy. We have too many of the latter.

Of course Lincoln's birthday is the the one outstanding feature of Feb. 12. It is quite easy to understand why it should completely overshadow everything else that is likely to occur on that day. And as we look over the past we find few things that are worthy of note in comparison. However this date marks also the first transmission of a report to a newspaper by telephone. The first telephone message came from Salem, Mass. to the Boston Globe, February 12, 1877. It is needless to state that at the Boston end there was wonder that bordered on consternation. It is not at all strange that is was followed by general astonishment exactly as we wonder at the broadcasting of speeches and songs today without wires. What the next step will be in the transmission of sound no one is rash enough to predict. It is safe to say that the end is not yet.

The passing of a man of world-wide fame always furnishes food for reflection, and his most pronounced enemy would grant this to Woodrow Wilson. No competent judge will deny that he was a man of keen intellectual perceptions. They were clear-cut and pronounced by nature, and were made more so by the most liberal education that his country could give. His post-graduate life as teacher and administrator of a great university was along the same line. That he was lacking some important qualities that enter into the make-up of a great man will also be admitted. But no man has them all. It he had possessed some of the more human traits that made Lincoln so conspicuous, he would easily be our greatest product. Like Lincoln he was greatly abused, and many things said about his private life, we may say in judicial language "were not proven." During the war, Washington was rife with rumors about him. But the gossip of Washington, D. C. has no more reliability than the thin drivel of Skunk Hollow, U. S. A.

Plato said, "the proper study of mankind is man." The great Greek philosopher realized that the two important studies were men and things. He was also keen enough to see that men meant more to their respective nations than their laws. They had personality, and personality will live after laws are dead and forgotten. Plato also knew that the best way to approach what men do is first to approach the men themselves, and by understanding men you have a better understanding of their mind and deeds. Therefore "the proper study of mankind" i. e. the first and most important study of mankind is or ought to be man himself.

THE ROBBER AND THE CASH BOX.

Yesterday she had lost her keys. Today the cash drawer was short twenty dollars. Martha counted her petty cash again to make sure she was not mistaken—but she wasn't.

Now, to realize fully how Martha felt, one would have to be working for the first week with a new firm and undergo the same experience. How was she to explain? How was she to cover up the fact that she had been careless?

Martha skipped lunch that noon—she was too worried about th cash shortage to eat. It had been the custom to close the office at noon now when the lawyer for whom she worked was away as he was on this occasion, so Martha locked the door that she might do her worrying alone.

Again she went through the cash. There was always a balance of at least one hundred dollars carried for petty cash—and now her books could account for just eighty. Twenty dollars short! The thought brought tears and Martha retreated to the wash room to remove the traces of them.

She heard a key inserted in the lock of the outer room, the door open and a step sound. Martha's heart pounded. Her mind went immediately to the lost keys. She peeped out and there, sauntering coolly toward the cash drawer, was a strange man. His back was to her—a familiar back, but certainly not that of the lawyer or his secretary. This was a taller, stronger man.

He had a key that opened the cash drawer. Martha's keys again. Martha watched him in horror, as his hand came out of the cash box and two bills were stuffed in his pocket.

Quite unconscious of the fact that he was being watched, the man turned about. Martha staggered, then screamed:

"Justin Thomas!" Sheer amazement in these words. "You—a thief!"

He was by her side in an instant.

"Why, Martha, dear," he began. "What are you doing here?"

"That's what I am asking you!" Martha fairly screamed. "How did you get my keys—how dare you come to this office? Oh, you petty thief—you—you——" but her words were smothered in her anger and amazement.

A shade of amazement twinkled over the man's lips, as he viewed the excited little lady before him.

"So I'm caught in the act at last," he smiled faintly. "Caught at my old tricks, eh?"

"Oh Justin!" All the anger had fled, and there was only pity in Martha's voice. "You poor boy, are you—were you—have you always been a thief? And I thought you were a gentleman."

He hung his head—he was either laughing at her, or too ashamed to face her.

At last he spoke. "You condemn me for what circumstances have forced upon me?" he asked.

"Condemn you? Oh no! I could never condemn the man I have promised to marry. But why didn't you tell me before—and what made you come here?"

"Because I possess the keys," he answered lamely.

Those words brought realization.

"Why, you stole those keys from me!" she accused him. "You used me for a tool." An angry flush spread over her features. There was contempt in her voice when she spoke again. "And I was fool enough to think I loved you—loved a common, scheming thief."

She clutched the telephone.

"What are you going to do?" he demanded.

"Telephone the police," she answered without fear.

"Don't do that," he warned. "You'll regret it."

"Threaten me, do you?" she smiled grimly. "All right, do your worst, Mr. Petty Thief." And with that she called the police station.

Thomas stood back coolly as she gave her message to headquarters and asked for help.

"I suppose you'll attempt escape now," she said as she put down the telephone.

"No, what would be the use? They'd only find me anyway. I guess I'll wait and take my medicine."

For several minutes they stood there, silent, facing each other, thinking deeply.

Barely a month ago Martha had met this man in the country, where she had gone for a rest before taking her new position. There had been a short courtship. Martha had loved this man and he had seemed to love her. Last night he had followed her to the city. There had been talk of a wedding, talk of a home. It had all been so glorious—but now what a shattering of dreams!

Martha just couldn't stand it.

"Go!" she cried suddenly. "Go, before it is too late. I can't give you over to the police—I can't."

"But, dear" — he protested.

"Go! Don't let me see you again, but go!" she repeated.

Too late. A step sounded on the stair; the door opened.

"Why, Justin, old boy, when did you get back?" It was the voice of Martha's employer.

Justin extended a hand. "Before I answer that please explain to Miss Martha Curtis that I have access to your cash box, Harry—and why," he smiled.

"Why, of course. Miss Curtis, this is Mr. Thomas, the silent partner of the firm."

"And a very dumb one, too," Justin added, "so dumb that he has come down two days in succession without a cent of cash in his pocket—that's why he had to come to the cash box for funds. You will find my I. O. U. for the twenty I took yesterday somewhere in that drawer—I would have written one today if you hadn't interrupted me."

"Justin, you never told me," Martha managed to grasp. "Why—"

"Hush," Justin cautioned. Now we'll have to do some explaining to a policeman."

And sure enough, they did.—Ottawa Citizen.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

A most romantic career is that of T. V. O'Connor, who has been designated as chairman of the United States Shipping Board by President Coolidge. He is a native of Ireland who came to America in boyhood and has made Buffalo his home since 1872. For many years he worked as a fireman and engineer on a harbor tug, finally emerging as national leader of the dockers' union, one of the most powerful labor organizations in the country. This position he retained until the summer of 1921, when Pres. Harding appointed him to the Shipping Board, of which body he has been vice-chairman. During the World war Mr. O'Connor was a member of the National Adjustment Commission, to fix wages and working conditions of longshoremen. It was due to him that the dockers barred strikes during the war and made possible vast movements of men and munitions without a hitch.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

TULCAN

"Tulcan, the Ecuador city reported wiped out by an earthquake, lies in a region where the only rift in nature's lute seems to be siesmic disturbances," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Tulcan had about 5,000 people It lay 100 miles northeast of Quito, near the Colombia border, and was accessible only by a mule trail.

"One writer says the climate is so beautiful that 'Hens lay so persistently that medicine has to be given them to save their lives.'

"The mule ride is the last stretch of a waterway, rail, and bridle-path route which takes a visitor up South America's principal Pacific river, the Guyas, to Guayaquil, Ecuador's principal port, and thence to the country's capital, Quito, after two days' railroad travel.

"Quito is only 286 miles from Guayequil, but th trans do not travel by night. That is the visitor's good fortune, for the route discloses the rugged beauty of the Andes and traverses regions which produce staples of American retail trade—Panama hats, quinine and cocoa.

"Though hidden far from the busy world, Tulcan was a thriving community, to which American exporters' representatives in Guayaquil sent agents, and its own people frequently joined the colorful crowds on the streets of Quito, a capital above the clouds.

"Quito resembles our own capital in that it is more residential and governmental than a business city. Ladies in smart motor cars shop at stores displaying the latest importations from New York, London and Paris. American Indians frequently come to Washington; but the Ecuadorean Indians are far more plentiful in Quito's streets. They stroll about in orange ponchos, sailor-like cotton trousers, and broad-brimmed hats. These native colores usually can be identified by the shapes of their [illegible] by cut of their hair, or a turn of their headdress.

"There is no daylight saving problem in Quito. Day and night are twelve hours the year round. The climate is just as equable—it is always early spring in Quito—but there is a 10-degree difference between the sunny [illegible] of the direct Equatorial rays and the shade.

"Four hours toward the mountains will take one in a region of perpetual frost; in half a day one can descend to the deep and sultry valleys between the ranges and spurs of the Andes.

"One Ecuadorean chocolate plantation produces 25,000 pounds of cacao yearly for American and European confection makers. The cacao beans are spread, for drying, over [illegible] of bamboo mattings. Workmen usually [illegible] them with bare feet occasionally to make sure they dry. When the pods are first opened the beans and pulp are creamy white; they grow brown after exposure to air.

"Quito, from the slopes of the hills which surround it, present a picture of dazzling white, relieved by the red roofs of its wooden houses.

"Although wood is its only available building material, Guayaquil's public buildings, churches and theater are noted for their architectural beauty. And because its buildings are wood it maintains what is reputed to be the largest fire department of any city if its size in the world. In times past it suffered from disastrous fires.

"Sixty miles up-river, Guayaquil is the country's great distributing center. It has one manufacturing industry of great importance to the United States—that of Panama hat making. It exports more than a million dollars' worth of headgear annually. The raw material comes from smaller inland cities; the finished product gets its name from the canal through which it is shipped to this country.

"One other prospect of northern Ecuador which is not so pleasing is the snow-clad, ever active, volcanic Cotopaxi, with its illomened smoke halo. The crater is near Latacunga, where the legend survives that the great earthquake of 1698 was foretold by a priest. The Carmelite nuns of Latacunga, so the story goes, held to their faith in the prophecy for seven years during which they slept in tents in their gardens. Their faith was rewarded when the quake finally came, for their convent fell, but the tent-dwellers escaped."

Stories That Recall Others

A Great Band Master.

Billy could operate the phonograph and although he could not read he knew the names of all the records. One day he was playing for his grandfather and selecting a record with great care, he proudly announced:

"Now, listen Grandpa, this is a dandy one. It is Susan's band."

Tipping the Scales.

The proverbial scales of justice underwent a severe strain recently when a court officer received notice to appear before a justice of the peace for failure to pay his 1922 dog license.

Surprise seized him, because he owned no dog in 1922. He explained that he got possession of his dog late in the spring of 1923 and paid the 1923 tax and hence owed no 1922 tax. When asked to pay the previous year's levy he sided with Mark Twain in declaring it to be "2 mutch."

Troubles Ended

Forbes declares first bottle of Tanlac brought marked change for better in his condition. Says it is great.

"What I know about Tanlac after trying it out is certainly worth passing on to everybody," is the matter of fact statement of Michael J. Forbes, 706 North 44th St., Philadelphia.

"Nervous indigestion, loss of appetite and upset nerves had been the bane of my existence for a year or more. In spite of my efforts to find relief, I continued to lose weight and grow weaker and more restless.

"My very first bottle of Tanlac brought a wonderful change over me. I am on my fifth bottle now and am feeling just right in every way. I eat and digest everything, sleep like a top and get up mornings feeling fine. Tanlac is great and I am glad to speak out in its praise."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

HEARD VIVID RECITAL OF MISSIONARY WORK

The Women's Missionary department of the United Congregational church held its regular meeting Friday afternoon at the Community House. A very interesting program was enjoyed to which the women of Park Church Missionary society were invited. After the business meeting the president, Miss Nancy Lucas introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Miss Olive Pearson, assistant field secretary of the Congregational Educational Society, who told most pleasingly and convincingly of her work among the Mountain whites in the south. A dramatization The Highlanders' New Day in charge of Mrs. Luther H. Zabriskie was given by six young women, the Misses Dorothea Simpson, Dorothy Messler, Louis Latimer, Catherine Zumbro, Betty Zumbro and Edith Budzack who represented Mountain White Girls at the home of a girl who had attended one of the missionary schools.

The Haviland Class offered for sale home-made food, the proceeds to be used toward the talent money for the missionary apportionment.

RECRUITS ARE GAINED BY HOURIGAN POST

Richard E. Hourigan Post, No. 594, V. F. W., held its regular business meeting Tuesday evening in the Venice. There was a large attendance and Commander A. J. Turner presided.

Several recruits were added to the membership roll. It was voted to hold another social evening and smoker at the next post meeting which will occur February 26th. A large attendance is expected.

The V. F. W. relief committee has made very satisfactory reports. They have kept in touch with the comrades in the hospitals and are also caring for distressed comrades in this city. The post is making plans for a big membership drive to be held in the near future. The national department is offering valuable prizes to posts all over the country for the best showing in the drive. The local veterans are enthusiastic over the offer and are going out for first prize.

WEDDINGS.

Fielding-Hatch

Rev. Leroy Norris Fielding, formerly pastor of the First Methodist church in Upton, Mass., now in charge of a pastorate at Graniteville, and Miss Helen May Hatch, of Upton, were married last Monday noon by Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Boston, in the Upton Methodist church with many friends and relatives present.

The best man was Rev. Robert Hartley of Tennessee, now at the Boston University Theological school and the bridesmaid was Miss Viola Austin of Upton. The ushers were George Nichols and Howard Hill. The interior of the church was attractively decorated in white.

The flower girls were Thelma Brownell of Upton and Eleanor Trask of Graniteville. The wedding rings were carried by the flower girls in their baskets. The double ring service was conducted. Robert Irving of Upton was trainbearer.

Mrs. Charles Bennett of Norwich, Ct., an aunt of Rev. Mr. Fielding, gave away the bride at the altar.

Rev. Dr. Charles Spaulding of Worcester, district superintendent of the Methodist churches, and Rev. Clare Van Metre, present pastor of the local Methodist church, were among the prominent guests present at the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white georgette crepe trimmed with silver beads and wore a silk net veil trimmed with orange blossoms and buds. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Austin, bridesmaid, wore an orchid-tinted georgette crepe gown and black picture hat. She carried a bouquet of lavender colored sweet peas.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given to Rev. and Mrs. Fielding in the vestry of the church after which they left on a short wedding trip. On Saturday night Rev. and Mrs. Fielding are to be given a reception at Graniteville by members of his present church parish.

The bride was tendered a shower last night in the church vestry by a party of local friends. She was the recipient of many gifts.

Rev. Mr. Fielding during his stay in Upton was fundamental in the organizing of a club from his church which went to homes of elderly and sickly people to give an evening's musical entertainment, revived interest in the Wesley Men's club and formed a boys' club. Last summer he was the prime mover in the forming of the Upton church Twilight baseball league which proved to be most successful. The bride has taken an active part in the activities of the Methodist church.

The groom is well known in this city where he was prominent in Trinity Methodist church before going to Boston to study for the ministry.

CHARGE ASSAULT AND ROBBERY OF PRESTON MAN NOW DEAD

After being arrested Friday afternoon by County Detective William Lewis of New London, Thomas Keeley of 12 Hickory street, driver of a public service car was presented before Justice of the Peace Appleton Main in Poquetanuck Friday night on the charge of beating the late Julius Mattern and robbing him of $10 on Oct. 25 about 4.30 in the morning.

Keeley pleaded not guilty and Justice Main continued the case to March 12, putting Keeley under $1,000 bonds which were furnished. A warrant was made out for Arnold Beran of New London, now said to be out of the state, but who Keeley admits was with him at Mattierns place in Preston on the night in question.

Mattern died last Tuesday at the tuberculosis sanatorium, but there was nothing brought out at the hearing to connect his death with the effects of the beating he received.

Grnad Juror William Mitchell prosecuted the case Friday and the evidence against Keeley was produced in a statement by County Detective Lewis of what George Mattern had told him of the assault upon Julius.

The detective testified that George Mattern told him that Keeley and a man who was introduced as Ray Counihan of Norwich, but which subsequently was found to be a fake name for Beran were at the Mattern house about 4.30 on the morning of Oct. 25, having come by automobile. "Counihan" left first. The car was stopped near the gasoline tank and there was an argument about getting some gasoline without paying for it. George Mattern ordered Julius to lock up the tank and he than walked back to his own home. As he was going into the door he heard screaming. About an hour later he heard his brother Julius calling and he found him outside the house with both eyes closed and beaten otherwise. One shoe was missing and his clothing was torn, Julius told George that the two men had punched him and that "Counihan" had then said "Let's take him to the car and give him a good beating." Keeley objected to this, but Mattern was taken into the car where "Counihan" held him and they drove off about half a mile and then renewed the beating, took $10 from him and threw him over a stone wall.

George Mattern, according to Detective Lewis, later found a bunch of keys for the gas tank and the Mattern bungalow in the road and 10 feet over the wall found the empty pocketbook, but the missing shoe has never been found. Dr. Callahan attended Julius Mattern and said it was the worst beating he had ever seen a man get.

When asked by Justice Main what he had to say in his defense, Keeley stated that he met Beran after midnight in a Franklin square lunch room. Keeley had a bottle of alcohol and they finished that. Then Beran asked him if he knew where they could get some more. Keeley told him he did and Beran drove Keeley's car to the Mattern place at Keeley's direction. Mattern was asleep, but they got him up and he brought out some beer. It was flat and they didn't like it. Then he produced some wine but that was too sweet. Then Mattern produced whiskey and they kept on drinking until Mattern said they owed him $6. Keeley said he had a $10 bill and four ones in his pocket and he said he would pay after they got through drinking. Keeley said that he fell asleep and the next he knew Mattern and Beran were lifting him into his car and putting him into the back seat. He became sick as soon as the car started, but he heard Beran saying "I am a prohibition agent" and he saw Julius Mattern start to run away and fall in the road between the cottage and the gas tank. He fell asleep again and the next he knew was when his father was putting him to bed.

Keeley claimed he lost his $14. George Mattern came to his house the next day and wanted settlement for the $10 that he said had been stolen from Julius and said he wanted to get "Counihan" but would fix it all right with Keeley. Later an attorney had made a demand that Keeley pay $250 for Mattern's doctor's bills. Keeley said that the last time he saw Beran was at the railroad station in New London some time in November.

STATE POLICE SWOOP DOWN ON JEWETT CITY

Twenty six state police with county and federal officers swooped down upon Jewett City from all quarters in mid-afternoon Friday. The South street police station resembled the Tombs police court, in its palmiest days. Automobiles loaded to the guards with bottles, barrels and jugs, were being unloaded, and the liquor and beer of all sorts and color was being stowed in the station booze room. Plainclothes men and uniformed police were everywhere, bringing in the wet stuff and gambling devices the result of thirteen raids throughout the borough, and ten arrests were made. There was much excitement, and great crowds gathered to watch the exciting game.

The men were brought before Judge John T. Barry in the Griswold town court Friday night and released on ponds ranging from $100 to $1500 each to appear next Tuesday.

Several of those arrested had only recently completed serving terms in the New London county jail at Norwich.

Evidence on which the raids could be made had been quietly gathered recently by federal prohibition officers Harry Avery and Joseph Fitzpatrick who participated with county detective William Lewis in the raids Friday by the state police officers, who were in charge, Sergeant Albert S. Fields. The officers came from the Groton, Stafford Springs, Danielson and Centerbrook barracks.

The following were those arrested: Frank Minski, Harry Levine, Fred Noffle, store keepers; Paul Anthony, pool room proprietor; Joseph Gilwacki, bottling works; Joseph Foley, Dominick Leese, Peter Selsky, P. Dyeddic and wife.

The largest haul was made at the Minsky place where 4 quarts of whiskey, a barrel and a keg of wine, and 9 bottles of "Tom" gin were seized. At Anthony's pool room some cider and a gambling device were seized. At the other places the evidence consists of what is claimed to be liquor.

TOWN BRINGS SUIT TO COLLECT $742.31 TAXES

Suit against John and Mary Donovan of this city, husband and wife, has been brought by the town of Norwich to foreclose liens for unpaid taxes amounting to $742.31. The property covered is nine tracts of land on Roath street, North Cliff street and North Main street, and party defendants named are John A. Moran, Chelsea Savings bank and Dime Savings bank, all claiming mortgages on the property.

The taxes claimed are for four years as follows: 18 mills, Oct. 1918, $166.50; 17 1-4 mills, Oct. 1919, $159.56; 22 mills, Oct. 1920, $203.50; 23 mills, Oct. 1921, $212.75.

Papers in the case were filed Friday at the office of the clerk of the superior court.

OLD FOLKS CONCERT AT EASTERN STAR MEETING

The meeting of Sachem Chapter, No. 57, O. E. S., this week in Odd Fellows Hall with Worthy Matron, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, presiding held a short business session owing to the entertainment and dance which followed. A very interesting report of the Grand Chapter, which convened two weeks ago in Hartford, was read by the worthy matron.

The entertainment which followed the closing of the meeting was a well rendered Old Folks' Concert, also several interesting readings by Mrs. William E. Manning. Dancing was enjoyed later.

Will Work Odd Fellow Degree

With Noble Grand Spencer in the chair a regular business meeting of Uncas Lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., this week was followed by a social time. At the next meeting the second degree will be worked under the direction of Degree Master Frank M. Greene.

YE COLONIAL QUARTETTE PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

A delightful entertainment of songs, readings and dances for the benefit of Park Church Parish House association was given Friday evening before a large and very appreciative audience at Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Parish house. The programme was given by Ye Colonial Quartette under the direction of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, the members of the quartette being Mrs. Mabel C. Buckingham, Miss Hazel L. Banfield, Miss Florine L. Scofield, Mrs. Myra F. Ward with Miss Olive Linton presiding at the piano.

The programme was as follows:

Part 1—Grandma's Days—The Winning Ways (H. C. Eldridge) quartette; Greeting (Mendelssohn) and Evening Song, duet, Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield; reading, Act 1, The Romancers, (Rostand) Mrs. Ward.

Part 2—Kate Greenaway Days—Six Little Eskimos, (H. W. Loomis), solo, Miss Banfield; A Valentine (H. L. Brainard), solo, Mrs. Buckingham; Jack and Jill, and Little Jack Horner (E. Kars), duets, Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield; dance, Just Being Happy, (Chalif), Miss Scofield; reading, Little Orphant Annie (James Whitcomb Riley), Mrs. Ward; All Around the House, (A. Somervell) trio, Mrs. Buckingham, Mrs. Ward and Miss Banfield.

Part 3—Grandmother's Rose Jar—Mrs. Ward, reader; A Bowl of Roses, (R. C. Clarke) solo, Miss Banfield; My Love's Like a Red, Red Rose (Hardee) solo, Mrs. Buckingham; A Rose Dance, Miss Scofield; O, Promise Me (R. DeKoven) solo, Miss Banfield; The Last Rose of Summer, solo, Mrs. Buckingham; Once Upon a Time, trio, Mrs. Buckingham, Mrs. Ward and Miss Banfield.

During the evening the Park Church Camp Fire Girls, under the direction of Mrs. Louis Walden and Mrs. S. C. Pullen, conducted a successful home made candy sale. The Camp Fire Girls at the candy booth were Helen Clapp, Helen Burdick, Elizabeth Johnson, Harriet Geer, Ursula Lewis, Mary Shaver, Dorothy Prentice, Dorothy Harris, Constance Chapman, Muriel Hynd, Gladys Blicq, Anita Babcock. The money realized is for the benefit of the girls' summer camp.

In the main hallway several of the Park church Boy Scouts troop conducted a sale of birdhouses.

OBITUARY.

Nehemiah L. Dodge.

Nehemiah Lee Dodge, 77, died at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, Monday, Feb. 11, after a week's illness.

Funeral services were held in the M. E. church at Eastford, Thursday, Rev. J. K. Abbott officiating. Beautiful floral pieces were contributed by many friends. Burial was in Grove cemetery, Eastford, land formerly owned by his father and undoubtedly he had gathered nuts, picked berries or played in his boyhood days on or near the place where he lies at rest, now the City of the Dead.

Mr. Dodge was born in Eastford, March 28, 1847, the son of Capt. Augustus and Mary Tilden Dodge, of Eastford. His father built the first tannery in that place and was engaged in the tannery business for many years there.

He leaves a brother, Merriman E. Dodge of Eastford, four nephews, Prof. Clinton J. Backus of St. Paul, Minn., and Cal.; Charles H. Backus, banker and editor of Hampshire, Ill., Harry A. Gray of California, U. S. N., and Walter E. Dodge of Putnam. He had three nieces, Annie, Nellie and Grace S. Backus, all in the far west.

He will be missed for he was helpful, honorable in every way, kind-hearted, truthful and cheerful.

Prof. George H. Tracy

Prof. George H. Tracy, 81, principal of the Gildersleeve High school from 1896 until its consolidation with Portland, Conn., High school, and then principal of the Gildersleeve common school until 1907, died at his home in Gildersleeve February 11th of hardening of arteries.

Mr. Tracy was born of missionary parents, at Pasumalai, South India, Feb. 18, 1842. At the age of ten he was placed in a Sewickly, Ohio, boarding school conducted by an uncle, where he was prepared for college. He was graduated from Williams college in 1868, and some years later the degree of master of arts was conferred on him by the same college.

In 1870 he married Martha L. Pierce, at South Royalton, Vermont, who with two sons survives him.

From 1872 until his retirement in 1907, Prof. Tracy was engaged in educational work in Connecticut, serving as principal of high schools in Durham, Colchester (Bacon Academy), Bristol, Waterbury and Portland. During this entire period he was eminently successful in fitting students for entrance to college. His instruction in the fundamentals of Latin and Greek was perhaps his strongest line from an educational standpoint, but many of his former pupils remember him principally for the strong moral influence, which he always endeavored to exert and which in at least some cases had lasting results which have been gratefully acknowledged.

Brought up in a religious and missionary atmosphere, he has throughout his life been active in church work and was at his death senior deacon of Portland Congregational church.

He was known to a number of Norwich teachers who held him in the highest respect. Prof. Tracy and the late Supt. N. L. Bishop of Norwich, were long time friends. While principal of Bacon Academy, Colchester, Mr. Tracy served as president of the Eastern Connecticut Teachers' association.

CAMP TIPPECAN REUNION HELD BY BOY SCOUTS

The Norwich Boy Scouts who attended Camp Tippecan last summer held a banquet and reunion Friday evening at Odd Fellows hall. At 7 o'clock the 50 scouts and their guests sat down to a delicious roast chicken supper provided by the supper committee of Hope Rebekah Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F. The menu was as follows:

Grape Fruit
Peas Mashed Potatoes
Celery Cranberries
Pie
Cocoa Coffee

Scout Executive F. A. Benton acted as toastmaster. The evening's programme was as follows: Repeating the Scout oath, all scouts; scout song, scout and camp yells; reading of the Beech Nut, the camp paper, by Edward Antoofian, Alfred Herring and Albert Rogers; address, Scout Camp Life and Experiences, Rev. William C. Prentiss, Plainfield; remarks by Harry E. Prentice, chairman of the camp committee; brief remarks on the plans for the 1924 camp, Scout Executive F. A. Benton, magical exhibition, William J. Banfield.

Among those present at the gathering were George L. Ingalls, president of the Norwich Boy Scout Council; Harry E. Prentice, George H. Young, Arthur L. Peale and Harry W. Cardwell, members of the camp committee and Cecil Butler, chairman of the camp committee in Plainfield.

BREAK IN STOCK MARKET AS PUBLIC LOSES CONFIDENCE

New York, Feb. 15.—An avalanche of selling orders poured into today's stock market on the widespread circulation of reports that one of Wall street's most prominent traders had suspended his operations on the long side on the ground that public confidences had been undermined by the recent sensational disclosures at the Washington oil lease inquiry. Net losses in the active issues ran from 1 to 8 points while Fisher Body, which had advanced from 163 to 205 in the last six weeks, broke 13 points.

Powerful financial interests, who usually come to the support of such standard issues as U. S. Steel and Baldwin Locomotive, apparently permitted the reaction to run its course, the former stock dropping 3 1-8 points to 103 1-3 and the latter breaking 6 points to 120 1-2. The average of 20 leading stocks in the industrial and railroad groups showed net losses of about 2 1-4 and 1 1-4 points, respectively, bringing them back to where they were about a month ago.

Oils, because of their close association to the Washington inquiry, were the hardest hit although strangely enough the shares of the Pan-American Petroleum and Sinclair Oil companies which have been directly involved in the testimony, held relatively steady due to active covering by bear traders who have been selling them short. However, the two Pan-American issues and Sinclair at their closing prices today, showed a combined loss in the market value on outstanding capitalization of nearly $75,000,000 from the high prices of the year. Pan American and the B stock were off 22 1-2 and 17 3-8 points, respectively, while Sinclair was off 7 1-4 points from 1924 tops.

Weak spots in the oil group included Pacific, Phillips Petroleum, Standard Oil of California, Cosden, Atlantic Refining, General Asphalt Houston, Maracaibo and Tidewater off 2 1-2 to 7 1-2 points. Other outstanding losses were registered by General Electric, American Can, National Lead, DuPont, Republic Steel Gulf States Steel, Otis Elevator, Corn Products, Sears Roebuck, Sloss Sheffield Steel, Punta Alegre Sugar, U. S. Realty and Woolworth, all of which closed 4 1-2 to 8 points below yesterday's final quotations.

The reaction was conducted in the face of favorable trade news which included higher Pig Iron, lead and copper prices and publication of statistics showing that car loadings for the week ending February 2 were the largest of any week in January or February on record.

Brokers reported that investors and speculators have been growing uneasy over the developments at Washington despite the repeated assurance that these have not affected the economic situation. This has been reflected in the steady liquidation of oil shares, particularly those of companies involved in the naval oil leases.

Therefore, they added, rumors such as were spread about Wall street today fell on fertile ground and made possible one of the most drastic declines of the past year.

Parsnip Has Double Growth.

A parsnip which extended its growth through the neck of a bottle, is among the garden freaks of the year. This unusual growth is reported from Ryde, Isle of Wight, and if was a healthy specimen when displayed. It resembles a double parsnip in that from the surface down the parsnip grew to good proportions, then pointed a course through the neck of a broken bottle and again grew to fair proportions on the other side of the temporary obstruction.

Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford of Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees, of Greenwich, Conn., members of the democratic national committee were invited to attend the meeting to be held in Chicago Monday to decide upon William G. McAdoos availability as a candidate for the democratic nomination for president.

JACKSON IS GIVEN VERDICT FOR $16,711.04 BUT JUDGE SETS IT ASIDE

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 15.—Joe Jackson, former outfielder for the Chicago American league club, today was given a verdict for $16,711.04, against the club for salary under a contract signed in 1920, but the court set aside the verdict and dismissed the case. Whether an appeal will be taken will be decided tomorrow, Raymond J. Cannon, counsel for Jackson, said tonight.

"We view the victory obtained by Jackson from a jury of 12 men and women to be so far reaching as to bring about Jackson's ultimate return to organized baseball," Mr. Cannon said.

Judge J. J. Gregory, trial judge, bitterly criticised the jury, declaring the case was based on perjury, and set aside the verdict and dismissed the action. During the trial, Judge Gregory ordered the arrest of Oscar ("Hagy") Felsch, a former team-mate of the plaintiff and a witness for him, for alleged perjury. Jackson was arrested on a like charge at the conclusion of the trial. The former players are at liberty under bond.

The jury answered in favor of the plaintiff all questions presented to it by the court for consideration. It answered in the affirmative two questions as to whether the defendant club had offered the player a sum sufficient to make his share in the world series $6,000, and whether the club had represented to Jackson that his contract contained no ten day release clause.

Questions answered in the negative were whether Jackson had conspired with "Chick" Gandil, "Lefty" Williams and other White Sox to "throw" any of the games in the 1919 world series; whether Williams gave Jackson $5,000 before all the games had been played, and whether Jackson was informed at the time that there had been an agreement among certain players to throw the series and that the $5,000 was his share of the the money for "throwing" the games.

Jackson sued the club for $20,000 alleged to be due him on the unexpired contract and bonus. No award under the bonus claim was given by the jury, notwithstanding its answer.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE WINS SERIES FROM PLAINFIELD

The Army-Navy club basketball five of Taftville wound up the series with the Plainfield Community five for the basketball title of Eastern Connecticut on Friday evening at Plainfield by trimming the Plainfield team on their own floor, 24 to 16. Although Plainfield was strengthened by Horan, former Holy Cross star, and two other court stars from Worcester, they were unable to hold the fast traveling Army-Navy team.

The local team started off with a rush and at the end of the first half were leading by a score of 17 to 7. In the second the Plainfield five, which lacked team work, started to take long chances at the hoop and managed to cut down the lead but were powerless to get within winning distance. The game was one of the best seen on the Plainfield floor and was witnessed by a crowd of about 600 enthusiastic basketball fans. The star of the game was Harry Mills, whose floor work was an important factor in the Taftville victory. The summary:

WAR DEPARTMENT APPROVES NATIONAL RIFLE MATCHES

Washington, Feb. 15.—The war department has given final approval to plans for the national rifle matches of 1924, to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, from the latter part of August into October.

Four new trophies will be provided for winning teams. The first will be awarded to the highest team representing the organized reserves, the second to the high man in the individual rifle matches, the third to the high man in the individual pistol match and the fourth to the winning team in the national inter-collegiate match.

Four periods of instruction and competition for teams representing the various branches of the national defense organization will be allowed in advance of the matches. The civilian military training camps and the reserve officers training camps will have from August 30 to September 15 in which to prepare, the school of instruction for the national guard and civilian teams from September 6 to 13, the National Rifle associations from September 15 to 24, the National Rifle and Pistol teams and individual rifle and pistol experts from September 25 to October 2.

WINDHAM LOSES CLOSE GAME TO MANCHESTER HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Feb. 15.—The Windham High quintet actually lost a chance of being one of the competing teams in the Yale tournament at New Haven later this season when the basketballers suffered defeat Friday night on the home floor at the hands of the South Manchester five 23 to 21. The visitors led the local boys by one point until the last few minutes of play when Windham evened up the score. Manchester then had a chance to step one point ahead on a foul called on one of the Windham players and the last whistle blew. During five minutes of extra play both teams had the opportunity to keep the score clear but Manchester was successful in registering on the foul and the game ended with the final score 23-21, in favor of the visitors. The game was one of the fastest played on the home floor. "Dit" Darling of Hartford was the arbiter.

It was generally understood that Friday night's game was of paramount importance to Coach C. A. Callahan of Windham High basketers, as victory meant competition with the teams in the Yale tournament. Information was received here that a different arrangement of plans has been made by the tournament officials who have grouped the high schools in the state in sections. South Manchester High is said to be in the same section as Windham and as the latter school was vanquished by the Silk Cityites, it practically loses its chance of being represented at the tournament.

STRIBLING-M'TIGUE BOUT PRACTICALLY ARRANGED

New York, Feb. 15. — Negotiations for a return engagement between Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, and Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy boxer, to be held in the First Regiment armory during the last week in March or the first week in April virtually have been completed, promoters announced today.

The match will be for 12 rounds, according to plans, and under the New Jersey boxing laws, which do not permit decisions, Stribling could gain his rival's crown only through a knockout or by winning on a foul.

Contracts are expected to be signed next Tuesday at a conference in Newark between promoters and rival managers—"Pa" Stribling, who guides the destinies of his son, and Paddy Mullins, who has taken McTigue under his managerial wing. The date has not yet been settled, according to Babe Culnan, one of the promoters, although Stribling was quoted today as saying March 31 had been agreed upon.

Financial terms were not disclosed but it was understood they had been agreed to by both fighters. It was understood McTigue was guaranteed $16,000 with a percentage privilege.

McTigue and his youthful rival fought a 12-round draw in a riotous bout at Columbus, Ga., last October. Ever since that unsatisfactory encounter, which McTigue claimed he fought with a broken left hand, Stribling has eagerly sought a return match. The youngster easily defeated Leo Rosenberg, well known middleweight, at Newark on New Year's day and impressed critics in his first metropolitan performance.

RECORDS IN DANGER AT WILSO A. A. GAMES TONIGHT

New York, Feb. 15.—Existing indoor track and field records will be subjected to one of the most formidable attacks of the season when a picked array of club and college stars match their speed in the Wilco A. A. carnival tomorrow night. More than 400 stars, including many champions and record-holders, are entered in eighteen events.

Joie Ray, doughty little Chicago distance runner, will be the chief center of interest, for he will try for new records at several distances in running the 2,000-metre special. Ray broke four world's marks in capturing this event a year ago and is out to rival this brilliant performance. He will be opposed by most of the leading distance stars, including Verne Booth, of Johns Hopkins; Elmer McLane, of Pennsylvania; Abel Kiviat, veteran who is making a sensational comeback, and Johnny Romig, of Penn State.

Other feature events include a match relay between Philadelphia and New York girl teams; a sprint series, with Loren Murchison, national champion, entered; 440 and 880-metre runs, with fleet fields competing; and the 50-yard high hurdles, in which Carl Christiansen and Herb Meyer, Newark A. C. stars, will seek to establish a new record.

COMISKEY WILL CONTINUE FIGHT AGAINST CROOKEDNESS

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago American league club, declared today after hearing of the dismissal at Milwaukee of Joe Jackson's suit for back salary from the club, that he would continue to fight crookedness in baseball and that if the sport could not be kept clean he would get out.

"I have made a fight at great expense, single-handed and alone, against these crooked ball players, and those, if any, in sympathy with them," he said in a statement. "It will be my duty and my pleasure to continue to do so. If we cannot keep the sport clean, even though it requires great energy and industry, I for one will abandon it. I am not willing to believe that public sentiment is not in sympathy with the fight I am making against these self-admitted crooks."

SHELBY READY TO STAGE ANOTHER FIGHT, SAYS MAYOR

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 15. — Shelby, Montana, the scene of the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons heavyweight championship fight of last July, is "ready to stage another big bout any time Dempsey cares to come back and visit us," declared Jim Johnson, mayor of Shelby, on his arrival here.

"Shelby, Montana, is far from broke," Mayor Johnson stated. "Shelby is a real live town with business going ajax and everybody happy. We're ready to stage another championship fight any time Jack Dempsey cares to come back and visit us. We will put up another big purse at any time."

TEN HOLDOUTS FROM FOLD OF THE DODGERS

New York, Feb. 15.—The Brooklyn Nationals disclosed today that ten players have not yet signed 1924 contracts. The list includes Bailey, E. Griffith and Nein, outfielders; Berg, Frisch, High, Jones and Klugman, infielders; Grimes, pitcher, and Taylor, catcher.

Klugman, second sacker obtained from Des Moines in the Western league, and Jonas, star shortstop bought from Portland in the Pacific Coast league, have demanded shares of their purchase prices before signing.

UNKNOWN SKATER IS BRILLIANT PERFORMER

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The victory of Francis Allen, Chicago, unknown and unheralded skater, in the three-quarter mile race was the brilliant feature today at the national amateur speed skating championship events on Pontiac rink.

Allen, who never has skated here before and who was not even considered as being among those who held a chance of winning, skated a brainy, careful race, holding himself with the leaders, but well back until the final lap was reached. Then he displayed everything a champion skater should have—speed, stamina and judgment—finishing just in the lead of the pack of four which swept almost as one over the finish line.

Eddie Murphy, also of Chicago, was second, and the judges, after a conference, awarded third place to Roy McWhirter, making it an all-Chicago victory. The time was 2:07, considerably slower than the record.

Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., put his specialty—sprinting—to good use in the half-mile event, winning hands down after the race had warned the skaters at the end of the second lap that the race would be re-skated if they did not show some speed.

Gorman took the advice to heart and opened up a gap which never was closed. McWhirter finished a late second and Richard Donevan, Saranac Lake, came in third. The time was 1:37, slow for the course.

Members of the American Olympic team again made a dismal showing, displaying none of their customary form, lacking speed and indicating in every way that they have not yet recovered from their sea voyage abroad.

The events tomorrow will be the one-quarter and three-mile races.

KILLINGLY TAKES ROUGH GAME FROM PAWTUCKET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Feb. 15.—The Killingly High school basketball team defeated Pawtucket High here tonight in a very rough game, 38 to 32, at the Town hall. Pawtucket led practically all the way but the Killingly boys launched a bewildering attack in the final quarter and came out the winners.

The game was fast and rough, the Pawtucket team getting away to a good start and the score at the end of the first half was 20 to 18 in their favor. In the third quarter they increased their advantage so that at the end of this period the score stood 30 to 24 in the visitors' favor. The fourth quarter was productive of some very fast playing on the part of the local boys who set a fast pace soon evening up the score at 32 to 32. Pawtucket could not stand the pace and showed up, the Killingly team forging ahead and winning, 38 to 32. The summary:

Boston, Feb. 15.—Curtis H. Fullerton, of Boston, today signed a contract to pitch for the Red Sox again this season. Playing with the team last year Fullerton had a fielding average of .923 and a batting average of .297.

DUANE AND BERLENBACH WIN IN NEW YORK BOUTS

New York, Feb. 15.—Carl Duane, New York Junior lightweight, won a judges' decision over vincent (Pepper) Martin, in a picturesque 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. Duane, in a clever exhibition outboxed his hard hitting rival throughout the match.

Martin's antics in the ring gave the bout a burlesque aspect. Once the Brooklyn boy simulated a knockout and then sprang to his feet sending in vicious rights and lefts. Again he laid limply against the ropes and waited for his opponent to come in. Then he opened another attack.

But in both of these feits, however, Duane covered cleverly and blocked most of Martin's swings. In return he jabbed his opponent with a left which cut Martin's face badly.

Duane weighed 136 3-4 and Martin 138 1-2.

Paul Berlenbach of New York score a technical knockout over pat Walsh of Cincinnati in the first round of a 12 round bout.

Referee Jack Sullivan stopped the match after Walsh had been knocked down twice in the two minutes and 40 second of boxing. The Cincinnati lad weighed 167 3-4 while Berlenbach weighed 168 3-4.

In the preliminary bout Joe Mandell of Philadelphia won on a foul from Lew Snyder of Brooklyn in the third round of a six round match. Harold Abbott of Rockaway Beach and Georgie West of England, fought a six round draw.

AMERICAN RACQUET PLAYERS WIN IN THREE MATCHES

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 15.—American players triumphed in three of the preliminary contests today, in the Canadian squash racquets championship.

L. F. Gilbert, Buffalo, defeated D. G. Ross, Toronto, 15-11, 15-10, 15-12; P. E. Callahan, Boston, eliminated C. E. Murphy, Quebec, 15-9, 13-15, 15-6, 16-13; and E. C. Church, Boston, won from W. H. Gilmour, Ottawa, 15-12, 15-8, 15-7.

L. M. Bass, Buffalo, was defeated by A. Martin, Hamilton, 15-13, 15-18, 13-15, 17-15, 15-4.

BOECKEL IN CRITICAL WAY AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENT

Los Angeles, Feb. 15.—Tony Boeckel, third baseman for the Boston Braves, is in a hospital in a critical condition as a result of an automobile accident near here today. He is suffering from a fractured pelvis and a puncture of the bladder. If he recovers, it is feared the accident will seriously affect his baseball career.

Bob Albright, Los Angeles theatrical man, who was driving the car in which Boeckel and Bob Meusel of the New York Yankees were passengers, suffered severe cuts. Meusel was not injured seriously.

KIRKWOOD LEADS FIELD IN TEXAS GOLF TOURNEY

San Antonio, Texas, Feb. 15.—Joe Kirkwood of Rockwood Hall, N. Y., led the field of 112 golfers at the end of the first 18 holes of the Texas open golf championship today with a 68. Jim Ockenden, French open champion, and Bob Peebles, of Louisville, were next with 69 each. Par is 72. Dick Lenares had 71, Jim Barnes 72, MacDonald Smith required 75 and John Black 77.

ACMY QUINTET SCHEDULED TO PLAY AT "Y" TONIGHT

The Y. M. C. A. Seniors are scheduled to meet the fast Acmy basketball quintette from New London tonight on the local Y. M. C. A. court. The Acmys have established themselves as one of New London's best teams, and the fact that the Y Seniors are playing good ball this season seems to indicate that tonight's contest will be a good one. The game will begin at 8 p. m.

STATE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP SLATED FOR SHUTTLE MEADOW

New Haven, Feb. 15.—The annual championship of the Connecticut Golf association will be held at the Shuttle Meadow club of New Britain, June 23 to 26, the executive committee announced tonight.

The one day events will be announced February 21.

SKI JUMPERS BREAK RECORDS AT BRATTLEBORO

Brattleboro, Vt., Feb. 15—Lars Haugen, of the Sioux Valley Ski Club, Canton, S. D., won the national senior ski jumping championship here today. Norman Berger, of the Montreal Ski Club, was second and Alf Bakken, of the Norge Ski Club of Chicago, was third.

Haugen made two jumps of 178 feet and 174 feet in winning the national title and was given a rating of 232.8 by the judges. Berger had jumps of 169 174 and 179 feet but fell on his third leap and was given a rating of 374. Bakken was ranked 266.1 with jumps of 164 and 173 feet.

The eastern ski jump record of 169 feet, established last year by Norman Berger, of Montreal, when he won the eastern championship on the Brattleboro course, was surpassed 14 times in today's competition. The longest standing jump of the day was made by Henry Hall, of the Detroit-Northville Ski Club, of Detroit, who cleared 180 feet on his second attempt. Hall cleared 169 feet on his first attempt and made the longest jump of any kind for the day on this third effort with a distance of 196 feet. He fell both times, however.

By his victory, Haugen gained one leg on the Brattleboro outing club's win ski trophy which was captured by Norman Berger last year. Three victories are required for permanent possession.

FOUR MEMBERS OF YANKS SIGN THEIR 1924 CONTRACTS

New York, Feb. 15. — Four more members of the world's champion New York Yankees came into the fold today, the club announcing receipt of signed contracts from Autry, catcher obtained from Austin, Tex.; Ben Shields, southpaw hurler from North Carolina State college, and Pipgras and Roettger, twirlers on the 1923 squad.

Broadway Beats Saints.

St. Patrick's school basketball team went down for a defeat at the hands of the Broadway grammar school team on the Y. M. C. A. court yesterday afternoon, by the score of 13-11. Both schools "snapped into it" and even the spectators tried to cheer their schools to a victory. Mingo and Blumm starred for the losers, and D'Atri and Wilbur for the winners.

The boys representing the schools were as follows: St. Patrick's—Mingo, Blumm, Drew, Marks, Burns, Shea.

Broadway—Vitgliano, Grieco, D'Atri, Flather, Wilbur, Tiger and Pitt.

NO MAGIC GOLD FINDER

There is no instrument that you can use to discover gold supposed to have been buried in an iron pot or steel safety box, writes the Director of the United States Geological Survey to a correspondent. Iron ore is extending over large areas have been prospected for with success by means of the so-called "dip needle," but this instrument would not indicate the presence of a single pot or vessel in a particular spot. Neither is there any instrument that would indicate the presence of gold and silver or their ores. Iron attacks the "needle," but gold and silver, however attractive to man, are not magnetic.—Pennsylvania Farmer.

Lost a Napoleon Letter.

Apropos of Napoleon, a curious foot note to the history of the famous conqueror has appeared in a New York paper under the heading, "Asks Police to Find Napoleon's Letter." The loser of the letter described it as, having been written by Napoleon on August 18, 1805, to the Austrian general, Mack, on the occasion of the latter's defeat. The French emperor, in admiration of the courage displayed by his vanquished opponent, presented him with a handsome gold clock and wrote a letter of appreciation to go with it. The clock passed through various hands after the death of General Mack, and had been bought in Berlin, with the authenticating letter, by an American collector for 7,000,000 marks, or about $1,800. The collector lost his wallet, containing the letter, while on his way to his home in San Francisco.—The Outlook.

Church in Business Block.

On the ground floor of a new office building erected by the First Methodist Episcopal church at the corner of Washington and Clark streets, in the Chicago business district, has been built the church proper, two stories high, and capable, with its balcony, of seating more than 1,300 persons. A special, large foyer is run from Clark street directly to the church, so that both convenience and privacy are secured. The business elevators are reached by another foyer opening on Washington street. The building, 21 stories high is admirably done in French gothic, and has a beautiful steeple, with chimes, rising to a height of 556 feet above the street level, one foot higher than the Washington monument. It is being erected to give expression to the idea that religion is not merely a "Sunday matter," but rather an integral part of life which should be of concern to the business man and worker every day in the week. Carrying out this theme, it is planned to hold services at noon throughout the week, and conduct the various charities and activities of the church within "earshot" of the worker. — Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Shooting at People to Save Them—

Saving people's lives by shooting at them with a cannon sounds paradoxical, but that is the first step in the method of rescue followed by life saving stations throughout the world. When a ship runs on a shoal near shore, life savers shoot an iron projectile attached to a coil of rope of fine steel cable over a cross arm of the vessel by means of a small brass cannon. Those aboard the ship haul in the rope to which is attached a heavier one. The heavy rope is soutby secured at both ends and by a breeches buoy, the passengers are permitted to coast to the shore and to safety, one at a time.

SALE OF JUNK

The sale of old equipment and machinery involving 4,000 tons of iron and steel in the once famous Central mine in Keweenaw County, Mich., to a junk dealer recalls the active days of this property, which, in the early years afforded employment to a large number to men and returned substantial profits to its owners. The Central was opened in 1854 and for nearly 40 years was a steady dividend payer. The mine was closed down in 1898. Up to that time, Central was a thriving community, one of the largest in the Lake district.

The Central mine was opened on a fissure vein, and produced copper and silver marketed for $9,770,528, according to the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press of New York. Of the gross receipts the shareholders received $1,970,000 in dividends while $7,982,712 was expended for current operations.

CALIFORNIA GIANTS

Original residents of southern California were giants, seven feet in height, according to an anthropological discovery of the University of California near McFarland, in the heart of the oil fields. There were also "highbrows" with large, well-rounded heads. They lived in mounds and used implements of stone.

The excavations are being made under the direction of Arling Stainberger, in a new dry lake where the soil is heavily impregnated with alkaline salts and a seepage of petroleum. This chemical combination acted as an ideal preservative, so that the skeletons were found in a fine state of preservation. The first mound uncovered evidently was a burying ground, as the skeletons were found lying or sitting facing the east, as was customary in the last rites of primitive peoples. The skeletons are believed to be those of the first dwellers in southern California, although the skull of a prehistoric woman was unearthed several years ago in the La Brea fossil pits, which produced finely preserved skeletons of animal life extending back 200,000 years.

Victor Nogin, director of the all-Russia copperative society, has returned to Moscow, and expressed satisfaction over his negotiations with American cotton groups, bankers and others which resulted in a million dollar credit for purchases.

BOBBIE WILLIAMS IS SUSPENDED BY COMMISSION FOR DANIELSON AFFAIR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Feb. 15. — Retribution swift and sure has fallen upon Bobbie Williams of England, who quit cold in the third round of a scheduled 10-round feature bout with George Werner of New York, at the Casino arena Thursday night, as told in Friday's Bulletin.

The state boxing commission has suspended Williams from boxing in this state for a period of 90 days and ordered that he be paid not a cent for his appearance here.

The quitting of Williams was utterly disgusting to the more than 800 fans who had assembled for the first card of bouts ever staged in the new arena and particularly unfortunate for Promoter Frank Barber, who had done everything in his power to give the fans a high class show, and felt that he had a card that was a hummer. However, Mr. Barber has the sympathy of the fans, who fully realize that he was in no way responsible because Williams, after making a brilliant start in the first round, when he looked like a sure winner, flopped down when he found the going too fast for his liking. Williams can seek like a demon and is a great mixer. He could have gone on, but just wouldn't. Now he will pay the penalty, a fact that will not displease those who paid to see him do his best.

Frank Murphy, Hartford, of the state boxing commission was an eye witness of Williams' flop, so there will be no appeal for the English boxer. He is out of the game in Connecticut for at least 90 days, and that means about the end of the boxing season until next fall. And he lost a nice fat guarantee on the side.

Mr. Barber will leave for New York Sunday morning to fill out his card for the next series of bouts, to be held on February 28.

CONN. POWER CO. BUYS PORTION OF BOSS FACTORY, NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 15—Charles Muller of Old Lyme, Mrs. Clifford Holden and infant son of Smith street, Groton and Jens Jenson of the United States Coast Guard academy, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Sidney M. Sulman has sold a parcel of land on Church street to the city of New London.

Henry H. Smith has sold to the Hempstead Family Association, Inc., a house and lot on Jay street. The property was formerly owned by Engelbert J. Sauter.

Effie Bates, colored, of 36 Water street, who has been before the police court on many and various charges, will be presented before Judge S. Victor Prince tomorrow charged with assault upon her husband, George Bates. This afternoon the woman is alleged to have wielded a knife upon George and to have inflicted a wound that necessitated several stitches to close it.

The Bates woman appeared at the police station about 2:15 o'clock and complained against her husband, alleging that he had beaten her. Having knowledge of the character of the frequenters of the Bates home, Sergeant Charles Hammond and Patrolman William Graham and Timothy C. Sullivan were dispatched to the place. Arriving there, the officers were informed that instead of the husband committing the assault the wife was the guilty party, for two women who were in the place asserted that Bates appeared at his home about 2 o'clock and after seating himself in a chair he was attacked without provocation by his wife. The woman, it is declared, seized a large-bladed knife and slashed her husband's wrist, making a deep gash. The woman was taken into custody, but her husband was not there. Later Sergeant Nelson Smith found Bates with a stream of blood flowing from the wound and placing him in the police automobile, had him taken to the office of City Physician George P. Cheney where three stitches were taken in order to stop the flow of blood.

The Bates woman had been drinking when she put in an appearance at the police station, but she was not intoxicated so that her condition warranted her being arrested upon that charge.

With indications that automobile traffic will be much greater in New London than ever before, a plan will undoubtedly be put into effect, which will facilitate greatly the handling of this form of traffic. It is planned to cause all signs that will be a source of information to motorists to be of the same design and construction as those used in the principal cities about the state, so that a strange autoist upon driving into the city will readily recognize the signs and will not be confused because of the variance of signs used in cities heretofore. At a meeting of the executive committee of the State Police Association, at which there were in attendance several mayors and members of police commissions of different municipalities, a few days ago, it was unanimously decided that in order to aid in the handling of traffic, the signs should be the same in one city as in another and New London has decided to conform to the request of the committee by using the same kind of signs that will be displayed in New Haven and Hartford. The signs will be as follows: No parking signs, yellow background with black letters; restricted parking signs, red background with white letters; one - way street signs green background with yellow letters; signs for routing traffic through city; yellow background with black letters and arrow with route number; school warning sign, red background with white letters.

LaVerne Burdick returned to his home in Stonington today, having been under treatment at Home Memorial hospital a fortnight.

The Connecticut Power company today acquired a portion of the former C. D. Foss Cracker factory on Water street, the property being transferred to the new owners by Susan R. Boss and Isabelle Boss of New London and Mrs. Beulah B. Church of New York, who several years ago, acquired a quarter-interest in the property from Mrs. Bessie McMasters, another daughter of Mr. Boss. The structure is of three stories, of brick and is one-half of the factory that was originally used for the manufacture of milk crackers, hard tack, etc., by Mr. Boss. The Connecticut Power company will utilize the ground floor for garage purposes, but to what use the upper stories will be put has not been determined. The price paid, it is understood, was about $60,000.

Within the next two or three days, it is expected that petitions will be circulated calling for a referendum vote on the question as to whether the city shall erect a junior high school, a matter that has occupied much attention of the city council for many weeks. About nine petitions have been prepared and the circulators are scheduled to start securing signers tomorrow or Monday. In order that the petitions shall be legal, 460 voters must affix their signatures to the request, as the charter calls for 10 per cent. of the legal voters voting at the last regular city election.

It is declared by the police here that New Haven people lose more automobiles by theft than any city in the state. This evening the police were notified that a Hudson coach, 1923 model, painted black, registration number 16435, was stolen from the Elm City. No trace of the automobile was found in this city. Soon after the theft, a Buick coupe, number of registration 9475 was stolen from a Hartford doctor. The police here made every endeavor to discover the cars but without result. The watch was kept for the cars throughout the night.

Reckless driving of automobiles has become so reprehensible that the police are determined to put a stop to it. Last evening H. B. Sheldon 579 Montauk avenue, complained to the police that as he was getting off a trolley car, a Reo speed wagon, No. 23846, rushed by the car at a speed estimated at 35 to 40 miles an hour. Mr. Sheldon jumped back and escaped injury that must have come to him had he not seen the car in time to avoid it. When the speeder passed by he shut off the tail light of the car, but his registration number was obtained nevertheless. Mr. Sheldon asked for the arrest of the driver and declared that he would appear against the fellow if he was found and prosecuted.

Attorney for Guiseppe Viola, who brought suit against Joseph Poretta, which case was heard in the superior court this week and a verdict for defendant returned, has filed a motion of appeal to the state supreme court, alleging that the verdict was against the testimony. Viola sued for $10,000 damages and alleged malicious prosecution on the part of Poretta. The suit grew out of the arrest of Viola last summer, when a fire broke out in the Poretta house in Grand street. While the fire was in progress and hundreds of people gathered there the police rushed in and an examination of the premises discovered a still for the manufacture of liquor in operation. It was then stated that the still belonged to Viola. Poretta was arrested for a violation of the Volstead act and was fined in the police court $150 which he paid. A complaint against Viola was nolled for lack of evidence, as in the discretion of the prosecutor he did not feel warranted in pursuing the case further. Since then there has been bad feeling between Viola and Poretta, it is said among the Italian people. Finally Viola brought the suit which this week was decided against him. Testimony was introduced to show that Poretta had been suspended from the Italian lodge of Christopher Columbus and there was a court record to show that Viola has been convicted of counterfeiting outside the state—in Massachusetts. Both men have their friends and they are showing considerable interest in the case that was decided Tuesday. Viola is understood to have changed his residence to New York and to be now the representative of an olive oil house. He was at one time engaged in the barber supply business and had a store where the rear of the O'Leary restaurant is now located. Viola's attorney says his client is to go on with the case till he gets satisfaction. When the end will be is not in sight.

Joseph Gentilella gave an option on his property, junction of Bank and Truman street, some weeks ago to the Valvoline Oil company, the option being for the purchase of the property by the oil company at a stated price. Since then no more has been heard of the matter and it is now said that the deal has fallen through. Gentilella is now not anxious to sell, but he is bound by the agreement if the parties to whom the option was given desire to consummate the sale. Mr. Gentilella says he does not know where he could reestablish his business, if the sale is made.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week the republican state convention at Hartford nominated John T. Wait of Norwich as candidate on the party ticket for the office of lieutenant governor of the state. The convention's selection for candidate for governor was Henry B. Harrison of New Haven. The Hook and Ladder company held their annual masquerade ball the same week at Breed hall. Interesting extracts taken form the files of The Bulletin of February, 1874, are as follows:

Monday, Feb. 9, 1874—The Rogers Bros., have nearly filled their ice houses at East Great Plain. Two days more will complete their stock. The other ice men are also in a good way to furnish their full quota, for the summer heats.

The Hook and Ladder boys give their grand masquerade ball at Breed hall tomorrow evening, and one of the best and most successful entertainments of the season may be anticipated. The concert will be given by Tubbs brass and stringed bands after which the grand march will begin. Gurdon Cady will give the commands to "forward and back."

It is estimated that there are about 18 inches of snow on a level, making this the heaviest fall in several years.

Several cases of diphtheria are reported in town.

Tuesday, Feb. 10, 1874—The double team of the Horse Railroad company became frightened on the square yesterday and tore through Main street at a lively rate. They came to grief in a cluster of vehicles near Ellis' Bill's store after running over and partly demolishing a milk wagon. Fortunately no one was injured.

A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mitchell was quite severely burned Sunday while her parents were attending church. She was playing about the stove with a stick which finally became ignited and set fire to her clothes. They were almost entirely consumed before the fire could be put out. Yesterday she was regarded as out of danger.

Thomas Browning, who for many years has been connected with J. T. Clark as clerk of his hat store, leaves today for Northampton, Mass., where he has purchased a hat establishment and will enter into business on his own account. The best wishes of his many friends will go with him to his new undertaking.

Wednesday, Feb. 11, 1874—Probably a larger crowd never gathered in Breed hall than met last night at the masquerade ball of the Hook and Ladder company. The hall was very prettily and tastefully trimmed with red, white and blue bunting. The concert commenced at 7:45 and was given by Tubbs brass and stringed band in their finest style. The grand march commenced at 8:45 and the floor was filled to its utmost capacity. Everything passed off smoothly and everybody enjoyed themselves.

A sleighing party numbering twenty couples took a frosty ride over into North Stonington Monday night, leaving town at 6 and returning at four yesterday morning. Their destination was the home of an esteemed lady friend who resides in a rambling house of the fashion of the past and who gave her visitors a most hearty welcome. Back logs were lighted in the old open fire place and by the blazing fire the company reeled off the country dances. After an oyster supper and a general happy time, they made their generous hostess a hearty good night.

Charles Greene, brother of Selectman Greene and formerly a resident of this town, died very suddenly at Fall River, Mass., Monday evening. His body will probably be brought here for interment Thursday.

Thursday, Feb. 12, 1874—The gentleman having in charge the building of the new iron bridge in Greeneville has arrived and will at once begin operations.

One case of small pox is reported in Goshen, Lebanon and the school in that district has been closed in consequence. The disease was brought by a resident in the vicinity of South Windham.

From Hartford comes the following—The republican conventions of this state generally indicate in a greater or less degree the result of the election in April. Not that this is to be judged by the noise and hullabaloo of the convention itself or that three cheers for this or that candidate mean anything; but the delegates themselves as they assemble in little knots and groups in hotel lobbies or parlors are likely to reflect the sentiments of the sections from which they come. The states republican ticket is as follows:

For governor, Henry B. Harrison, New Haven; for lieut. governor, John T. Wait of Norwich; for treasurer, David P. Nichols of Danbury; for secretary of state, J. Q. A. Stone of Killingly; for comptroller, E. Perry Packer of Coventry. The election will take place Monday, April 6th.

Friday, Feb. 13, 1874—It will be seen by our Washington dispatches that the proposed bill for the equalization of the circulation of the national bank currency, withdraws a surplus of $3,035,500 from the national banks of Norwich, New Haven, Waterbury and Hartford.

Chief Engineer Gardiner of the Bridgeport fire department visited our city Wednesday and was received by Chief J. B. Carrier with customary hospitality. The engine houses were lighted, a collation served and a generally pleasant time enjoyed.

The snow scraper was brought into use yesterday for the first time this season and the snow ridges that line the sidewalks were transferred to the centre of the street.

The last party of the Sensible society was held in Franklin hall last evening, and was, like all the others, a brilliant success.

Sleighing parties with New London as their destination, are becoming quite popular.

The roof of the Daly block, Greeneville, which was demolished by snow a short time since, has been thoroughly repaired and painted inside and out. The families have all moved in again.

Saturday, Feb. 14, 1874—The New London and Providence Railroad has but nine more miles of its double track to lay and the rails are contracted for to do it.

The Rt. Rev. J. J. Clinton, bishop of the A. M. E. church, is expecting to visit this city in a few days, to address the Zion church society in behalf of a new church for them here.

Washington dispatches, detailing the withdrawal of the circulation from New England banks, if the Sherman bill should pass, include the following national banks located in this city:

First National bank, $100,000; Thames National bank, $450,000; total, $550,000.

William Elting has filled his ice houses at Bean Hill with a fine crop.

PLAINFIELD

A record breaking crowd gathered at the Community House Thursdayk evening for the junior prom of the high school which has come to be one of the social events of the year in Plainfield. All parts of the town were well represented and many were present from out of town. The management of the entire affair won compliments for the executive committee: Arthur Gallup, Herbert Godlin, Margaret Fox, and Hazel Salisbury. The decorating committee comprised James Wallace, Elmer West, Ovila Allard, Hector Maggia, Hazel Salisbury, Margaret Fox, Alice Zercie and May Leary.

The grand march was led by the class president, Arthur Gallup, the vice president, Margaret Fox, the secretary, Hazel Salisbury and the treasurer, Herbert Codlin. Fine music was furnished by the Danceland Shepherd and Swanson orchestra of New London. Dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock. The dance was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sullivan, Mr and Mrs. E. S. Gallup, Mr. and Mrs E. A. Codlin, Miss Josephine S. Armstrong, Miss Margaret E. Purdon.

Mrs. Pearl Lewis, who has been at her son's home while ill, is much better and has returned to her own home.

The Parent-Teacher association met in the Community House, Tuesday, enjoying a pleasant evening of whist. Refreshments were served. The plans of the evening were in charge of the following committe: Miss Helen Phillips, Miss Celia Israel, Mrs. George Eastham, Mrs. Bailey Burt, Mrs. Napoleon Jodoin.

WAUREGAN

At the rectory of the Sacred Heart church Thursday evening, Jan. 24, Rev. J. C. Mathieu united in marriage Miss Catharyn Terwilleger and Anthony Campbell. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Terwilleger of South Killingly and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of this village. They were attended by Miss Alice Campbell as bridesmaid and John Campbell.

A business meeting of the Girls' club was held Wednesday evening at the club rooms.

The Union quartet of Pawtucket, which gave so excellent a program in the Wauregan hall last week, is on a trip to Bermuda, where they are engaged to sing at different places. One local man, J. Downes, proprietor of the boarding house here, is a member of this quartet, and friends who know of his trip hope he will enjoy it thoroughly.

Lillian Brooke is reported as having scarlet fever.

Miss Miriam Chapman was home from Brown to attend the junior high school prom, Thursday evening.

Philip Peterson is spending the week end in Plainfield, having come on from Brunswick, Me., to attend the Junior Prom.

Mrs. Albert Bassett continues ill.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

Announcement has been made by General Lloyd M. Brett, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars that Louis R. Fellows of New York City had been appointed to conduct the organization's 1924 poppy campaign. The scarlet flower, symbolic of no man's land will this year carry an added significance. Disabled veterans of the World war, with the approval of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau and under the direction of the V. F. W., have been employed to make the poppies and already have several million on hand for delivery. Fellows is a veteran of the A. E. F. and was one of the last of the overseas men to return to the U. S. He served in a civilian capacity as a member of the construction department of the Army of the Rhine and on the liquidation committee left in Germany after the A. F. G. was demobilized.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

The next regular meeting of New London County Pomona Grange No. 6, P. of H., will be held at Steiner Hall next Thursday. After the business session in the morning dinner will be furnished by Norwich Grange. In the afternoon session, Lecturer's program as follows: Debate-Resolved: "That dairying as practiced in Connecticut is unprofitable and impoverishes the soil." Affirmative, Brothers G. Warren Davis, E. P. Barnes, Preston Grange. Negative, Brothers Hugh Whitman, Ernest Barrett, Konomoc Grange. Recitative Songs, Brother Alton G. Wheeler, Stonington Grange. A talk on Weeds, Brother John Perry, N. Stonington Grange. A talk on Home vs. The Movies, Sister M. E. Bliss, Norwich Grange; Musical refreshments, Sister Miriam Beckwith, Franklin Grange.

ELKS

A considerable party of Norwich Elks is planning to attend the banquet and reception at Hartford on Feb. 21 to Grand Exalted Ruler James G. McFarland. On that account a special dispensation has been granted for the lodge to hold its second meeting in February on the night of the 28th instead of the 21st.

A. O. H. AUXILIARY

Members of Division 54, A. O. H. Auxiliary, with friends enjoyed an entertaining valentine party Thursday evening in A. O. H. hall which was prettily decorated with hearts and valentine favors. There were the new and old dances with Miss Gertrude Platt at the piano and victrola selections were enjoyed through the courtesy of the Platt-Cadden Co., Earl Way prompted for the dancing and two solo features of the evening were furnished by the jig and clog by Mrs. Nellie Moore and exhibition fox trot and waltz by John Callahan and Miss Sarah Boyd.

Doughnuts and coffee were served for the 100 present by Mrs. F. A. Williams, Mrs. Mary McCaffrey and Mrs. George Nadolny.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich Chapter, No. 124, held its regular meeting Thursday evening at Moose home with Senior Regent Mrs. Anna Crowe in the chair. The meeting was well attended and a large amount of routine business was transacted. It was voted to have a roll call at the next regular meeting, each member answering with a Mother Goose rhyme and that all members respond. It was announced that Mrs. L. C. Mountcastle of 342 Washington street will give a whist at her home Friday evening February 22 at 8 o'clock, all members and friends being invited. Following the business session a Valentine social was held and refreshments were served.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Committees of Mercier assembly, No. 12, have all their plans completed for the bean supper to be given at the Community house, on Church street, and the attendance is expected to rival the big event of a similar kind that the assembly conducted last year with great success.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

The large attendance at the meetings of Court City of Norwich Foresters of America shows the members are taking in the Court. The financial secretary's report was very satisfactory showing that the Court had spent over $7,600 for doctors and medicines and other necessary expenses for the good and welfare of the members. It then showed a surplus of fifteen hundred dollars with last years being a bad season for sickness.

The new amusement committee has an elaborate entertainment planned for the next meeting with plenty of "eats." A large class of candidates is to be initiated by the degree team. All old timers are especially invited and the committee guarantees to give them the surprise of their lives.

A. O. H. AUXILIARY

Division No. 13 held its millinery class Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Timothy Donovan and a well attended meeting in the evening at which it was voted to hold a whist and cake sale on Feb. 26 at the Buckingham Memorial, the sale in the afternoon and the whist in the evening. The next meeting of the millinery class will be with Mrs. Harold Desmond of Fourth street.

In God's Good Time.

It may be that we cannot understand
God's mysteries manifold,
And that the secrets of the universe
Will ne'er to us be told;
It may be, in His mercy, He will bear
Our cherished ones away,
Just as we learn to know them best and wish
To have them longer stay.

Our dreams may each and all be unfulfilled,
Our hopes all blighted be;
And all our earnest longings may be checked
By grim adversity;
But shall we question and condemn the fate
To which our lives must bend?
And shall we rev'rence less the Hand Divine
That shapes each mortal end?

No, no, sad heart—repining is in vain,
And tears are useless things;
Strive to be calm and thou shall know, ere long
The peace that wisdom brings:
Shall know that if disaster, grief and pain
God doth on us bestow,
We should accept our lot and be resigned,
Because He wills it so.

Oh then, who are at times most sorely tried,
Have patience, faith and love:
And some day, somewhere, all will be revealed
By angel lips above;
For when life's play is o'er, the curtain down,
We'll turn to that dear place
Where waiting arms shall welcome us at last
With one long, grand embrace.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS.

Feb. 20.—Club No. 3 meets in Chapel of Lebanon Baptist Church.

GREETINGS FROM ANNA MELL

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: I will again ~~for~~ a little chat if my hand will allow me to write so the editor can read it. I was so glad to see more of the older writers getting woke up to do their bit.

Dom Pedro: Am very glad you are so much better. Hope you may continue until you regain your health.

Now, Ma of Greene Gables, what a grip that man must have given you! You want to keep clear of him hereafter. Hope for your full recovery soon.

Huldy: Glad to know your brother is gaining so you can both enjoy your trip south as there are lots of interesting places to be seen. That trip up the St John's river is something grand. I think of all the trips I ever took of the water that one is the best of all. I have taken the trip three times and would take it again if I had a chance. Once it was at full moon time. There was a party of us who came to Jacksonville that way with some friends that were leaving for their homes in Vermont. A jolly crowd, they were, too. We reached Jacksonville at 6 o'clock in the morning, went and had breakfast, then saw our friends start on their journey towards home. We stayed a week in Jacksonville, then returned home. Huldy, while in St. Augustine did you go out to the Anastasia light house? I went up in it. One would get leg weary ere they reached the top. There was a fine view when you get there. To look down on the street people looked very small. I would not care to go up there again, but am glad I went then as I never was up in one before.

Rosary: Think your mother must be very active and well to be making rugs at her time of life.

Calla Lily: Sweet oil will take the white stains off from your table and does not hurt the polish. Keep the stain covered with the oil for several days replacing with fresh supply once in a while. It is sure to go if you persevere.

I think now I will come to a close, and wish a happy New Year to all. If this escapes the waste basket I hope to come again.

ADVICE BY ROXANNA WINCE

Dear Sisters Social Corner: While I was a child I thought it would be dreadful to get old with white hair and wear spectacles. But I rather like it as my stock of cards shows I am not forgotten by friends and the dear Social Corner sisters, for which I wish to thank you all.

Advice—Don't take your married children home to live with you if they are not as happy, or you either. C. E. S. for one will not agree with me, but I know from experiences, and observation. Keep you home if it is not more than one room. I think old people's homes are such fine institutions. You surely have good cars and a social time. Let's apply soon. Here we have to wait for some one to pass on. Best wishes.

ROXANNA WINCE.

CREAM PUFFS

Dear Social Cornerites: First, thanks to the editor for the yellow slip which came this Wednesday morning. I was very much surprised and pleased to receive it.

As I was making a batch of cream puffs this morning, I thought perhaps one might like the recipe. It never fails me.

Cream Puffs: One cup hot water, 1-2 cup butter, pinch of salt. Put on stove, when butter melts and all boils add 1 cup of pastry flour all at once. First removing from the stove. Stir briskly until mass leaves sides of pan. Then drop in one egg at a time, stirring all the while, until four eggs are used. Cup small portions from spoon with knife on flat pan, spread out to about 1-2 inch, 2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven for 30 to 35 minutes. When cold fill with rich cream sauce. One-half of this mixture makes one dozen medium sized puffs.

My crown of thorns is full of blooms. I love the pretty waxen pink flowers. They make such a pretty spot of color. My plumbago blooms all the time. I cut it off each time the flowers fade and in a couple of weeks it is blossoming again. I must stop now, as this was really only a letter to thank the editor for my slip. I have used it to buy some needlework material. Would it not be interesting if each one should tell what she used her yellow slip for?

Yours for the Corner.

A FLOWER LOVER.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Corner Members: I wish to thank the editor for the yellow slip that fluttered to me when the Norwich Bulletin airship flew over my way. Yes, J. E. T., I shall be very much pleased to have you call and spend the day. Crank up your "buzz wagon" and get Joan, she will lead the way. She is a good scout, also a very good marathoner on the turf, none better.

M. C. K.: I was glad to see some thing from your pen after such a long silence. I expected to see something in regard to dandelions, when so many items appeared in The Bulletin about them. For your little spot must have had many fine blossoms there. I never saw nicer ones.

Kitty Lou: Your package at hand. Did you make the contents? Thanks awfully for the same. I have them in sight on my desk.

Calla Lily: I was very glad to see by the paper grandpa was not seriously hurt.

Balsam Fir: Your letter was received in due time Glad the baby is no bother. Is he old enough to go sliding down hill? If I knew the date of his birthday I'd send him an appropriate car. You have us beaten for snow, as we have had not any as yet to speak of. It will soon be housecleaning time, it don't seem as though we are into February already. Today seems just like spring.

Joan: It is really too bad they have taken off the trolleys. Did you receive the big letter? Hope it don't take too much of your time to read it.

CRIMSON RAMBLER, (March 5)

REMINISCENCES

Dear Social Corner: First I want to thank the sisters for the letters and cards and the lovely pinks a sister sent me. They kept over a week They helped to cheer the long lonely hours, and I was very thankful I had so many friends that remembered me while in the hospital. I am at home now and will be glad to see any of the friends who will call.

I am trying to obey the doctor's orders so as not have to go back to the hospital. I will not if as comfortable as at the present time. am able to go for short drives and am about the house the greater part of the time.

One of the letters, a short time ago, referred to Prof. O. Turner, which brings me back to long ago when he was having us practice for a concert and I was thinking of the bass part in a practicing mood. He held us on one piece until his patience was at the limit. The piece was, Polly Put the Kettle On, We Will All Take Tea. I was supposed to take the alto part, and I was thinking of the bass part. Just before and I piped up, Jedidiah, in my best bass ton. That was more than he could stand. That was the first and only time I ever saw the professor angry. We could not blame him. He threw down the book, saying he was a good mind to call the concert off. Do you remember that night, Red Clover? If so, write and say so, your pen must be getting rusty.

Many of those that were there that night have drifted away to other homes and some have crossed the great divide.

Can any of the sisters tell me if Mr. Bliss is living? He was playing the bass fiddle, as he called it. Glad you liked and lended the praise. Your pound and a half came. The professor said, "I hope you will come better prepared next week to sing, not for fun."

He and my father were about of an age, and when he died not for very well. He would go to see my father at home and father would doctor him up and try him food to tempt his appetite, and he would say, "What is the use of getting married when one has to sit and watch the fire and spin yarns for their boyhood days, until a late hour." Then he would say, "Don't you think it about time for bed old woman," and he would get out the little melodeon he had with him, many of you will remember, he had it at camp meeting and they would sing some of the old hymns which I hope they are singing now, as are their happy mothers and pa daughters.

That was after the block burned by Turnerville and his belongings were burned. He grabbed his coat, vest and can and ran down to the mill on the first floor, and after all was over, some one said to him, your trousers burn professor, and sure enough, he had left them to burn, but soon a friends found him a pair.

After he went to board with Mrs. Comstock on the camp ground, they took a rent one winter next door to us, and my mother and Mrs. Comstock became good friends, and we always went to see her while she lived at camp meeting time.

They have all gone to their reward and I have gotten to the time of life similar to theirs when they were here, and I can look back to those days with pleasure and see their smiling faces as at that time When I joined the Corner Married and Happy was hostess. I wish I had a memorandum of the time. Perhaps some of the sisters will have the names of that time. I wrote my name backwards the first few letters. When I get out I am going to see some of the sisters who have those little calendars. I have read so much about, but never happened to see one. We have always had a Bulletin calendar up to this year. We missed it this year. As Norwich is my birthplace I always enjoy the views.

I think I hear the editor say, time to ring off, so will do so, hoping this will not take up too much space, for the sisters are going fine filling up the page. Long may it last.

AMY.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SHARP BREAK IN STOCKS.

New York, Feb. 15.—A drastic decline in prices took place in today's active stock market on the widespread circulation of rumors that one of Wall street's most prominent operators had switched from a bull to a bear position because of his belief that the Washington oil lease disclosures had undermined public confidence. The reaction was allowed to run its course by strong financial interests with the result that active industrial issues broke 1 to 8 points and Fisher Body dropped 13.

Opening prices were irregular with the main tendency upward. Before the end of the first hour rumors were broadcasted that a piece of bearish news would be published before the end of the day, but its source was not revealed until after noon when a summary of a telegram sent by the prominent operator from the south to one of his Wall street friends was published on the financial news ticker.

Bear attacks, which had been concentrated on the oils, switched to the steels and then to other speculative industrials, the rapidity of the decline forcing the closing out of a number of weakened marginal accounts. Rail shares held relatively when they weakened with the rest of the list, early steadiness apparently being due to the publication of statistics showing that weekly car loadings for the week ending February 2, totaled 929,936 cars, the largest of any week in January or February on record.

Averages of 20 leading industrial stocks showed a net decline of about 3¼ points, bringing both back to where they were about a month ago. Among the popular issues, U. S. Steel closed 3⅛ lower at 103⅛; Baldwin dropped six points to 120¼; American Can was off five points at 112¾; Studebaker was off 3¼ at 100; Bethlehem Steel sagged 3¼ to 86¼; Cosden 2⅜ at 32½; Pacific Oil 3¼ at 49 and Tobacco Products four at 63¾.

Pan-American Petroleum issues, which have been hammered into intermittently ever since the publication of sensational developments at the senate's oil inquiry, offered stubborn resistance to selling pressure today, closing practically unchanged. Sinclair, another recent bear target, dropped about a point.

Independent strength was shown by a very few issues, the chief of which was Congoleum, which touched a record high at 65 and then eased to 62¾, up 1¾. Commercial Solvents A, National Lead preferred, Otis Steel preferred and Pacific Coast were among the few other issues to show small net gains on the day.

Foreign exchange rates slipped slightly lower in quiet trading. Demand sterling was off about half a cent at $4.29¾ and nominal recessions were recorded by the French and other principal European rates.

Call money opened at 4½ and then dropped to 4¼. Time money was somewhat firmer with maturities of sixty days and over being quoted at 4¾ per cent. Commercial paper was unchanged.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 15.—Bond prices after holding firm in today's early dealings, were driven down under selling pressure inspired by the sharp break in the stock market. Railroad and copper issues which displayed considerable strength earlier in the day gave way, many of them recording net losses at the close.

Substantial oversubscription of the $150,000,000 Japanese loan was reported, but no estimate of the amount of excess orders was given. Holland's allotment, it was announced, was subscribed several times over, and a surprisingly large demand came from Switzerland and Sweden, which countries also participated in the American portion of the loan. Books were closed at noon, two hours after the opening. Allotments will be announced within a day or two.

Early trading in the new Japanese bonds was at a premium but with lessening activity the price hovered around the offering quotation of 92½. French governmental and municipal and Serbian's improved, but otherwise the foreign list was weaker, with Mexican 5s, Belgian 8s and Dutch East Indies 5½s declining.

Heavy buying of International & Great Northern adjustment 6s, aided by the sale of the road to the Gulf Coast lines, featured the constructive side of the market. On an exceptionally heavy turnover the bonds advanced more than 3 points before closing a point higher on the day. Seaboard issues were unable to hold their early gains and lost ground along with St. Paul, Frisco, "Katy", Erie and Baltimore & Ohio liens. A drop of 2 points in Punta Alegre Sugar 7s was attributed to profit-taking.

U. S. government issues yielded fractionally on reports that the government shortly would do additional financing.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Wheat suffered a sharp fall in prices today, dragged down by heavy selling associated with breaks in stock market values and in cotton. The close was unsteady, 1¼ @ 1¾ to 2⅜c net lower, May 109⅜ to 109½, and July 105⅝ to ⅞ to 106⅞. Corn lost ⅛ @ ¾ to ⅞c and oats ⅛ @ ¾ to ⅝c. In provisions, the outcome varied from 15s decline to a rise of 7c.

Lowest prices of the day prevailed in the wheat pit as trading came to an end, with liquidating sales from eastern holders dwarfing all other factors. Earlier, the market had shown an upward tendency, chiefly owing to prospects that an advance of the United States import duty on wheat would be ordered next Monday. The early strength in wheat prices, however, appeared to depend more on temporary absence of selling pressure than any increase of demand. Besides, expectance of a higher tariff rate was offset to a considerable extent by the fact that there is fully 30,000,000 bushels of Canadian bonded wheat in this country at the present time. The market effect, too, of steps toward financial aid for the northwest seemed to be generally looked upon as having been discounted.

Commission houses took actively to the selling side of the wheat market in the last half of the board of trade session. Rapid crumbling of prices followed, numerous automatic stop-loss selling orders being brought into play as quotations abruptly overturned. Announcement that a dock strike in Great Britain would be called tomorrow was an added stroke to the bulls.

Corn and oats yielded with wheat, but had better support inasmuch as country offerings of corn were far from burdensome, and hog receipts indicated that heavy feeding was still going on.

Provisions were bearishly influenced by moderate selling of lard. The selling came from packers.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 15.—Stock prices broke precipitously in today's active curb market in sympathy with the drastic reaction on the "big board."

Oils were the hardest hit, net losses in that group ranging from 1 to 12 points. Among the active issues Prairie Oil & Gas dropped 5½ points to 430, while Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Nebraska and New York, Vacuum, Ohio Oil and Continental Oil closed 2 to 5 points below yesterday's final quotations.

Industrial offered better resistance to selling pressure, although Ford Motors of Canada dropped 13 points to 462 on a few odd lot sales. Dubilier Radio dropped nearly 1¾ points to 30, and losses of a point or so were recorded by Glen Alden Coal, Ward Baking "B" and Gillette Safety Razor. Durant Motors sagged 3 points. United Bakeries was one of the few strong spots, climbing about 2 points.

The Third district court room was crowded Friday morning. On next Friday there will be no session of the court, it being the 22nd and Washington's birthday, one of the 11 legal holidays observed in the state of Rhode Island. Clerk M. Walter Flynn read the following docket: New writ—Alberti Importing company vs. Antonio Nigrelli, continued two weeks; civil docket—Whitten Machine company vs. William McKenzie, continued two weeks; Travelers Insurance company vs. John Adams; Atlantic Carbonic company vs. Grover C. King, continued two weeks; Superior Arc Lighting company vs. Antonio Filicette, practically settled, continued two weeks; Superior Arc Lighting company vs. Louis Deutch, announced as practically settled, continued two weeks; Pasquale Furculo vs. Generosa Gallucci, continued two weeks; Westerly Furniture company vs. Frank Cheridio, continued two weeks; Edna M. Gregory vs. Joseph E. Stedman, ready, counsel agreed to two weeks, continued; J. F. Davis vs. Louis LaFountain, passed for two weeks.

When Judge Michael J. Turano came into court he called George W. Maine, employed in a grocery store in Norwich before him, having continued his case (desertion of wife and four children at Hope Valley) for one month, from Jan. 19th, for sentence. Judge Turano asked Attorney Dunn if he represented Mr. Maine, saying that he did not like the payments that he was making his wife. Mr. Dunn said "I don't see why you ask me, Mr. Maine but spoke to me in court this morning." Judge Turano then addressed his remarks to Maine, saying: "What are you doing for your wife? How much do you make a week?" Maine said he received $18 a week and tried to pay his wife $5 a week. "Why haven't you done more?" asked the judge. Maine said because he couldn't afford to. "How many children have you?" Maine said four. "And a wife, that makes five you should support and that means you pay $13 a week for the support of one—yourself—and $5 for the support of the other five of your family." The judge added "Can't you do more, or don't you want to?" Maine replied that "His wife used him so," he considered he was doing enough. Said Judge Turano, "Has someone told you if your wife did not come and live with you you would not be under obligation for her support? Have you consulted some lawyer?" Maine said. "Mr. Quinn, in Norwich," and added, "Some time ago." "Are you supporting some other woman?" asked Judge Turano and Maine said no. "You're supporting a diamond ring, don't you feel as if you could give your wife $5 a week?" Maine said that he had a room in Norwich at 286 Central avenue which cost him $5 a week and that he took his meals elsewhere which cost him $7 a week and that there was a possibility he might do better later. Judge Turano told Maine to sit down, that he would talk to him later. In a later talk between Judge Turano, Attorney Roche for the town of Hopkinton which is contributing $3 a week for the support of Maine's family, and Maine, it was apparently arranged for Maine to contribute more to the support of his family—possibly $5 a week.

State vs. Frank DiGrangi was called after it was found that the case of the State vs. Montalto (one of assault) was not ready, as the witnesses summoned for the state were not in court. About noon the Montalto case was continued two weeks, when the court officer returned and all the witnesses were not ready. The court interpreter was also instructed to make the announcement that if the state witnesses were not on hand then two officers would be sent after them by Judge Turano.

Sergeant of Police Donald Ferguson was the first witness called for the DiGrangi, 101 Canal street, possession of liquors case. He testified that on Jan. 11th he searched the premises (and after objection by Attorney Dunn for defendant was overruled by Judge Turano as to admissibility of searching certain rooms under the warrant) and found a barrel of wine in the cellar, securing a sample. He was accompanied by Officers Curtin and Burke. The sample was turned over to Chief of Police Brown, who forwarded it to Providence.

Dr. John Champlin was a business visitor in Boston Thursday.

E. G. Rice returned to Boston Friday morning, after visiting in Westerly with his brother-in-law, George L. French.

TAFTVILLE

The Ponemah Wheel club minstrel troupe and orchestra held a rehearsal Friday evening in Ponemah hall.

Miss Dorothy Wood of the State Normal school, Willimantic, is spending the week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family of South Second Avenue.

The Sacred Heart Dramatic club held a meeting Thursday evening at Sacred Heart school to plan for the presentation of The Bells of Shannon, a play that they are to give in the near future.

An anniversary requiem high mass will be sung in Sacred Heart church, for the late John W. Savage, at 7.30 Monday morning.—adv.

Trucks and automobiles transported many of the village basketball fans to Plainfield, Friday evening, when the Army and Navy club team was playing in that village.

Mrs. Edward Duprey of South B street is ill with an attack of blood poisoning.

NORWICH TOWN

Beginning Sunday morning, all services at the First Congregational church are to be held in the chapel, for an indefinite period, or until cold weather has ended.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott and choir of the United Congregational church, will have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Shelter-ing Arms.

The women of the First Congregational parish were among others who were invited to attend the meeting on Friday afternoon, at the Community House, when Miss Olive Pearson, field secretary of the Sunday School Extension society, was the speaker.

A very successful dance, with an unusually large attendance, was held Thursday evening, in Yantic Fire Engine house, for the benefit of the Sacred Heart parish. James Filburn and Charles McNally were in charge, assisted by the young women and young men of the parish. A five-piece orchestra, under the leadership of Chick Stanley, furnished good music for dancing. Refreshments were dispensed in one of the down-stairs rooms. Through the courtesy of Herman J. Gibbs, the use of the engine house was given over to the parish for the dance.

HOUSE WREN SPENDS WINTER UP NORTH THIS YEAR

A Norwich Town bird student writes:

At one of the feeding-places for birds in town a house wren, an unusually small one, has come from the woods this winter for suet and stays to feed upon grub it finds in grapevines. The writer, observing birds for years, has never before seen a house wren in winter, for its winter home is in southern states. The house wrens have a nest in a small bird house near our home, the opening of which is the size of a twenty-five cent piece. Here last summer two hoods of birds were raised. They were very tame. No other birds could get through the door of their home.

The nuthatch, chickadees, downy woodpeckers and other winter birds come as greedily for their suet this winter as on previous colder ones. Phoebe birds have been seen twice during the last few days. It would seem that these could not have gone south as usual. An early spring will bring in a few weeks the song-sparrow.

BRING 403 CHRISTIAN DECISIONS IN VISITATION EVANGELISM WEEK

The work of the Norwich churches in a week of lay evangelistic effort in which nine churches have participated culminated Friday evening with reports of 403 Christian decisions recorded through the work that has been done since last Sunday. The final statements were made at a gathering at 9.30 at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church when the workers returned from their evening calls to rejoice in the reports given, impressions made, and decisions registered. At 6.15 the more than 100 workers had enjoyed supper, departing then for further calls and returning at 9.30 for final reports.

Six minute reports were given by representatives of each church. There were words of praise for the method from every speaker, expressions of personal gratitude for the privilege of participation and a great confidence in the opportunity of the churches of Norwich to continue in winning disciples to Jesus Christ.

By unanimous vote Dr. Earl Kernahan, of Boston, leader in the effort, was tendered the thanks of the workers for his masterful leadership and an invitation to lead again in a like effort next year in case the ministers should recommend a united effort.

The state secretary of the Baptist Churches of Rhode Island, Rev. Mr Reed and Rev. Clarence M. Gallup of Central Baptist church, Providence were present to observe the results.

Probably never before in the history of Norwich have so many persons been personally confronted with the challenge of Christ and the program of Christianity as during this week and the first Sunday in March will undoubtedly see more people take the vows of church membership in this city than at any one time in the life of the community. Surely this is a triumph for the forces of righteousness that is impressive and salutory, said one of the Norwich pastors on Friday evening as he commented on the results of the weeks.

FLORIDA CARDBOARD MARKERS ARE RECOGNIZED HERE

Police chiefs throughout the state have been notified by the state motor vehicle department that cardboard markers bearing Florida temporary registration markers are recognized by the state of Connecticut under the motor vehicle reciprocity law.

The notice follows the receipt by the motor vehicle department of a communication from the comptroller of the state of Florida stating that some tourists passing through Connecticut on their way home from Florida winter resorts have been stopped by authorities of this state and their registrations questioned on account of the fact that the markers are made of cardboard.

These cardboard markers are an innovation in Florida issued to cover temporary registrations issued to non-resident tourists for the term of two months or any multiple thereof. It is principally the cars from this section which were taken south just prior to the beginning of the New Year which are now returning equipped with these markers, as many of the owners did not take out 1924 Connecticut markers before leaving this state.

Temporary registration plates issued by the state of Connecticut are the same as regular plates except that the numbers are prefixed by the letter "T". They may be used ten days for a fee of two dollars, in the case of a pleasure car. When issued, however, the same charge is made as if the car were being registered for the full year, all but two dollars of the original payment being refunded if the temporary plates are returned at the end of the ten-day period for which the department issues temporary registrations. The only circumstances under which cardboard markers displaying Connecticut registration numbers are permitted are when the plates issued by the department become lost or mutilated, in which case cardboard markers are good for twenty-four hours.

PRETTY VALENTINE PARTY FOR FOURTH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Oscar Main of 16 Cedar street gave a valentine party Thursday afternoon, from 3 until 5 o'clock, for the fourth birthday of her daughter, Elizabeth. The house was attractively decorated with hearts, red streamers and cut flowers. The dining room was the center attraction and was gaily decorated in valentine colors. A birthday cake on which were four candles and candy hearts delighted the children. As favors each little guest received a valentine heart filled with candy. Elizabeth received many nice gifts and the afternoon was spent in playing games. Harold Terry won first prize pinning the arrow on the heart, and Ruth Fitzgerald first prize in the hunt for hearts. Consolation prizes went to Billy Noyes and Rita Shelly.

The little guests were Alice Peck, Rita Shelly, Ruth Fitzgerald, Billy and Ralph Noyes, Harold and Milton Terry and Barbara Main. A dainty luncheon was served by Mrs. Main, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Robinson and Mrs. Milton Terry.

THREE LEADERS HOLD PLACES IN PINOCHLE

Friday night's play in the West Side Pinochle Club tournament saw no change in the standing of the first three men, A. Jordan, Boynton and Parker. However Shuler who was in fourth place last week dropped back to seventh place being replaced by Lewis. The scores made Friday evening follow:

Pettis, E. Peckham, sub., 8,190, Parker 8,045, Lewis, Kromer, sub., 7,730, Boynton, 7,505, Haskell, 7,220, A. Jordan, Harwood, sub., 7,150, Pendleton, Friswell, sub., 6,915, J. Jordan, 6,400, Bailey 6,260, C. Peckham, 5,975, Shuler 5,530, Underwood 4,685.

The standing to date:

FRIDAY AFTERNOON CLASS HAS VALENTINE DANCE

Members of the Friday afternoon dancing class taught by Mrs. William Valentine Penfield held an enjoyable valentine party from 4.15 to 6 o'clock, in the Wauregan house ballroom. There were about 40 present, including guests. The incoming march was led by Crosby Peck and Betty LaPierre, with Bobby Agnew and Patience Norman as second couple. William Tirrell and Catherine Christman led the outgoing march. Valentines were favors and many of the girls had valentine hearts adorning their frocks.

The dances were the one-step, fox trot, waltz, bambilino, modern polka and plain polka and collegiate fox.

The high school class enjoyed a valentine party in the evening.

MISS EVA HANDELMAN MARRIED IN BRIDGEPORT

Norwich friends have been informed of the marriage of Miss Eva Handelman, daughter of David A. Handelman of this city and Jack Tucker of Bridgeport which took place in that city on Jan. 22. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker are now living in Bridgeport where the groom is clerk in a cigar store.

Death of George Bailey.

George Bailey of No. 86 Bellevue street, Hartford, died in this city on Thursday. He is survived by a father and two sisters. The burial is to be in the family lot in Zion Hill cemetery.

NORWICH STATE SANATORIUM STARTED ELEVEN YEARS AGO

The 155 patients at Norwich state tuberculosis sanatorium had a special dinner Thursday, and were given valentines as favors.

February 22nd the sanatorium is to specially celebrate Washington's birthday, at the same time commemorating the eleventh anniversary of the institution.

During this period it has been to the great good fortune of Norwich to have Dr. Hugh B. Campbell at the head of the sanatorium, to develop it into its present model form, also to help keep the name of Norwich prominent, in state and general health and welfare work.

To broad vision he has added practical efficiency, so that the sanatorium plant has gone on expanding and increasing in usefulness. It is more than a refuge for the afflicted—Dr. Campbell has made it a real home for those who have come under his care and who have benefited by his skill.

In his extension work, too, he has proved the wisdom of his appointment to the Norwich institution, carrying aid and encouragement and solace to many in surrounding places, where he has faithfully continued clinics each week or fortnight.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS AT BIRTHDAY SUPPER

In observance of her birthday Mrs. Lucia Keiner entertained a number of her friends Friday evening when a delicious salad supper was enjoyed at her home which was prettily decorated, the table decorations being valentines and carnations. Mrs. Keiner received a shower of birthday cards and a number of presents including a beautiful basket of flowers which was presented in behalf of the ladies present by Mrs. Gertrude Alquist to which Mrs. Keiner responded with a word of thanks.

Those present were Mrs. Mabel Hill, Mrs. Annie Patridge, Mrs. Annie Fetterman, Mrs. Annie Addison, Mrs. Annie Ducharme, Mrs. Minnie Armitage, Mrs. Grace Shaw, Mrs. John Unsworth, Mrs. Gertrude Alquist, Mrs. Kate Cocker, Mrs. Eva Riordan, Mrs. Mamie Leonard, Mrs. Ida Simpson and Mrs. Agnes Keiner.

In serving Mrs. Keiner was assisted by Mrs. Simpson.

Freeman Against Johnson Bill

In response to a communication sent to Congressman Richard P. Freeman he has sent the following to the Workmen's Circle:

Mr. Morrow Hurwich, Sec'y,
Branch No. 128, The Workmen's Circle.
Norwich, Conn.

My Dear Mr. Hurwich:

Your telegram advising me that Branch No. 128 of The Workmen's Circle adopted a resolution protesting against the passage of the Johnson immigration bill was duly received. I am not in favor of this bill and will do all I can to prevent it from being enacted into law.

Yours very truly,
R. P. FREEMAN.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS WILL VISIT STONINGTON SOON

County Commissioners George H. Bradford of Montville, George E. Fellows of Norwich and Charles H. Smith of Noank held their meeting at New London Friday. Among other matters, they considered the protest of Stonington property owners against the removal of ten trees to make way for highway improvement. The commissioners decided to visit Stonington next week and look over the situation, later setting a date for a public hearing on the protest.

Birthday of Miss Alice Jewett.

In observance of her birthday Friday, Miss Alice Jewett of Williams street was entertained in the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Byron H. Evans, Court street, in whose family Miss Jewett's brother, Marshall Jewett resides. Mrs. Evans served ice cream and cake during the evening.

The Black sea is unique among oceans and seas of the earth in that below a depth of 600 feet its waters are stagnant and lifeless.

EAGLES TAKE LEAD AS PINOCHLE TOURNEY BEGINS

With a total score of 109,355 against 105,960 for the night Norwich Aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., took the lead in a five night pinochle tournament which opened Friday evening between teams representing the two lodges. Friday night's contest took place at the Eagles rooms on Shetucket street with eight tables, each lodge represented by four tables, in play. At each meeting a prize is awarded the player holding the highest score on each team and the prizes Friday night went as follows: Eagles team, E. J Mullins, 7,630; Moose team, George Heibel 8,050.

The individual scores for the night follow:

Eagles—E. J. Mullins, 7,630; E. P. Mullins 7,085; D. Farrell 7,575; H. Folleneous 6,065; H. Clements 5,965; M. Friedberg 6,740; H. Marcus 5,945; George Nadolny 7,045; M. Leirich 6,090; H. The eight teams will meet again Friday night, February 29th, at the Moose home, Laurel Hill.

FIVE DIVORCES GRANTED BY JUDGE AVERY

Five divorces, four of them for infidelity, were granted in the superior court by Judge Christopher L. Avery at New London Friday morning. On grounds of infidelity Howard W. Edward of this city was granted a divorce from Lottie B. Edward. They were married October 7, 1910 and separated Nov. 19, 1919 because, the plaintiff said, his wife liked the company of other men. The plaintiff was given the custody of the child.

On similar grounds Clara Dempsey Nichols of this city was granted a divorce from William J. Nichols now of parts unknown. The couple married May 13, 1918 and have one child. The mother was granted custody of the child.

Infidelity was the grounds on which Frederick Vlaun of New York, formerly of New London, was granted a divorce from May Vlaun of New London. Vlaun testified that the defendant is living with a man by the name of Emil Smith by whom she has had a child. They were married December 31, 1917 and he left her in March, 1922.

Charles Lavimoniere of New Bedford was granted a divorce from Daisy A. Lavimoniere of Pawcatuck on grounds on infidelity. Plaintiff testified he left his wife June 26, 1923, because he had found she was having improper relations with Leo Cella, with whom he said she is now living. The plaintiff and defendant were married March 1, 1920.

ACTRESS SECRETLY WEDS SON OF C. W. MORSE

Miss Alice Owens, an actress now playing in Boston, as leading lady in The First Year, has admitted that she was secretly married Nov. 18, 1923 at Ossining, N. Y., to Benjamin W. Morse, son of Charles W. Morse, the shipping man. They have taken an apartment in Cambridge and Miss Owens will continue her stage career.

She said that she met Morse through his sister several years ago when the two young women were attending a dramatic school in New York. The marriage took place at her home in Ossining. Morse was married to Elva M. Pevey of Cambridge soon after his graduation from Harvard in 1908. They were divorced later.

Mr. Morse is well known in New London having visited at various times his brother and sister-in-law at their home on Montauk. When Mr. Morse's father owned and operated the Groton Iron Works he was a frequent visitor to the city where he stayed for weeks at a time.

Mr. Morse, his father and two other brothers have figured in the courts much of late. The last case against them was their indictment for conspiracy to defraud the government in wartime shipbuilding contracts. They were acquitted at the trial last August.

HI-Y CLUBS ENJOY PROGRAMME AT Y. M. C. A.

The New London Hi-Y club was the guest of the local Hi-Y Club Friday afternoon and evening at the Y. M. C. A. building.

During the afternoon a basketball game was played between the two clubs, which was won by the local club. The local team was composed of MacDougall and Camp, forwards; Henricks, center; and Sharples, Haslam and Lathrop, guards. Henricks proved to be a valuable man on defense, and MacDougall on the offense, while Haslam and Sharples were good floor workers as was Camp also. Score—Norwich 14, New London 12.

At 6 o'clock a fine meat pie supper was served by the Haviland class of the United Congregational church under the direction of Mrs. Young.

An orchestra composed of Robert Otis, piano; Russell Storms, cornet, James Bradlaw, clarinet; George Guile and Stanley Vaughn, violins; and Otis Fellows, traps and drums, furnished music for the early part of the program. During the supper George Guile rendered a fine violin solo that was enjoyed by everyone present.

The Hi-Y quartette, composed of Thomas Sharples, first tenor; Grosvenor Ely, second tenor; Russell Storms, first bass; and Richard Holden, second bass, sang a fine number entitled Sweet Summer Night.

F. A. Stanley, state boys' secretary, was present and told the fellows of some of his experiences while in Europe this last summer. He travelled through six countries and visited several of the important cities of central Europe.

The New London club had fourteen members present, and the local club had twenty-six members in attendance.

POETRY

PUSSY-WILLOWS

Most fearfully I picked my way
Along the city street,
Over the pavement slippery
With February sleet;

The chill east wind stabbed like a knife
The sky was dull and gray;
My thoughts were dreary in harmony
With the bleak wintry day.

When suddenly I came upon
A flower vender's stall,
Where pussy-willows in a row
Were stacked against the wall.

A miracle! A miracle!
I heard the brooklet sing.
The robin call and caught the flash
Of a bright bluebird's wing!

Each budding branch a fairy's wand
Changed time and place for me;
Fled was the winter; in the woods
The pale anemone

And lovely violets I saw
Uplift their dainty heads,
And all the sweet young growing things
Sprung from their mossy beds!

O that those pussy-willows soft
Such magic could possess
To banish gloom and fill my heart
With April's cyousness!
—Estella C. Poole, in Boston Transcript.

From the Soul of God

There's a sweet, subtle sort of a some thing,
Embraces the souls of men,
When the spirit yields
To the charms unveiled,
'Mid meadow, stream and glen—
A sweet, indefinable something,
As pure as the incensed shrine;
And the searching grasp
Of the heart may clasp
The something seemed divine."

Perhaps it's the calm and quiet,
Or the balm of the pure, free air;
Or the choiring words
Of the happy birds
Which await our coming there
To me, 'tis the true cathedral,
By the hosts of all untrod;
And my spirit kneels
And softly feels
A throb from the soul of God.
—Charles Heddon in Outdoor America.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

VOL. LXVI—No. 42 POPULATION 29,685 NORWICH, CONN., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1924 8 PAGES—64 COLUMNS PRICE TWO CENTS

REPORTS IMPROVEMENT IN PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Attorney General Daugherty Has Informed President Coolidge That Stricter Enforcement Has Inspired "a More Wholesome Respect for Law and Order"—Since Passage of Prohibition Law the Federal Courts Have Tried 115,000 Cases—92,411 Convictions Have Brought Fines Aggregating $15,526,593.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Attorney General Daugherty reported today to President Coolidge that a stricter enforcement of prohibition already has inspired "a more wholesome respect for law and order."

The attorney general sent to the president, a resume of conditions after four years' operation of the dry laws. Frome facts which had come to the department of justice, he said, it was apparent that his office was getting larger cases; that it was trying them more promptly, and that it was securing much heavier penalties.

Expressing amazement at the volume of business which the federal courts have been able to handle, the attorney-general explained that more than 115,000 cases had been concluded of which 92,411, or about 80 per cent resulted in convictions and fines aggregating $15,526,593. During the last fiscal year, he said the federal courts have disposed of prohibition cases at the average rate of 119 daily.

In spite of an increasing number initiated in each of the four fiscal years since the eighteenth amendment was made effective, the attorney-general said, the per cent. of cases begun and concluded within that fiscal year had remained almost the same. The court, he said, had a measure of success in catching up with the accumulation of cases.

The attorney-general expressed regret that there had been so many dismissed cases, most of which, he said were dropped by United States attorneys for want of evidence. The number of dismissals increased greatly during the last six months, he added, because many United States attorneys were seeking to clear their dockets of old cases.

Discussing the efforts to break up rum smuggling, Mr. Daugherty said it was hard to understand why there have been no seizures of boats in nine of the judicial districts having water fronts "when rumors of operation in their vicinities are heard frequently." Among these districts in which no boats were seized, the attorney-general named the following: North Illinois (Chicago; Maryland, Baltimore), Southern Alabama, ((Mobile), and Main, ((Portland.)

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF SENATOR GREENE

Washington, Feb. 17—Slight improvement was shown today in the condition of Senator Greene, of Vermont, who has been near death's door as a result of a bullet wound received last Friday night during a fight between prohibition officers and bootleggers on Pennsylvania avenue.

Senator Greene's condition was very grave last night after an operation for removal of bone splinters from his brain, but the attending surgeons said he had reacted very nicely from the shock of the operation and had better than fighting chance for recovery.

A chief concern of the surgeons now is to ward off complications, but it was stated at the hospital that there was no evidence of these. Senator Greene is conscious and is described as resting as comfortably as could be expected after such a delicate operation.

One and one half square inches of the frontal skull structure was removed by the physicians in order to take out the bone splinter which the bullet had forced into the brain. The bullet itself did not penetrate the skull, being deflected to one side.

Doctor Daniel E. Worden, one of the surgeons who performed the operation said today that although Senator Greene "shows an improvement over last night, I don't care to consider him out of danger yet."

Dr. Thomas Linville, physician of the Greene family here said the senator's condition was "improved over yesterday," and the "outlook is encouraging."

"He is still in a serious condition," said Dr. Linville, "and a definte prognoss cannot be made at this time."

Physicians at the emergency hospital declared Senator Greene's condition "is still grave, but he is holding his own".

"FOLLY" OF ANDERSON WILL NOT BE REPEATED

New York, Feb. 17.—The "folly" of William H. Anderson, formerly superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, who is under sentence for third degree forgery, in compensating an employe of the league by allowing him commissions on subscriptions obtained, will never be repeated, Rev. Samuel L. Hamilton, superintendent of the Metropolitan district of the league declared today in an address at the Tremont Baptist church.

Mr. Hamilton said the "disastrous experiment with O. E. Phillips, former league collector, undertaken by Mr. Anderson on his own responsibility and without the knowledge of the board until after the fact, had cured any league administration of that folly beyond the possibility of a relapse."

SAYS ESTIMATES OF THE BONUS WERE "JUGGLED"

New York, Feb. 17.—A "high treasury official" admitted to him that the treasury department estimates of an ex-service men's bonus were "juggled" to fool the public. Colonel Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian, asserted in an address today at a bonus mass meeting.

Each time congress asked for a revised estimate, Mr. Miller said, he was informed the treasury increased previous estimates "because it was felt necessary at the treasury department to use stronger and stronger arguments against the bonus each time it came up."

CONFIDENT CONGRESS WILL APPROVE POLAR FLIGHT

Lakehurst, N. J., Feb. 17.—Confidence that congress will approve of the proposed flight of the Shenandoah to the polar regions was expressed here today by Captain G. W. Allen, aide to Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of naval aeronautics, who came to the naval air station to inspect the dirigible this morning. Captain Allen is in charge of preparations for the trip which have been suspended by order of President Coolidge, pending action by congress.

TO ADVOCATE ABOLISHMENT OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing prison, will go to Albany Tuesday to advocate a bill abolishing capital punishment, before the codes committee of the legislature it became known today. The warden will be accompanied by William Gale, Christian Science chaplain, and Rabbi Jacob Katz, Jewish chaplain of the prison, also of New Haven.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Demonstration in Tokio.

Tokio, Feb. 17 (By the A. P.)—More than 10,000 Japanese at a mass meeting today, adopted resolutions demanding at once the resignations of members of the Kiyoura ministry, and then paraded the streets, passing before the Peer's club. Police reserves were called out, but the demonstration was orderly.

Fanatics Captured in Philippines.

Manila, Feb. 17 (By the A. P.)—Three leaders of the bands of fanatics that have been causing trouble on Bucas Island, Surigao province, off the Island of Mindanao, have been captured, according to a telegram received here today from Lieut. Col. Clarence H. Bowers, commander of the constabulary forces in that district. He added that the bands have been completely broken up.

MEXICAN FEDERALS ARE READY TO ATTACK TUXPAM

Mexico City, Feb. 17 (By the A. P.)—Military activities have been concentrated upon the Vera Cruz oil region with the purpose of recapturing Tuxpam, the most important city still held by the rebels. Papantla, which is considered the key for the capture of Tuxpam, fell into the hands of the federal forces after five days of fighting, Lieutenant Colonel Vicente Herrera defeating the rebel leaders, Goldino Cazares and J. Vega Bernal.

The rebels fortified the hills surrounding Papantla and had been successful in holding off the federal troops since last Monday. The federals, however, carried out a flanking movement and forced the rebels to abandon the town and to withdraw toward Tuxpam.

An intercepted wireless dispatch from the Tuxpam rebels to General Enrique Estrada reports that all the rebel groups are marching against Tampico, which the dispatch asserts will be captured within three days. In official circles here it is stated that the capture of Tampico will be impossible as 5,000 federal troops have been concentrated in that region.

Morelia, the second most important town controlled by the rebels, is expected to fall into the hands of the federal forces. Three military columns are advancing against the city, repairing as they go, the railway line, which was cut at various places by the rebels.

After the capture of Morelia, the next battle in the west is expected to take place at Sayula, to which place Salvador Alvarado withdrew after his defeat at Ocotlan subsequent to the evacuation of Guadalajara.

Railroad headquarters here reports that Tierra Blanca was occupied by the federals at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The rebels withdrew without fighting.

HOUSE WILL DISCUSS TAX REDUCTION THIS WEEK

Washington, Feb. 17—Tax reduction comes back this week, temporarily at least, to the place in the center of the congressional stage which the oil scandal has occupied for more than a month.

With the senate inquiry into the naval oil leases suspended for a week, public attention once more will be focussed on the fight over the Mellon tax plan. The big issue in this contest—the maximum income surtax rate—will come to a decision in the house within a few days. The tax fight is expected to occupy the house throughout the week, and there will be little activity by its committees.

The senate will have before it tomorrow the question of final approval of the special government counsel in the oil lease cases. With that disposed of, leaders hope to be able to bring up the interior department appropriation bill, the first of the big supply measures to be reported to it.

Meantime the appropriations committee will begin work on the combination postoffice and treasury measure. Other committees will go forward with their work on railroad and farm relief legislation.

TWO ARRESTS FOR $700,000 MAIL ROBBERY

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Charles De Nova, Oak Park, Ills., and his brother James De Nova, Palos Park, Ill., arrested last night by Postal Inspector William Fahy and Deputy United States Marshal William Roberts, on charges of being accessories after the fact, in connection with the $700,000 mail robbery at Toledo, Ohio, on February 17, 1921, will be taken to Toledo for trial, according to the authorities.

James De Nova, according to Inspector Fahy, harbored George Rogers, one of the men who committed the robbery, in his home after he made his escape after being convicted and sentenced to fifty-seven years in prison.

Charles De Nova, it is alleged, was named by three other members of the gang, who are under indictment and awaiting trial at Toledo, as secreting some of the proceeds of the robbery at his home.

M'ADOO SUPPORTERS ARE GATHERING IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Democratic leaders from 32 states were here tonight awaiting the "availability conference," scheduled for tomorrow to consider the presidential candidacy of former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. More than 300 party leaders are expected to participate in the conference, according to those in charge.

Mr. McAdoo arrived from Washington late this afternoon, but will not attend the conference unless formally invited to address the assemblage after its deliberations. The meeting will be open to the public.

A number of McAdoo supporters, predicted a virtually unanimous ratification of the candidacy.

BRITISH DOCK WORKERS HELD SUNDAY MEETINGS

London, Feb. 17.—(By the A. P.)—There was nothing unusual to disturb the customary Sunday peace around the British docks today, but there were numerous meetings of strikers to discuss the situation. It will not be known until tomorrow how solid the workers are for the strike or what action the government proposes to take, if any, to reach a settlement.

CONDONES CIGARETTE SMOKING BY WOMEN

Utica, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Cigarette smoking by women is not considered a badge of disgrace or an improper thing for a woman of culture and refinement; neither is it ground for divorce action in supreme court tried in this city.

EXPEDITION FINDS OLDEST BUILDING IN THE WORD

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—The oldest building in the world still standing above ground has been found by the joint expeditdon of the British Museum, London, and the University museuf, Philadelphia, at Tell El Obeid, Babylonia, four miles from Ur of the Chaldeans of Biblical fame.

It was announced tonight, by Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the University museum, in making public a report from Dr. C. Leonard Woolly, head of the joint expedition on the bnaks of the Euphrates.

The excavation of this building, a temple, has brought to light marvelous carvings of animals and men, and moved the already ancient history of Babylonia back another 1,000 years. The building is more than 6,000 years old, and its history is placed at a period far removed from King Tut-ankhamen in the past as the present generation is removed from him in known history.

Dr. Gordon announced that the expedition had unearthed remarkable carvings of animals done in limestone, mosics and even artificial flowers of stone. One of the choices finds was a small golden scarabold bean inscribed with the name of the builder of the temple, King A--an-ni-pad-da of Ur who reigned 4500 years before Christ. This is the oldest royal jewel known.

In summing up his report, Dr. Woolley said:

"It is no exaggeration to say that the discoveries of this season revolutionize our ideas of the early history of this country, carrying back that history by a thousands years into what were the doubtful ages of legend and giving concrete illustration of an art unguessed."

FAVOR JURY SYSTEM FOR SCREEN CENSORSHIP

New York, Feb. 17.—The social service commission of the Episcopal diocese of New York today addressed to Bishop Manning a report recommending that city officials join willing producers, writers, theatre owners and actors in adopting the citizen-jury system of stage and screen censorship.

Under the proposed system, church, municipal and theatrical organizations would draw a list of eligible jurists from their memberships. Then, upon complaint of any citizen to the city commissioner of licenses that a play or picture contained morally objectionable features, a jury of 12 men would be chosen by lot to view the performance privately and pass on its merits as entertainment fit for the public.

The commission solicited the approval of the commission of licenses three weeks ago, but, it report to Bishop Manning, had received no reply. It recommende dthat, with or without official sanction and cooperation, the jury censorship program be put into effect at once.

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY DIED OF SUFFOCATION IN CRIB

New York, Feb. 17.—Donald Harrington, two-year-old son of Mrs. Dorothy Harrington, who is a nis. of Supreme Court Justice Davis, died of suffocation in his crib today when fire swept through the apartment on the floor below of Dr. Ettore Perrone. The doctor braved the flames to rescue his eight-year-old daughter, who was ill in bed.

The child's father, Portus Harrington, is in Cleveland, where he is engaged in the stock brokerage business, Justice Davis said.

Little Donald had been left alone for a short while by his moter, according to Justice Davis, at whose home Mrs. Harrington collapsed after the tragedy. The fire did not reach the room where the boy died. His little body was curled up comfortably and toys strewn on the floor indicated he had crawled into his crib for a nap.

MAN BURNED TTO DEATH WITH HOME IN MIDDLETOWN

Middletown, Conn., Feb. 17.—Clarence W. Hills, 40 was burned to death when fire destroyed his home, barn and a small adjoining building today. The body was found lying beside his couch which had failed into the cellar when the upper floor collapsed.

Both the medical examiner and coroner expressed the opinion that Hill's death was due to his own negligence, as he had been in the habit of smoking in bed. He lived alone for many years and his nearest relatives are believed to be Mrs. Rose Lucas, a half sister, living at 175 Wolcott street, New Haven, and a half brother, whose name is unknown, but who is also of New Haven.

Estranged Wife Gagged and Bound

Found Unconscious by Negro Maid in West 46th Street Apartment, New York.

New York, Feb. 17.—Olga Morton, youthful estranged wife of Frederick Camp, bank employe, was found unconscious today in her West 46th street apartment, gagged and bound in a manner exactly like that employed by the robber-murderers of Louise Lawson, actress, who was found strangled to death in her studio rooms February 8. Miss Morton was revived and is not in serious condition.

Miss Morton, like Miss Lawson, was found by her negro maid, her hands tied with silk stockings, a face towel used for a gag and a bath towel thrown over her head. She was lying face downward in the doorway leading from the parlor to the bedroom. The apartment is one of those typical theatre district dwelling places widely known as "parlor, bedroom and bath."

The maid had stayed in the apartment last night until 8 o'clock when ten or twelve of Miss Morton's men and women friends who had made up a jolly party in the apartment below departed for their homes. Miss Morton was quite fatigued, the maid said, and she prepared her for bed before leaving and locking the entrance door. It was about 10 o'clock this morning when the maid returned to find the entrance door unlocked. Then she saw the trussed-up body of her mistress as she opened the door, screamed and ran to the street shouting for police.

After a while, the police, aided by a physician, revived the young woman who told them that she had fallen asleep soon after the friends had left last night. She did not know how long she slept when she awakened, startled, to see a man standing over her, a horrible grin on his face. Before she could make an outcery, the man placed a hand over her mouth and then she felt a towel about her throat and consciousness ebbing away.

There was no disorder in the trim little apartment and Miss Morton was too hysterical to tell the police any more. The physician advised the police to let the young woman rest and regain her composure, after which she probably would be able to tell a more coherent story of the attack and perhaps give the police a clue.

The first work of the investigators was to collect the names and addresses of those who had attended last night's party. They had no idea however, that the questioning of these persons would result in any tangible information about the attack and the motive. The attack upon Miss Morton, almost in every detail was so like that which resulted in the death of Louise Lawson that the police intimated they were certain both young women were victims of the same men who have become known in police circles as the "towel-stranglers."

The theory that robbery was the motive for binding and gagging Miss Morton has lost credence, the police said later, since apparently no attempt was made to take anything from the apartment.

Guests at the party in the apartment below, which was given by Lu Genaro, said to be a broker, included a "Dr. Luby" and a "Mr. Carpenter." detectives said they had learned. "Dr. Luby" was said to have escorted Miss Morton to her apartment this morning when she left the party downstairs, and to have left soon afterward. "Mr. Carpenter," was said to have visited the young woman's apartment at about 4 o'clock, but was refused admittance. Both of these men will be questioned by the police, it was said.

The police are investigating a report which circulated through the neighborhood that two negroes were seen in the vicinity shortly before Miss Morton was discovered, bound and gagged. A fireman, whose name was not known, was said to have seen the two.

Detectives said the young woman had married Camp last September, but had lived with him only one day after the ceremony.

DISCREDIT STORY OF BIG COUNTERFEITING RING

Washington, Feb. 17—Although they place little credence in the story, secret service officials are investigating statements made by A. C. Habbicht, arrested in the recent counterfeiting roundup, that reserve bank officials and other prominent men were parties to a gigantic counterfeiting ring.

Habbicht was arrested in New York Friday, and is held with three others in what secret service officials described today as a crude effort to put out counterfeit federal reserve notes. He said the "ring" was well organized and was formed for the purpose of substituting counterfeit federal reserve notes for genuine bills of one thousand dollar denomination which had been stolen from the vault of a federal reserve bakn. He declined to name the bank.

Secret service officials declared today that the counterfeit notes involved are so imperfect that they "would have gotten nowhere."

MISSOURI TO OPPOSE WITHDRAWAL OF M'ADOO

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 17.—Opposition to any proposal that William G. McAdoo withdraw from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination because of testimony before the senate oil committee, will be expressed by Missouri delegates at the meeting in Chicago Monday, when the former treasurery head's availability as a candidate will be discussed, it was announced tonight.

Breckenridge long, one of the directing heads of McAdoo's campaign in Missouri, said he would read a number of telegrams received from various Missouri communities urging McAdoo to remain in the race.

COOLIDGE HONORS NAT'L MUSIC WEEK COMMITTEE

New York, Feb. 17.— President Coolige has accepted the chairmanship of the Honorary Committee of National Music Week, which is to have its first synchronized national observance May 4-10, it was announced tonight by the national meek committee.

The President's letter expressed the hope that this year's observance of music week mark another milestone on the way to the wildest interest in, and appreciation of, the best in "music culture."

Constable Killed in Inn Near Danbury

Connecticut State Police and New York Troopers Are Searching For Murderer.

Danbury, Feb. 17.—George Goets, 35, a constable of Kent was shot and instantly killed, and Thomas Stern, 30, of this city, is in a serious condition in a hospital here as the result of a shooting at a road house in Mill Plain today. Pietro Vasco, proprietor of a restaurant here, alleged to have fired the shots, is being sought by Connecticut state police and New York state troopers.

Augustine Stokes of Stafford, who is said to have been with Vasco at the inn, is being held in bail of $3,000 as a material witness.

According to the state police Vasco started a disturbance in the place and was ejected by the proprietor. Goets and several others, followed him out. Vasco is said to have stepped into the taxi and then fired several shots out of the window over the heads of the men. When Goets accused him of shooting blank cartridges he is alleged to have turned the gun on the constable, shooting him through the heart.

Witnesses declared that he then fired several other shots in the direction of an automobile parked near by. One of these went turough the windshield, hitting Stern in the shoulder.

Vasco is said to have ordered Skelley, the taxi driver, to take him to Norwalk but when Skelly left the car on a pretext to go into the road house the man ran off before he could be captured.

The place where the shooting occurred is about 800 yards from the New York state line.

Vasco, it is believed, may be hiding in a farm house in either of the two states. He came to Danbury several months ago from Yonkers, N. Y.

REV. GRANT DISAGREES WITH BISHOP MANNING

New York, Feb. 17.—Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, in his sermon today, asserted Bishop Manning went too far in his ex-cathedra pronouncement two weeks ago in asserting that Christianity stands or falls on the disclosures of the creeds and scriptures about Jesus Chrit.

"The creed and the scriptures," said Rev. Dr. Grant, create so many questions that any modern clergyman who is not searching after truth outside of the scriptures is unlikely to find truth in the scriptures."

The subject of the sermon was "Is the Bishop Right?", and throughout, Rev. Dr. Grant quoted from Bishop Manning's sermon, answering the latter's argument with a series of questions to which his answer was: "As a religion of miracle alone, Christianity can not live."

"This controversy," said the modernist rector, "involves more things than life on the surface. It is a controversy between the old and the new; it is a controversy between tyranny and freedom; it is a controversy between democracy and the older forms of government; it is a controversy between reason and authority; between Protestantism and Catholicism, and between the supernatural and the natural.

"Christianity has taught too much about feeling, too much about love," he continued "and not enough about knowledge"

OPPOSES GRANT OF PUBLIC LAND TO NORTHERN PACIFIC

Washington, Feb. 17—(By the A. P.)—A claim that the Northern Pacific Railway Company ha srecelved a total of $136,118,533 from lands of its government grant, or nearly twice the $70,000,000 cost of constructing the railroad, is set by the forest service as the chief reason why congress should deny the railway company the right to take over addition 3,000,000 acres of public lands which it now claims under the original grants.

A resolution directing the secretary of the interior to withhold his approval of the adjustment of the Northern Pacific land grants and the issuance of any further patents on them until a congressional inquiry can be made has been introduced in the house. It is sponsored by the interior and agriculture departments and will be pressed.

Asserting that the railway company is seeking acreage in the national forests of Montana, Idaho and Washington probably worth $30,000,000, the forest service, in a summary of the controversy which became public today argues that the northern Pacific land grants have been fully satisfied. Moreover, it says an accounting from the railroad which congress has the right to demand, may justify the cancellation of the patents to all granted lands still retained by the corporation.

FATHER SACRIFICED LIFE TO SAVE THAT OF SON

Wallingford, Conn., Feb. 17.—Last October 13 years old Fred C. Benzinger was run over by a truck while playing in the street and the flesh of his right leg above the knee, was badly mangled and torn away. The only thing that could save the leg, doctors declared was to graft skin from another's body to cover the exposed area. His father and mother both volunteered and sixty patches of skin, from each of the parents, each one inch square were grafted to the boy's leg.

Fred showed signs of improvement and Mrs. Benzinger was apparently none the worse for the operation but the father, Fred C. Benzinger, Sr., did not fare so well. The places on his body from which the skin was cut to save his boy's leg, failed to heal and today, after four months of pain, happily borne in the knowledge that his son was safe, he died at the Meriden hospital. The son will soon be dicharged as well and as strong as before the accident.

Benzinger, Sr., was 41 years old, a Spanish-American war veteran and member of the legion. He leaves a leaves a widow and three children.

SLIPPING SKIS LANDED MAN IN FRONT OF TRAIN

Sherbrooke, Que., Feb. 17—Carried by slipping skies down an embankment beside a railroad track, Norman B. Stark, 40, fell in front of a train and was instantly killed today. He had been walking along the tracks on skis, and as the train approached, attempted to climb the embankment.

BUSINESS GOOD IN BANKING AND INDUSTRIAL CIRCLES

Weekly Review Shows That Car Loadings Confirm the Impression of a Strong Industrial Revival—Figures on Cotton Consumption During January Were Unexpectedly High, But the Showing Failed to Check the Speculative Decline—Automobile Plants Are Running at an Unusually High Rate.

New York, Feb. 17.—(By the A. P.)—Although the oil investigations and the consequent epidemic of gossip finally made a marked impression on speculative sentiment and speculative markets during the past week, optimistic views with regard to the business situation continued to be held in banking and industrial circles. That speculative sentiment was in fact affected was abundantly clear from the uniformity with which securities, cotton and grain reacted. Stocks suffered the sharpest break since the current rise started in November, cotton broke through the January lows ad hold at a level about six cents below the high for the crop year, and wheat lost approximately four cents of its recent 6-cent rise.

Commodity prices as a whole did not, however, reverse their upward trend. Dun's list showed 25 advances as against 22 declines while Bradstreet's list shoyed 16 advances and 15 declines.

Industrial news meanwhile was considered encouraging. The steel industry is operating at a rate some 5 percent above the average for last year and prices continue firm. Pig iron in fact, has made a further slight advance. Trade reports say that the additional production, which is keeping the leading companies operating at 90 per cent. of capacity, is not going into stocks but is being consumed.

Automobile makers also are running their plants at an unusually high rate and appear to be quite confident with regards to spring business.

Railroad car loading confirm the impression of a strong industrial revival. Some 930,000 cars were loaded with revenue freight in the week ending February 2. This represents a gain of over 38,000 as compared with the previous week and of 64,500 as compared with the same week a year ago.

Figures on cotton consumption during January proved to be unexpectedly high but the showing failed to check the sharp speculative decline which already was under way. The month's takings by our mills amounted to 576,0000 bales as compared with 461,000 during December. Experts of the staple were considerably smaller than in December but this decline represents merely the normal seasonal slackening. The cotton market rallied moderately as the week closed but traders were inclined toward a waiting attitude until the trend of things in the dry goods market is more clearly defined.

A slight firming up in the money market corresponded to an expansion of discounts and circulation at the federal reserve banks. The bank statements showed that the contraction in credit demands which follows the year-end had ended and suggested that expanding trade is making greater demands for accommodation. Nevertheless, the best judges did not anticipate any marked change in the general character of the money market.

Foreign exchange rates were moderately reactionary, sterling suffered slightly on account of the dockers' strike and recessions in francs reflected Premier Poincare's difficulties with his program for increased taxation. Well-posted observers were encouraged, however, with the evidences of progress by the committee of experts which is studying means for balancing the German budget and for providing a stable currency.

EXPECT SENATE APPROVAL OF ROBERTS AS OIL COUNSEL

Washington, Feb. 17—The last congressional act necessary to the institution of legal proceedings in the oil scandal is expected tomorrow by the senate in the confirmation of the nomination of Owen J. Roberts, of Philadelphia, to be a special government counsel in the oil cases.

Although Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, leader of the republican insurgents, has prepared to lead a fight on Mr. Roberts, administration senators predicted his appointment would be approved by substantially the same majority that the senate gave last night to the nomination of Atlee Pomerene, of Canton, Ohio, to be one of the two chief counsel.

While Senator Walsh, Montana, democrat, chief prosecutor in the oil investigation, and other senators have voice ddisapproval of Mr. Roberts' appointment, many members on both sides of the chamber hold that he is amply qualified for the task ahead. Moreover, they argue that there should be no further delay in counsel getting down to the stupendous task they must undertake.

The first move in what has come to be regarded as one of the most important legal battles to which the federal government ever has been a party, will be applications in Wyoming and California for temporary injunctions to stop further extraction of oil from the naval reserves in those states operated by the Sinclair and Doheny interests, respectively.

SITUATION IN WILLIAMSON COUNTY REMAINS TENSE

Marion, Ill., Feb. 17.—Attempts to work out means for an executive civil government in Williamson county were reported today to be progressing satisfactorily.

Troops are remaining in control of the situation until the citizen group is ready to announce and put into effect a program of law enforcement under civil authorities.

The troops expect to stay at least until Thursday when the county board of supervisors meets again to hear plans of the citizens committee.

A quarrel last night at Herrin between Ora Thomas, and heads of the Knights of the Flaming Circle with Chief of Police Ford and Herrin klansmen, had no other consequence than to make the troops doubly vigiliant.

There is a tenseness of the whole situation which many expect to break into local civil war withi na few weeks unless effective local enforcement machinery can be put in order.

Bonds of $20,000 covering 10 counts of larency and robbery have been prepared for S. Glenn Young, paid raider of the Ku Klux Klan, when he returns to answer the indictments of the grand jury.

BOTH COMMITTEES OF EXPERTS TO MEET TODAY

This report will be delivered to the reparations commission, under whose auspices the committee has been working and will endeavor to point out the best thod to solve the reparation tangle.

Both committees, the first presided over by Brigadier General Chardes G Dawes, and the second, headed by Reginald McKenna, former chancellor of the British exchequer, will meet tomorrow for the first time in plenary session since their return from Berlin.

SERGEANT WAS BURNED TO DEATH IN BARRACKS

Washington, Feb. 17.—Staff Sergeant John Miller, of Lewiston, Me., was burned to death, and Private Charles Geannis, of Newcastle, Me., received injuries from which e died in a fire which destroyed two barracks buildings at Camp Humphreys, Virginia, near here today.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS TO HOLD FOR MELLON SURTAX

Washington, Feb. 17—House republican leaders determined today to boost the proposed maximum surtax rate in the revenue bill to 37 1-2 per cent. in an effort to break the deadlock in negotiations with the insurgents, who hold the balance of power in the vote on the income rate schedules which will be taken up on Tuesday.

The republicans previously had receded from the Mellon rate of 25 per cent., carried in the bill and had centered on 35 per cent. in an effort to unite the party against the democratic stand for a 44 per cent. maximum. The 35 per cent. rate, leaders said, would win 208 republican votes, 10 less than a majority. Two conferences yesterday with the insurgent group, however, failed to bring an agreement, the organization is by representatives Fear and Nelson, Wisconsin, holding out for a 40 per cent. surtax rate and a reduction of fifty per cent. in the normal income taxes. The Mellon rates call for a 25 per cent reduction in the normal taxes. Republican organization leaders insisted today they would not consent to the added normal tax reductions, which are the same as those proposed by the democrats, because, treasury estimates had shown such a cut would reduce revenue receipts below the estimated surplus on which tax revision is to be based.

McCORMICK LINE STEAMER SINKING IN COOS BAY,

San Francisco, Feb. 17—Passengers and crew of the McCormick line steamer Columbia, believed to number about sixty, were in peril this afternoon in Coos Bay, Oregon, where the vessel struck the jetty shortly after noon.

An S. O. S. from the ship was picked up by the Radio Corporation of America here. Later messages said that a coast guard cutter had gone to the rescue.

The Columbia was en route from San Francisco to Portland, and it was announced at the office of the McCormick Steamship Company here that thirty passengers were aboard. The crew numbered 30 or 35.

Wireless messages said the coast guard cutter had advised the Columbia to "stick to your ship and we will put out our boats and get you."

The Columbia reported she probably would be a total loss.

She was putting in for a scheduled stop at Marshfield, Ore., on Coos Boy, when she struck the jetty.

TWO MORE B[illegible] FOUND IN THE MONTPELIER FIRE

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 17—Volunteer searchers and firemen working night and day, found two more bodie sin the ruins of the Lawrence building which was destroyed by fire early Friday morning with the loss of eleven lives. One body, that of a woman, is still missing. The body of Dr. James F. Ryder was found this afternoon. Earlier the body of a woman was found, but it could not be definitely identified. It is either that of Mrs. Agnes Lupien or Mrs. Rosamond Miller.

Low temperature and several feet of water in teh basement of the building hampered the search. Effort will be made tonight to find the last missing body, which, it is hoped, will make definite the identification of the other women's body.

REVOLUTIONARY LANDMARK WAS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Tarrytown, N. Y. Feb. 17.—Philipse Manor, a landmark of colonial and revolutionary days, now is the home of Miss Elsie Janis, actress, was damaged today by fire believed to have spread from the living room fireplace, part of the orginal structure built in 1683 by Federick Philipse.

Miss Janis and her mother, alone in the house at the time, telephoned an alarm Firemen and residents of the vicinity saved many valuable household furnishings, but the upper floor and attic of the historic structure were destroyed and virtually the entire roof was burned away.

WILLIMANTIC

The large crowd of curious onlookers which jammed the spectators gallery of the police court room was doomed to disappointment Saturday morning, as both cases scheduled for a hearing and word of which interest there, were hastily ordered postponed to a later date. Philip Pagano, against whom there is a charge of violation of the liquor law will not be given a hearing until March 1 as his attorney, William A. Hinman could not be present in court Saturday. At the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Samuel H. Harvey, Judge Post granted a continuance under the same bond of $1,000 with Frank Melo as surety. Pagano is booked for a hearing before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at Norwich, Wednesday, February 20.

Julius U. Guay had his case continued one week under bonds of $500 furnished by his father. The charge against Guay is of concealing property sold under a conditional bill of sale. Guay bought a second hand car from a local automobile concern and soon after dropped out of sight. He admits that he still owes for practically the full amount of the machine, but says that it was stolen from him in New York City some time ago.

Included among the spectators who were on hand to see that justice was meted out were Rev. Arthur W. Clifford, pastor of the Windham Center Congregational church and Rev. David R. Overton of the A. M. E. Zion church, Willimantic.

"At Last" was the expression used by many when it was brought to their attention that a local tongue-wagger had been taken to task. The police have received complaints in regard to this matter and those afflicted with slippery tongued have been warned that the further spreading of untruths would some day land them in the lock-up.

Two cases were tried in the Mansfield town court Friday morning by Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews. Grand Juror Frank W. Millard prosecuted Carl R. Adzello, of Seymour, charged with operating an unregistered automobile which had mutilated motor numbers, pleaded guilty to both charges. On the first count he was fined $50 and on the second $10 and costs. Adzello paid the assessment.

William E. McQuade of Chaplin was charged with not having a driver's license and using an unregistered trailer on his car. He pleaded guilty. A fine of $2, and costs was imposed for the first charge and $3 on the second count, both were paid.

Tuesday, February 19, will be Enrollment Day with the local Y. M. C. A. Those whose memberships have expired are to visit the building and renew them. The boys' fees have been reduced. Employed and high school boys' memberships are now placed at $5 per annum and juniors at $3.50. The amounts are payable half down and the balance in two months. In the event that any boy cannot meet the fee arrangements will be made for him through the general secretary. A new regulation at the Y is that no boy under sixteen will be allowed to play billiards without the written consent of his parents or guardian. The above action was taken at a meeting of thirty-five men representing all phases of the Y. M. C. A. activities, with the board of directors and members of the advisory board. A number of local clergymen were also present. The session was in charge of Kenneth N. Hillhouse, chairman of the membership committee. An appetizing supper was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary with Mrs. C. A. Tainter in charge. Brief addresses were made by a number, including President James R. Fullerton, James P. Bath, chairman of the house committee and Hubert W. Huber, chairman of the finance committee.

Judgments involving a number of cases of local interest were announced last week by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, as the culmination of trials heard in the December civil term of the Windham county superior court. In the case of Herbert L. Switzer against George J. Brown, an action brought over the sale of a horse, the plaintiff charged that the horse purchased from the defendant was not in the condition claimed as to soundness. Decision was given for the defendant. Judgment was also rendered for the defendants in the case of Herbert L. Switzer versus Turansky Brothers, local furriers, in which defendants sought to recover damages of $30 on a counter-claim. Switzer took some mink skins to the defendants in July 1922 to be made into a garment for his wife and completed in November of the same year. This was not done according to the plaintiff and he replevined the unfinished skins. The defendants brought a counter-claim on the work that they had done on the skins.

The plaintiff will recover the sum of $307.96 in the case of George J. Wood vs. William F. and Harold E. Maine, a suit for $2.46 over a wood lot and timber which was cut and hauled away.

In the case of John Bak vs. Stanley and Annie Kintek, a suit to recover commission on property sold by the plaintiff for the defendants, judgment was given for the plaintiff to recover $36. He sought damages of $100.

A lively meeting of Pythian Sisters, Puritan Temple, No. 2, was held in the lodge rooms Friday evening with an attendance of about seventy-five. Guests of honor included Grand Chief Martha Snyder and Past Grand Mistress of Records and Correspondence, Mrs. Turner of Hartford, Grand Senior; Mrs. Lena Gales of this city, Grand Junior Mrs. Kirks of Meriden, Grand Manager Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Newman of West Haven. Excellent Chief Mrs. Jennie E. Anthony presided over the session. A delicious supper was served early in the evening in charge of Mrs. Sadie Norton, chairman assisted by Mrs. Adams and Bessie Pickwell. Mrs. Blanche Congdon and was in charge of the dining room. A social hour followed the business meeting and addresses were delivered by a number of the visitors. Grand Chief Martha Snyder was presented a beautiful china dish by Mrs. Leah Hardman.

Mrs. Elvira J. Cady, 84, widow of William Henry Cady, died early Saturday morning at her home in South Coventry, Mrs. Cady was born in Montague, Mass., December 11, 1839, a daughter of Albert and Lucinda Brown Newton. She is survived by two sons, Clayton F. and Fred H. Cady of South Coventry; a brother, Edward Newton of Montague, Mass., and two sisters, Mrs. Emmualia Hutchins, of Montague and Mrs. Levilla Greene of Manitoba, Canada.

The city ice-houses at the municipal plant in Mansfield are now well packed with a little over five thousand tons of ice, ranging from eight to thirteen inches in thickness. Of the contents in the three houses two kinds will average eleven inches. The work of completing the cutting and harvesting of the crop required seventeen days and an average of twenty-four men were employed each day. With fair conditions the horse has yet his place in the work of cutting ice and for the first time in the history of its cutting in this section a patent saw-cutting machine replaced the old horse-drawn rig. The power for hoisting the endless chain belt which carried the cakes from the pond to the houses was furnished by a steam boiler and engine, borrowed from the city pond crushing plant on South Park street.

Local performers made a big hit Friday night in the presentation of the 1924 Minstrels at St. Mary's Hall for the benefit of St. Mary's church. C. H. Taylor directed the affairs and was assisted by F. L. Taylor, who had charge of the drills and dances. The first part of the show was in minstrel form. The jokes were original and provoked much laughter. Walter Corcoran was the interlocutor. The outstanding stars of the minstrels were Forrest Richards, Ernest Jacobs, Miss Gladys Powell, Fred Taylor and Little Lillian Taylor. The model show with gowns and coats from a local house was the source of lively interest on the part of the audience. The Argentine tango introduced by Forrest Richards and Miss Powell went over big and won several encores. The Mantego featured in athletic posing. The members of the troupe were: End men, Fred Taylor, Glen Richards, Arthur Jacobs, Forrest Richards, Ernest Jacobs and Florimond Soule. The men in the middle, Walter Corcoran, balladists; Gladys Powell, Anthony Chesse, Francis McCarthy and C. H. Taylor. Ground, Henry Thiffeault, Cornelius Shea, Harry Nolan, Arthur Barry, Leo Chretien, Arthur Caisse, Mildred Bombria, Janette Langlois, Rose Bertrand, Evelyn Bertrand, Blanche Hall, Rose Schelonka.

A Ford auto-truck parked on Main street, about three o'clock Saturday afternoon, in front of the Windham Pharmacy, suddenly burst into flames and caused considerable excitement. The driver, Roy Hebert was off on business and a still alarm was sent to the Bank street engine house and Engine Company No. 1, responded. About ten gallons of chemicals were used to extinguish the flames. The seat and woodwork of the cab were damaged by the fire. Gasoline dripping from the gasoline tank onto the hot exhaust pipe is said to have started the blaze. The truck is owned by Nathan Schubert of No. 40 Temple street.

Teddy Ereshena of North Windham has a badly lacerated hand and a fractured forearm as the result of being thrown from his wagon, about ten o'clock Saturday morning, when the horse bolted and ran away. Ereshena was driving along the North Windham Highway at the time and the horse was one which he had purchased in Hartford about three weeks ago. The wagon was wrecked.

Edwin A. Shaw will be the speaker of the afternoon at the next meeting of the Willimantic Woman's club Tuesday. Dr. Shaw is an educator in the Psycho-Educational Clinic of the Graduate School of Education Harvard University. His subject will be "Mental Measurement".

When a child became alarmed as he heard the exploding of an auto tire out on the street and yelled Fire Fire, Friday night, practically the entire audience attending the first show at the Strand Theatre, on Broad St., arose from their seats and rushed outside. Out of a capacity house somewhat less than one hundred people retained their self-control and remained seated. A comedy picture being shown at the crowd rushed pell mell into the street.

A certificate of amendment to its certificate of incorporation has been filed in the office of the secretary of state, Hartford, by the Thadeus Kosciuszko club of Willimantic, Conn., Inc. To the objects of association has been added that of promoting a knowledge of American citizenship.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kegler of Windham Road are entertaining their daughter, Mrs. James Ryan, of Torrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Killourey and daughter Eleanor were Hartford visitors last week.

Mrs. John S. Lewis of Summit St., and Mrs. Granville Graves of Main street were Providence visitors on Saturday.

Miss Marion McCarthy spent the week end with her uncle, P. J. Navin of Clark's Corner.

STAFFORD

The Hospital Aid society is to meet at the Johnson hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Bessie Slater left the Johnson hospital $300 and the Women's Relief Corps $100.

C. B. Pinney and daughter, Miss Pinney, have arrived in France. Mr. Pinney plans to spend about a month abroad and Miss Pinney about six months.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Pinney and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Park have been spending several days in New York.

Miss Ruth Dimmock of Springfield has been the guest of er aunt, Mrs. T. Jenkins.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church plans to have a Colonial supper. There will be special music and readings.

The regular meeting of the Stafford grange will be held Thursday evening. The report of the state grange will be given.

The board of relief will hold the last meeting today (Monday).

T. M. Jenkins has returned to the store, after recovering from grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Harris celebrated their golden wedding Thursday evening, Feb. 7. They were married on February 7, 1874, by Rev. A. F. Bassett, pastor of the Methodist church in Wales. In 1885 they made their home for twenty years, after which they moved to Hyderville and then to their present home in Stafford where they have lived for 23 years. In Stafford, as in other places where they have lived, they have a large circle of friends who esteem Mr. and Mrs. Harris highly and regard them as true bible neighbors, both being of genial and sympathetic disposition. Their fifty years of married life has not all been sunshine especially of late Mrs. Harris has passed through much sorrow because of the death of a sister, brother, and sister-in-law and in that account their fiftieth anniversary was rather a quiet affair. But several of their friends and neighbors came in to congratulate them and to wish them much happiness for another fifty years. Refreshments were served and fine Victrola furnished music. The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church, in which Mrs. Harris is specially interested, presented the bride and groom a beautiful bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. Rev. F. W. Tholen, pastor of the Baptist church, spoke briefly, wishing them God's blessing and on behalf of their friends presented them a gold coin of substantial coin and offered prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris are so well and active at present that everybody hopes their lives will be spared for many more years.

ALL BUT BLIND

All but blind
In his drumming tide
Groped for worms
The four-clawed Mole.

All but blind
In the evening sky
The hooded Bat
Twirls softly by.

All but blind
In the burning day
The Barn-Owl blunders
On her way.

And blind as the
Three lives in me
So blind to Someone
I must be.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

One of the wild animals most despised and widely hunted by the white men in the far west is the coyote. In the Rocky Mountain region the coyote is commonly called the "wild dog." That is a very good name for him for he does resemble the dog in some respects. His coat is soft, light reddish or yellow in color and he has long, black tipped hair on his back. He has a bushy tail, and ears very straight and he has a slender, pointed muzzle. He is about the same size as a full grown setter dog.

Although the white man doesn't like the coyote at all, he was quite a favorite with the Indians. Indian legends tell us that the coyote once saved the redmen of the northwest from a famine. According to the old Indian story the Indians depended upon the salmon run each year for their food supply. There came a year when no salmon ascended the river and of course that meant that the poor Indian would have nothing to eat that year.

They, as was natural, were quite disturbed over the threatened famine and, the story goes, they made an investigation and found out that some evil spirit had locked the gates of the river so that the salmon could not go up from the sea. They did not know what to do as they were unable to overcome the evil spirit and force him to open the gates of the river. However a coyote volunteered to risk his life for the sake of the redmen of the forest and to unlock the gates of the river. So the "wild dog" as the white men call him, started out on his dangerous errand and after many hardships succeeded in getting the important river key, opened the gates, letting the salmon swim up the river and thus saved the lives of the Indians.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Dear Uncle Jed: Education is the best blessing that children can have bestowed upon them, although some fail to recognize the fact. Religion comes first, then a close second, comes education. People do not value their education today, as much as their ancestors who probably had to walk many miles for books or to get to the little schoolhouse at the crossroads. Compulsory education has been enforced and children are compelled to go to school. The children should be glad that their nation provides free education for them, because when they grow up, their education will help them to earn a living.

A HAPPY HOME

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a cold winter evening and everything and everyone was at peace. Nothing could be heard but the whistle of the wind, the occasional cooing of a dove, a low whinny of a horse and a different individual the crowing of a [illegible]. In the old farmhouse, of the residents an old farmer, his wife and two adopted children lived. The house was neat and very comfortable. In front was a pasture which was now becoming covered with white flakes of snow which stood like stars when the light was upon them.

The old farmer is sitting by the fireplace reading a newspaper and smoking his pipe. His wife is sitting by a table busily mending stockings. A little pussy cat with blue eyes and yellow fur is lying on the floor looking at a book, with a large dog by his side. A girl with large brown eyes, black hair, and rosy cheeks is sitting in a little rocking chair making a dress for her doll. A large white Angora cat is lying on the hearthstone purring softly and looking at her two small kittens who are tumbling over each other in their happy play. Such is the picture that comes before my eyes while thinking of a happy and contented home.

A HAPPY DISCOVERY

Dear Uncle Jed: A poor little girl was once peddling oranges at the railway station of a small southern town. She had made very few sales during the morning, and was turning away, tired and discouraged, when a polished passenger came hurrying along, and seeing the tempting fruit in the child's basket, stopped and asked the price.

"Twelve cents apiece sir," replied the girl in answer to his question. "Put me up a dozen of them," said the man. While she was getting them ready he asked her her name and where she lived. She told him her name was Katy and she lived in a very wretched looking house on one of the worst streets in the city. "I live with an old woman who claims she is my grandmother, but she will never tell me who my father and mother were and sometimes I doubt that she is my grandmother. Then having put the oranges in a bag and received the right change, the man was about to depart when he turned and asked her if she could direct him to a certain hotel. This she did and the man told her that he was looking for a niece of his that was lost in the city about four years ago and she had not been found so he had come here to look for her himself. That night when Katy had gone home and to bed she dreamt that she was this man's niece.

One night when Katy had come home she found her grandmother looking at a bundle of papers that were in an old chest. When Katy came in she shut the lid and locked it hurriedly, as if there were some secret in it. The next day the grandmother said she must go out and try to get a few pennies for some bread and Katy must stay and mind the house. As soon as Katy was sure that her grandmother was gone she took the key to the chest, from its hiding place on the shelf and unlocked it and took out the bundle of papers, the rest of the things being clothing. At the bottom of the chest was a gold locket. Picking it up she found that it opened. Inside were the picture of a man and woman. These afterward were found to be her mother and father.

Then she thought, "I can not read so I can not tell what these papers are about. She decided she would hide the things until the next morning and then she would take the things to Mr. Henderson, the man who bought the oranges from her."

The next morning she took the things to Mr. Henderson and showed them to him. Sure enough these papers contained the history of her own life. Mr. Henderson then took matters into his own hands and other things were found in the old chest which proved to be valuable clues. He left sure then that Katy was his niece.

Instead of giving the woman the punishment she deserved he sent her to an old ladies' home in the city where she lived until she died.

Katy was taken to her uncle's home and given every comfort she wanted and a good education, the thing she most desired.

SNOWBOUND

Dear Uncle Jed: Today is a holiday. It snows so hard that nobody can go to school. We are snowbound. The wind howls down the chimney and the snow is heaped against the windows. This is just the time for games and candy making. The best time will come when we can get out into the snow and dig caves and make forts. I have two sisters and one brother who go skating with me. I am in the third grade.

A PICNIC

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before so I thought I would write and tell you about a picnic. One Saturday morning my friends and I took our lunch and started for a walk in the wood. We followed a path and as we walked along we saw beautiful flowers blooming here and there among the bushes and grass. Above our heads in tall trees the birds of all descriptions were singing very sweetly.

As we came to an open field we saw a deer grazing on the green grass. In the field stood a large oak tree with spreading branches.

We decided that this would be a nice place to eat our lunch. As we started toward the tree the deer saw us and leaped over the wall and started for the woods.

When we came to the tree we opened our baskets and spread a table cloth on the grass. The older girls got the lunch ready for all. By the time the lunch was ready we were very hungry after our long walk.

For our lunch we had sandwiches cake, cookies, candy, peanuts, coffee and fruit.

After our lunch we all gathered up our things and started for home but not the way we came. On our way we crossed a bubbling brook. Here we stopped and drank some cool water and gathered flowers. We arrived home at four o'clock in the afternoon very tired but happy.

A Narrow Escape.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending you another story to be published in the Wide-Awake Circle.

One day Dick Brown, Fred Hills, John Hughes and Joe Green were going skating. They had heard the ice was very good on Mr. Jones' pond, four miles away.

It was about 8 o'clock when they started and they planned to have their dinner at the pond. The day was quite cold but they were so excited that they didn't mind that. In a little more than an hour they reached the pond.

The ice was very good in the center but not very safe near the inlet and outlet.

They put on their skates and started in for a good time. They skated until they were quite tired so they started a fire near the edge of the pond.

After they had had a fine evening of it they started over the hill. This was Mr. Jones' property on the pond. He scolded the boys severely for starting a fire on his land. They were very frightened and Dick, who was the oldest, explained to Mr. Jones that the reason they had started the fire was because they had walked four miles in the cold and had planned to spend the rest of the day there. Mr. Jones at last told them that if they would be careful and put the fire out when they went away that they might leave it burning.

A little while after, Ike was trying to see how near the inlet he could go and not break through. He either went a little too near or was going too fast to stop, for he slid right into the water. He called for help and the boys at the other end of the pond speedily went to his rescue.

They secured a very long pole which was near the shore and soon had the dripping boy out of the water. They took Joe up near the fire and wrapped their warm coats around him. Dick had taken off of his coats off and hung them near the fire. After a while his clothes was dry and he began to skate again.

At noon they ate their dinners which had been put up by their mothers in the morning.

After dinner they played tag and geese on their skates and had a very fine time.

I am sorry to say that Joe caught quite a severe cold as a result of his plunge, but soon recovered. The four boys went skating again but did not get near the inlet or outlet as they had been very frightened by Joe's accident.

A Day in Winter.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day in winter my friend and I decided to go sliding, so we took out our sleds and went up to the top of a hill. I said to my friend, "I'll beat you down the hill." She answered, "All right." We started down the hill. My friend was in front, so I pushed my sled and caught up to her. She was laughing and she shouted to me, "I'll beat you yet." "No, sir," I called back. The bottom of the hill was reached when—bang! I flew off my sled and the only thing I could remember was people shouting. I never went sliding again.

A BRAVE DEED

Dear Uncle Jed: It was mid-winter. A thaw had come, a rain and then a freeze. All the ponds, streams and rivers were frozen over. On the pond groups of merry boys and girls skated to their hearts' content.

One day Rick with his faithful dog Hero started to the river with his skates, taking his sister Rosanna with him. Rick went and joined his boy friends, Ben and Dave with several others, while Rosanna went to skate with the younger girls. The boys started a game of hockey. While in the midst of their game a sudden cracking noise was heard. "There goes the ice," shouted Dave. "Skate to shore everybody. The ice is breaking."

Forgetting their game, Rick and the others followed by Hero glided along for shore. But even as Rick skated along the boy glanced down toward where he had left Rosanna. He could not see her but noticed the other girls fleeing toward the river bank. Then he heard one say, "Rosanna's in the water." Rosanna went through the ice. Rick and his chums knew what this meant for they remembered the time when Ben fell in and the hard time they had to pull him out. Rick and his chums with Hero following ran toward where the ice had broken.

The boys, when they came in sight of the hole in the ice, saw Rosanna. She was down in a hole that had broken in open when the ice cracked. Her head and shoulders were out of the hole.

Ahead of the boys ran Hero. He seemed to know something had happened. He barked loudly and looked back every once in awhile to see if the boys were following, which they were.

"How are we going to save her?" gasped Dave.

Rim right up to her and pull her out, said Ben. "She's holding to the edge of the ice. I can see her. But we mustn't run up to her said Rick, "if we do we'll go in the water too. The ice will break with us."

After getting boards from the nearfence they soon got Rosanna to where where she was warmed. The boys had managed to get her out well. Rick and his friends had done a brave deed.

MY CHICKENS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you how I got my first start in poultry. My aunt gave me six Barred Rock chickens. I raised five roosters and one pullet in the spring, my roosters mated with my sisters Rhode Island Red hens and in the fall I had 15 fine Barred Rock pullets. I am feeding them scratch feed, mash and fresh water.

I hope the other Wide Awakes readers have as good a luck as I did with my first chickens.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Dear Uncle Jed: On February 12th in every state in the union is celebrated the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln was born in a fought county in Kentucky but removed, at a very early age with his parents to Indiana.

Lincoln went to school a very small part of the year but he taught himself by borrowing books and reading them by the firelight every evening.

Several interesting little tales are told about Lincoln, such as pulling the little pig out of the mud, etc.

Lincoln's death came while he was sitting in a theatre in Washington where he was shot by John Wilkes Booth, an insane man. The whole nation mourned the death of the noble president.

HOW FLOUR IS MADE

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to the Wide Awakes before. I am going to write how flour is made. The first process is cleaning the wheat. It is treated so that the bad kernels are taken out, the dirt and seeds are blown away and the good grains so rubbed with brushes and washed by strong currents of wind that not a particle of dirt is left.

The wheat is now ready for grinding, and it goes in conveyors to the top of the mill, where it is automatically weighed and started down through the rolls. The first grinding is done between rolls of steel which are slightly corrugated or grooved. The grains are broken, and, as they pass through other rolls, they are mashed or ground finer and finer. After each grinding the meal is run through a machine which separates

By DAVID CORY

MORE ADVENTURES

"Goodness gracious me-bbit!" as dear Uncle Lucky would say, "I'm glad the little rabbit is safe and happy at the beginning of the story. Let's hope nothing unpleasant happens to him for a month of Sundays. Well, anyway, as he hopped along, by and by, after a while, he met a princess with a beautiful greyhound.

"Good morning," said the bunny boy, politely, doffing his plumed hat.

"Oh, you dear little bunny," she cried, nearly upsetting the crown on her dark ringlets. "Did you step out of a fairy story?"

"No, indeed," he answered. "I'm a real live rabbit seeking adventure in the wide, wide world."

"Come, tell me all about yourself," laughed the princess seating herself on a marble bench.

Hopping up beside her, he related all that had happened to him since leaving down a tree. Goodness me! What a when he had finished, he bid her goodbye. "For," thought he to himself, "I must find another big fortune for Lady Love." So, off he set once more. But, oh, dear me. There wasn't a hollow stump in sight, and a fter a while he grew so tired that he sat down beneath a tree to rest. All of a sudden a pretty grey squirrel looked out of her tiny house and said:

"A wise little Bunny and under my tree,
The finest young Bunny I ever did see.
Come, children, and look at this brave little chap,
Dressed in top boots and a gay feathered cap."

At once all the little squirrel children peeked out, and the oldest, a mischievous fellow dropped a nut as the bunny boy looked up to see what all the chattering was about. I guess he had fallen asleep, so tired was he from his long journey.

"Hello," he cried, rubbing his eyes. "Was I asleep?"

"Maybe you were dreaming," answered Mrs. Squirrel, with a laugh. "Twinkle Tail woke you up by dropping a nut on your hat. But he didn't mean to be rude, I'm sure," and she pushed the mischievious young squirrel in the house and closed the door.

"Well, I'm rested," said the little rabbit, jumping to his feet. "I must be off," and away he hopped on his journey of adventure.

By and by he met a giant chopping down a tree. Goodness me! What a great ax he had. And the chips which flew about were as big as bricks. Pretty soon, down fell the tree with a crash.

Then, taking out his big red silk handkerchief, the giant wiped his forehead. Suddenly noticing the little bunny, he shouted in a voice that sounded like thunder, "Hello, Bunny boy!" only, strange to say, it had a merry sort of music in it. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

FATHER VALENTINE

Dear Uncle Jed: St. Valentine was a priest who lived in Italy many years. He was always caring for the sick and sorrowing. Father Valentine was kind to the animals and birds. The children would walk with him while he told them stories, as he went from house to house. Finally he grew too old to visit his friends. He would sit in his room thinking of a way he could send the messages. The children helped him send the messages. On February fourteenth we celebrate his birthday every year.

MY VISIT TO MY UNCLE'S FARM

Dear Uncle Jed: I am interested in the letters of your Wide Awake Circle so I thought I would write my first letter. Last summer my grandmother and grandfather went to the land in Spencer, Mass. They took my brother and I. When we arrived we were very tired so we soon went to bed. The next day we went and fed the horses and the cows. Then we drove the cows to pasture. On our way back we picked a few daisies. When we reached home we ate supper and soon went to bed. The next morning we got up early because we were going home.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a bright summer's morning and Whitie couldn't help barking, for he felt lonesome and unhappy. His master had gone to school, and he had to bark to help keep up his spirits. So he barked at a sleepy toad in the grass, at a robin in a tree, and frightened a poor little kitten on the fence.

But the bird flew away, and the cat jumped down the other side of the fence, and then Whitie made a grand rush at a big fly that flew at him through the gate.

It looked like a fly, and it said, "Buzz, Buzz! I've had enough of that noise."

So as Whitie meant to keep it up, he thought he would finish the fly first. But, oh! it was such a surprising fly. It rushed at him, and stung his poor little black nose most cruelly. Then what happened

Why there was a distressed howl, and a mad scamper through the gate down the street, and no more was seen of Whitie till the boys came out of school at noon.

As Whitie's master came down the school steps, whistling and happy, he saw Sneekie, a bright little friend of Whitie's, jumping up and down, barking at something in the mud by the side of the street.

Going across the street, Lester saw a poor little mass of mud, that was feebly moving about in a puddle.

Why! Hello, said his master, its Whitie, poor fellow, poor Whitie!

He was too weak to get out, the mud covered him from head to foot.

So when the boys were all out of school they pulled and pulled until at last his master hated to see them using Whitie so rough, and ran and brought a piece of board and put Whitie on it, and three other boys helped to carry him home. So after Whitie had a nice bath he was as white as ever but his poor little nose was swollen so bad that it looked as if he got hit with a piece of wood. After a few days it had gone down so that Whitie looked like a circus puppy. And the boys never knew what happened until two or three weeks later. Whitie never forgot, but remembered never to be so naughty as more to any of his friends, as a friend in need is a friend indeed.

THE FIRST PASSENGER RAILROAD

Dear Uncle Jed: The first passenger railroad extended from Baltimore to Ellicott's Mills a distance of about thirteen miles. This road afterwards became a part of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The cars on the track resembled huge wagons on wooden rails, and were drawn by horses. The horses were soon displaced in 1831 by steam engines which ran at the then fast rate of fifteen miles an hour. Charles Carrol of Carrollton, ninety-one years of age, the only surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence, who dug the first spadeful of earth which began the construction of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, said "I consider this one of the most important acts of my life, second only to the signing of the Declaration of Independence."

MY HOME AT DALILOREN, VA.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am just visiting in Norwich for a few days and it seems very cold to me here because I live in Virginia where the climate is warm.

The morning I left my home the bluebirds were singing and the day was just like spring.

Every morning I used to get up very early and take my dog for a short walk down to the river where. When I get back and have my breakfast it is time to go to school.

After school I go across a bridge and meet some girls and boys and we go in a boat to a sand bar near the other side of the river. On Saturdays we go on hikes and boat rides and stay all day. In the summer we go in swimming nearly every day, and what days we don't go swimming or boat riding we watch the marines and sailors test the large guns.

Virginia has summer nearly all the year round.

MY CATS

Dear Uncle Jed: I have two cats and their names are Topser and Black Beauty. They are as black as the stove. Some times they like to play with a string. One day they each caught a mouse. They played with them till they were dead and then ate them for their supper. I feed them with milk and potatoes and a little bit of meat. At night they chase one another up and down the stairs.

WANTS TO BE A TEACHER

Dear Uncle Jed: When I grow up I would like to be a teacher. I want to be a teacher because I like children. I would teach them manners. I would like to teach the first and second grades. I would teach them arithmetic, spelling and how to draw and sing. I would tell them to brush their teeth and wash their faces and hands every day. I would let them go on the ice in winter. I hope I can be a teacher. If my mother lets me I am going to be one.

COLCHESTER

Colchester school, eighth grade, commemorates St. Valentine's day by a private social held in the assembly room at Bacon Academy St. Valentine's night. At a previous meeting of the C. of G. club the president appointed Annette Minak, Ruth Stebbins and Mollie Girgovitch the social committee and the entertainment proved a great success. About 7 o'clock the children began to gather and a game of Blind Man's Buff was suggested. This was played with great zest. Those anxious to know the names of their valentines found out by inquiring of two girls stationed near boards opposite each other on which a fortune telling device was drawn. Later the Victrola which furnished the music, was started and the boys chose partners for such interesting dances as the Virginia reel, Tucker, Sicilian circle and seven in seven out. During the intermission punch and cake was served by the committee. The excellent punch had been made by the mother of one of the committee and delicious cake by Beckie Gershtein, Carol Bock, May Gillette, Ruth Gerstein and Mollie Gorgokewitch. The pupils are now writing the chapter, Alaska to Iceland, via the Arctic Seas — one of the many chapters which will go to make the book, A Trip Around the World.

Their aim is to tell about an imaginary trip which they are taking around the world, starting from Colchester. Harry Houston, supervisor of penmanship, has given a chart for rating and correcting handwriting over which the girls and boys are showing much enthusiasm. A proclamation by the governor of Connecticut was sent to each school, advising all the school pupils to do something to memorialize Friday, Feb. 15th. Twenty-six years ago that day 26 officers and men were killed by the mysterious explosion on the battleship Maine in Havana harbor. The eighth grade carried out the governor's wishes by having a discussion of the historic event.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Here's serving notice on Old Sol that he can do his durndest! Danielson's ice crop for 1924 is harvested—at least, the bulk of it is and all that remains to be done is the finishing up work, which will be complete by the time the sun sets tonight.

In a way, this sounds a bit selfish—don't care what happens to the other fellow insolong as one is all set himself. But that is not the case. Steady cold weather has prevailed for the past two weeks, with near zero temperatures every morning. The opportunity has been offered the provident to realize on the possibilities of the season. If they have not improved upon it, they should not be peeved over the fact that those who have are exulting.

The winter season has made good. November, during the later days of which ice is sometimes cut; December, generally regarded as the ice harvesting month; January, a month regarded as a buffer against an ice shortage—came and went during the present season without doing anything to encourage the thousands of people who want ice every year—at least during the warm weather periods.

Then old rough-neck February took the boards for 29 days—in this particular leap year. The month has lived up to its unfavorable reputation. It has been a steadily cold month—a real old New England winter month, and it has produced the goods. There will be plenty of ice for all of the town of Killingly for the remainder of 1924.

Up at East Killingly, where cutting is being done at the Hygeia reservoir, the houses are practically filled with as fine ice as has ever been stored in this town. The ice, after being planed, is 12 inches in thickness. About 4,000 tons will suffice to fill the houses, but if the pond is not denuded of harvestable ice in the first cutting what remains will be cut and stored.

At Quinebaug lake Sunday the crew that has been at work since last Wednesday were hustling along over the last lap of their annual winter stunt and when nightfall fell the houses were practically filled to capacity for the coming year, with high quality ice of the kind that has long come from that section.

There need be no more worry about ice for Danielson this year. The supply is ample—the quality of the best. That worry being off the minds of the public, the scouts who look for advance signs of everything are invited to report the first signs of spring.

Some of Danielson's people were affronted by the frank manner in which circulars sent out by the Law Enforcement Council of Killingly was discussed in this column Saturday morning. That was expected—anticipated in fact. It was as natural that this should have occurred, as that some of the people, and hundreds of others who hold similar views, were equally antagonized by the circulars which the committee sent out—without a signature.

A newspaper is not concerned with the likes or dislikes of any person or group of persons; its province is to give information relative to things people are talking about, whether those things be tea parties or prize fights. And to do it at least once a week, circulation notwithstanding.

It certainly is irritating to the citizen, male or female, who is living a life of rectitude, to receive in the mail on any given morning an unsigned circular asking one to obey the law and support the Constitution when one has never had an idea of doing anything different from that very thing. In fact, the matter gets on the nerves of a great many people who may be more or less inarticulate, but who have thinking apparatus that is functioning 100 per cent. efficient.

Not a few people in these United States have not forgotten that there was a Boston tea party once—though those who were engaged in throwing the chests of tea into the harbor would today be regarded as revolutionists, rather than the patriots from whom so many proudly trace their descent, if their cause had met with dismal failure rather than being crowned with success—by those who actually fought, and the fighters were not so numerous as many suppose.

This morning people are thinking of all these things, as those who have been in search of freedom of conscience has been since the beginning of time. Most people are good people. This being true, and facts and figures do not dispute the assertion that the well meaning people, being in the majority, are not likely to forever submit to being represented as being unable to control themselves. Not forever. What most people appear to want is to be allowed to live their own lives in their own way—quietly, decently, legitimately—without hectoring or undue regulation

Saturday afternoon, at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. P. Humphrey, funeral services for Miss Josephine M. Wetherell were conducted by Rev. H. H. Conklin, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, assisted by Rev. W. F. Davis, a former pastor of the church, now retired. During the service W. W. Reimer sang Lead Kindly Light, and We Are Going Down the Valley. The bearers were Luther Pilling, Signey Stone, Sidney Perry, Augustus Graves, Abner Young and David Smith. The body was entombed at Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Saturday, at her home in Plainfield, the death of Mrs. Georgianna M. Hopkins, 68, widow of Adfer Hopkins occurred. Mr. Hopkins died during May of last year. Mrs. Hopkins was born in Brooklyn, this state, a daughter of James E. and Harriet Cole Tarbox She is survived by a son and six grandchildren.

Saturday morning, the funeral of Mrs. Amanda Woisard was held from her home on Mechanic street with a solemn high mass fo requiem at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaud, M. S., Rev. James Kirby, M. S., and Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., were officers of the mass, attended by many relatives and a large number of friends of the bereaved family. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Charles Phoenix, Albert Lagasse, Henry Lambert, Edgar Messier, A. Woisard and H. Trudeau. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Patrick McBride, many years resident in Danielson, is dead at his home on North Main street. He passed away during the early hours of Sunday morning, and prayers for the repose of his soul were asked of the congregations at all of the masses at St. James' church, Sunday morning.

Mr. McBride was a native of Ireland. He came here many years ago and during the period that he had made his home in Danielson became to be regarded as a most worthy citizen, faithful at his work, loyal to his friends, trustworthy in the face of every obligation of lifed and a good friend to all who came to know him.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Mary McCullough, also a resident of Danielson for many years, survives him.

A delegation from the membership of Rose of Lima council, K. of C., was at Willimantic Sunday to attend the exemplification of the third degree upon a class of candidates of San Jose council, No. 14, and the banquet that was a feature of the afternoon's program. The Danielson party included Pierre Gazeau, grand knight of Rose of Lima council; Bernard Casey, past grand knight; Oscar Bernier, Alfred Maulin, Frank Vives, Omer Gaulet, Lionel Fournier, Theodore Mathot, Aldei Lamoureaux, Rosario Duval, Omer Hubert, Arthur Maulin.

For the remaining days of February Killingly High school has some hard games scheduled. Supporters of the team that is playing such good basketball will have an opportunity to see on the home court Bryant and Stratton of Providence Friday of this week—Washington's birthday; North High of Worcester (champions of Worcester) Feb. 27; Chapman Technical High school of New London, on Feb. 29. Here's a fine basketball menu—if a word may be stretched to cover that much in the realms of amateur sport.

Tossilo's orchestra played Saturday evening for a large party of dancers who enjoyed themselves thoroughly at the opening event of that kind at the Casino arena. This evening roller skating will be the attraction.

Knocking down fences bordering the state highway leading through the town of Foster from Danielson to Providence was a much indulged in pastime for Killingly motorists at the week-end. Speed and ice-covered roads made up the combination that brought several drivers to grief. It is of interest to note that one driver showed discretion enough to plunge through a hole in the fence torn down by another Killingly car that was racing along on the way to the big Rhode Island town when it left the road.

PUTNAM

Four new petitions for divorce have been filed in the office of the clerk of the Windham County Superior court. Bertha M. Knibbs of Putnam seeks a legal separation from Charles H. Knibbs of Barre, Vt., whom she alleges deserted her in 1920. They were married January 10th, 1913.

Everett Richmond of Killingly alleges that his wife, Isabelle Richmond, also of Killingly, is habitually intemperate, and wants a decree on that ground. They were married Nov. 16, 1918.

Marion Murray of Brooklyn, on a statutory charge, asks a separation from Leslie B. Murray of Danielson. She also asks for alimony and the custody of their only child.

Olive H. Thatcher of Putnam brings suit against Warren A. Thatcher of Killingly, charging desertion. They were married September 7th, 1898.

There was a meeting of Putnam Checker club, Friday evening, and at ten o'clock the members told William Warren, whose birthday it was, that they were going to accompany him home in honor of the anniversary. When they arrived at the home on South Main street. Mr. Warren was surprised to find his house all lighted up and a steaming hot turkey dinner ready to serve. There were sixteen in the party.

Men of the work train crew of the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad out of this city began cutting ice on the reservoir of North Grosvenordale, Saturday. The ice is loaded into freight cars and hauled to Midway, between Groton and Mystic, where the company has large ice houses for storing a supply to ice refrigerator cars. Thousands of tons will be cut and hauled to the storage place.

This is the first time ice has been cut as far north as this. Heretofore the supply has been harvested from the Thames river near the U. S. submarine base north of Groton. On account of the open winter the river did not freeze to a sufficient thickness and the railroad company is taking no chances in getting its supply so sought a supply where the ice was ten inches thick regardless of the haul being forty-five miles further.

Ladies' night of the Putnam Manufacturing club, was observed, Saturday evening in the club rooms in the north end of the city. The rooms were prettily decorated and there was dancing and refreshments.

John J. Whitehead, Jr., entertained at afternoon tea, Sunday, in honor his mother who is his guest. Tea was served from 4.30 to 5.30.

Mrs. W. H. Holms of Mount Vernon, N. Y. will arrive this (Monday) evening to spend the week with her mother, Mrs A. W. Macdonald, of Oak Hill.

Mrs. Oscar Robinson, 70, one of the most widely known women in eastern Windham county, prominent church worker and organizer of the Thompson W. C. T. U., died Friday at her home on Brandy Hill, Thompson, after a brief illness.

Rufus C. Brock, 28, died at the Day Kimball hospital, Saturday, following a surgical operation. He was born in Woonsocket, November 27, 1895, son of William C. and Lucy Chase Brock. For a number of years he had been employed on the truck of the Manhasset Manufacturing Company. He is survived by his wife, two children and a brother, all of Putnam.

The second public mass meeting under the auspices of the Citizens' Alliance of Putnam, was held in the Bradley theatre, Sunday afternoon. There was music and an address by State Director of Americanization, Deming, who illustrated his talk with moving pictures. Community singing was a part of the program. The purpose of these monthly meetings is to create a better citizenship. The first meeting was held a month ago in the Victory theatre, when State's Attorney Charles E. Searls delivered the address.

One store was opened in the new Strombells block Saturday. Other tenants will move into the block this week. This is the forerunner of a transformation and shifting of the business center of the city northward on Main street. Just north of the Strombells black is the new Seder block which will be ready for occupancy the first of April. The two blocks contain eight stores and about twenty offices, the stores being all rented and many of the offices spoken for.

Ever since Putnam was incorporated as a town the business center has been in and about Union square where the post office and railroad station are located. The removal northward on Main street to the new buildings is taken by many to be the forerunner of the shifting of this business center. Business is moving northward on Main street and the once beautiful residential section is giving way to the invasion of business and some day the main artery of business in the north end of the city—Providence street—will be connected with the south end by a continuous line of business houses along Main street. Even though the business center does not shift the business map of Putnam will undergo a transformation in the next few weeks.

The third new business block, that of the Putnam Savings Bank, is near Union Square and will be occupied as a banking house. The upper story contains ten offices so that some of the transfers from old locations will be to this site. With the present business situation there is no attraction at present for new mercantile or professional businesses to locate in Putnam. This being so it is believed that there will be many vacant offices on the market by spring.

In the Elks' Block, the lodge has voted to take a part of the second floor of the building for a club room. The membership in the order has so increased that the whole top of the building is needed for lodge room purpose. This necessitates the vacating of three offices in this building the tenants seeking new quarters in one of the new buildings. Tenants on side streets, both stores and offices, are also planning removal to one or the other of the new blocks on Main street. There is due a general shaking up and when all are again settled down in new locations the business of Putnam will have an altogether different aspect than at present.

Thomas McGwigan, of Wauregan, has gone the drinkers of hooch, white mule, bay rum and cologne one better. He holds a distinctive record and took a chance as great as did Steve Brody and like the renowned bridge jumper, is alive to tell about it, although Thomas is, or was Saturday morning, a sick man. When Thomas jumped off the water wagon Friday he looked around for something with a kick. Not being able to find any pre-war invigorator Thomas went to a garage and bought a bottle or can, or whatever the stuff comes in, of anti-freeze mixture. This Thomas drank and drinking it not drunk and very ill. He was found in this condition and the internes at the police station took Thomas over the river and put him to bed. Saturday morning Thomas did not want to go out in the cold. He had had enough of the anti-freeze mixture and thought that it would be better keeping warm in the barred building owned by the county at Brooklyn, than acting like a gasoline buggy and filling his radiator with any more of the concoction made for the radiator on automobiles front. In his desire to be locked up Thomas was duly accommodated and sentenced to 30 days.

James Marley of Wester was making a disturbance in a local hotel some days ago. He was locked up at police headquarters and the remainder of the half pint of liquor such as is seldom seen at the present day was taken from his hip. After he had sufficiently recovered he gave a cash bond of $35 for his appearance in court Saturday morning. James did not think enough of salvaging any of the thirty-five to appear so the bond was forfeited and found its way into the treasury of the city of Putnam.

Archielle Gregoire and Arthur Dupre were before the court charged with frequenting the store of Frank Chilicki, where it was alleged spiritous and intoxicating liquors were illegally kept for sale. The spirituous fluid is now at the police station, as are about 500 small flasks, some jugs, measures and other paraphanalia that might be used in selling any kind of a drink. Chilicki has gone to parts unknown. Gregoire, who had a previous court record, was placed on probation for six months. Dupre, who had never been arrested before, had his case continued for six months. The alcohol and containers remain incarcerated in the cupboard of the police station.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Arthur J. Melbourne, a student at Berkeley Divinity school, Middletown, has been spending a few days in the borough.

George Stevens has been attending the convention of hardware dealers in Hartford.

Charles H. Moore is spending a brief vacation in Pinehurst, N. C.

A fire escape is being placed on the north side of Warren Memorial building.

The high school glee club under the direction of Mrs. Jennie Aborn is making preparations to give an operetta.

The hostesses at the Methodist church supper Sunday evening were Mrs. F. F. Patten, Mrs. James Sheppard, Mrs. George Coleman and Mrs. P. H. Dow.

The public schools will be closed Friday next, Washington's birthday. The Hospital Aid Society is to meet at the Johnson Memorial hospital on Tuesday afternoon

Lose Children Purposely.

Women of the tenement districts have been known to purposely lose their children in crowds so as to have a holiday and to call at night at the various police stations, knowing their offsprings will ultimately be taken there.

JEWETT CITY

When constabulary duty's to be done, a policeman's lot is not a happy one. Neither are the people happy, whose names by a misunderstanding, appear in the paper as having been arrested in liquor raids. In the list of arrests printed in Saturday's Bulletin there were two names that didn't belong there—Harry Lavine and Fred Nofie. There were warrants out for these people, but no arrests were made at the time of serving. The writers of this column disclaim any responsibility in connection with the list of names. The official who gave the information believed that he was right, for he saw the writs at the hearing, and knew also, that the places were to be visited, yet, as it happened, there was nothing found of a nature to warrant seizure or arrest. Much of the evidence on which the eight men were brought into court, was secured some few weeks ago. The absolute facts are at hand, and the following names, copied from the writs in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Richard Dudkowski, are those who must appear before Judge John T. Barry Thursday next: Joseph Foley, Joseph Solski, Dominick Leese, Frank Minski, John Dyeczkic and Joseph Glowski. Friday evening, Paul Anthony and Wilfred LaChappelle were found guilty of having illegal gambling devices in their possession, and paid fines of $50 and costs. There was no procedure against Anthony for liquor law violations. The jug of "cider" found at Anthony's pool room, turned out to be sweet wine for family use. The writers of this column have no jurisdiction in the matter of determining the character of the contents of liquids contained in jugs or bottles. The analysis of seized liquor and the digesting of evidence, are matters for the courts, not for the local correspondents.

May 1 the firm of Dearnley & Clarke, one of the leading business enterprises of Jewett City for the past 25 years will be dissolved. This action has been decided upon by mutual agreement of the partners and the business will pass into the hands of Royal W. Dearnley. Mr. Clarke has no definite plans in sight for future business, but will move with his family to Jamestown, R. I., where they will spend the summer. Mr. Clarke's residence on Main street has been sold to Dr. J. H. McLaughlin, who will take possession early in April.

At the time Mr. Clarke came here twenty-five years ago, he was head bookkeeper and office manager for the William A. Slater Mills Corporation in Boston, where at that time the bookkeeping was done for the Slater mills of Jewett City.

The older residents of the town are able to note the many changes that have taken place here, since the firm of Dearnley & Clarke was establishing of three offices in this building the tenants seeking new quarters in one of the new buildings. Tenants on side streets, both stores and offices, are also planning removal to one or the other of the new blocks on Main street. There is due a general shaking up and when all are again settled down in new locations the business of Putnam will have an altogether different aspect than at present.

Saturday evening, Floyd Barker in a big six Studebaker and Louis Guttlotte, driving a Star, were in collision, corner of Palmer avenue and North Main street. Mr. Barber, in order to not run over the smaller machine, turned the big six, so that the main force of the mix-up was taken by a telephone pole. The Star was not much damaged, but the Studebaker was put pretty well out of business. Mr. Barber by his quick action prevented a serious accident. Neither driver was injured. A North Main street service station came with a wrecker and took the big car away.

Nobody has anything much on Postmaster D. F. Finn, when it comes to having the interests of the service at heart. Saturday morning the Jewett City mail pouches, together with a large part of The Bulletins, for some reason were not put off at the local station. Later Mr. Finn learned by telephone that they were in Plainfield so, taking his automobile he drove there and brought them back where they were distributed with little delay.

Mrs. T. B. Duggan has been confined to her home for the last week by the bursting of a vein in her ankle.

The Salvation Army worker, who is conducting a drive in Jewett City for funds for state work, was granted permission by the Finn theatre proprietor to take an offering at the movies, Saturday night. Doris Carpenter, Edith Howe, Anna and Clara Shea took up the collection.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church met at the home of Mrs. George W. Robinson last week. Mrs. F. E. Robinson, the president, presided. The programme was taken from the study book, Leaven in Japan, and was arranged by Mrs. E. A. Faust. Articles on Japanese Home Life, Child Life, Marriage Customs, Religious Festivals and Christ's Gift to the Japanese Home and Womanhood, were read by Mrs. David Bothwell, Mrs. G. H. Jennings, Mrs. H. S. Stephenson, Mrs. E. B. Hiscox, Mrs. R. H. Howard, Mrs. John Whalley, Mrs. Alex McNicol Miss S. K. Adams and Miss M. A. Burdick.

Miss Anna Peterson returned Friday from Backus hospital.

The funeral of Mrs. Willard Barber was held in the Baptist church Saturday afternoon. Rev. E. E. Scates conducted the service reading Scripture and a poem. He spoke of the long life of over fifty years which Mr. and Mrs. Barber had lived together, and of the latter's love and ministrations for the nearest relatives. Mrs. George Sparks, Miss Ida Foster and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and Mrs. G. H. Prior sang In Thy Cleft, O Rock of Ages and Shall We Meet Beyond the River? Burial was in the Robbins cemetery. The bearers were Leland and Samuel Green, Wallace I. and S. George Green. There were choice floral tributes among them those from the church and Whatsoever circle of The King's Daughters. Relatives and friends were present from Lakewood, R. I., Pawtuxet valley, Pawtucket, Mansfield, Voluntown, Norwich and Danielson.

Faith chapter, No. 82, O. E. S., held a very successful social Friday evening in Rioux hall. Progressive whist with fifteen tables occupied the first part of the evening. The high scores were made by Mrs. James Blair and Mrs. O. F. Durfey, each being awarded a plump, 5-pound chicken. The second highest scores were made by Mrs. Norman B. Parkhurst, she receiving a set of hand-painted relish dishes and Mr. McCrea; to him went a box of handkerchiefs.

Dancing followed with an orchestra of three pieces. As Mrs. Henry Olson was unable to act as chairman, Mrs. Dona Ballou was appointed to act in her place and to her and her assistants was due the success of the affair.

NEW LONDON SPEEDSTER FINED $25, DROVE PAST STANDING TROLLEY CAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, February 17—Saturday John Turello was prosecuted in the police court for passing a trolley car that was discharging passengers without stopping his car. He thought he was running his Reo speed car at a speed of 10 or 15 miles an hour, while H. B. Sheldon, who declared he had to jump backward or be run down by the Reo, declared the auto was speeding at 35 or 40 miles an hour. So he complained to the police and Turello had to answer in court. Judge Prince decided that Mr. Sheldon was right and was of the opinion that Turello could have stopped his car instantly had he been going at the speed he thought he was running. Defendant was fined $25. He balked at paying and talked of appeal, but settled, nevertheless.

William Mossbroker, a painter, has steady employment, but he has an idea that he can drink and use money that should go to the support of his family. Mrs. Mossbroker complained to the police and her husband was arrested. He was not prosecuted as he entered into an arrangement with the probation officer by which he is to pay his wife a stipulated sum each week, and on that arrangement this prosecution was deferred, to ascertain whether his promise is of value.

Effie Bates, colored, was fined $25 and sent to jail for ten days, in the police court Saturday. She went after her husband Friday because as she said, he was running after other women. The "other women" denied the assertions of Effie, and on the witness stand in the police court told that Effie was having hallucinations and that she was drunk when she imagined that her husband, George, a Mohawk Indian, was a chaser. They testified that Effie slashed George with a carving knife and painted Effie, in words, as a bad negress. Spectators in the court imagined they could hear the swish of the carving knife as the handling of it was described by Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Andrus, so naturally did their movements show what Effie did when she appeared at the former's house where George stood in the doorway to compliment the owner of the premises on her newly acquired apartment. George displayed his wrist to show that he was the victim of Effie's rage and her jealous disposition.

The New London City National bank, which bought the Leverone property on Golden street some months ago, has completed alterations on the property and is occupying the space the added building has given the bank. The additional facilities are appreciated by the patrons of the bank.

Joseph Wilson familiarly known as "Soldier" Wilson, because of his activities seeking ring honors, was arrested late Saturday night by Patrolman William Babcock, charged by John Connors, waiter at Efe's restaurant, 109 Main street, with the theft of a half box of cigars. Wilson will not be prosecuted, however, for Connors withdrew the complaint upon Wilson paying for the cigars. Wilson went to the place between 12 and 1 o'clock and when he left the restaurant he took the cigars with him. Connors made complaint to Desk Sergeant James D. Daffney and when Patrolman Babcock observed Wilson on State street, he arrested the ex-fighter.

Thomas Connolly, a lodger at the rooming house of Mrs. Mary J. Marx, 32 Golden street, was taken seriously ill early Saturday morning and after being examined by a physician, was transferred to Lawrence hospital, where his condition remains practically unchanged. Today City Physician George F. Cheney informed the police that Connolly had informed him that he had about $400 in one of his garments at the Marx rooming house, together with a bank book and that Connolly desired the money and book. Sergeant Frank Howard went to the rooming house and requested that the money and bank book be sent to Connolly. Mrs. Marx refused to do that stating that Connolly had entrusted the money and bank book to her and that she would not relinquish possession of either until Connolly personally made the request. She also declared that she had acted as custodian of Connolly's money on several previous occasions.

Stillman H. Peckham, white, was arrested late Saturday night by Patrolman William Babcock, charged with assault upon Marion Lewis, colored, residing at the rear of 207 North Bank street, at which place Peckham also resides. Peckham did not obtain a surety on his bond for appearance in the police court Monday morning and was lodged in a cell. The Lewis woman and Peckham engaged in a quarrel about midnight and when Peckham struck her a blow on the face which caused her to fall sprawling in the street, she sought and obtained the former's arrest.

An automobile of the commercial type, owned and operated by William Hendel, 164 Broad street, was struck by a machine owned and operated by F. R. Smith, 88 Lincoln avenue, Saturday night. Both cars were damaged slightly. Hendel had reached a point on Broad street opposite his home and caused the car to be stopped before guiding it to the driveway to permit two other cars approaching from the opposite direction to pass. While Hendel's car was motionless, he alleges the machine operated by Smith collided with the former car from the rear.

Mrs. Howard Peckham of Howard street is a patient at Lawrence hospital, having been removed to the institution yesterday where she will probably undergo a surgical operation.

Mrs. Leon Holloway and infant son, of Montauk avenue, Hermine-Curel-Sylvestro of Old Lyme, Lloyd McCruin of New York and Angelo Drago of Crystal avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital were discharged today.

The funeral of Frederick A. Starr, was held Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at Union lodge rooms and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Walter M. Slocum, worshipful Master of Union lodge, assisted by Henry P. Bullard as chaplain and members of Knights Templar. Members of Union lodge were bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

James H. Ames, 75, a well known Bank street merchant, died at his home 109 Truman street Saturday morning, Mr. Ames' death following an illness of many weeks from heart trouble. He is survived by his widow and a sister, Mrs. Charlotte Howard of Waterford. Mr. Ames was a native of New London and had resided here all his life.

Peter W. Anderson has sold a house and lot on Sherman street to Garabed K. Daughlian.

Mrs. Nellie Davis, 100 Meridian St., Groton, was committed to the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane for observation, Saturday afternoon by Dr. Charles Kaufman. Mrs. Davis went to the Y. W. C. A., corner of Huntington and Church streets, where she sought assistance in the way of shelter and nourishment. The woman's actions were such as to indicate that she was mentally unbalanced and with the summoning of a physician this fact was determined. The woman was conveyed to Brewster's Neck in the police automobile and was accompanied by Captain Charles A. Pinney Patrolman John Courtney and Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran.

The fire department was called out Saturday forenoon when a lively chimney blaze was discovered in the residence at 72 Shaw street. An alarm was rung in from Box 451, corner of Shaw and Stewart streets by an occupant of the house, causing the greater part of the city's fire-fighting equipment to respond. With the arrival of the firemen the blaze, that had been confined to the chimney and wood work surrounding it, was subdued by the application of chemicals.

Later in the forenoon a still alarm was received at fire headquarters when the city dumping ground off Hamilton street and adjoining the lumber yard of the Raymond & Alexander company, was discovered to be ablaze. The Niagara Engine Company and Ockford Hose Company was despatched to the dump and the burning refuse was quickly extinguished.

At the state armory Friday night a brief ceremonial, commemorative of the 26th anniversary of the sinking of the Battleship Maine in Havana harbor, was celebrated by Spanish War Veterans and the ladies' auxiliary of the order. Following the exercises a luncheon was served.

The automobile, owned and operated by Charles R. Alling of Thames View, Waterford, srtuck and killed a pet dog owned by Mrs. William Patterson of 36 Tilley street Saturday afternoon, on Huntington street.

Robert McDermott, a waiter, was arrested Saturday by Sergeant Frank Howard on a warrant charging him with non-support of his wife and two minor children. McDermott was taken into custody at a rooming house at 2 Belden street and declared that he did not know where his wife and children were residing. Mrs. McDermott complained to Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, alleging that her husband was absenting himself from home and that he failed to provide for her and the two youngsters.

Patrolman Ernest Opperman in making his rounds through Bank street late Saturday night discovered the entrance to the automobile service station of Richard P. Smith unfastened. The officer secured the place for the balance of the night.

In some manner a cat got into a sewer pipe on Jefferson avenue, near West Colt street two or three days ago and was unable to get out. After an endeavor to secure firemen and police to secure the cat's release, today George E. Watters, superintendent of the water and sewer department, was appealed to and removing a manhole cover, the pussy was brought to freedom.

Mr. Jachman, 45 Cole street, communicated with the police late this afternoon, stating that he had taken possession of a bicycle that had been on the property of the Winthrop school the entire day. Later Abraham Rakowsky reported to the police that his bicycle had been stolen from the schoolyard, it then developing that the supposed stolen wheel was that which Jachman was holding. The owner of the cycle went to the Jachman home and recovered his property.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Manahan have returned to New York, after spending a few days with Mrs. Manahan's father, George T. Salter of Saunders street.

A force of city workmen of the water and sewer department were engaged through the day making repairs to a burst water pipe on State street, near the Union Station.

One of the buses operated between New London and the submarine base, and driven by Michael Baldelli, owner, was in collision this evening with an automobile, owned by Max Rogoff, an employe of the Thompson Motor company. The automobile was parked on State street and as the bus passed through the street, a sailor left the machine, opening one of the side doors. He failed to close the door, with the result that the motionless car was struck by the open door. The damage was slight.

Miss Barbara Goodenough conducted a C. E. meeting at the residence of S. E. Holdridge Sunday evening, Feb. 10.

Customer Cooperation

TELEPHONE service consists essentially in providing the facilities for communication. Reduced to fundamentals, it may be stated thus:—

A is provided with a telephone.
B is provided with a telephone.
C, through wires and mechanism, connects these two telephones.

Satisfaction with the service depends largely on A and B.

From the very beginning their cooperation is imperative. A must call B and B must answer. Doing these things in the way which makes for good service involves:—

1—Such care in asking for the number as one would use in addressing a letter.

2—Such promptness in answering the call as one would give to keeping a personal appointment.

3—Such courtesy as one would show in making or receiving a business or social call.

4—Such clear, correct speech as one would use in the face-to-face transaction of the most important business.

Each subscriber can increase the effectiveness of his telephone communication by such thoughtfulness as he would employ in his daily life.

THE SHENANDOAH'S TRIP.

To go or not to go is the question that stands out before the crew of the Shenandoah in connection with the proposed flight to the north pole.

Along with other things there has developed in congress an opposition to the trip. It is one of the things that the navy department has advocated, and therefore one of the things toward which some in congress are bucking.

There is involved an airship the expense of which runs into the millions and it will mean an additional expense of more than a third of a million to make the flight with the preparations that must be made. There is also the human life that will be risked on such a flight.

If that opposition which is being heard is going to manifest itself further, it is the view of the president that it should be determined now whether congress will approve the flight and the expenditure. If congress is ready to say that the flight ought not to be made it can be certain that it will be called off. The whole matter has gotten to the point where any further preparations will depend upon congressional action.

There are reasons for believing that the president has taken the right attitude in this matter. If there is sufficient opposition to interrupt the flight this is certainly the time to have it brought out, rather than after the money had been spent in preparation for a flight that was to be blocked.

It will mean disappointment for those who have had full confidence that the trip would be a success, for those anxious to participate in it and those who believed that attainment of the object would justify the risk. On the other hand, there are not a few who have felt that such a trip was foolhardy and the expense and risk unwarranted. With certain opposition manifested in congress President Coolidge has determined that now is the time for it to bear the responsibility of endorsing or calling off the trip.

LIFE SAVING.

Montpelier, Vt., is not rated among the large cities but it has been shown that even in a city of that size it is possible to experience a large loss through fire because of the inadequacy of preventive measures.

The cause of the fire which destroyed a block in that city, on the upper stories of which there were apartments, has not been definitely determined. If it developed from the furnace, which is the intimation of the proprietor of one of the stores it was undoubtedly something that might have been prevented with the proper amount of care being exercised.

But what stands out in a most conspicuous manner was the fact that those living in the apartments were obliged to jump to what proved their death, because there was no other means of escape.

Whether it is in a big city or in a small one such buildings as the four-story block that was destroyed should be provided with adequate fire escapes. It is the height of folly to put full dependence upon the fact that there have been no fires, or the efficiency of the fire department. A well equipped and active fire fighting force is a great asset, but it should be reinforced at all times by proper provisions for the prevention of fire or by sufficient methods of escape from a building in case of fire.

Montpelier is not the only place where the lesson of inadequate provision for safety has been presented. It is in fact an old story, but it comes to light all too often in view of the too frequent repetitions of the Montpelier experience.

Life saving should get some consideration before the fire actually breaks out. The greatest service in that direction can be rendered in guarding against fires and in providing sufficient avenues of escape so that none can be trapped.

WHERE ALL CAN HELP.

Probably few people have any idea of the amount of work that is caused by the failure to place complete addresses upon letters or papers, or the delay and expense that is involved in using wrong addresses.

It is inevitable that there should be a certain amount of both. Those using the mail and employing incomplete and wrong addresses are not always to blame. They use what is furnished them and they depend upon the post office employes to do the rest. Great credit must be given to the clerks and carriers in deciphering addresses and getting mail matter to its proper destination. But for their excellent work there would be many more than the 20,000,000 which go to the dead letter office each year. Just what they are made to do, when better addressing would overcome it, is shown by the fact that there are 200,000,000 letters annually for which the postal employes must search the directories to accomplish delivery.

It is of course a case where the public pays the bills, but it is an opportunity for that same public to cut its own expenses and to permit the postoffice forces to devote their efforts to the service that is intended.

There is clearly an opportunity for a general cooperation with the postoffice department in this direction. It is always well to write legibly, and if you cannot do that, to print the address on mail matter. Inasmuch as everyone is destined under the letters or packages mailed should go where intended this is but a bit of easy self protection against loss and delay. Likewise it can be appreciated what difficulties the postal force is under to find John Jones when there is no other address than New York city.

The dead letter office has been maintained because of wrong addresses. Some of this may be unavoidable but much of it is due to carelessness, and the impression that employes of the postoffice are mind readers. The dead letter office is a fixture. It will never be eliminated, but there is the chance for a general cooperation on the part of all persons using the mails to reduce the business it does and to better the postal service.

THE PAY OF THE CLERGY.

Much must be said in commendation of the attitude taken by the bishop of the Pittsburgh district of the Episcopal church. Because of the many demands that are made upon the bishop it was voted at a recent diocesan convention to increase his salary by $3,000 a year. It was considered that he was entitled to such a raise and the diocese was able to pay it.

Bishop Mann doesn't say that his office does not require the increase in salary, but in declining to accept it he made the most of the opportunity that existed to call attention to the need of increasing the salaries of those clergymen in the diocese who are not properly paid before attempting to give a boost to the bishop.

The poorly paid clergyman is by no means confined to the Pittsburgh diocese. They exist in too many dioceses, too many denominations and too many churches. They are engaged in a self sacrificing work and stand out as among the poorest paid professional men in the locality.

What the effect of Bishop Mann's renunciation of this salary raise will have in his own diocese and in others remains to be seen. Not always are such situations used in that manner. Certainly the spirit of the Golden Rule was manifest in the bishop's action. It was a chance to accentuate the position of subordinates and he didn't hesitate to do it though it meant personal loss. If it results in betterment for them all the outcome will be a happy one. Certainly it is that a plea for better pay for the minister was effectively sent home, and in a manner that ought to produce some needed relief.

RADIO AUDIENCES.

Just where radio will lead to no one can predict. It is going ahead rapidly. It may have its limitations for some but for others it never ceases to interest.

Thus far all that has been necessary to get the benefit of the radio messages that have been broadcasted from various points is to have an adequate receiving equipment. With a proper instrument it is a case of take what you want and let the rest go by.

Those who have figured that the time was coming when the receiving sets would be obliged to pay a fee to the broadcasting stations for the privilege of getting the programmes did not take into consideration the view of the secretary of commerce, who has declared that any such plan would have his vigorous opposition.

There are many agencies at the present time which are getting much valuable advertising out of their broadcasting. This they will no doubt be anxious to continue. They will steer clear of the plan of taxing the receivers for the entertainment and information that is delivered to them. Just how in fact they would go about such a thing and make the collections is a bit difficult to understand. There may be restrictions on broadcasting stations but changes will have to be made in the laws before those desiring are prohibited from tapping the air unless they pay a license fee.

Those broadcasting for the advertising they get out of it will not be disposed to discourage the large radio audiences or seek to stand in the way of any new ones. With the secretary of commerce against any such idea it is not likely to get far.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Have you provided yourself with your 1924 drivers' license?

February is half gone, and even by the groundhog there are only four more weeks of winter left.

Possibly they'll be able to get counsel for the government who don't even use gasoline or kerosene.

Those who haven't made out their income tax reports would do well to keep their eyes on the calendar.

There are those who are always "glad" to tell what they know, when they feel that the gossip isn't so.

The man on the corner says: Cigars of the King Tut brand can be expected to appear henceforth in gold tinfoil.

It is for the good of the pocketbook as well as the interests of the lumbermen that February do its part in providing an ample ice crop.

Just because Mr. McAdoo is through with Doheny it doesn't mean that the railroads are going to open competitive bids for his services.

Robbers have been carrying off Cape Cod antiques, but they can never steal the many charming attractions of that long point of land.

Now that Hudson Maxim says tea and coffee should be suppressed under the Volstead act, someone ought to figure out the alcoholic content of cambric tea.

While casting about for new methods of capital punishment those who oppose hanging, shooting, lethal gas and the electric chair might favor bootleg booze.

Equal rights seem to be making some progress, the activities of a bobbed-haired bandit had been stopped in Brooklyn and a breach of promise suit has been lost in Atlanta.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Paraffin will keep your jellies from moulding on the top.

Have a plan for every day's housekeeping routine. It saves time and keeps order.

Cut a piece off the ends of potatoes before they are roasted. This will let out any moisture and make them mealy.

When preparing clothes for ironing have them evenly dampened and smoothly and tightly rolled.

To remove paint from aprons soak the spot in a little paraffin, rub it thoroughly till the paint is removed and then wash in the ordinary way.

After washing white paint polish with a little furniture cream. It not only preserves the paint, but keeps it clean much longer, as dirt does not adhere so easily to the polished surface.

Save all the paper bags in which bread and dry groceries are delivered and use them as gloves to slip on if you have to poke the fire or put on more coal when making cakes or pastry.

When washing brushes with stiff bristles, always rinse in cold water as this stiffens them.

When you have no whipped cream for your hot chocolate use marshmallows instead. Some people prefer them.

If you will whip your cream in a pitcher instead of a bowl you will save time and will not spatter so much cream on yourself or the surrounding area.

If you want your gravies, soups or thickened sauces of any kind to be lumpless, mix the salt with the flour before the liquid is added. Beat with a small egg beater instead of a spoon.

Never keep raw bacon in paper—keep it in a dish and keep the rind on until you are ready to fry it.

Paint the inside of your bureau drawers with white enamel and they will be easy to keep clean.

TO CLEAN BOTTLES

An easy way to clean bottles with small necks is to chop a potato into small pieces. Put the bits of potato into the bottle with warm water and shake vigorously up and down. When the glass begins to shine remove potato and rinse several times with cold water.

COOK IN LAYERS

When making a vegetable and meat stew be sure to put a layer of vegetables below the meat as well as above it. This prevents the meat from boiling hard and gives it a much better flavor.

TO SCALE A FISH

When scaling a fish hold it under running water, the whole time in the way fishmongers do. This prevents the scales, scattering and making a mess in the sink. The right method of scaling fish is to begin at the tail and scrape toward the head.

DRESSING-TABLE TOP

If you do not like the looks of a glass top over your dressing-table you can save the top considerably if you will keep a blotting paper over the wood, under the cloth cover. Anything spilled will be absorbed.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

An easy way to improve the elbows is to sit for ten minutes with the elbows resting in a saucer of warm olive oil. A method as effective but more energetic is to coat the skin generously with oil and rub it in thoroughly with the hands.

In place of an apple a day, eat two vegetables besides potatoes or dried beans, to keep the doctor away. Cabbage and carrots are especially beneficial when eaten raw.

Occasionally there are sickly woman who possess lovely, long hair, but the general rule is that one's physical condition is reflected in the quality of one's tresses. The hair is a sensitive organism and soon betrays the body's lack of health and vitality.

Here is a cold cream that will do wonders for a too thin neck:

Alcohol (95 per cent) 20 grams, cocoa butter 100 grams, essence of rosemary 12 drops, essence of bergamot 12 drops.

Blend these ingredients in a dish immersed in a larger dish or pan of warm water. Apply the cream thickly wherever ugly deep folds appear when you move your neck. Leave it on about fifteen minutes, then remove it carefully. Experiment will show you whether you need this cold cream bath for your neck daily or only now and then. Too much cold cream sometimes causes oily lumps to appear.

GINGHAMS FOR SUMMER

It is predicted that cotton fabrics such as gingham, chambray and drawn-cloth will be much in evidence during the summer in the cities as well as the country.

While smart French dressmakers have been experimenting in ginghams, the gingham manufacturers have been experimenting in new patterns and styles, changeable ginghams and chambrays, and lovely two-toned effects are now obtainable in effects similar to expensive silks.

As popular as gingham bids fair to be in the summer of 1924, another fabric is scheduled to run it a close race. This is drawncloth, a cotton sheer as handkercheif linen, with occasional threads left out, giving a very transparent effect and offered in any number of colors and delightful shades. This material is guaranteed fast color, so that the girl who selects a pale orchid or a bright coral need not worry about the color being retained.

FOR THE TRAVELER

The indefatigable traveler will revel in the possession of a flat bag of rubberized silk that holds all the necessary toilet requirements, including mirror, brush and comb, wash cloth, etc., each in its separate pocket. These bags come in a number of colors.

USES FOR WAXED PAPER

Save all the waxed paper in which crackers and bread are wrapped. This waxed paper is the very thing you want on which to roll out pie crust or biscuits, also doughnuts or cookies. No washing of pantry board is necessary.

CASE FOR IRON

No up-to-date woman would think of traveling without her electric iron, but the difficulty of packing it has always been a problem. A new iron of generous proportions comes packed in a smart black leather case. The iron handle and wring pack compactly in the case, which is remarkably flat and convenient in shape.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Short coats of white crepe are embroidered all over in black silk. The sleeves are long and loose.

The very little hat remains extremely popular today. One attempt to camouflage it into a larger appearance involves a big, fluffy ostrich plume fastened on the right side of the chapeau and hanging half way to the waist.

The throw scarf is an integral part of many of the smartest new coats for sport and formal wear.

Very narrow Chinese ribbons are used with most effective results as trimming for sport hats for the south.

Silk broadcloth in wide Roman stripes is chosen for the fashioning of sport dresses for southern resorts.

As pretty as they are practical are sport blouses of flannel in bright and pastel colors.

Moire ribbon in different widths is a favored trimming noted on several spring suits.

Hand-embroidered organdie in pastel colors fashions some of the liveliest frocks for the south.

Changeable taffeta frocks in pastel shades having a certain frosty appearance are the very latest word in dance frocks.

A smartly simple one-piece frock of white flannel has a touch of blue in the piping at the neck and pocket and there is a three-quarter length coat of the same blue to wear over it.

A stunning suit of white flannel is outlined at every edge with a fine black silk braid.

The overblouse and pleated skirt are enjoying a new vogue at Palm Beach and the southern resorts. They are second in favor, however, to the trim tailored suit.

A remarkable three-piece costume shown here today is in black, white and gold. The skirt is black velvet. Over this, extending nearly to the knees, is a peasant blouse of white velvet embroidered in gold. The long black velvet cape is trimmed with white fox.

Tan covert cloth is here again, to be made up into the smart tailored suits which spring demands. Other materials that will be in favor are twill and Oxford suitings. Navy is as smart as black.

REVIVAL OF THE SUIT

The tailored suit for several seasons has been rather ignored and more attention paid to the one-piece frock with its long or three-quarter-length coat to match and to the three-piece costume. But let no one who makes any claim to sartorial knowledge or distinction think that she can afford to omit the tailleur from her spring wardrobe.

The revival of the strictly tailored man-fashioned suit is of more than passing interest. It is one of the few modes that did not originate in Paris. It was the English women and her American sisters who claimed the tailored suit as their own particular costume, French women considering it not feminine enough.

But the last few seasons have witnessed a change of heart and it was the smart woman of Paris who took up the suit and insisted upon its being the perfection of mannish simplicity. With her peculiar flair for fashion and instinct for knowing how to wear clothes she made it the smartest costume of the moment.

RED AND BLUE

The combination of red and blue though it has a certain suggestion of school days, is very popular with grownups now. Red embroidery, buttons, or braid, are to be found on many a blue serge frock.

LAUNDRY NOTES

After laundering stockings always hang them up by the toes to dry. This way they will not stretch out of shape.

You will find kerosene better than gasoline for removing spots in wool or silk, but must not let any dust get on the spot before the kerosene is evaporated.

To wash silk crepes or georgettes use warm water and white soap. Do not rub, but squeeze the garment through good suds. Rinse several times, iron when partly dry on the wrong side and crosswise of the material, stretching a little as you iron.

Use a teaspoon of epsom salts to each gallon of water when washing and rinsing colored clothes, and it will keep them from fading.

When coat collars become soiled from constant rubbing against the neck, they can be freshened by sponging with alcohol in which salt has been dissolved.

NEW USES FOR MUFFIN PANS

Muffin or gem pans are taken as a matter of course in the outfitting of a kitchen. Few women, however, seem in on the potential possibilities of usefulness of these single unit pans for purposes other than muffin making.

The attractiveness as well as the lack of waste in the individual serving has already given it a popularity in the tea room and restaurant that must spread to the kitchen if "home cooking" is to keep its reputation. The day of the old-fashioned pie is passing with the old-fashioned family of six or eight, which it was intended to serve.

Saturday as universal baking day is passing, too, with a realization that freshness is the chief claim to favor with baked goods. Here is a chance for the muffin pan. Individual pies in muffin pans may be made for any number from two up. There is a satisfaction in having a whole pie to one's self, and one loses none of the juicy contents. These individual pies may be open-faced or covered, or may be simply served as tarts, with or without a topping of meringue.

The usefulness of muffin pans does not, however, end here. Baked apples with cocoanut or other filling keep their shape and add to their beauty if baked in muffin pan units. The same is true of such things as baked green peppers or tomatoes with a stuffing of ground meat or rice.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Miss Phyllis Kumler of Oakwood, Ohio, has been admitted as the first woman member of the National Aeronautical Association.

Miss Elizabeth Criswell, a Philadelphia social worker, has been appointed director of the Child Welfare Department of the Grenfell Mission in Labrador.

Sioux City, Iowa, boasts of the youngest woman attorney practicing in the courts of the United States in the person of Miss Gladys Yeaman, 23 years old.

The Mothers of America are to be honored by the Women's Alliance in the erection in Washington, of a monument, 1,000 feet high—nearly twice as high as the Washington monument.

The Bolivia Chamber of Deputies recently passed a law requiring medical certificates for marriage and prohibiting the marriage of persons suffering from tuberculosis or other infectious diseases.

PILLOW COVERS

Covers for sofa pillows should be made so that they may be removed easily and cleaned as they accumulate dust.

CORDUROY HANGERS

Hangers for suits and dresses, now covered with corduroy, are a boon to the woman who has worn out her patience picking up frocks that have slipped from their proper places. These hangers come in many colors.

PRINTS IN VOGUE

The vogue for prints is seen in stunning knee length coats for the south. They are made of heavy unbleached cotton with huge designs of bright colors hand blocked on their surface. They are fashioned like a Chinese coat and the small upstanding collar and fronts are bound with furniture tape in blue or red.

A WHITE SEASON

The indications are that it will be a good deal of a white spring. The simple white frock of crepe de chine is expected to form the basis of many a country club sports costume.

RECIPES

Orange Pie: Practically everybody loves lemon pie, but it is not generally known that orange pie similarly made is just as delicious. Here is the recipe: One cupful sugar, 1-3 cupful flour, 1-4 teaspoonful salt, grated rind of 1 orange, 1 cupful orange juice, juice of 1-2 lemon, 3 tablespoonfuls butter, 3 egg yolks.

Mix sugar, flour, salt and grated rind; all fruit juice and cook in a double boiler 10 minutes, stirring until thickened, and afterward, occasionally. Add butter and egg yolks, beaten light; cook two minutes and cool.

Put in pastry crust. Cover with meringue or whipped cream and bake in moderate oven until delicately browned.

Crumb Buckwheat Cakes: Two-thirds cup fine bread crumbs, 2 cups milk, 2 cups water, 1-2 yeast cake, 1 tablespoon molasses, 4 cups buckwheat, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 1-2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon salt.

Scald milk and pour over bread crumbs. When lukewarm add yeast cake dissolved in lukewarm water. Add salt and buckwheat and beat until smooth. Cover and let stand in a warm place over night. In the morning add molasses, melted butter and soda dissolved in a little warm water. Bake on a hot well greased griddle. Some of this batter can be saved for another baking.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Descendants of John Livermore

Mr. Editor: Was much interested in the article regarding Dr. Charles H. "Levermore's" visit to his old home (Goshen Society) Lebanon.

He is to be congratulated on his attainments. My husband, the late Rev. Leander Elliott Livermore (A. M., B. D., D. D.) was his cousin and mine.

We all descended from John Livermore who embarked at Ipswich, England, for New England, the last of April, 1634. He was then 23 years old.

He listed among the passengers as "John Lyvermore."

When admitted to the United States as "freeman" in May 6, 1635, his name was written as "Leathermore." When he signed his will, he spelled it as "John Livermore". So started the family history, written by Walter Eliet Thwing.

After extensive research my husband conceded that the name was originally "Lifermorn" meaning "Light Bearer." Our branch preferred the name of Livermore, as the supposed original is too extraneous.

There are several places bearing the name, in Maine, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Louisiana, California, Colorado and others.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Albert Sauveur, who has been chosen to deliver the Henry M. Howe lecture before the annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers to be opened in New York today, is professor of metallurgy at Harvard University. The lectureship was recently established by the institute in memory of the late Dr. Henry M. Howe, who was its president in 1903, and who for many years occupied the chair of metallurgy in the school of mines of Columbia University. Dr. Howe and Dr. Sauveur were co-workers of the first rank in this field. Dr. Sauveur, a native of Louvain, has been associated with the steel industry, and is a member of numerous learned and scientific societies, both in the United States and abroad. He is the author of works dealing with the metallurgy of iron and steel, metallography, and Germany's part in the war.

Stories That Recall Others

A Hot Time Piece.

Fred, aged ten and William, aged six, were spending a few hours at their father's shop. One of the girls employed there gave William a thermometer and explained that the temperature could be read as the mercury rose or fell. The older brother took the thermometer and hid it, putting it where it got the benefit of a hot steam pipe. After a desperate search William found it. Hurriedly he ran to his father saying: "Daddy, look what Fred did. He hanged this 'mometer up by the pipe and now see what time it is."

Time Makes Us All Forget.

Two old soldiers were talking the other day about days that have gone. Suddenly one of them asked, "Say, Bill, can you remember the first girl you ever kissed?"

The second one scratched his head a minute and then returned, "Shucks, no. I can't even remember the last one I kissed."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

GUADALAJARA

The recapture of the city of Guadalajara by Federal troops in Mexico means a certain prestige for "their arms, a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society points out, because this is in importance the second city of the republic, a community of wealth and power.

"There is something of a Parisian touch about Guadalajara," says the bulletin. "One senses a light gaiety in spite of the scars from a decade of revolution and looting. A palm-filled plaza adds a semitropic note which quite prepares the visitor to learn that the gaiety has a more somnolent note than that which the Champs Elysee or the Rue da la Paix have to offer. The banners of lottery tickets which one's line of sight must thread to pass to the twin domes of the yellowish brown cathedral, speak eloquently of Latin tolerance in the realm of chance.

"There is architecture in Guadalajara; and evidence of wealth that may be wholly a thing of the past or may be slumbering below the surface, so to speak, awaiting the more settled times that wealth demands whether in the tropics or near the poles. Whole streets of handsome private residences speak of a more prosperous day. The stocks of the shops are sadly depleted by years of strife, but the buildings that house them are well built and ornamental. The hotels are clean and comfortable.

"This second city of Mexico has always been famed for its beautiful women; and it still deserves its reputation though many of the wealthier families whose daughters led the social world have taken up their residence in the United States and Europe since Diaz fell. In the 'good old days' the ladies of the better world used to promenade in the plaza of an evening when the band played, the gentlemen marching in the reverse direction, while the peons stood deferentially outside admiring the beauty and magnificence. But this parade of the first families is a thing of the past. Now the peons have the plaza to themselves and march and countermarch with their own women.

"But basic customs die hard, and the visitor today is not denied a view of Guadalajara's beauties. Early each Sunday afternoon for an hour they drive up and down the narrow main street between the cathedral and a little church a quarter of a mile distant, smiling and greeting their friends of the 'carriage class.' Many of these first families of Guadalajara are of unmixed Spanish blood, and their outlook on life, despite revolutions and the democratization of their government, is uncompromisingly aristocratic.

"In the city is a painting by Murillo for which $460,000 was once offered. Both to visiting are lover will look for it in vain. Great works of art are not safe when revolution stalks, and the authorities of the cathedral, in which the magnificent painting hung, saw to it that their priceless charge went into hiding, awaiting the return of a happier day in Mexico. The picture was the gift of the King of Spain as a recognition of contributions from Guadalajara during the Peninsula war.

"Guadalajara's climate is all that could be wished. Perhaps it is even more; for each day with its clear blue sky and flood of sunshine is like the one that went before and the one that will follow tomorrow. Winter has no sting. It has little to distinguish it save that some nights have a touch of frost to lend an added sparkle to the air."

STOMACH UPSET?
Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

FIRE DAMAGE OF $1,500 AT FITCHVILLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Fitchville Baptist church was damaged by fire to the extent of $1,500 to $1,500 Sunday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock. The fire started on the lower floor and was caused by an overheated furnace.

As soon as the blaze was discovered word was sent to the Palmer Steam Fire Engine Co., of Fitchville and they made a quick response and soon had a stream of water pouring on the flames. Aid was asked of the Yantic fire department and they responded to the call promptly.

Efficient work on the part of the firemen saved the church from destruction. The flames were rapidly spreading and were eating their way through the partitions of the wooden church when the firemen arrived. That the fire had been smouldering for some time before it broke out was evident from the fact that the heavy timbers in the lower floor were deeply burned in some places and badly scorched in other places.

The interior of the lower floor was badly damaged by the flames but the church proper on the floor above suffered little damage, except from smoke and some water. The firemen remained on duty at the burning church for about two hours and a half.

The parlors were filled at the 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon meeting at the local Young Men's Christian association and all were impressed with the service. Singing of hymns, scripture reading, vocal solos by Hugh Kinder touchingly rendered constituted the opening exercises. The second part of the wonderful story of Victor Hugo "Les Miserables" was shown in moving pictures, and they were true to the impressive story, showing as they did the good effect of the bishop's influence upon Jean Val Jean, who in turn begins to use his newly acquired Christian spirit to show mercy and kindness to others even as the good bishop had shown to him.

Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk, he said in part, "We are just between the anniversary of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, and it is well to pause for a few moments and think of these great American characters. George Washington was given responsibility early in life and he measured up to his tasks. As a surveyor, as a major in charge of the Virginia armies and as commander in chief of all the army, and then as the first president he was faithful to his tasks and duties. Among the very many splendid characteristics of Washington, we might mention his beautiful courtesy; when he was dying he had not thought of himself, but his courteous spirit led him to say as his last words, "I want to apologize for the trouble I have made for the doctors and nurses." He was indeed a great soul. Lincoln was of a different type. He was greatly handicapped in his boyhood; he had very few opportunities compared with the boys of today. See him sprawled on the floor studying by the light from the fireplace. The difference in Lincoln and the average boy of today, is in the use he made of his few opportunities and the neglect of so many boys of their many opportunities. He was fond of wit and anecdote, and enjoyed good hearty laugh, but those who knew him best say that there was an undercurrent of sadness and sorrow, and that he at times sat in silence as if in a trance. He saw what no other man saw, those thousands of black men in the shackles of slavery, and though he was opposed even by some who should have helped him, he set his mind on breaking the shackles and we all know how well he succeeded. When the war was over, Lincoln tells that some men made the base suggestion that he return the slaves who fought in the northern army to the masters against whom they fought; if I did such a thing said Lincoln, "I would deserve to be damned in time and eternity." He said with modesty, "I have never willingly planted a thorn in the bosom of any man." What a magnificent saying is this, and we know how very true the statement is of Lincoln, let us determine that we will begin at once to follow Lincoln's example of kindliness, and if we do this what a change will come to our city. We may ask, where did Lincoln, Washington and the bishop in this picture story secure their wonderful and beautiful forgiving spirit; I answer it was given them by the great loving God, and Jean Val Jean in the story caught this same spirit from the same source, and his life was absolutely changed."

Next Sunday the third part of the story will be shown and doubtless a good audience will be in attendance.

THREE HURT IN CRASH NEAR NORTH STONINGTON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, Feb. 17—A bad automobile accident occurred Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock four miles this side of North Stonington near Tillinghast Corners on the Norwich-Westerly highway. The steering gear is supposed to have broken on the Ford touring car driven by Joseph Dion, 65, of Springfield, Mass., when he dashed off the road and crashed into a tree. Mr. Dion is a carpenter in the reconstruction of the Powers mansion at Watch Hill as were also the two men who accompanied him, a carpenter by the name of Peter, and Jules Roach, 48, who resides near Forest Park. Mr. Dion is thought to have sustained a broken collar bone, he also suffered numerous cuts and bruises, as did the other men of the party. Roach, who is quite a heavy man was forced through the top of the automobile and when brought to Westerly was taken to the office Dr. Charles F. Crandall where he received medical attention for a bad cut on his head and right leg. The two other men of the party desired to be returned to their homes in Springfield that they might receive hospital treatment and were taken there following the accident. The automobile was badly smashed and was taken in charge by a Westerly garage man.

BEAT MAN HE THOUGHT WAS RIVAL FOR GIRL

Prompted by what is said to be jealousy over a girl, George Winters, 26, of New York, a marine at the submarine base, Groton, gave a Norwich man a beating Saturday night on North Main street, near the tannery where he waited for his supposed rival to leave the young woman's house.

Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officer William Sharvan rounded up the pugilistic marine who was held at police headquarters till a sergeant of marines took him to the submarine base where he will be dealt with by the military court.

As a matter of fact the man who got the beating was not calling on the girl but had gone to the house to see her brother, according to the information that was given the police.

LABORERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD PRIEST'S EARLY MASS THEME

Yesterday was Septuagesima Sunday, about seventy days before Easter. In all the masses throughout the Catholic world the epistle read was I. Corinthians 9.24 to 10.5, beginning "Brethren know you not that they that run in the race, all run indeed, but one receiveth the prize?" The gospel was Matthew 20. 1-16, the parable of the laborers in the vineyard. Preaching Sunday morning in St. Patrick's Church at the 7.30 mass, Rev. Myles P. Galvin considered life as a vineyard to which God calls all to labor, the reward being salvation. Some are called to the marriage state, others do God's work unmarried, while still another class will have the call from God to do His work in what is denominated the religious state.

Those called to the vocation of the priest or nun, while hearing in the soul the summons of God to do His special work of ministry, yet can refuse to accept that call; for God has given men free will, which He will never take from him. The life of the religious means sacrifice, self-denial, mortification—but it means also consolations and privileges above all earthly rewards. Father Galvin expressed the conviction that there were many young men and young women who hear this direct call of God to enter the priesthood or sisterhood, yet who do not respond to it because influenced by their parents instead of regarding children as the gift of God and being willing to devote them to God's service, some parents, in their selfish love or from other selfish motives, discourage in their children the vocation to the religious life. The preacher pointed out the high privilege of the priest, answering God's call to serve as a representative of Christ on earth, in ministering to His people, in the confessional, where he sits as judge, the Saviour's deputy in loosing or binding sins, above all, in offering the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, in which, following Christ's command to do this in memory of Him, he turns the earthly bread and earthly wine, at the moment of the consecration, into the actual body and blood of Christ, to become the spiritual food of His people, as the redeemer promised.

So, too, the young woman who devotes herself to the teaching of those children for whom the Saviour manifested especially tender love, who trains them to choose lives of virtue, who, as a consecrated nun, nurses back to health the sick and infirm, who cares for the aged and needy, although living a life of obscurity and denial will have rewards from Heaven far above any earthly pleasures or compensations. The duty of parents, to foster in their children any signs of this vocation to the religious life was the lesson of the brief sermon.

The many hundreds of persons receiving holy communion at this mass after confession on the previous day, were preceded to the altar by the Rosary Society, Miss Annie G. Stanton, president.

THREE PLAINFIELD MEN HAVE PATENT GRANTED

Edmond A. Davignon, overseer of carding Arthur Barry, second hand, and James Greenhaigh, comber man, for the Lawton Mills Corp., of Plainfield have been granted a patent on an attachment for the combing machine. A copy of their patent has been sent to the Whiton Machine Shop of Whittenville, Mass., builders of combing machines. A description of the patent follows:

A driving mechanism for the detaching roll of a combing machine comprising a shaft geared to the cylinder shaft of the machine, a long gear on the detaching roll, a disc on the cylinder shaft having a number of teeth on a part of its circumference for engaging the gear on the detaching roll and a disc on the first mentioned shaft having a number of teeth on a part of its periphery for engaging the gear on the detaching roll, the teeth on the second disc being greater in number than those on the first disc and said discs overlapping each other with the overlapping parts located under the long gear.

DOLLAR DAY REJOICES BUYERS AND SELLERS

That the shopping public of eastern Connecticut is coming to realize more and more that Norwich is the natural trading center for the three counties—New London, Windham and Tolland—in the eastern section of the state, was evident from the crowds which thronged the Norwich retail stores, Saturday—Dollar Day. The day compared very well with Dollar Days in the past in spite of the fact that it was a rather chilly and uncomfortable day for long rides.

Shoppers came from far and near and extra trolley and bus service was provided to take care of the heavy travel. Many shoppers came in their own automobiles from the farming and mill district north of Norwich. All in all it was a busy day for the Dollar Day stores and well worth while, both from the viewpoint of merchant and customer.

LEBANON VETERAN, 94, VOTED FOR LINCOLN

Lyman Pitcher, the only living civil war veteran who went out from Lebanon in '61, '65, is one of those who voted for Abraham and is still hale and hearty in his 85th year.

Mr. Pitcher was born in New York City September 26, 1839, coming to Lebanon when a young child. On his 21st birthday he enlisted at Norwich, in the 2nd Heavy Artillery, company D. He fought in the first battle of Bull Run and many other battles, serving until he was mustered out at the close of the war. Mr. Pitcher's wife is Mrs. Augusta Holbrook Pitcher. He has two sons, Charles and David Pitcher and two grandchildren, Woodworth and Stuart Pitcher.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS AT VALENTINE CARD PARTY

On Saturday evening at their home at 124 Platt avenue, Mrs. John T. and Marie Boynton entertained at a valentine card party. Valentine decorations made the home very attractive and beautiful. Three tables of cards were played and dainty prizes awarded. At the close of the play a valentine supper was served after which music and dancing were enjoyed.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY SERVED SUPPER TO OVER 600

Over 600 patrons enjoyed the excellent baked bean supper served from 5 to 7 Saturday afternoon at the Community house on Church street by Mercier Assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, and the successful work of officers and members will add a substantial sum to the treasury fund that will be used for the redecorating of the assembly's rooms.

The tables were attractively arranged with floral decorations and the waitresses were in white with caps of white and yellow, the assembly colors. The flowers were from Gedulding's and the Maplewood nursery. Many friends outside of the assembly contributed to the success of the affair by contributions of salads, cake and other articles.

The general committee in charge consisted of:

Mrs. Anne Cummings, Miss Mary Devlin, Miss Julia Brennan, Mrs. P. J. O'Neil, Mrs. Nellie McHale, Joseph Marshall, Mrs. Joseph Sullivan, Mrs. Joseph Farrell, Mrs. Thomas McVeigh, Mrs. Dennis Hayes, Mrs. John Bowne, Miss Nellie McGarry, Miss Katie Connell, Mrs. James McNerny, Miss Elizabeth Hoar, Mrs. Patrick Sweeney, Mrs. Joseph Desmond, Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. James Casey, Miss Mary Maloney, Mrs. James Dutton, Mrs. Raymond Wheeler.

With Miss Bessie McVeigh chairman the waitresses were the following: Mrs. William McManus and the Misses Catherine Lasch, Elizabeth Barry, Irene Gallivan, Mae Gallivan, Irene Welch, Dora Polequin, Agnes Brosnahan Winifred Day, Marie Desmond, Anna Desmond, Nonie Nagle, Eleanor Fitzgerald, Agnes Filburn, Agnes Casey, Mary Weller, Catherine Desmond, Maude Quinley, Alice Kilroy, Madeline Grodotzki, Mae Shields, Etta Ward, Marguerite Fitzgerald, Annie Day.

Miss Mary G. Ward was in charge of the tickets and Mrs. P. F. Sweeney in charge of the tables.

GAVE VALENTINE PARTY WITH CHARMING DECORATIONS

A valentine party from 3 to 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon for Billy and Kenneth Sanders of 11 Arnold street, with nine little friends for guests, made a delightful event for the little people. The decorations were charming, the dining room ceiling, latticed in white with red hearts, the table cloth in a valentine design, a center piece of poppies and red roses, red candles with valentine shades and a shower of red hearts over the table. The favors were baskets of heart candies. There was a large valentine cake and many valentines for all present.

In the peanut hunt the prize was taken by Charles Cruthers Jr., and Roberta Quinn won the prize for finding the most candy hearts. Music and dancing were enjoyed by the children and a buffet lunch was served. Mrs. William R. Sanders was assisted by Mrs. William R. Denison and Miss Agnes Lathrop.

The children present were Ilva Ranger, Charles Cruthers, Jr., Virginia Weeden, Barbara Taylor, Ethel Mueller, Grant Denison, Virginia Judd, Roberta Quinn, Natalie Cronin, Billy and Kenneth Sanders.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIED IN WATERFORD

Andrew Jackson Phillips, 89 a, veteran of the civil war died Friday at the home of Mrs. Mary Fox, Clark lane, Waterford. He had been ill for many months of infirmities due to old age. He was born in Waterford on Christmas Eve 1834. During the civil war he served with the union army, was wounded in the arm at Cedar creek and captured by the confederate troops from whom he soon escaped to rejoin the northern forces. Mr. Phillips had lived a somewhat nomadic life, having at various times claimed Waterford, New London, Middleboro and Boston, Mass., as his home. In his later years, after having operated a trucking business in New London, he settled in Waterford to take up the occupation of market gardening. Some years ago he retired from that work. Surviving him are two sons, Charles A. Phillips of Waterford, and William H. Phillips of South Boston, Mass.,

LODGERS WILL SHOVEL SNOW AT COURT HOUSE

At least eight fairly able males will wield snow shovels this (Monday) morning on the walks around the court house to make some return for the lodging and shelter they were given Sunday night when they applied at police headquarters and were assigned sleeping quarters on the planks that are part of the furnishings of the cells.

Superintendent Joseph J. Fields will supervise their operations with the shovels and after they have cleaned the walks in suitable shape they will be allowed to depart. It will be their hard luck that it snowed while they were sleeping otherwise they could have gone their way in the morning without working.

SIXTEEN FRIENDS GAVE SURPRISE TO MRS. HILL

Saturday evening proved to Mrs. Frank Hill that her friends could surprise her after all her thinking they never could succeed in doing so. Sixteen of her friends quietly walked into her home at 49 Cliff street and after she had recovered from the surprise she proved a very capable hostess. Music and games were enjoyed after which on behalf of those present James Gordon presented her a silver tray. Refreshments of sandwiches, frankfurters, rolls, pickles cake, coffee and tea were served at the close of a very pleasant evening.

OBITUARY.

Solomon Willis

Solomon Willis, who has made his home in Quaker Town near Ledyard for the past nine years, was brought to the Spicer home at Noank recently, suffering from blood poisoning and pneumonia, where he died Friday morning, Mr. Willis was 77 years of age. Many who attended the peace meetings held in former years will remember him for his accordeon playing which was a feature of the programs. As far as can be ascertained there are no relatives.

Jabez West

The death of Jabez West occurred Friday night about 11 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Main on Pearl street, Noank, where he made his home. Death came suddenly as the result of heart trouble. Mr. West was employed at the Standard Machine Co. of Mystic and had made his home in Noank for a number of years past. He is survived by a son, Jabez West, Norwich, and two sisters in Westerly, R. I.

Eben L. Chapman

Eben L. Chapman, 77 years old, died early Saturday morning at his home on Broad street extention, Groton. He had been ill of cancer for many months. Mr. Chapman was a native of Montville. He is survived by his granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth E. Murray.

Mrs. Hermidas Labelle

The death of Dorilla Bellerose, wife of Hermidas Labelle, of Bristol, occurred Sunday afternoon at St. Francis hospital, Hartford, where she had been a patient for some time. She was born 63 years ago in North Grosvenordale, the daughter of Frederick and Casarie Auclair Bellerose. Her education being gained in that place. In Bristol four years ago she was married to Hermidas Labelle. Besides her mother and husband, she is survived by two brothers, Rev. U. O. Bellerose of Taftville and Wilfred Bellerose of North Grosvenordale and a sister, Mrs. L. J. Woisard of North Grosvenordale. She was a member of St. Ann church.

Mrs. Henry Buteau

After an illness of eight weeks, Mrs. Virginia Buteau, widow of Henry Buteau passed peacefully away at her home on High street, Baltic, last Friday night at 6 o'clock.

Seventy-seven years ago last Nov. 1st Virginia Bourque was born in Trois Riveris, Canada, eldest child of Anastasia and Julian Bourque. She has been a resident of Baltic all her life where her family located where she fas a child. Sixty one years ago at the age of 16 she was united in marriage with Henry Buteau, in Baltic, Rev. Father De Brueyker performing the ceremony. Mr. Buteau conducted a general store in Baltic for 45 years, and was very prosperous. He took great interest in the affairs of the town and held public offices, being in the legislature in 1898. He died in 1913. Fifteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Buteau, the first six and the last having died during infancy.

Mrs. Buteau is survived by four daughters and three sons, Mrs. Moses Genard of Baltic; Mrs. O. A. Bessette of Danielson, and Misses Caroline and Loretta Buteau, William H. of Moosup; Rene L. of Danielson, and Joseph H. of Baltic; also four sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Henry Reeve of Baltic; Mrs. Nicholas Chartier of New London; Mrs. R. J. Jodoin of Baltic, and Mrs. P. H. Ethier of Greeneville; Donat Bourque of Baltic, and Henry Bourque of New Bedford. She is also survived by eleven grandchildren; twenty-three nephews and twenty-four nieces.

For the past decade on New Year's day she has been the guest of honor at gatherings of her kin, at her home in Baltic. On Jan. 1st 1923, nearly seventy-five of the family gathered at the home to make the occasion a memorable one. Because of Mrs. Buteau's health it did not seem advisable to repeat the event this year.

As a mother and grandmother she will be greatly missed as her interest was centered in her home life and happiness of her children. As a member of the Catholic church she was a faithful and earnest worker.

She was of a fine lovable character, a true friend and she will be greatly missed by those whose joy it was to know her.

ATTLEBORO R. I. REDS LEAD IN EGG WEEK

Hens have almost uncanny habit of repeating past performances. Tips on the market are not in it for accuracy when compared with egg forecasts based by the management on data accumulated during the last dozen years. For example a year ago in the fifteenth week of the contest at Connecticut Agricultural college conducted under practically identical conditions there was a drop in production of 62 eggs. In the fifteenth week of the contest now in progress there was a falling off in production of 29 eggs as compared with the preceding week in both instances. Hens are admittedly affected by either favorable or adverse weather conditions, by their care and management, by the condition of their health and other factors, and yet year in and year out there is a sort of rythme in the number of eggs they produce.

For the third consecutive week Fern Side Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., heads the list for high weekly production with a total of 54 eggs. C. T. Darby's pen of White Leghorns from North Branch, N. J., was second best pen for the week with a record of 50 eggs. White Wyandottes entered by W. E. Morse of New Haven, Conn., made third place with a mark of 48 eggs. White Legherns owned by Ernest Crase of Ramsey, N. J., and White Rocks entered by Ameling Farms at Rolla, Mo., tied for fourth place with 44 eggs each. The combined production of all pens for the week was 2920 eggs or a yield of nearly 43 per cent The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

Plymouth Rocks

Ameling Farm (White) Rolla, Mo.	836
Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.	833
Ontario Agricultural College (Barred) Guelph, Ont.	494
Edgar Stoughton (Barred) Hartford, Conn.	473

White Wyandottes.

D. O. Witmer, Joplin, Mo.	850
Frank P. Matteson, Daviesville, R. I.	849
Albert W. Buckbee, Rhinebeck, N. Y.	842
Harvey I. Byerly, Sharpsville, Pa.	462

Rhode Island Reds

Fernside Farm, Attleboro, Mass.	788
E. Newton Santee, Pemfret Center, Conn.	633
Forest H. Chickner, New Brunswick, N. J.	536
Sunset Poultry Farm, Amherst, Mass.	533

White Legherns

Hilltop Farm, Suffield, Conn.	750

COUNTRY DIVIDED INTO EIGHT SECTIONS FOR OLYMPIC TRYOUTS

New York, Feb. 17.—(By The A. P.)—Eight sectional preliminary tryouts for the American Olympic track and field team will be held in May and June, according to plans completed today by William C. Prout of Boston, president of the Amateur Athletic union and chairman of the Olympic track and field committee. These meets, open to athletes throughout the United States and its territorial possessions, will determine participants in the final Olympic trials to be held in the Harvard stadium at Boston, June 13 and 14.

Definite sites and dates for two of the sectional tryouts already have been arranged. The eastern tryouts will be held at the Yankee stadium, home of the New York American league baseball club, on June 7, while the Pacific tryouts, awarded to San Francisco, will be held in the stadium of Stanford university, on May 17. With the exception of the latter tryout, President Prout recommends that the meets be held on Decoration day, May 30, or Saturday, June 7.

The six other preliminary tryouts are scheduled as follows:

Southeastern—At Birmingham, Ala., or Atlanta.

Central—At Chicago or Detroit.

Midwestern—At Kansas university stadium, Lawrence, Kas.

Southern—At Tulane university, New Orleans.

Pacific Northwest—At Portland, Ore.

Southern Pacific—At Los Angeles.

Final approval of the preliminary tryout plans rests with the members of the track and field committee, to whom the details have been submitted by F. W. Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee, but this is expected to be granted without delay.

The full list events on the Olympic program will be held at each of the tryouts, which will be open to all amateur athletes representing clubs, colleges, schools or military units. The only requirements for entry are that the competitors be citizens of the United States, either by birth or naturalization, and that they be amateurs registered in the Amateur Athletic union, or in the case of army and college athletes, certified as amateurs by the proper authorities.

It was pointed out, however, that athletes who compete in recognized college championship meets or United States army tryouts, will not be required to enter the sectional meets to determine their calibre except in events which do not appear on the programs of these organizations.

The college meets, which will qualify competitors for the final Olympic trials, include the Intercollegiate A. A. A., Western Conference, National Collegiate A. A., Pacific Coast conference, Southern conference, Missouri Valley conference and similar championship tests. The army plans sectional qualifying meets of its own to determine candidates for the final Olympic tryouts.

The territory included in each of the eight districts, as outlined in Mr. Prout's program, follows:

Eastern — Main, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia; Southwestern—North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee; Central — Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota; Midwestern—North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Wyoming and Colorado; Southern—Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Canal Zone; Pacific—Utah, Nevada, Northern California, Hawaii and Philippines; Southern California — New Mexico, Arizona and Southern California.

The events to be contested at the tryouts comprise: 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 metre races; 3,000-metre steeplechase; hurdle races, at 110 and 400 metres; 10,000-metre walk; pentathlon; decathlon; running high and broad jumps; running hop, step and jump; pole vault; throwing javelin, discus and 16-pound hammer; 16-pound shotput; 3,000-metre cross-country race (individual and team combined, 6 to start and three to score).

MISS CUMMINGS IS BEATEN BY FORMER CHAMPION

Del Monte, Calif., Feb. 17.—Edith Cummings, Chicago, national women's golf champion, was defeated, two up, by Marion Hollins, New York, former national champion, today in the second round match play of the Pebble Beach women's championship.

Doreen Kavanagh, California champion, was defeated, four up and 3 to go, by Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, former national women's tennis champion.

BATTERY E WINS ROUGH GAME FROM WORCESTER TEAM

Westerly, Feb. 17.—Automobile mishap delayed the arrival of the Crompton-Knowles basketball team of Worcester, Mass., from arriving in Westerly anywhere near scheduled time for their game with the Battery E boys, 243rd Field Artillery, at the state armory on Dixon street, Saturday night. It was not until 9.10 that an automobile was procured in Norwich to bring the players to Westerly. A telephone call from Norwich informed the waiting fans of the automobile accident. The orchestra was hastily summoned to the armory when ten or a dozen dance numbers were enjoyed before the basketball players finally arrived, however, two of the players arrived in Westerly early Saturday afternoon being entertained at the Lorraine Mill Community house.

The basketball game was an all interesting as some of those which have preceded it. The playing was characterized in places by rough work and the failure of the referee's whistle to sound promptly when the ball was out of bounds. Interest in the basketball games at the armory was shown by the patient waiting of the nearly 300 basketball followers, when it was announced that the game would be very much delayed in starting by there not being many of the fans to quit the building. The final score of the game was, Battery E 30, and Worcester 21. The Westerly players took the lead at the beginning of the game, holding it throughout. The first half ending, Battery 10, Worcester 8. It was not until the second half that Battery player Torrey hit his usual high pace. Stenhouse caging the first basket on the final period.

In the first half Nawn of the Crompton-Knowles players, shot a pretty basket and in the final half Center Smiley caged an excellent basket. Sebring, for the visitors, showed a burst of speed when he caged five baskets within a short time during the final interval.

The summary follows:

Battery E.	Crompton-Knowles.
Spencer, Plympton, Shortman	Sebring
Left Forward
Torrey	Sidele
Right Forward
Stenhouse	Smiley
Center
Dionne	Nawn
Left Guard
McCloy	Mullins
Right Guard

Scoring—Battery E.: Field goals, Spencer 2, Torrey 5, Stenhouse 5, McCloy 9; fouls 0.

Crompton-Knowles: Sidele 2, Sebring 5, Smiley 2, Nawn 1; fouls, Mullins 1.

Referee, Alex Greig; timekeeper, H. P. Clark; scorer, C. Mudge; attendance, 800; two twenty-minute halves.

Score by periods:

Battery E	10	20—30
Crompton-Knowles	8	13—21

CORNELL MAKING STRONG BID FOR TITLE IN COLLEGE BASKETBALL

New York, Feb. 17. — Cornell is knocking at the portals of intercollegiate basketball fame. The Ithacans, rank outsiders at the start of the league campaign, have come through with flying colors and now enjoy a full game has won four out of five starts, while Columbia has emerged victorious in three out of four starts.

Pennsylvania and Cornell established a season precedent when they invaded the lairs of rival teams and triumphed. Pennsylvania taking the measure of Princeton by the narrow margin of one point, 23-22, while Cornell won a clean cut victory over Dartmouth, 32 to 27. Yale's defeat at the hands of Columbia and Princeton's setback by Penn, put the Tigers and Elis down in the cellar with one victory and three defeats.

Yale and Princeton are now practically eliminated as pennant possibilities while Dartmouth and Penn have little hope of victory.

Knaess of Penn has swung into the lead for individual scoring honors, the Quaker star having annexed a total of 42 points in five games. Farer, of Columbia, has totalled 35 points in four games. Wedell of Cornell, is third with 31 points in five games. Pite, of Yale, and Capron of Cornell, are tied for fourth place, each having scored a total of 30 points.

The standing of the teams and the team scoring records follow:

Cornell	4	1	120	99	.800
Columbia	3	1	103	79	.750
Dartmouth	2	2	88	88	.500
Pennsylvania	2	3	104	114	.400
Princeton	1	3	97	109	.250

SERIES BETWEEN PLAINFIELD AND SO. MANCHESTER ARRANGED

The first game of a three game series will be played at the Plainfield Community house Wednesday evening between the Recs of South Manchester, and the Plainfield quintet.

These two teams have met twice previously and the games to date stand at one apiece. To settle the argument a best two out of three game series has been arranged.

The lineups of both teams will be announced in Wednesday's Bulletin.

Owing to the club house being let for other purposes the game will be played this week on Wednesday night.

CANADIANS TO FILE ENTRY FOR DAVIS CUP

Toronto, Feb. 17. — The Canadian Lawn Tennis association will challenge for the Davis cup the choice of play in the American or European zone being left to the discretion of the council, it was decided at the annual meeting yesterday.

The new rules of lawn tennis as codified by the international rules board were adopted to take effect immediately.

The Canadian championships for 1924 will be held at the Toronto Tennis club during July.

PADDOCK'S STATUS TO BE DETERMINED THIS WEEK

New York, Feb. 17.—Charles Paddock's amateur status will be determined this week after receipt of a formal statement from him by the special committee of the A. A. U. empowered to investigate the details of the controversy which has disturbed amateur athletic circles for some time.

The coast star is now preparing an elaborate statement, embodying all of the details of the whole affair and this is expected to be in the hands of the committee this week.

COLCHESTER BOY AWARDED LETTER AT WESLEYAN

Middletown, Conn., Feb. 17. — The following members of Wesleyan's cross country team were awarded their letters today: Captain Monroe W. Smith, of North Andover, Mass.; William L. Day, of Colchester, Conn.; Everton H. Parkinson, of Lawrence, Mass., and Norman Norton, of Mt. Herma, Mass. The announcement was made by Manager Frank K. Moll, of Pottsville, Pa.

SKATERS ENTERED FOR EVENTS AT LAKE PLACID THIS WEEK

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The international amateur speed skating championship schedule for February 19, 20 and 21, on Mirror Lake already have attracted 150 entrants, including the fastest skaters in the United States and Canada.

The skaters began arriving here today, registering at the Lake Placid club.

The senior events include the 220 yard, 440 yard, half mile, three-quarter mile, one mile and three mile races. Two finals will be run off each afternoon.

It is considered here as possible that the Maxwell "300 point" trophy may be won this year, although Charles Jewtraw, of Lake Placid, who has 270 points, has retired from skating for the year. The trophy is the gift of Henry L. Maxwell, of New York city, and is to be presented to the skater first winning 300 points in major events on Mirror Lake. In addition to Jewtraw, Joe Moore, New York, has 260; William Steinmetz, Chicago, has 180; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., 120, and Roy McWhorter, Chicago, 90 points.

The entries include: Paul Forsman, New York, metropolitan champion; Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B., new national champion; Joe Moore, Harry Kasky, Valentine Bialis and Richard Donovan, of the American Olympic team; Roy McWhorter, Chicago; Bobby Hearn and Leslie Boyd, New York, and Herman Perlberg, Cleveland.

ONLY SLIGHT CHANGE IN BASEBALL RULES SINCE 1900

Chicago, Feb. 17.—The decision of the major leagues this winter to continue using slightly marred baseballs is almost the only change adopted to speed up the game in the past twenty years, according to President Ban Johnson of the American league.

Since "Pongo Joe" Cantillon, in 1900, then an American league umpire, suggested the foul strike rule, and have ing the catcher up behind the batter, the average time limits of the major league games have remained almost unchanged, ranging from an hour and a half to an hour and forty-five minutes. Besides the saving in baseballs, President Johnson figures, the continued use of balls which have only trivial scratches, will make the pitcher's burden easier, and thus cut a few minutes off the time average.

In the late nineties, when the catcher caught the ball on the first bounce and there was no limit on fouls, the game average was nearly three hours, and when the American league was organizing, Johnson assembled his umpires for suggestions no speeding up the game from the spectators' viewpoint.

Cantillon's proposals to call the first two fouls as strikes, and have the catcher up behind the batter, were at once adopted, and the next year the National league followed suit.

Later Johnson himself adopted the plan of throwing out a new ball quickly when a fly or foul was knocked into the stands or other inaccessible places, saving further delays. The Nationals also adopted this plan. The first year of the foul strike rule with the catcher up close to home plate, Johnson said, the players took to the system so heartily that most games were finished in an hour and ten minutes.

The American league then was fighting the National for a foothold, and spectators at American league games could watch the finish and then hustle over to the Chicago National league park and see the last few innings there. But next year the National league park fell in line. Since then major league umpires have instructions not to rush the pitchers too much, as the magnates feel that results in a better game and a closer approach to the hour and 45 minutes average.

Bransfield Signs With Yanks.

East Hampton, Conn., Feb. 17.—Carl Kricheli, scout for New York Yankees today signed up Harold Bransfield, who, for the past two years played shortstop on the K. of C. Sunday team of the Middlesex County league. He has been batting above .400 for the past four years. It is understood that he will be farmed out to the Wilkesbarre team of the New York State league for seasoning.

Roberts Wins Canadian Title.

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 17.—Captain S. Robarts of England, today won the Canadian squash tennis championship by defeating W. C. McPherson, a countryman, 5-15, 18-16, 15-12, 15-10, in one of the fastest finals ever played in the dominion. McPherson, the youngest English entrant in the tournament, could not match Robarts' accuracy.

South Africa Entered.

New York, Feb. 17. — The ninth challenge in the 1924 Davis cup contest was announced today with the entry of South Africa into the lists of international tennis competition. It will be South Africa's fifth appearance in the contest.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Bowling has been officially recognized as a minor sport at Yale university.

The first match game of lacrosse ever played in America by women took place the other day in Los Angeles.

San Diego is to have an up-to-date athletic club, patterned after similar clubs in the largest Pacific coast cities.

Miss Ruth Ringer, a player on an Indiana high school basketball team, tossed in 46 goals from the floor in a recent game.

Carroll Ebright, formerly of the University of Washington, has assumed the duties of head coach of the University of California crew.

February 18 is the new date fixed for the 10-round bout at St. Paul between Dave Shade of California and Billy Wells, the English Junior middleweight.

An even dozen newcomers will be included in the squad of 32 players which Manager Killifer of the Chicago Cubs will take to California for spring training.

The University of Washington basketball team has made an excellent record this season, keeping out in front in both the Pacific Coast and Northwest conference races.

It is calculated that America alone is spending $1,000,000 in preparing for the Olympic games, while England has raised something like $200,000 by popular subscription. In addition France is spending 30,000,000 francs.

The 400-acre estate of the late William Rockefeller at Tarrytown, N. Y., with a house containing 175 rooms, is to be converted into a country club of national character.

A new Class D baseball league is in prospect for the coming season. The circuit will include Janesville, Oshkosh, Winona, Madison, and several other cities of Wisconsin and Minnesota.

One of the veterans of the national pastime is Heinie Heinemann, president of the New Orleans Southern league club. The coming season will mark the twenty-fifth year of his active connection with baseball.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A story of New York and Arizona, of western ranch life and eastern society is the Paramount picture, "The Call of the Canyon," a screen version of Zane Grey's latest novel, directed by Victor Fleming and featuring Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Estelle Taylor, which had a highly successful premier at the Broadway theatre last evening.

"The Call of the Canyon," has a double appeal for those who like society drama, ball room scenes and for those who enjoy virile western drama. There are many comedy touches throughout the course of the production, with impressive shots of the Arizona cattle country, its mountains and Canyons. The love interest is furnished by the featured players as Glenn Kilbourne, an eastern, ordered west for his health, a successful hog raiser, Carley Burch, in love with Glenn but too greatly attached to the mad society whirl of New York to sacrifice her empty pleasures for the clean wholesome life offered her as Kilbourne's wife, and Flo Hutter, daughter of a sheep rancher who gave Glenn his start in the west, the girl having nursed Kilbourne back to health when it seemed that only a miracle would pull him through. The climax, following a series of thrilling incidents, is a happy one for all concerned.

Then, too, there is the supporting cast—a hand-picked array of stellar players, it might without exaggeration be called. Noah Beery, Ricardo Cortez, Fred Huntley and Lillian Leighton are included among the more prominent players while others are Helen Dunbar, Leon Kellham, Edward Clayton and Dorothy Seastrom. The picture is fascinating from start to finish.

Real concert music by a capable orchestra helped put over this feature.

Short subjects included a comedy and kinograms.

Strand Theatre

The only theatre in Norwich playing vaudeville. This theatre has arranged a very attractive variety vaudeville and picture program for the first three days of the week starting today.

Josie Flynn's minstrels with seven people is a musical revue that is full of pep and ginger they are capable of giving a complete show, however variety is the spice of life, so their time is limited to make room for four other big time acts.

Novelle Brothers are called The Melodious Tumbling Clowns, they introduce the Famous Loring Nightingales. You'll like them.

Du Ball and McKenzie are making their first appearance in the two-a-day and this despite the fact that they have been working together for many years, but they have been in musical comedy for two seasons. Du Ball and McKenzie were the dancing features with Raymond Hitchcock in Hitchy Koo. Last season they were with Will Rogers in Ziegfeld Follies. The boys are eccentric singers and dancers. Their songs are written especially for them and their dances are a brand of their own. There is humor in everything they do. Du Ball and McKenzie are a pair of nifties and they are well named.

Don Alfonzo Zelaya, the Central American pianist, is one of the greatest vaudeville artists on the stage today.

His life reads like a romance. His father Zelaya, was once president of Nicaragua. A revolution in the country forced him to abdicate and come to the United States. His most astounding accomplishment is to play numbers by request. He will play any classical selection you ask for.

Munroe and Mae are in a class by themselves when it comes to singing and dancing. They are the kind that you will say are great.

The screen attraction is Reginald Denny in "Sporting Youth." is a comedy drama written by Byron Morgan, author of the famous "roaring road" stories published in the Saturday Evening Post, several of which were later filmed starring the late Wallace Reid. The action is centered around the adventures of a good looking chauffeur who is mistaken for a famous racing driver. The chap has a hard time trying to explain the mistake and is eventually "railroaded" into the big road race.

The picture is literally crammed with thrills. The big annual Labor Day road race at San Louis Obispo, California, was filmed in connection with the making of the picture and several natural accidents added to the spectacular action of the race staged by the Denny company.

Norwich Minstrel Follies closed Successful Engagement.

A very successful week was enjoyed by the Broadway theatre with the Norwich Minstrel Follies. A capacity house greeted the prize winners Saturday night. Miss Helen Brown and Raymond Heebner were the recipients of a diamond ring each. The others in the cast also received various presents. The votes were as follows at the close: Helen Brown 12230, Julia Ulrich 11175, Anna Stockdale 9065, Cecelia Larivere 4540, Louise Greenwood 3475, Elizabeth Risley 3230, Anna Ulrich 2960, Adeline Stevens 2900, Josephine Petroski 2840, Stella Rinkie 2735, Nellie Petroskie 2735, Stella Petroskie 2285, Sophie Morsky 2245, Stella Gordén 2240, Irene Stockdale 2230, Dorothy Thayer 2070, Julia Kozlowski 1940, Mary Komza 1740, Rose Raikowski 1510, Anna Robarge 1315, Raymond Heebner 4255, Albert Nelson 3995, Herman Houston 2595, Ray La Rochelle 2247, Edward La Frenier 2595, Bennie Butts 2196, Dennis Ward 1842, John Benoit 1780, Alfred Hyatt 1720, Jos. Helen of Troy, N. Y.

Helen of Troy, N. Y., the rollicking musical comedy, with book by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, and presented by Wilmer and Vincent, in association with George Jessel, will be the attraction at the Broadway theatre, Wednesday night, March 5, after its long run in New York. There is a 14 1-2 plot in which the heroine develops a semi-soft collar that even in these times is supposed to be a novelty. The point is that a villain as efficiency expert in the Troy factory tries to steal the collar only to get it in the neck. Bright lines make the piece amazing and the music and lyrics by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby are highly satisfying. It is said to be the fastest dancing show seen in years. The producers have provided an excellent cast, elaborate production lavishly costumed, augmented orchestra and a chorus of the prettiest girls of the season, trained to the minute.

PALACE THEATRE

The Chicago Stock Company arrived in Norwich yesterday from Poughkeepsie where it is reported they played to record breaking crowdes all last week. Promptly at seven o'clock this morning the local transfer company will proceed to transfer from the big seventy foot baggage cars to the stage of the Palace theatre the scenery and effects and all will be in readiness for the opening production this afternoon. Smilin' Through the opening attraction is the most stupendous scenic production ever presented in stock—the wonder play Smilin' Through, in which Jane Cowl starred 2 solid years and which Norman Talmadge scored the greatest hit of her brilliant career in the movie world. Miss Jean White the leading lady will be seen in the dual role as Moonyeen, girl of yesterday, and as Kathleen, girl of today. In romance and tragedy, in drama, in sweetest love, she comes "Smilin' Through," the gates of gladness. It was pronounced by the New York critics as three great acts of storm and sunshine.

Tuesday afternoon and evening the players will be seen in the speedy automobile comedy Six Cylinder Love which was written by William Anthony McGuire the author of Eddie Cantor's present stage hit Kid Boots. Wednesday afternoon and evening the attraction will be Nice People in which Francine Larrimore won stellar honors. Her Temporary Husband is announced for Thursday afternoon and evening and on Friday (Washington's Birthday) the gale of laughter Getting Gertie's Garter is to be produced. Two great plays are announced for the closing day Saturday, the matinee attraction being The White Sister and the evening attraction the American sweetheart play The Love Test.

Seats are now on sale for all week. And we earnestly urge all who intend seeing these wonder productions to secure their seats as far in advance as possible, as the advance sale of seats are reported to be heavy.

BREED THEATRE

Here at last is a picture that opens up a fabulous world of romance and glamour—Under the Red Robe, shown at the Breed theatre last night for the first time in Norwich. It renews the rich promise of When Knighthood Was in Flower and a gain shows how much better these things are on the screen than on the stage.

The action centers around Cardinal Richelieu, but is developed in a wealth of incident and detail that would tagger the luxurious imagination of Bulwer-Lytton. Even Robert Mantell fails under this magic and gives to the screen a deeper and more human Richelieu than he ever gave to the stage. It takes a tremendous degree of power to dominate the vast scenes as he does, where thousands of men and women in gorgeous raiment are gathered together. But it takes even greater power to show the great tragedy and loneliness of the Cardinal, stripped of his power and wandering forlornly through the empty halls of his great palace. Mr. Mantell is to be congratulated on holding high the banners of his art and not letting them be trampled down by the sheer magnificence of the spectacle.

All the joyous beauty of spring and summer are in the scintillant leaves and glowing flowers that are the background of action. Even the sunshine takes on a dramatic quality in the handling of these outdoor scenes. All this is but a sort of accompaniment to the love of Gil de Berault and Renee de Cocheforet. John Charles Thomas as Gil de Berault satisfied the most exacting demands for the ideal hero and lover. Alma Rubens, as Renee, has fine opportunities to exercise her undoubted gift for emotional acting. Sydney Herbert, William H. Powell, Ian MacLaren, Rose Coghlan, Otto Kruger and Gustav von Seyffertitz do some splendid acting.

Jewels, velvets and satins, chateaux, palaces and hovels, love plotting and victories create an illusion of other times and satisfy the incurable craving for romance that every theatre-goer has. It is a picture that can become a classic, because it fills a real human need—the need for glamour.

Under the Red Robe will be shown twice daily at

WEATHER

Conditions

Pressure was relatively low Sunday night from the upper Ohio valley southwestward and it was high over all other regions. This pressure distribution has been attended by precipitation within the last 24 hours over the greater portion of the country except New England and in southern sections west of the Rocky Mountains. The temperature was somewhat higher Sunday along the Atlantic coast.

There will be much cloudiness over the states east of the Mississippi river during the next two days and snow or sleet is probable in New England and New York; snow sleet or rain in the middle Atlantic states; snow in the extreme upper Ohio valley and rain in the southern Atlantic states.

The temperature will be lower in the Ohio valley and the east Gulf states Monday and in the north Atlantic states and along the south Atlantic coast Monday night or Tuesday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh northeast and east and weather overcast and thick with rain, sleet or snow Monday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh shifting and weather overcast thick with rain Monday.

Forecast

For southern New England: snow or sleet Monday; Tuesday fair and somewhat colder.

TAFTVILLE

The funeral of Mrs. Leonide Brunelle was held Saturday morning from the home of Mrs. Samuel Guilbeault of Norwich. Requiem high mass was sung at Sacred Heart church by Rev. Henry F. Chagnon. The Bearers were Joseph Pregeau, S. Cardinal, Raoul Leroux, Harry Gancher. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the old Canterbury Turnpike. Mrs. Brunelle had been a resident of Taftville for 49 years.

Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral.

Miss Dorothy Wood has returned to the State Normal school, Willimantic, after spending the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family.

Miss Nyra A. Yerrington entertained the kindergarten pupils of the Taftville Congregational church school Saturday afternoon at her home on South second avenue. She was assisted by Miss Sadie Newton and Miss Matilde Stapfer.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead and William H. Whitehead motored to Westerly R. I., Sunday where they were the guests of Thomas Whitehead.

The Norwich Fire department responded to a call Saturday morning for a chimney fire at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Boucher near the city line. Several gallons of chemical were required to extinguish the blaze. No damage was done.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Charles M. Burbeck of 21 Bliss Place delightfully entertained a company of children Saturday afternoon, in observance of the seventh birthday of her little daughter Evelyn Burbeck, who had as her guests, Phyllis Hinrichs, Beatrice Smith, Pauline Jones, Margaret Mack, Elmire Bullard, Mary Prumier, Olive and May Beebe, Daniel Mack and Robert Tengren. The children were provided with fancy paper caps.

Dancing to the music of a victrola and games comprised the entertainment for the afternoon. In the spider-web games, Pauline Jones and Evelyn Burbeck were the prize winners. For pinning the cabbage leaf nearest the rabbits mouth, Beatrice Smith and Elmire Bullard were awarded the prize in the Peter Rabbit game, while Daniel Mack won the prize in the balloon party.

Valentines were favors.

Mrs. Burbeck served sandwiches, hot chocolate, cake and ice cream, the special feature being the birthday cake.

Little Miss Burbeck received a number of pretty gifts from her friends.

Friday evening a Valentine birthday party was held at the home of Mrs. L. C. Mountcastle 342 Washington street in honor of Master Charles Franklyn Mountcastle's thirteenth birthday. Many beautiful presents were received. Dancing and games were enjoyed by all. Lunch was served in a prettily decorated dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Kimball were the donors of the studio used for the entertainment. Miss Hazel Kelley, Miss Isabelle Petroni, Mrs. Gladys Burns and Miss Vera Watters helped serve and entertain. A Jack Horner pie was a feature of the evening.

The guests included:

REPLEVIN SUIT TO RECOVER $30,000 WORTH OF WOOLEN YARN

Alleging that certain financial statements of its condition which were furnished by the Mystic Manufacturing Co., which operates a woolen mill in Mystic, were "false and untrue as to important and material portions thereof", the Chautauqua Worsted Mills, Jamestown, N. Y., has brought a replevin suit against the Mystic company to recover $30,000 worth of woolen yarn.

Papers in the suit have been filed with the clerk of the superior court in which it is alleged that the Chautauqua company was induced to ship the yarn to Mystic between Dec. 1, 1923 and the present time because of the financial statements referred to but because of such alleged false and fraudulent statements the plaintiff has rescinded the agreement of sale and purchase and demands restoration of the merchandise.

Commission on Mill Sale

Bragden, Lord and Nagle Co., Inc., a New York firm, has brought suit in the superior court against Michael H. Donahoe of Baltic for a commission on the sale of the Shetucket Worsted Mills at Baltic for Mr. Donahoe.

The plaintiffs claim that on Sept. 1, 1923 they were employed by him to sell the worsted mills and that they did obtain a purchaser. The commission of 5 per cent. on the purchase price would be $8,750, it is claimed, indicating that the mill was sold for $175,000.

On Dec. 4, 1923, Mr. Donahoe paid the plaintiffs $3,475, leaving due $4,375 on the amount they claim and they bring suit for $6,000 damages to collect their claim. A tract of real estate on Beaver brook in the town of Sprague has been attached.

DECLARES DIVINE PURPOSE GLORIFIES THE COMMONPLACE

To the seeker after God, said Rev. A. N. Foster in a sermon Sunday morning at the Universalist church, the commonplace things of life are found to be glorified by a divine purpose and the daily life has a halo cast around it by the light of a pious faith.

He spoke upon the theme expressed in two questions—In a world ruled by law, where shall we find God? Is there any religion left? The next was Job 23:3, O that I knew where I might find Him; that I might come even to His seat. In part Rev. Mr. Foster's sermon was as follows:

Once men thought that God's dwelling place was in the Garden of Eden. Later it was on a particular mountain and later still it was in the space beyond the clouds of the sky.

Other men have sought God in the extraordinary and miraculous events of life. The undevout astronomer of modern times swept the sky with his telescope and declared not without a touch of cynical triumph, there was no place found for God to dwell. The materialists' research is not always as thorough as he believes it to be. Astronomy surveyed the skies exhaustively 50 years ago and yet perceived not the latest uses of electricity and wireless and radio.

However, religion is not to be located in space relations nor the place of God discovered telescope or spectroscope.

The prophet Elijah found the Lord, not in the fire nor in the earthquake but rather in the still small voice. Not in the mountain nor yet at Jerusalem but rather in the man before her did the Samaritan woman find God. "Nearer in Her than breathing and closer than hands and feet."

If the dwelling place of God cannot be located on the mountain, nor beyond the clouds nor in the extraordinary, what religion is left to us? We must turn from search of the remote and the involved and the mysterious to appreciation of the near and the simple and the obvious. The fundamental moral law remains and it commands a threefold expression. The law of prison morality which threatens our transgressions with certain penalties. The law of commercial enterprise which adheres to honesty only because it is the best policy. The law of social ostracism which draws the line against meanness and trickery. Most significent of all in the law of personal consciousness which commands us regardless of hope of reward or fear of punishment.

From the rule of conscious there develop the laws of kindness and of forgiveness and of sacrifice. Thus is the commonplace glorified by a Divine purpose and then is daily lifthaloed by the light of a pious faith.

R. F. D. MAIL BOXES MAKE TRAFFIC HAZARD

Following a letter from the Connecticut motor vehicle department to the federal post office department pointing out the increasing danger of rural letter carriers crossing and recrossing busy highways to stop at letter boxes placed on either side of the highways, to motor vehicle department has received a copy of a notice issued by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General H. H. Billany suggesting that the "boxes shall be placed on the right-hand side of the road in the direction of the travel of the carrier."

"The post office department has no jurisdiction over mail boxes furnished and maintained by patrons of rural routes," the notice points out. "It requires that such boxes shall be so located as to be easily and safely accessible to the carriers at all times and without leaving their conveyances," the statement continues. "It is suggested that for the protection and safety of the lives of the carriers and when the convenience of the traveling public is not disturbed or exposed to peril, the boxes shall be placed on the right-hand side of the road in the direction of the travel of the carrier."

"It is our desire to co-operate as far as possible with the local authorities in observing state or local traffic ordinances and to inconvenience patrons to the least possible extent in so doing," says the notice. "In cases where special effort is made for the improvement of the appearance of the entire right of way or where for any reason it is necessary or desirable that explicit instructions be given as to the proper location of boxes, road officials may properly suggest to patrons the appropriate places for boxes after consulting with postmasters and rural carriers as to the suitability of the places determined upon.

"It is thought that there is no warrant for the arbitrary removal of boxes from the roadside unless they are a menace to traffic at least until patrons have had an opportunity to conform with the requirements or to state their reasons for declining to do so. Should boxes be taken down temporarily by road officials or others in connection with road improvements or repairs, care must be exercised that neither boxes nor their contents are damaged."

Rural letter carriers have figured in several accidents reported to the motor vehicle department and, as the department has received many reports of accidents narrowly averted when carriers' vehicles have abruptly turned to the left to stop at letter boxes on that side of the road, the department is of the opinion that the attitude of the post office department on the subject is an important step in the safety movement in Connecticut.

MEREDITH SAYS SCHOOL TIME NOT UP TO HIM

Power to regulate the hours of opening and closing schools lies entirely with local school authorities and not with the states board of education, Dr. A. R. Meredith, commission of education, says in a letter to the secretary of the Fairfield County Pomona Grange. This letter is in reply to a strong plea received from the grange that the commissioner "help to keep the public schools of Connecticut to a schedule of standard time and standard hours."

During the past month Dr. Meredith has received several letters and resolutions from local and county granges throughout the state requesting him to prohibit public schools from opening on daylight saving time. His reply to the Fairfield county organization explains the powers of the board in the controversy. The letter follows:

"This will acknowlege the receipt of an open letter from the Fairfield County Pomona Grange addressed to the undersigned and adopted at Stratford, Connecticut on January 28, 1924, referring to standard and daylight time, so-called, in its relation to the public schools of Connecticut.

"After a careful examination of the Status I am unable to find any reference or any authority that is given to the State Board of Education to regulate the hours of opening or closing schools. So far as I am able to determine this is a matter which is left wholly in the hands of local school authorities.

"In some communities I am told that while the clocks are kept at legal time pupils assemble one hour earlier in other words, they go to school at eight o'clock standard time instead of nine o'clock standard time during the opening and closing months of the school year.

"It may be of passing interest to you to know that of course the clocks of this office and my watch are kept on standard time the year around.

"With full appreciation of the point of view expressed in your letter and of the attendant difficulties, I am

Respectfully,

A. B. Meredith,
Commissioner of Education."

In their communications to the state commissioner granges have duplicated each other to a surprising extent. Letters from both the Fairfield county and the New London county organizations contain the following declaration:

"For two years there have been two time schedules in Connecticut. One is standard time, or legal time. The other is called daylight saving time, or illegal time.

"Every child of understanding age well knows the law violation perpetrated upon and through him by school officials reprehensibly careless of their own patriotism in setting up the illegal time schedule. Children thus robbed of inherent innocence, from being thus compelled to think lightly of observance of law, suffer moral degeneration. Children robbed of sleep suffer physical degeneration.

"We ask your help to keep the public schools of Connecticut to a schedule of standard time and standard hours.

"Both the Norwich and Middletown granges have adopted resolutions which appeal to Dr. Meredith, "to use his best endeavor to see to it that the grammar schools of the state of Connecticut shall henceforth begin morning sessions at the long customary hour of 9 o'clock standard time."

Whiting-Cook Marriage

Cards have been received in town announcing the marriage of Henry M. Whiting, formerly of Merrow, Conn., and Worcester, and Mrs. Daisy Elizabeth Howard Cook on Teuesday February 12 at Cavendish, Vt.

Appeal For Trained Veterans

Col. Edward Olmsted, acting district manager of the United States Vererans Bureau for the second District, comprising the state of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, has issued an appeal to the employes of the district to take care of the 153 veterans who will have finished their training during the month of February. These men include Junior accountants, office managers, advertising writers, show card writers, commercial artists, x-ray technicians, auto mechanics, auto painters, battery repairmen, mechanical optics, shoemakers, bookkeepers, clerk-foreign trade, salesmen, sign painters, photographers, mechanical dentists, auto ignition specialists, vulcanizers, machinist hands, civil engineers and shoe repairmen.

MOVE TO SET ASIDE VERDICT AGAINST VIOLA

A motion to set aside the verdict has been filed with the clerk of the superior court in the case of Giuseppe Viola of New London against Mrs. Concetta Poretta, also of that city, in which a jury in the superior court Wednesday rendered a verdict for the defendant. The motion which has been filed by Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, counsel for Viola, is based upon the grounds that the verdict was against the law and the evidence.

Viola brought the suit to recover $10,000 for false arrest following accusations made by Mrs. Poretta that he owned and operated a still in a house at 43 Belden street. The case against Viola was nolled in the city court and he claimed that his reputation had been damaged as the result of his arrest.

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Feb. 16.—Stock prices made impressive recovery from yesterday's extreme weakness in today's brief session of the stock market. Sales exceeded 700,000 shares, making it one of the busiest half-holiday sessions in months.

Strong financial interests, who permitted yesterday's reaction to run its course, were reported to have placed substantial supporting orders into the maryet over-night with the result that he general list headed upward from the start. Shorts, who had sold stocks freely yesterday, hastened to cover, giving impetus to the advance, which ran from 1 to nearly 6 points in active issues.

Constructive trade trade news, which had been disregarded Friday, was given more attention. Copper shares made a quick response to another increase in the price of the red metal and steels reflectd th reports of increased bookings and expanding mill activity. Announcement that that the senate oil lease investigation committee had taken a recess for 10 days was reported to have attracted timid traders back to the market.

United States Steel common closed 1 3-8 higher a 104 7-8, after having touched 105. Baldwin snapped back 2 1-2 points to 123 and American Can registered a similar gain, closing at 115 1-8. Studebaker claimed from par to 101 5-8. Lorillard Tobacco climber nearly 6 points on the explanation of President T. J. Maloney that the falling off in earning in 1923 was the result of certain constructive plans made for the benefit of the stockholders, but not yet ready yet ready to be disclosed.

Oil and sugars gave good exhibitions of group strength, net gain of 2 or more points being recorded by American Beet Sugar, Cuba Cane preferred, Punta Alegre Sugar, Pacific Oil and Houston. Other strong spots in the industrial and specialty lists included General Electric, Corn Products, National Lead, May Department Stores and Chandler Motor, all up 3 points or more.

Rails, which offered more resistance to pressure yesterday, made more moderate gains although several issues, notably New York Central, Southern, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Louis Southwestern, Seaboard Air Line preferred and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico showed net gains of a point or more.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary on heavy selling of all European bills, apparently based on the British dock workers strike. Demand sterling dropped a cent to $4.28 8-4, and Franch francs broke 6 points to 4.36 1-2 cents, or less than 10 points above thir extreme low record. Other rates yielded in sympathy.

The weekly clearing house statement showed increases in most principal items. Loans, discounts and investments advanced $3,466,000; reserve of member banks in Federal Reserve bank gained $1,485,000 and reserve in depositors increased $245,000, net demand depositors dropped $2,192,000 and time deposits, $372,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $557,350,000, leaving excess reserve of $43,685,750, an increase of $1,804,140 over last week.

FAMOUS READING ANTHRACITE

ALL SIZES

Part of our SERVICE is to save you money on your fuel bill. To do this we urge your consideration of PEA and BUCKWHEAT sizes of anthracite for household heating.

These sizes are much less in price than the larger sizes and contain as great heating value when properly fired.

Equipment is being manufactured and marketed and is in service that satisfactorily enables these sizes of coal to be effectively used in household heating.

Consult your heating expert for appliances to burn these sizes or we will gladly give you the information if you will call our office.

Checks "Are In" This Season

New Dress Goods In Interesting Color Combinations

For the one-piece frocks, so effective and so simple to make, the new check wool and wool and cotton weaves are in great demand.

There are several combinations of color which are particularly pleasing, and for sports wear, for business or for general wear there is nothing which has quite the air of smartness that these possess.

The weaves are Serges, Flannels and Velours, and most of them are 54 inches wide, requiring from 2¼ to 3½ yards of material for a dress.

The styles are so simple this season that the woman who can sew a little, with the aid of a Butterick Deltor pattern, can make a stylish dress in a few hours.

POETRY

The Abiding

The law that rounds the star
From flaming golden mass
Forms in a crystal sphere
The dew upon the grass.

His thought that reaches down
From star to evening dew
Binds all in links of love
Unchanging, strong and true.

No tumult of the day,
No anger of an hour,
Can change the law that has
Eternity for dower.

And be it soon or late,
By ways of sword or flame,
All earth must kneel before
The beauty of His name.

Though ages come and go
And all man's dreams thereof,
His law that is supreme
Shall bind all men in love!
—Arthur W. Peach in British Weekly

Verse for a Certain Dog

Such glorious faith as fills your limpid eyes,
Dear little friend of mine, I never knew,
All-innocent are you, and yet all-wise.
(For heaven's sake, stop worrying that shoe!)
You look about, and all you see is fair,
This mighty globe was made for you alone.
Of all the thunderous ages, you're the heir,
(Get off the pillow with that dirty bone!)

A skeptic world you face with steady gaze;
High in young pride you hold your noble head;
Gayly meet the rush of roaring days.
(Must you eat puppy biscuit on the bed)
Lancelike your courage, gleaming swift and strong.
Yours the white rapture of a wing-ed soul,
Yours is a spirit like a May-day song.
(God help you, if you break the gold-fish bowl!)

'Whatever is, is good," your gracious creed.
You wear your joy of living like a crown.
Love light your simplest act, your every deed.
(Drop it, I tell you—put that kitten down!)
You are God's kindliest gift of all—a friend.
Your shining 'loyalty unflecked by doubt.
You ask but leave to follow to the end
(Now I suppose I've got to take you out!)

PRESIDENT ACCEPTS THE VOLUNTARY RESIGNATION OF SEC'Y OF NAVY DENBY

In Accepting the Resignation President Coolidge Expressed Regret and Assured Mr. Denby That "You Will Go With the Knowledge That Your Honesty and Integrity Have Not Been Impugned" — Denby to Retire Rather Than Increase Embarrassment of the Administration—Able to Fight His Own Battles, But "Cannot Fight Slander Protected by Senatorial Immunity."

Washington, Feb. 18.—The resignation of Edwin Denby as secretary of the navy to b effective March 10 was received and accepted by President Coolidge today.

Tendered voluntarily by the secretary for fear his remaining might increase the embarrassments" of the president and as an outgrowth of the senate inquiry into the lasing of naval oil lands, the resignation marks the first break in the cabinet which Mr. Coolidge took over intact upon the death of President Harding.

Expressing regret in accepting th resignation President Coolidge declared in a letter to the naval secretary that "you will go with the knowledge that your honesty and integrity have not been impugned."

Mr. Denby on the other hand informed the chif executiv that "it will always be a gratifying thought to me that neither you nor any one else at any time advised me to resign."

Although the action of the naval secretary at once started a flood of rumors concerning the probability of other resignations, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt whose name has been linked with that of Mr. Denby in the oil casing cases declared that he had not resigned.

Denby's Letter of Resignation

Secretary Denby's letter of resignation dated February 17, is as follows:

"My dear Mr. President: Heretofore have verbally expressed to you my deep appreciation of your strong message in regard to the Robinson resolution.

"No one appreciates better than I how difficult your situation has become.

"I fear that my continuance in the cabinet would increase your embarrassments. Therefore I have the honor to tender to you my resignation as secretary of the navy.

"As there are a few pending matters which should receive my personal attention, I suggest that my resignation be accepted as of the date of March 10, 1924.

"It will always be gratifying thought to me that neither you nor anyone else has at any time advised me to resign.

"I assure you again of my appreciation of the many courtesies you have shown me and of your last great act in refusing to accede to the demand of the senate that you ask my resignation.

"With cordial regards to you and Mrs. Coolidge, and best wishes always, I am "Very sincerely yours,

"EDWIN DENBY."

At the time he made public the correspondence, Secretary Denby also issued a statement saying:

"I challenge investigation before an unprejudiced tribunal. My actions to safeguard the interests of the government and the navy were undertaken openly and in good faith and were based upon the best obtainable information.

"It has not been proven, nor do I believe it can be proven that my action was not beneficial both to the government and to the navy."

The statement said further that his reasons for resigning were set forth fully at his letter to President Coolidge.

"My resignation is to take effect March 10th which gives plenty of time for impeachment proceedings to be begun," he said. "Therefore, anyone who says that I am resigning for fear of impeachment, simply lies."

Attention was called to the fact that he explained the first lease made on the naval oil reserves to a senate committee on May 4, 1922, "within a month after the signing of the first lease. The statement then quoted at length some of the questions and answers recorded in the hearing of a sub-committee of the senate appropriations committee in the course of inquiry as to the naval estimates for the fiscal year 1923.

These quotations related to drainage of Teapot Dome.

The secretary then went on to say he had met "gladly and fearlessly."

the "disaster" that had over come naval reserve plans, the secretary said was that a "serious charge of corruption has been laid against them, which charge lies entirely outside the navy department or any of its officials."

Mr. Denby pointed out also that as a private citizen he would still be subject to legal action "if I have committed any offense against the law."

"I am able to fight my own battles," he concluded, "but I cannot fight slander protected by senatorial immunity."

President's Letter of Acceptance

Following is the text of President Coolidge's letter dated today:

"My dear Mr. Secretary: Your resignation has been received. I am conscious that you have tendered it from a sense of public duty.

"It is with regret that I am to part with you. You will go with the knowledge that your honesty and integrity have not been impugned. I treasure and reciprocate your expressions of friendship. I shall remember the fine sense of loyalty which you have always exhibited towards me. With much satisfaction and always wish you and yours contentment and success.

"Very truly yours,

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

As to the question of a successor to Mr. Denby it was stated authoritatively that this had received little consideration by the president. So far as known there is no plan in administration circles to promote Mr. Roosevelt to the post. The names of Senator H. Warren, of Detroit, who has been tentatively accepted at the president's request appointment as ambassador to Mexico, and of former Representative Patrick H. Kelley, also of Michigan, former chairman of the naval sub-committee of the house appropriations committee, are prominently mentioned for the post. There has been nothing to indicate, however, that these are the only names before Mr. Coolidge and his advisers.

In a statement made public late today Secretary Denby discussed his resignation and pointed out that the deferred date of his retirement left plenty of time for any impeachment proceedings against him.

"Therefore," he added, "anyone who says that I am resigning for fear of impeachment simply lies."

Referring to the president's recent action in rejecting publicly the advice contained in a senate resolution requesting him to call immediately for Mr. Denby's resignation, the naval secretary said in the statement:

"The president has stood up manfully for right and justice. The sportsmanlike thing for me to do is to relieve him of the further embarrassment of continued political maneuvers and partisan political trickery."

He challenged an investigation of his acts in connection with the leasing of naval oil reserve lands "before any unprejudiced tribunal" and declared his conviction that it could not be proven "that my action was not beneficial both to the government and the navy."

Secretary Denby appeared as usual at his office this morning. Today was his fifty-fourth birthday anniversary and a huge cluster of pink roses had been placed upon his desk in honor of that occasion. Mr. Denby impressed those who conferred with him as being in unusually high spirits. He appeared happy and received birthday congratulations with every evidence of cheerfulness.

HINTS OF A NEW AND STARTLING DEVELOPMENT

Washington, Feb. 18.—Hints of an entirely new and startling development in the oil scandal stirred the capitol today and were communicated to President Coolidge.

A start at running down the story which has amazed senators and officials will be made tomorrow at a conference between the senate oil committee and Harry Payne Whitney, New York financier, and officials of J. P. Benkard and company, a New York stock brokerage firm.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who has introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of Attorney General Daugherty and the department of justice, will be invited to attend the conference, which will be behind closed doors. Senator Wheeler was one of those who requested that Mr. Whitney and the brokers be summoned.

Before the subpoenas were issued last night, Senator Wheeler and Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, chief prosecutor in the oil inquiry, conferred with Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, who has just returned from Palm Beach, Fla., in response to a committee summons. It was stated that some of the new information reaching the committee was discussed.

After this conference Chairman Lenroot of the oil committee, met with Senators Walsh and Wheeler to discuss the new turn of events and later Atlee Pomerene, a special government counsel in the oil cases, was called in. It was agreed that the matter should be laid before the president and Chairman Lenroot and Mr. Pomerene went to the White House for that purpose.

Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, whose nomination as an associate with Mr. Pomerene in the oil cases was confirmed today by the senate, 58 to 6, is expected to confer with the president tomorrow and then will begin a full study of the whole situation with Mr. Pomerene.

The first step in the long court battle for recovery of the oil reserves which Albert B. Fall leased to the Doheny and Sinclair interests will be petitions for temporary injunctions to prohibit further extraction of oil from the reserves, located in California and Wyoming.

ROOSEVELT NOT TO RESIGN AS ASSISTANT SECRETARY

Washington, Feb. 18.—Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, announced after half an hour's conference with President Coolidge today that he would not resign as the result of the retirement of Secretary Denby.

"I have just been to see the president and I am not resigning," Mr. Roosevelt said.

TAX BILL IN AMENDMENT STAGE IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 18.—House consideration of the tax bill reached the amendments stage today with insurgents and organization republicans still split over income tax rates and democrats confident they have the votes to put over their substitute schedule.

Under an agreement reached when the measure was taken up last week, general debate ended at 4 p. m. Reading of the bill under a rule which permits the offering of amendments with discussion limited then was begun.

By a vote of 140 to 67 the house rejected the first amendment offered—by Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, a republican insurgent—which would have authorized the federal government to tax state and municipal securities.

The income tax section will be considered tomorrow.

NINE PERSONS PERISHED IN FIRE IN NEW YORK

Moro Followers Surrender

Manila, Feb. 18—(By the A. P.)—Datu Dia, and twelve other Moro followers of Datu Santiago, whose band murdered three teachers and seven constabulary soldiers in Lanao province last October, have surrendered to Philippine scouts, according to a message received today at constabulary headquarters here. Datu Santiago still is in hiding in the mountains.

SUDDEN DEATH OF BISHOP A. C. GARRETT

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 18.—The Right Rev. Alexander C. Garrett, 91, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in America and bishop of the Dallas diocese, died suddenly tonight in his cottage at St. Mary's college here.

After building 54 churches and serving as minister, priest and bishop of the church for 67 years, Rt. Rev. Alexander C. Garrett became the presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in America in April, 1923, upon the death of the then presiding bishop, Daniel Sylvester Tuttle.

Bishop Garrett was at that time almost 91 years of age and totally blind. He joked about his infirmity by saying: "Being totally blind, I cannot see my friends. I have to refuse to see them." He admitted then that he was the oldest living bishop in America, but questioned the assertion that he was the senior bishop in the world.

Bishop Garrett was born on Nov. 4, 1832, in Lucan, County Sligo, Ireland, where his great-grandfather, his grandfather and his father, over a period of 150 years, had successively presided over Ballymore parish there. A brother, the Rev. John Garrett, rector of Moss Side church, Manchester, England, died in the pulpit while preaching his farewell sermon. Three other brothers studied for the church, two of them dying in the service and one being accidentally killed at the finish of his ecclesiastical studies.

Bishop Garrett was the youngest of 15 children, and at the time he became presiding bishop in 1923 was the only one living.

After being educated at Lucan he earned money by teaching and paid his way through college, completing his studies at Trinity college, University of Dublin. In 1856 he was made a deacon, and in 1857 a priest. He spent two years in EEngland and then sailed for Canada in 1859 as a missionary. For nine years thereafter he traveled throughout the northwest, and in 1870 was appointed rector of St. James' church in San Francisco, remaining until 1873. He then went to Trinity Cathedral at Omaha. In 1874 he was elected missionary bishop for northern Texas.

Among the 54 churches Bishop Garrett built during his lifetime are the St. Matthew's cathedral, The Church of the Incarnation and the First Episcopal church of Oak Cliff, all at Dallas.

He also built the St. Mary's college for girls and St. Matthew's Home for Children at Dallas, and the All Saints hospital at Fort Worth.

Among the theological writings of Bishop Garrett are the Book on Sermons, The EEternal Sacrifice, the Philosophy of the Incarnation and Historical Continuity.

He was a thirty-third degree Scottish Rite Mason, and a charter member of Dallas Lodge, No. 760, A. F. and A. M.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Edwin Denby resigned as secretary of the navy and his resignation was accepted; Assistant Secretary Roosevelt said he would not resign.

Owen J. Roberts was confirmed by the senate as special oil counsel.

The question of Attorney General Daugherty's possible retirement was again brought forward.

Attorney General Daugherty submitted to the senate details of war fraud activities of the department of justice.

General debate was completed in the house on the tax bill without a compromise being effected between the republican organization and the insurgent members of the party.

American war debt policy remained unchanged after a meeting of the debt funding commission.

The Supreme Court denied a motion of the First National Bank of St. Louis to reopen the branch bank case.

The Supreme Court held that railroads could not compel the interstate commerce commission to furnish revaluation date in advance of formal hearings.

Secretary Hughes wrote Representative Fish, republican, of New York, that he did not believe it was feasible at the present time to call an international conference to consider further limitation of naval and land armaments.

Secretary Mellon and Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian, exchanged statements regarding reported charges of juggling of treasury figures against the bonus.

The battleships Arkansas, Wyoming, Florida and Utah were ordered to remain off Culebra until the condition of their boilers could be determined.

MILLER AND MELLON IN CONTROVERSY OVER BONDS

Washington, Feb. 18.—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian, both heading departments of the republican administration, clashed today in a battle over the bonus that was overshadowed only by the fast-flying reports of changes in President Coolidges cabinet.

At loggerheads with Mr. Mellon over the question of compensation, Mr. Miller started the argument last night, and when a truce was called tonight, the air had been filled with statement; President Coolidge had received from both parties to the controversy outlines of their cases, Representative Rainey, democrats, Illinois, had brought it up in the house and Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, had formally demanded a congressional investigation.

Declares That Provision For 20 Per Cent. Increase in Taxation Must Be Voted Upon Immediately.

Paris, Feb. 18—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare informed the chamber of deputies clearly and unmistakeably this afternoon that he would brook no further delay in consideration of the government's measure providing for a twenty per cent. increase in taxation, which the obstructionists in the chamber confnued today to retard by various means.

The premier delivered an ultimatum to the deputies, declaring that article III of his taxation program, providing for the imposition of this tax, must be voted upon by the chamber tonight.

"While you deliberate sterling has crossed one hundred francs on exchange," M. Bokanowski, general secretary of the budget committee, told the chambe rat the end of the long drawn-out session by systematic obstruction on the part of the communists.

Then the premier announced to the chamber, "article III of our fiscal measures must be voted tonight. This chamber will not adjourn until the bill has been passed."

The chamber previously had heard eight counuuist orators introducing as many amendments all bearing on the confiscation of capital in some form and all of which were defeated by a strict party vote.

Then by a show of hands it was decided o thold a night sitting, the majority deputies, though overwrought and wearied from the exhaustive work of the past four weeks deciding that the bill must be passed or defeated if it took until morning.

The afternoon session saw extreme mech when Alphonse Daudet, leader of the royalist party of the extreme right, seconded and took the speaker's stand in behalf of an amendment introduced by Marcel Cachin, leader of the communist party, calling for special legislation providing for the confiscation of the property of banks convicted of speculating in exchange.

CASES SUPREME COURT DECLINES TO CONSIDER

Washington, Feb. 18—The supreme court refused today to consider cases in which it was sought to raise the following questions:

Whether the commonwealth of Australia can be compelled to pay an award found against it in the federal courts in this country involved in a case brought by the trustee in bankruptcy of the Patterson-Macdonalds Shipbuilding company of Washington.

Whether federal courts can commit for contempt bankrupts who refuse to obey orders to turn over to trustees in bankruptcy their books and records as raised by Adolph Palais, now in the custody of the United States marshal for the eastern district of New York.

Whether dried grapes are not raisins, presented in a case brought by the bank of Italy against the Merchants' National bank of Dunkirk, N. Y., in a case involving the drafting of bills of lading.

Whether conviction for violation of the National prohibition laws based upon evidence obtained in Snohomish county, Washington, upon a search warrant issued by an official of the adjoining county of king is valid as raised by George Robinson, who was convicted in a federal district court for western Washington.

HANGED HIMSELF AFTER HELPING LANDLADY MOVE

New York, Feb. 18.—After taking a day off to help his landlady move into an upstairs apartment, Michael A. Lipp, 23, of Boston, hanged himself today in the bathroom of the old flat.

When Mrs. David Gollub, whom he was assisting, went downstairs for a tube of toothpaste, the bathroom door was locked. A patrolman found Lipp's body hanging from a pipe.

DEMANDS FOR RETIREMENT OF ATTORNEY GENERAL DAUGHERTY BECOME INSISTENT

Washington, Feb. 18 (By the A. P.)—Renewed demands for the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty are receiving serious consideration among officials high in the administration.

The attorney general himself is not now inclined to leave the cabinet unless he is directed to do so by President Coolidge.

The attitude of the president has not yet been made clear. It was indicated tonight that some development might follow tomorrow's cabinet meeting.

During the past 24 hours increasing pressure has been brought to bear to convince Mr. Coolidge that he should entirely clear his administration of those who have come under attack in the oil inquiry. It was pointed out to him that with Secretary Denby out, many of the critics of the discredited Fall leasing policies may center their attacks on Mr. Daugherty, and that a resolution already pending in the senate will give opportunity for a comprehensive assult on the whole record of the present department of justice.

One of those who have become most active in pressing for the attorney general's resignation is Senator Borah of Idaho, representing a wing of the republican senate strength that has not heretofore joined with the Lafollette group in most of its assaults on the administration. Last night at the White House Senator Borah confronted both the president and Mr. Daugherty with a demand that the latter step out of the cabinet because the country had lost confidence in him.

On the democratic side the attack has been led by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who has told his colleagues that he is prepared to present information of an entirely new and sensational character if the proposed inquiry into the administration of Attorney General Daugherty is followed through. His declarations have been carried indirectly to the president.

Mr Daugherty has repeatedly declined to talk about details of the criticism leveled at him, but he is understood to take the position that the effort to drive him out of office is a subject which could well be taken up for discussion by the cabinet. White House officials declined tonight to discuss a report that it would be discussed at the regular Tuesday cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Heretofore, the attack on the attorney genesal has been directed along two lines. One contention of his critics has been that regardless of the actual facts as to his record, the cumulative effect of a long series of developments has been to discredit him in the opinion of the public. The other argument used against him has been that although he was not a party to the oil leases, and has said he never was asked for an opinion regarding them, he occupied the position of chief law officers of the government at a time when his colleagues in the cabinet were concluding agreements now recognized by congress as without authority in law.

Whether new factors have entered into the latest phase of the situation is not revealed, nor are the senators opposing him willing at the present stage to produce publically the charges they say they will make if he remains in the cabinet and undergoes the ordeal of a public investigation as proposed in the pending resolution introduced by Senator Wheeler.

Mr. Daugherty has told his friends in and out of congress that he does not fear the result of such an investigation; he has pointed out that as a matter of fact he himself requested that the inquiry be made after demands for his retirement had been made in the senate; and has insisted that his record both as regards the oil scandal and all other matters connected with his administration is absolutely clean. Today he sent to the senate, in response to an inquiry, a record of the war frauds investigation, which he said showed that actual material progress has been made despite great handicaps.

DISORDER IN HARTFORD AT BASKETBALL GAME

Hartford, Feb. 18—In a vain effort to gain admission to the Dixies-Y. M. H. A. basketball game tonight at the high school gymnasium, more than 1,000 people stormed the doors, brushed aside the two policemen stationed there, smashed several windows in the east side of the school and were quieted only upon the arrival of the police reserves hurried rushed from headquarters.

Milling and shoving toward the entrance of the school, the crowd trampled roughly over the bodies of several persons who had slipped and fallen in the snow, and six fainted when they were pushed from side to side by the frenzied people behind.

Status of Strike of British Dock Workers

Strike Has Become Effective in Practically All Ports Except London, Where Volunteers Appear.

London, Feb. 18—(By the A. P.)—The dock strike became fully effective today in practically all the ports except London, where a considerable number of dockers are still working. The employers assert that 3,000 additional men have volunteered to go to work on the employers' terms offered yesterday, on condition that they are provided with police protection.

Up to the present the chief inconvenience experienced by the general public arises from dislocation of the mails, especially the American mails. Speculators and other necessaries have also seized the opportunity to advance prices, although the strike cannot yet have really affected food supplies.

The government has lost no time in getting into action. Premier Macdonald immediately on his return from Chequers court went into consultations with the minister of labor, Tom Shaw, and others, and as a consequence the minister was able to announce in parliament the appointment of a committee of three members to make a report on the cause and circumstances of the dispute. It is not an arbitration court and its decisions are not binding. It will begin sittings tomorrow and Edwn Brown, secretary of the Dock Workers' Union, has already consented to give testimony.

The employers also are expected to make statements before the committee, and all the aspects of the problem, including decasualization, will be investigated, while the employers probably will be called upon to give figures of their profits in order to ascertain their capacity to pay increased wages.

The prime minister presided at a cabinet council this evening, which had Holman Gregory, chairman of this special committee in consultation regarding the strike, and the council decided on certain emergency measures for infuring food supplies should the strike be prolonged. After this conference the following official statement was issued from Downing street:

"The cabinet has information from various parts of the country that meat prices and other prices are being raised from 33 to 50 per cent. There is no reason for this increase except the power of the profiteer to extract from the public unjust prices. The cabinet hopes that this notice will have the effect of stopping these increases, but in the meantime it has asked the law officers to consider the powers of the government in this matter and to draft such emergency measures as may be necessary to prevent the exploitation of consumers owing to the present strike."

M'ADOO ACCLAIMED LEADER BY CHICAGO CONFERENCE

Supporters From All Sections of the Country Unanimously Adopted Resolution That William G. McAdoo is Pre-eminently Available as the Democratic Candidate For President—Declare That the Record of the Life of McAdoo is an Open Book and Unanimously Demand His Leadership.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—McAdoo supporters from all sections of the country gathered here for an "availability conference" late today unanimously adopted a resolution that "William G. McAdoo is pre-eminently available as the democratic candidate for the high office of president of the United States and is the hope of progressive thought of the nation."

The resolution declared it to be the further sense of the conference that "the record of McAdoo is an open book" We unanimously demand his leadership." The resolution concluded. After adoption of the resolution Mr. McAdoo was called upon to address the assemblage and was accorded a noisy ovation.

"He it resolved by this conference, that William G. McAdoo is pre-eminently available as the democratic candidate for the high office of president of the United States, and is the hope of the progressive thought of the nation."

"It is the further sense of this conference that the record of Mr. McAdoo is an open book. His honesty and integrity in public and private life have stood the test of the most seraching investigation.

"We denounce and condemn the recent infamous conspiracy which attempted to besmirch his name and proclaim that he has emerged from these attacks stronger than before.

"We unanimously demand his leadership."

Every state was represented by a spokesman in the conference.

A telegram from Senator Walsh of Montana, a member of the committee investigating the Teapot Dome lease, declaring that the character of Mr. McAdoo "is untouched by any revelation made before the senate committee investigating the naval oil leases," was read to the conference by State Chairman Thomas Arthur of Montana.

"I have severed by professional relations with the Doheny company; I owe them nothing and they owe me nothing," Mr. McAdoo said in concluding his statement outlining his connections with the Doheny interests after his retirement from the Wilson cabinet. He launched into the announcement of his platform with the statement that "the condition of affairs at Washington beggars description." The campaign he urged, should be for "honest government, world peace economic and social justice and the undying principles of democracy."

The full text of the record plank, dealing with foreign relations follows:

"I call as prominent possible after the fourth of March, 1925, a new international conference at Washington, for the purpose of considering the economic and other conditions prevailing in the world with a view to such action on the part of the United States as will promote peace, reduce the burdens of armament, restore justice and stability, and revive prosperity.

"If, as a result of the conference, an agreement is reached, and it is proposed that the United States shall be a party to such agreement, I propose to submit the question to a national referendum of the American people at a special election to be divorced from any political election where candidates are to be chosen, so that the people may have ample opportunity to discuss the questions involved in such international policy and to decide for themselves what our national policy shall be."

MURDER ACCOMPLICE OF DIAMONDS ON TRIAL

New York, Feb. 18.—Rapid progress, as in the trials of his two convicted predecessors, was made today in trying John Farina for alleged participation of the killing and robbing of two Brooklyn bank messengers last November. His predecessors, Morris and Joseph Diamond, are awaiting formal sentence to death.

Farina was identified as one of the men who ran down the steps of the "L" station where the messengers were killed and got into an automobile which carried him away, by George Young, a clerk in a nearby post office.

"I heard six shots," said Young, "I looked out of the window and saw a man running down the stairs. There was a sedan standing there. The man ran past the car and then stopped and turned around. He went back to the car and got in. While he was turning he was putting something in his pocket. As he turned I saw his face clearly."

"Who was that man?" asked Assistant District Attorney Hughes.

"It was John Farina, replied the witness, looking the accused man in the eye. Farina was unmoved.

Defense Attorney Siegel asked Young if his identification was positive and the witness said it was.

MINES OF NORTHERN FRANCE RECOVERING

New York, Feb. 18—The mines of northern France have recovered 76 per cent. of their pre-war productivity through the French government's policy of granting loans to the operators, said George S. Rice, chief engineer of the federal bureau of mines in addressing the American institute of mining and metallurgical engineers today.

Mr. Rice predicted that the French mines would probably be back to normal within four years and asserted that they then might produce even more than before they were ruined by the Germans. Developments made by French engineers in reclaiming the properties, he said, had greatly improved them.

SHARP BREAK COMES IN FRENCH AND BELGIAN FRANCS

New York, Feb. 18.—Feverish selling of French Francs, influenced by speculative uneasiness in Europe over the drastic efforts to bolster up exchange by limiting Franc credits, today caused a sharp break in the rate which dropped 25 points to 4.12 1-2 cents the lowest price on record. Belgian Francs also established a record low at 3.50 1-2 cents.

Sterling exchange held fairly steady throughout the session, but most of the other European currencies lost ground in sympathy with the weakness of the French rate. The Japanese yen broke 25 points to 45.10 cents, prusumably upon the withdrawal of support extended prior to the flotation of the Japaness loan.

Depression of the French rate followed receipt of a flood of offerings from abroad which bankers said apparently originated in France. Selling was inspired, they indicated, by the growing uncertainty over the success of Premier Poincare's financial program, intensified by the warning of the finance minister to banks not to grant credits in francs against securities figured in foreign currencies.

FLETCHER SELECTED AS AMBASSADOR TO ITALY

Washington, Feb. 18.—Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, now Ambassador to Belgium, has been selected by President Coolidge to be Ambassador to Italy. He will secceed Richard Washburn Child, who recently retired.

The nomination of Mr. Fletcher was sent today to the senate. The vacancy will be created at Brussels by his appointment has been given considerable thought by the president, but so far as has been made known no one has selected. The appointment of William Phillips, Under-Secretary of State, to the Brussels Post, however, has been recommended by several of the president's advisors.

The transfer of Mr. Fletcher from Brussels to Rome was endorsed by Senators Pepper and Reed, of Pennsylvania, and also recommended by Secretary Hughes.

NO EXPORTS OF COTTON OR WOOL FROM FRANCE

Paris, Feb. 18—A decree has been published prohibiting the exportation from France of cotton and wool. It applies to raw cotton and cotton in the various stages of preparation for weaving and to cotton waste, but does not apply to cotton goods. The only finished cotton product affected is pharmaceutical cotton.

The prohibition applies to all sorts of raw wool, comber or carded, but not to woven goods.

The decree authorizes the minister of finance, however, to make exceptions in its application and this clause is taken by the trade to mean that in effect it institutes a licensing system No regulations have yet been issued and the granting of licenses is a matter left to the discretion of the minister of finance.

The committee is expected to consider a proposal that the Connecticut democracy entertain for a day, or by a dinner, or an outing, many of the chief figures in the party who will be at the national convention in New York in June. The Connecticut state delegation will have its quarters in Hotel McAlpin.

State primaries to choose delegates to the state convention will be held the first week in April

WILLIMANTIC

Inasmuch as Grand Juror George T Platt is the only juror in the town of Andover he recently had to sign a warrant for his own arrest when he was prosecuted for violation of the dog laws. Special Deputy J. M. Ellis of the office of the commissioner on domestic animals found an unlicensed dog in the possession of Mr. Platt and unless he applied for a superior court bench warrant there was nothing else he could do than to ask Mr. Platt to arrest himself.

Violations of the dog laws have been investigated by agents of the domestic animals department, under Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott and a number of prosecutions have followed in Andover and Killingly.

Grand Juror Platt pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner and he was fined $1 and costs, totalling $11.97. He paid.

Four other Andover residents were charged with having unlicensed dogs and all were fined $1 and costs, totaling $11.97. They were Mrs. Onupe Schore, Mrs. Andrew Lutwin, Mrs. Paul Lutwin and Mike Michale. Michale was the only one who pleaded not guilty. Another warrant has also been sworn out for the arrest of Mrs. Schore's husband for alleged importation of horses without a permit. Grand Juror Platt signed the warrants for the above arrests. In his own case he said that he intended to have the dog licensed, but had neglected to do so because of lack of time.

Information has been received in this city of the death of Mrs. Gertrude E. Linnell Clark at her home in Richmond Hill, N. Y., at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Mrs. Clark was the wife of William D. Russ of this city, and a half-brother, Allan Potter of this city.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elvira J. Lady were held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at her home on South Street, Coventry. Rev. Charles [illegible] offered prayer. Burial was in the Nathan Hale cemetery, at South Coventry. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & VanZandt of this city.

John Bak, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bak, of 23 Winter street, died at their home Monday morning after a short illness.

What could be sweeter than to be celebrating a happy birthday and have someone step up to you and inform you that for a recent investment of $50 you had won $1,000? This was the good luck which came to Edward Blester, an employe of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company in Stafford, and well known in this city. Mr. Riester received the check which he won on a special investment. In spite of the persistency of a hundred and one automobile dealers, who knew of a good place to put his $1,000, Mr. Riester calmly walked to the bank and placed his prize beyond the reach of temptation.

At least two Willimantic people were added to the list of those who celebrate birthdays only every four years, born on February 29, last, according to the records at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. Hattie Lois Hall, daughter of Marvin Hall, Jr., and Peter Krilewsky, son of Pantelimon Krilewsky were the lucky babies. There were no leap year births in 1916 or 1912. February 29, 1908, a son, Francis, was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Luthusek. There were two births Feb. 29, 1904, Robert Rafferty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Rafferty and Marie Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alcide Merin.

Thirty-one first naturalization papers were granted and one applicant for second papers appeared, at a session held in the local court chambers Saturday afternoon by Edgar M. A good number of members of the Knights of Columbus witnessed the exemplification of the third degree on a class of thirty candidates for San Jose Council, No. 14, of this city, Sunday afternoon. The work was in charge of District Deputy T. Frank Cunningham, assisted by State Deputy William J. Mulligan of Hartford and District Deputies John Ryan of Thompsonville and P. F. Day of New London. The New Haven degree team assisted in the conferring of the degree which was carried out at the town hall in the town building. The orchestra consisted of John F. Quinlan, piano; Joseph Pepin, cornet; John Roy, trombone and Ralph Gibson, violin. After the ceremonials a banquet was served to about two hundred knights at St. Joseph's hall by members of Court Veronica, Catholic Daughters of America, with Mrs. John J. Farrell, chairman. Rev. O. S. Beaumister of St. Joseph's church was toastmaster, also delivered a most interesting address. Rev. Frewer Ledwith, of Hartford, was the principal speaker of the evening. Other speakers were Mayor Hornsteadas Dion, District Deputies Ryan, Day and Jerome Collins of New London. Clergymen in attendance included Rev. Fathers William H. Kennedy of South Coventry, James J. Tyler of Jewett City and Charles M. Kelly of Willimantic. State Treasurer John M. Bransfield of this city and State Secretary John M. Phillips of Hartford were guests. Delegations were present from Stafford Springs, Norwich, Windsor Locks, Thompsonville, Middletown and Portland.

The committee in charge of the arrangements comprised Edmund R. Portelance, chairman; William J. Grady, secretary and treasurer; Ernest M. Sollis, tickets; Salvatore Bertora and John M. Ryan. Arthur Roy and J. F. Aubin sang.

After a vacation of about three months, "Queenie," a famous coon dog, owned by Grant Bombria, an officer of the local police force, has returned to her own doghouse and appears to have concluded to settle down and stay at home. About Thanksgiving, Queenie was loaned to a friend who was going on a hunting trip. When the friend returned he was minus the dog which had disappeared in the woods in the vicinity of Storrs college. An investigation and a search were conducted but nothing was heard with regard to the dog until late last week when George Downe, of Elliott, notified the local town clerk's office that he was harboring a lost dog. When Mr. Bombria went to get the animal Monday it had been turned over to Mr. Platt of Abington. Queenie's board was paid for and she was brought back to this city.

Alex Meyerson, 17, of Hop River, fell from a load of wood Sunday and landed between the horses attached to the wagon. The animals stepped on the boy and then became frightened and ran away. Meyerson sustained serious injuries to his body and a broken left ankle and he is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, this city. Meyerson and his father, Abraham Meyerson, were hauling wood from a lot half a mile distant from the house. They had filled a cord of four-foot sticks on the wagon and the boy climbed up and took his seat. A section of the load slipped forward and the boy fell between the horses. The wagon passed over his left ankle, as the animals ran away.

Michael Welch was before the police court Monday morning to answer to a charge of intoxication to which he pleaded guilty. Welch was informed that his appearances in court were becoming too frequent for his own good, but Judge Foss said that he would give him one more chance. A thirty-day jail sentence was imposed and suspended. Welch was placed on probation for six months and ordered to pay the costs of the court.

Painters are at work brightening up the heretofore untidy appearing police court chambers. The ceiling is cracker in several places and a large piece of plaster hung in a dangerous position over the desk of Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham.

COUNTY DETECTIVE JACKSON ARRESTED, ASSAULT CHARGED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Feb. — — Following on the heels of rumors circulated about town, after the recent raid conducted on the Philip Pagano confectionery store, West Main street, County Detective William E. Jackson, who figured in the raid, was notified early Monday night by Chief of Police Allan MacArthur that a warrant had been made out for his arrest on a charge of assault on Pagano. Detective Jackson was summoned to appear before the Willimantic police court this (Tuesday) morning.

The incidents leading up to the issuing of the warrant, which was signed by Prosecuting Attorney Samuel C. Harvey, are the outcome of a disagreement in which fist blows were exchanged, immediately after the raid, between Pagano and Jackson. It is alleged that Pagano accused Federal Officer Avery of having "planted" the evidence. According to the officers, Pagano became loud in his remonstrances and when he attempted to start trouble Jackson landed two blows, one on the eye and the other on the jaw of the man. Pagano had his face examined by a local physician but nothing of a serious nature was found. Investigator Jackson and Federal Prohibition Officers William F. Congdon, Stanton L. Briggs and Harry W. Avery staged the raid recently and took away as evidence a quantity of liquor and bottles filled with an unknown concoction. Federal Agent Congdon held the search warrant for the Pagano place and the accused has been notified to appear before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson in Norwich this week. His case in the local court has twice been continued, the last date being fixed for March 1.

Four men were arrested as frequenters, when the Pagano establishment was raided, and it is understood that they will appear as witnesses in the assault case.

As near as could be learned, the federal officers who took part in the raid have not yet been called to testify in the case against Jackson.

WESTERLY

New Haven railroad Locomotive Fireman W. J. Hughes, 228 Clinton avenue, New Haven, suffered a painful injury to his hand Monday afternoon, about 1.30, when the Shore Line express on which he was firing had just passed the Stonington station, with Westerly the next stop. Fireman Hughes was hooking the fire over on locomotive No. 1371, attached to the Shore Line express train No. 12, which left New London east-bound at 1.06 in charge Engineer Curtis. The hook became caught in the bed of coals and Hughes threw his weight against the obstruction which suddenly came way throwing him violently against the butterfly door of the fire box. In spite of the heavy gloves that he had on his fingers became jammed against the edge of the opening with such force that the end of the third finger of the left hand was smashed off. At the Westerly station the conductor of the train called Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who took the injured man to his office for treatment. A spare fireman, Hay, a passenger on the express took the injured fireman's trick and the train proceeded. Examination at the doctor's office showed that the end of the finger had been jammed off for about an inch. The injured finger was treated and dressed and the fireman returned to his home.

The February session of the Washington county grand jury was held at the courthouse at West Kingston, Monday at 9.30 o'clock, Justice Antonio Capotosto presiding. Edward B. Coy of Westerly was appointed foreman of the grand jury after the jurors had qualified. Four indictments were returned by the grand jury, two for breaking and entering in the night-time, against Fred E. Matteson, and one each on a similar charge against Elwin Cassidy and Charles Tourgee. The attorney-general's department recommended, and suspended sentences were given, Cassidy and Tourgee and they were placed on probation. Judge Capotosto ordered a capias to bring Matteson before the court, to plead to his indictment.

The body of Edwin Robinson Davis, formerly of Westerly, who made his home in Natick, Mass., where his funeral was held last Friday, following his death in Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 6th, was brought to Westerly Monday for burial in the family plot in River Bend cemetery. Following the arrival of the automobile cortege from Natick, services in charge of Rev. Mr. Davis of the Christian Science church of that place, were held, at 2 o'clock. The bearers were Howard C. Davis, a brother of Mr. Davis, Frank Cavitt, Alexander Gavitt, William H. Browning, D. Harold Rogers and Clarence A. Vars.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Hiscox entertained Friday evening a bridge party of seven tables, at their home on Spruce street. The event was a goodbye party to Miss Edytho A. Opie, who left Sunday accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Opie, for Phoenix, Arizona, to be guests for some time of Mrs. Opie's other daughter, Mrs. Roland Taylor, formerly Miss Clara Opie, of Westerly. After bridge was played, refreshments were served.

Herman F. Briggs, principal of the Elm street grammar school, was for three years a teacher in the Warwick high school building which was totally destroyed by fire Friday morning, the loss being $200,000.

Grace Methodist Church Choir, members held their annual banquet in the vestry of the church, Thursday evening when 38 were present including the pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. M. L. JEWETT CITY

People living on the cross-road from Voluntown to Sterling were thrown into a great state of excitement, early Monday evening. A thick set man, wearing a brown sweater, dark blue overalls, gray cap, and white cotton gloves, made two or three trips from the Wiley school over towards Sterling, only to return each time. He walked in the middle of the road, then mounted the banks on the side, to peer over the wall or to look through the occasional pairs of bars. He stopped to make long speeches to the trees and waved his hands wildly about, first running, then walking, only to stop dead still and stand for a long time.

Near the homes of W. C. Tanner and R. W. Bitgood he peered in the windows and seemed much interested in the barns and other buildings. His muttered language was so incoherent that nothing could be made out of his rambling talk. As darkness came on he was last seen making off down a lonely road leading towards Ekonk.

Deputy Sheriff J. T. Dolan was notified. It is the general belief here and in Voluntown that possibly the man has escaped from some asylum.

A light dusting of snow fell during the early part of Sunday night. Weather records are recalled for last winter which tell of 36 snow storms before Feb. 15. The fall for the winter was then over two feet. This year so far, this section has had hardly enough to make a snow ball.

A series of new classes has been organized in the Baptist church for systematic mission study, with Japan as the topic. The classes are to meet every Wednesday evening for six weeks. For the men's class the teacher is John Harris, for the women, Rev. Albert H. Clement, for the young people, Miss Martha Morgan for the children, Miss May Blake.

A man in Jewett City tells of 30 years ago being in charge of a weave room in Lewiston, Me., with 750 looms, his pay being $4 per day. He has a son in charge of a room today with half as many looms, and with pay twice as much.

Judging from the story told by G. H. Prior's brush posters, and the advance ticket sale there is going to be everything worth while at coming all-local minstrel show. Everybody seems inclined to help the boys.

John J. Moran of Dayville and Miss Grace A. McElligott of Jewett City were married at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Rev. J. J. Tyler performed the ceremony and celebrated the nuptial mass. The solos during the mass were sung by Mrs. Noel Garand. The bridesmaid was the bride's sister, Miss Catherine McElligott, and the best man was Edward Moran, the groom's brother, of Brooklyn, Conn. The bride was gowned in an embroidered Princess lace dress over white silk and wore an embroidered lace veil with orange blossom coronet. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. She wore her sister's gift, a pearl necklace. The bridesmaid wore blue taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas. A breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McElligott. The bride received a gift of money from the groom, and gave her sister $25 in gold. The best man received money from his brother. Mr. and Mrs. Moran will visit New York and New Jersey on their wedding trip. The bride's traveling gown was blue duvotyn with gray silver tissue hat. They will live in Dayville with the groom's parents for the present. The bride received gifts of silver, cut glass, money and linen. Guests were present at the wedding from Dayville, Brooklyn, Danielson and Norwich.

George A. L'Homme, son of Mrs. Amelia L'Homme of Goodyear, and Miss Lulu Larkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Larkin, of Jewett City, were married by Rev. James J. Tyler at the parochial residence at 10.30 Monday morning. The groom's twin sister, Miss Elizabeth L'Homme, and his brother, Louis L'Homme, both of Goodyear, were the witnesses. The bride wore oakwood canton crepe, and the bridesmaid wore black chiffon velvet. A wedding breakfast and supper were served at the bride's home. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. L'Homme will live for a while at the home of the bride on School street. The bride received gifts of silver, cut glass, linen and money. Guests were present from Goodyear, Voluntown, Taftville, Danielson and Plainfield.

Finally found health in Kellogg's Bran after suffering long with constipation

Mr. Patch writes that Kellogg's Bran "solved his problem." It has solved the problem of constipation—mild and chronic—for thousands of others. It has brought relief when all else has failed because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read Mr. Patch's letter:

Dear Sirs:

I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and have wondered what was the cause of it. I have tried about all the cereals I could think of, and finally tried Kellogg's Bran. This solved my problem, I feel 100 per cent better and I owe it to your Bran. Thanking you very kindly for this great cereal, I am

Very respectfully,

Chester C. Patch,

761 Main St., Greenwood, Mass.

For the permanent relief of constipation, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestines. It rids them of the dangerous poisons that lead to other diseases. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, is delicious with milk or cream. You will like its nut-like flavor—so different from ordinary, tasteless bran. Sprinkle it over the cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Eat it in Kellogg's Bran muffins, griddle cakes and many other wonderful recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and crumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. It is sold by all grocers.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Killingly individuals and firms are listed in a group from which the state of Connecticut will force immediate payment on back state tax accounts. Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer has been given the necessary papers and ordered to attach any property of the delinquents, or failing in that, to arrest the persons named and lodge them in the county jail at Brooklyn until such time as payments are made, with interest.

Action in these cases is expected today. As the amounts due the state are in each instance inconsiderable, it is likely that those upon whom service is to be made will pay rather than elect the alternative of going to jail. At least, that was the viewpoint in official circles Monday.

The state has stopped trifling. It is now forcefully demanding payment of the money due on state tax accounts from residents of this town. Serving of such processes as are involved in this collection are new to this territory, this fact giving the operation an additional touch of interest.

Michael O'Connell and his brood of ten basefoot children have beaten the law by making a hasty exit from the town of Sterling and over the border into Rhode Island, whence they came a few weeks ago. The pitiable condition of this family was set forth in this column last Friday morning, following action of Sterling officials to have all of the children excepting those under 4 years of age committed to the county home.

O'Connell learned Thursday afternoon what was to be done with the children and he and his wife would have to leave Connecticut in about ten days. With an old horse that has figured in the story of the family's affairs he promptly decamped from North Sterling and made his way to East Killingly, where the family found lodging over night, and the next day the outfit made its way over the border into Rhode Island. It was stated Monday that the family is now at what is known as the Mowry place, in Rhode Island, northeast of East Killingly.

Remaining in Rhode Island, O'Connell likely will be free of any prosecution by Connecticut authorities.

Is it possible that some of the erstwhile members of Charles Garland's April farm colony at North Carver, Mass., are planning to set up a new shrine of platonic love in the vicinity of Danielson?

There appears, at least, to be contemplation of such a move, for a couple who are said to have been connected with the Garland colony have been in the town of Brooklyn within a few days inspecting farms available for purchase and suitable to the needs of those have absorbed Garland's theories of leading a simple life or are in agreement with his ideas of how this existence should be lived.

At farms that were visited in Brooklyn it was made known to the owners by the visiting couple that a large house is wanted—one of the old-fashioned New England type with many rooms. One 2 1-2 story house seemed to hold a particular appeal for the visitors, inasmuch as its spacious attic offered opportunity to set up an industry in which the colony workers might engage.

Desertion of April farm and the flitting south of Garland, whose wife is said to be in Bermuda, with the reported presence in this county of a former member of the April farm colony are said to be reasons taken as associating the prospective buyers with the talked of establishment of another colony in Brooklyn or some other town hereabouts.

A visitor to April farm during the past week found the place abandoned. Members of the colony, including a number of pretty girls, had gone away without the residents of North Carver becoming aware of the fact. Doors of the shack where the colonists lived were not locked. The people had just gone away—and left things as they were.

Efforts of newspapermen to trace the colonists appears to have disclosed the fact that Garland is in another colony in the south for the remainder of the winter. That Mrs. Garland is in Bermuda. That Pettina Hovey is in Louisiana. That Alice Edgerton, the Quaker housekeeper, is in Windham county. Thus the colony has dispersed, some of the men going south, some of the women into other parts of the country.

Much publicity has been given the April farm colony, its owner, Charles Garland, first came to general attention when he declined to receive a $1,000,000 bequest from his father's estate, declaring he had rather dig sewers than be rich. His views on platonic love and soul mates also have earned widespread attention.

The freedom of the simple life at April farm is said to have shocked the staid New England folks who lived in its vicinity. In the summer time the young women members went about wearing only a single garment —and a glint of sun made the living pictures complete.

It had not been established up to Monday afternoon that a farm has yet been acquired hereabouts, but last week's investigation has fixed in the minds of some that there is a connection with the abandonment of April farm, at least temporarily, and the efforts to select suitable place for a "farm" in Brooklyn and other nearby towns.

This may sound queer to some who will at once think of the snow and ice and low temperatures, but those who range forest lands in the eastern part of the town find owls' nests with eggs already in them. Last year the first setting of owls' eggs was discovered in that section February 23.

The fourth quarterly conference at the Methodist Episcopal church is to be held on Wednesday evening of this week.

Local members of the Eastern Connecticut Milk' association were at the Community House in Plainfield, Monday evening, to attend a meeting of the organization. A dinner was served.

PUTNAM

Alice Edgerton, Quaker housekeeper at Charles Garland's, April farm, at North Carver, Mass., is in Putnam. This information is given in a news story that appeared in a Boston paper that has had a representative at the Garland farm within the past week. April farm has been abandoned, at least for the time being, but even the towns people were not aware of this until a reporter went to the place seeking an interview and found the place deserted.

Shacks where the colonists have lived were found vacant of life, although furnished and with an ample supply of canned foodstuffs on hand. The doors were not locked. Appearances were that the place had been deserted for several days before the fact was discovered.

April farm is the property of Charles Garland, scion of a wealthy family who spurned a $1,000,000 legacy from the estate of his father, saying he had no use for money and did not wish riches.

This attracted much attention to him and to his farm, where there gathered about him a colony of men and women who were in sympathy with his ideas of living with the simplicity of life as it was known at April farm.

Garland s now said to be in the south. Mrs. Garland in Bermuda. The reported presence in Putnam of Alice Edgarton is of special interest. So, too, is the report that some one from the colony recently inspected farms in Brooklyn and other nearby towns with a view to setting up a colony such as has existed at April farm. It is not known whether there is any connection between Alice Edgarton's presence in Putnam and the farm survey that is going on. But the entire matter has appeal to the imagination of many.

Of special interest to the police of this city Monday was the manner in which the store of A. Jarvais on Providence street was robbed during the preceding nigh tof about $150 in cash.

That the place had been robbed was discovered until shortly after six o'clock Monday morning. Investigation seems to have established the fact that whoever is responsible allowed themselves to be locked in, without the knowledge of those in charge of the store, and sometime during the night took the money and went out through a rear door.

It is also indicated that whoever took the money was very familiar with the places where the proprietor secreted money. Some of the money stolen was taken from a safe, more from a writing desk an dstill more from a shelf where it had been placed.

Officers investigating the affair felt Monday that it may be possible to fix responsibility.

The Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game club, with headquarters in this city, is to have a banquet at the Putnam Inn March 13. Notices relative to the affair have been sent out by the club's secretary, Dr. William Saretski. His notice also calls attention to the fact that the club has released 200 pheasants in surrounding country during the past year, has secured and distributed thousands of fingerling trout and otherwise has been active in advancing fish and game interests in this corner of the state.

Drunks develop some queer notions these days. Edmund Guilbert, resident on School street, reported Monday morning that some celebrator happened over his way during the early hours of Sunday evening and amused himself by punching out panes of glass at the Guilbert home. At the time Mr. Guilbert was engaged with his duties as operator of the picture machine at the Bradley theatre. The man who smashed out the glass, for no apparent reason went away after doing the damage and his identity was not established.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer was in possession of legal papers, Monday sent out by the state of Connecticut with a view to forcing payment from Putnam individuals and firms who owe the state money for taxes and have failed to pay.

Sheriff Ayer's instruction were to attach any property of the persons or firms named in his list and if he failed to find property he was to lodge the delinquents in the county jail and hold them there until the state taxes they owe have been paid with the accrued interest thereon.

A few more than half a dozen Putnam firms or individuals are involved in this tax delinquency and none of the amounts owed are large.

The significance of the procedure is that the state is taking drastic means of getting money long overdue. Some of the taxes that Sheriff Ayer is asked to collect were due in 1922, others in 1923.

The processes that Sheriff Ayer was about to serve Monday were new as regards the experience of the average official in this part of the state. In view of the urgency of the demand and the prospect of those who would not pay going to jail, it was believed Monday that the sheriff will have no great difficulty in getting such money as the state demands be collected. In addition to the taxes and interest, the delinquents will be required to pay officers' fees.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church has appointed the following chairmen: Prayer meeting, Lucy Ellis; lookout Allen Thayer; social, Mary Child; finance, Herbert Clarke; missionary, Nell White. The society has a social planned to be held at the parsonage February 27.

About March 1, J. J. O'Brien, who has been principal of the Israel Putnam school here, will take up his new duties at the Allston Grammar school in the Boston metropolitan district.

Raymond Medbury has so far recovered from injuries he received with ice housing equipment at Danielson a week ago tomorrow that it was expected on Monday that he would be able to sit up today. It now seems quite definitely established that Mr. Medbury was not internally injured in the accident.

Many carloads of ice from North Grosvenordale are finding their way south to Midway, where the ice will be housed and used by the railroad company in icing refrigerator cars in the next hot weather season.

Local friends will be at Danielson this (Tuesday) morning to attend the funeral of Patrick McBride, who died in that town Sunday.

Recent publicity relative to the success achieved in growing apples at the Chester E. May farm i nWoodstock, where a $6,000 crop was harvested last fall, has stirred the imagination of numbers of orchard owners in this territory as nothing along that line has in a long time. It will mean more interest in apple growing all through this territory. And to those who would venture into this industry it may be stated that the advice of the county farm agent and fruit specialists working with him will be available for all who would undertake the growing of apples in this corner of the country.

GALES FERRY

Mrs. Harriet P. Avery widow of Timothy A. Avery, whose funeral was held at her home in Mystic Monday, at 2 o'clock, was buried in the village cemetery here Monday afternoon. Mrs. Avery was born in Gales Ferry, the daughter of Captain Henry and Delia Perkins Comstock, March 7, 1840 and was in her 84th year. She married Tomithy A. Avery and the home of the family was here for many years. She is survived by two sons, Walter I. Avery of Portland, Oregon, Charles H. Avery of Boston and by a daughter, Mrs. Emma B. Hodgkins of Galveston, Texas; also by a brother, Charles H. Comstock of this place and a sister, Mrs. C. Hester Prentice of Long Beach, Cal.

At the morning service in the M. E. church Sunday Edwin Hill, Y. M. C. A. secretary of Norwich, conducted the services which opened with a Lincoln day program of responsive reading and hymns. The Builders—in observance of Lincoln Sunday, which the church observed, Mr. Hill spent ten years in Y. M. C. A. work in Dixieland, and two yars in Springfield, Ill., the home of Abraham Lincoln, and he held the close attention of the congregation in his eulogy of the great emancipator.

At the offertory, a duet, God Calling Yet, was sung by Miss Grace A. Chapman and Mrs. Amos Main. A special offering was taken to be applied to the board of education for Negroes.

Rev. Allen S. Bush conducted the Sunday evening Epworth league service at 7 o'clock and spoke from Ecclesiastes 12:1. Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them. Softly Floating on the Air was sung by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Mrs. Delphine Fish, D. R. Povey and Walter M. Buckingham. At the offertory a solo, How Lonely Are Thy Dwellings (Liddel) was sung by Mrs. Buckingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund B. Lewis gave a valentine party and supper to the Gales Ferry Pinochle club at their home at Allyn's Point Thursday evening. Prizes were given by the club, for the highest scores, which were made by Mr. and Mrs. Austin. Consolation awards went to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Blackledge of Norwich were guests at the home of Miss Caroline B. Freeman. The Mowerie, Sunday afternoon and evening.

The Men's Pinochle club of the village, which has had its weekly meetings Thursday evening at the country club house, has changed to Wednesday evenings. The scores to date follow: Walter M. Buckingham 5,840; Walter Clark 5040; A. P. Miller 4830; Philip Bock 4650; D. R. Povey 4380; Karl Nylan 4370.

Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall of Stoddard's Wharf and Mrs. Delphine Fish of this place, attended the February meeting of Anna Warner Bailey chaptre, D. A. R., at the home of Mrs. Christopher Avery, at Eastern Point, Thursday.

Rev. Horace B. Sloat of Hartford with Mrs. Sloat, their daughter, Miss Cecile and son, Donald and Harold, motored to the place Sunday and called at their summer home on the Bluff, on their return home from Waterford, where Rev. Mr. Sloat conducted Sunday services at the First Baptist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher G. Allen and little daughter Margaret Lee Allen, of Norwich, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Latham A. Smith and Miss Mabel Smith.

WESTMINSTER

The topic for the prayer hour in the homes Wednesday, Feb. 20, is Christ and His Intimate Friends. Scripture passage, St. Matt. 17: 1-13.

On account of the roading and the storm the Lincoln service was postponed to the 17th.

The western part of the farm, including the house and a dozen barns and other buildings, formerly known as the Medbury place, was recently sold by its present owner, Mr. Manes to a New York man named Bunce, who will shortly take possession. Mr. Manes has purchased land in Plainfield, on which he expects to build.

Thomas Colburn and son, Andrew, are cutting logs for George Nichols, on the woodlot which he recently purchased of Joseph Perkins.

Mrs. Isabelle Coy, who is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pellett, is somewhat improved from her recent severe attack of bronchitis though still confined to her bed.

Mrs. Church who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Colburn, has been ill with a grip cold.

Little Joe Manes will soon return home from Day-Kimball hospital, wheewhere he was taken for the operation for appendicitis, from which a good recovery is reported.

William Williams has completed work on the building he has been constructing at the Margitis place (eastern part of the former Medbury farm).

Allen Moody was obliged to give up his work in New York by an attack of grip, and has returned to his home, Restawhile.

The February teachers' meeting was held at Frost school, with Acting Supervisor L. T. Garrison, Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Linnell observed the fifty-second anniversary of their marriage on St. Valentine's day.

Wednesday a very quiet marriage took place in town; that of Louis S. Greenman of this place and Mrs. Bertha Moses of New York. The bride and her infant son lived with the Moodys for some months last year, and lately returned. A small reception was held at the Moodys at which a few intimate friends were present. The groom is the older son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Greenman, who have lived in Westminster many years.

The W. C. T. U. met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Charles Barstow, at the Plains, having a program connected with the birthday of Frances E. Willard, prepared by Miss S. L. Hadley. In March a mid-day dinner and service is planned, combining a social and literary session.

Miss Kimbal, teacher in the Hill school, is serving hot cocoa to the pupils who do not go home to lunch which is greatly appreciated by the pupils.

Mrs. Byron Bingham and children Dorothy and Tommie, were callers on the Hill Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moody and son, Manfred, and Willie Churbeen, are visiting Mrs. Moody's brother at Neoseneck Hill, R. I.

Miss Ellen Terry, who celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday, is the sole great survivor of one of the greatest periods of the English stage, that knew Charles Kean, Sir Henry Irving, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree and a number of others.

Sour Stomach

Mrs. F. E. Usher, 323 W. Mill St., Ithaca, N. Y., writes, "For six months I was troubled with sour, acid, burning stomach, could eat nothing but dry toast. If I did, I suffered. LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

THE YELLOW BIRD HELPS

Dear me, did we leave the little bunny boy alone with the wicked witch. I hope you haven't worried about him, boys and girls. Your Uncle Dave won't let anything dreadful happen. No indeedy.

"Don't you hear me pecking
On the window pane?
Don't you hear me twitter
A little glad refrain?"

Little Jack Rabbit turned to see fluttering outside the window the pretty yellow bird. Now the tea kettle on the stove made such a hissing noise that the old woman, who, to tell the truth, was a little deaf, had heard nothing, and, as her back was turned, the little bunny hopped softly across the room to open the window. The next minute, the little yellow bird had hidden herself in his pocket.

"What are you about?" asked the old woman, suddenly glancing over her shoulder.

"Do you mind if I leave the window open?" asked the little rabbit politely, "it's so warm."

"Very well," she answered, "But come; eat your cake while I make the tea."

"Oh dear," he sighed.

"Never fear," softly twittered his little feathered friend, and while the old woman's back was turned that nimble little yellow bird picked out of the bunny boy's cake all the caraway seeds. Then she slipped back into his pocket while he ate his piece of cake without fear of turning into some strange shape, for, you remember in the last story, the caraway seeds held a magic charm that changed one into all sorts of animals and birds.

When the tea was made, the old woman sat down at the table. But, wasn't she surprised to find that although he had eaten his cake, he was still a nice looking rabbit.

"Caraway seeds and pumpkin rind,
I hear strange noises in the wind.
Oh, where is my broomstick and my knife?
This bunny must bear a charmproof life."

Shrieked the old witch, and catching up her broomstick, she opened the door and flew away, looking for all the world like some strange comet rising high into the starry heavens.

At once all the pigeons flew down from the dovecote and changed into a little school building. Suddenly the sun came up and it was nine o'clock, the school bell commenced to ring and the teacher to rap on his desk.

Little Jack Rabbit hopped out through the door, and the little yellow bird spread her wings and flew away.

"Gracious me!" thought the bunny boy, "it all seems like a moving picture." But how he ever thought of that is more than I know, for I don't believe the movies had as yet come to the Ragged Giant Bunny's Country. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Why People Smile

They have found the way to whiter teeth

You see more open smiles now, because people have prettier teeth. This test shows how they get them —by combating film.

Learn what this method means to you and yours. Make this delightful test.

That cloud is film

That cloud on your teeth comes from film—from that viscous film you feel. Under old ways of teeth cleaning, much of it clings and stays.

Soon it becomes discolored, forming dingy coats. The teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substances which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Modern science has found ways to fight film—two effective ways.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use film combatant which contains harsh grit.

One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have been proved by many careful tests. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Careful homes all the world over have adopted this method, largely by dental advice. Wherever you go now you see the results.

Ten days will tell

The results of Pepsodent are quickly seen and felt. For instance, Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined effects bring a new conception of clean teeth.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

The results will bring a revelation which you never will forget. Cut out coupon now.

DENBY'S RESIGNATION.

The resignation of Secretary Edwin Denby of the navy department does not come like a bolt from the blue sky. The senate has urged the president to ask for it. There have been rumors that it would be tendered, but it has been declared by President Coolidge that he would not make any such move until it had been shown that there was ground for it, while Mr. Danby has repeated that he would not get out under fire.

Nevertheless it has been clear from the statements which have been made in the senate concerning the head of the navy department and the position that he occupied in connection with the oil land leases that, however loyal the secretary might be to his department and to the country, or however steadfastly the president might be standing by him until it had been established that he was involved in wrong doing, sufficient suspicion had been aroused to cause embarrassment to the administration.

This was recognized by Mr. Denby and the resignation which he placed in the president's hands was the result. He has chosen to make a sacrifice of himself instead of permitting the administration to carry him as a burden. He withdraws as the result of what he terms malicious attacks, but without eliminating himself from the jurisdiction of impeachment or without immunizing himself against prosecution for any acts.

Secretary Denby has been disposed to stand up against the fire that has been directed at him. There are features involved in the oil land transactions which react upon him and his judgment, even though he did nothing wrong. Having gotten to the point where it caused suspicion to be directed toward all the department's affairs he could no longer require the administration to shoulder the embarrassment. The resignation cannot be regarded as an admission of the charges made against him. They remain to be proved. He submerges himself for the sake of others and all the circumstances being considered it is doubtless a wise course.

CONFIRMATION CLEARS WAY.

The confirmation by the senate of Attorney Roberts of Philadelphia, who will serve with former Senator Pomerene as counsel for the government in connection with any prosecution resulting from the oil scandal, or in the suit for the cancellation of the oil leases means that there is to be no further handicaps imposed in that direction, and that the counsel can knuckle down to business without additional delay.

Not a lawyer was mentioned by the president who was not fully capable of dealing with this situation. By the withdrawal of the names of those who were in any way, however slight, connected with oil interests means the elimination of suspicion that previous employment has swayed their judgment. No honest lawyer will admit that any such connection would in any way influence their handling of the case for the government. Such a view will be generally accepted, but all grounds for criticism on that score has been eliminated by the hiring of those who have not come under the influence of the oil interests in any manner that is known.

For the senate to have continued to delay the choice of counsel would have been to cast suspicion upon its own attitude. The need of getting busy on the prosecution, which President Coolidge has promised will go on fearlessly, has been apparent. Confirmation clears the way for the bipartisan counsel to determine what course the evidence calls for and then to proceed as speedily as possible.

A WILSON CHARACTERISTIC.

Now we are told that Woodrow Wilson was prepared to resign as the president of the United States during his first term. Inasmuch as his secretary is the authority for such a statement it must be accepted as more than a mere rumor. That it was a new procedure and one without precedent would not have been sufficient reason for the former president to have changed his mind on that point. He had a way of establishing precedents, fixing his views and sticking to them.

Mr. Wilson is now reported to have taken this unusual and decided stand on the question of the Panama canal tolls, the repeal of the exemptions having been sought at that time and obtained. It was in the event that the legislation had failed that the resignation was to be presented.

It was the view of the former chief executive that he could not hold such an important position, with the continuation of exemptions for American vessels, and still hold the friendship of the other nations. He did not want to be the president of a nation that would violate a solemn treaty, and rather than continue to do so he contemplated quitting.

President Wilson was not the only head of the nation who has been placed in the position of fearing that he would not get the support of congress in his view. He, as well as others, was overridden by congress at times but it was always realized that the responsibility in such cases rested with congress and not the chief executive.

Inasmuch as it is put forth as news now, the possible resignation was probably not used as a means of getting desired action on the part of congress when contemplated. Nevertheless President Wilson would not necessarily have been weakened in the eyes of other countries had the exemptions not been repealed. His views were fully understood and it is fully appreciated abroad just how our government is organized.

Mr. Wilson's attitude and his method of dealing with the situation is of course simply another illustration of that characteristic which was fully displayed in connection with the effort to get the senate's ratification of the league of nations without the crossing of a T or the dotting of an I.

STRIKING AT DIVORCE.

In these days when increased attention is being attracted by the large number of divorces, and demands are being repeated for the decrease of the evil, it is interesting to note that Judge Ralph H. Clock of the superior court in California has been studying statistics with the result that he finds that lack of thrift has been the chief cause of recent divorces in that state.

There are many bits of evidence elsewhere which go to substantiate such a conclusion. There has certainly been a departure from the thrift that was manifested in other days. The idea of easy come, easy go has gotten a hold that is hard to shake. There is not the disposition to save and make the most of existing conditions, to find happiness by following the simple life and to lay away something for the rainy day. Homemaking isn't the central thought.

Sometimes it seems as if there was a disposition to see how much can be spent, even if it has to be borrowed, and if it is a case where those who find matrimony hasn't opened up an unlimited treasury, in some cases far beyond what ought to be expected, it doubtless leads to breaks and it is well known that there is not the abherrence of the divorce court that once prevailed.

In order to offset the present day tendency it is the opinion of the California judge that it should be guarded against by teaching the children. It is his view that "If the idea of thrift and homeowning is to be inculcated in the minds of the American people it should be taught in the schools. Then there will be less inclination to rush to the divorce court on the slightest pretext."

Somehow it seems to be the idea in the solving of many problems these days to place more and more dependence upon the children.

THE DOCKWORKERS' STRIKE.

For the second time since the labor government came into control in England it is faced with a strike. The attempt to tie up the railroads did not result in as much of a success as was expected. Whether the interruption to water transportation through the strike of the dockworkers will cause any more trouble remains to be seen.

Action which prevents the running of trains or the operation of ships is serious for any country that is situated as the British isles are. The refusal of the dockworkers to handle any more cargoes until their demands have been granted makes it necessary for the steamship lines to yield, to obtain substitutes or to reach a compromise.

According to the demands of the dock workers they ask for additional pay of two shillings a day, and this in spite of the fact that that country is suffering and has been for some time from the large amount of unemployment. That may or may not mean that their places can be filled. The increased pay is sought on the ground that they do not get employment for full weeks and because of that their pay when they do work should amount to the same as if they had worked the entire six days.

Efforts on the part of the steamship companies to grant half of the demands and conduct an investigation regarding the uncertainty of employment failed to prevent the strike. It is not a new question, and any investigation would not be for the purpose of covering new ground. For that reason the dockworkers have little faith that it would amount to anything for their good.

Unemployment has been a problem for many months in the British isles, and the new strike cannot fail to accentuate it.

Anyone with a desire to pacify Mexico isn't going to be found very often in the unemployment list.

The plan to flood the country with fake $1,000 bills doesn't interest as many as if it had involved $10 bills.

There is money in being an oil magnate's attorney, but it doesn't always pay to let the public know it.

Those who get the idea that they must kill someone ought to get over the notion that it must be someone else.

Will the senate committee be able to clear up all those who want to be heard by the time Mr. Sinclair reaches home?

Mr. McAdoo is doubtless correct in insisting that working for an oil magnate is quite proper, but the trouble in the fact that this is a bad time for oil and politics to mix readily.

Dr. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation says that yellow fever will be driven out of Central America this year. How fine it would be if revolution could be banished with it!

When the democratic house leader says that the tax plan that is passed will be the democratic plan, it must make the insurgent republicans tingle with enthusiasm over their new party loyalty.

SOME DISCOVERIES

There was a gleam in the flapper's eye which boded ill for somebody as she dutifully settled herself to give account of her visit to the maternal girlhood homestead.

Grandmother Longsack is awfully well and would have sent her love only she was too busy," the flapper reported with great cheer. "The society for the destruction of something or other was to meet at her house that afternoon and the girl who marcels her hair never got there till 1 o'clock and grandmother was fussed to pieces. Yes, of course, she's marcelling her hair and its looks fine! You realize now that she's only 49. Why, before that I just lumped her in with all the petrified ones who insist on telling me how things used to be. You wait till I pick her new party dress that she's to let me buy and get one of the step-in corsets and nobody could tell her from your sister. Oh, we got terribly chummy and one good deed which she did was to let in a little light on the way you have been putting it over on me all these years—"

"I am sure that I do not understand you!" warily objected the clever mother.

"Oh, you will before I get through!" the flapper assured her kindly. "You can't imagine how ashamed and apologetic I have always felt when you would stand in the middle of my room, gaze around with a pale look of disgust, bore right through my closet door and see all the shoes and dropped clothes piled up on the floor and remark in suffering tones that for the life of you you did not see where I got my disorderly habits and heaven help the man who married me and expected me to make a home for him!

"How could I, you would demand, how could I exist in a room which looked the way mine did with the exception of the first five minutes after the cleaning woman got through hoeing out and straightening up? I couldn't say a word back to you because your dresser is always horridly in order and you hang everything up on hangers squared off exactly north by south! I thought you had been born that way—and here Grandmother Longsack says that she is so glad to find I am so much neater and more thoughtful than you were when you were a girl.

"Yes, of course she knew that now you would take the blue ribbon in any housekeepers' contest and how it happened was more than she could imagine. At first when she came to visit you she secretly thought you had cleaned up for the occasion and broke your neck while she was there, but after she found she never could catch you in disorder she concluded you were a reformed character.

"And beaux! That a daughter of yours, said you to me once and many times, should resort to such dishonest subterfuges was a matter of great sorrow. If I had promised to go somewhere with that prune Artie Choke and then got a splendiferous invite from Ted Duzzens, who is fought over by all the girls and so remembered that self-preservation is the first law of nature and phoned Artie that I had developed an ulcerated tooth or smallpox, you nearly passed away from grieving over my degenerate nature.

"Why, grandmother told me all about the time she caught you climbing out of your bedroom window and over the kitchen roof to get out the back way, leaving Lemuel Greendrop, who was perfectly nice young man even though he did have big ears and no brains, sitting patiently waiting for you on the front porch. You explained that you'd die sooner than talk to Lemuel a whole evening and, anyhow, you were going riding with Bobbi Broke, who was waiting for you around the corner.

"She said you were a great worry and trial and she was so glad you had, apparently, turned out so well. Oh, I can't begin to tell you all the things I learned at Grandmother Longsack's this time and it has done me so much good! I can go right ahead and have just as good a time as I like, knowing that no matter how careless, disorderly, unreliable and generally shiftless I may be I'll be perfectly all right when I'm as old as you are! Isn't it nice to think about?"

"Well," said the clever mother very indignantly, "I know when I'm double-crossed by my own relatives and both of you ought to be just ashamed of yourselves! I was too shocked to hear half of what you said, but whatever it was I know that I did nothing of the sort! The idea!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The White Way

Mr. Editor: Having seen in the columns of your paper at various times criticisms of the proposed white way for Norwich, I am moved to write a criticism of it. However the criticism I have to offer is not because the city is to have a white way, but because the white way as proposed is not good enough. I submit that the white way should be placed on standards of their own instead of attached to the trolley poles. All wooden poles should be removed from the main street and the wires run under ground. This would eliminate all wires above the surface except the trolley wires, thus giving the main streets a much neater appearance. If the lights had standards of their own they could be placed more advantageously than under the proposed plan. In New Haven, in Meriden and in Hartford, the system I have suggested is followed.

The reason that this is not to be done, I assume, is because of the supposedly prohibitive cost, the standards themselves would be costly, and it would be quite expensive to put all the electric wires under ground. But other cities no larger than Norwich —Meriden for example—have done it. Why not Norwich?

Today a city, to a large extent is judged, by strangers, by the appearance of its main streets. A modern white way would be a great asset to Norwich.

Nevertheless, the gas and electric commission is to be complimented in securing the white way as proposed, in spite of all the opposition that was met. The type of lights chosen is very good and well suited for the streets of Norwich. It seems to me that the example lights placed between Shannon's corner and Franklin Square are placed too high from the ground. It would be better if they were placed three or four feet lower. The purpose of a white way, as I understand it, is to light up the sidewalks, and store fronts, so as to make the streets more attractive for the shoppers. By placing the lights lower a stronger light would be thrown on the sidewalks and store fronts. The lights as now placed throw a stronger light on the second story of a building than on the ground story. Again I refer to Meriden and New Haven, where the white way lights are approximately three or four feet nearer the ground, than those now placed in Norwich.

Franklin and Union squares are certainly dark, gloomy places at night now, and the new lights will certainly be appreciated there, if no where else.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Norman H. Davis, chairman of the commission which at the invitation of the League of Nations is endeavoring to solve the Am Memal problem is an American who has had varied experience as a diplomat and administrator during the last five years. It was at the beginning of 1919 that President Wilson designated Mr. Davis as United States Commissioner in connection with the armistice discussion with the Germans at Spa and Treves. He was at the same time attached to the American peace commission as chief of the financial advisers to the president. He returned to the United States to become Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and in 1920 succeeded Mr. Polk as Assistant Secretary of State. Mr. Davis is 46 years old and a native of Tennessee. Soon after leaving college he founded in Havana the Trust Company of Cuba, of which he was president until his resignation, in 1918, to enter the service of the government.

More than 2,000,000 acres of land in the state of Washington can be reclaimed for agricultural purposes through irrigation, it is estimated.

Jim Knew

Jim is an exceedingly handsome man. The other day he was at a meeting when the speaker turned to several men back of him and said: "I do wish the handsome man would move so that I can see them when I talk."

The men moved, blushing and laughing. Hardly had they become settled when Jim rose from his seat at the side of the room and moved directly in front of the speaker, who remarked about wise men knowing when they were spoken to.

Cause for Hesitation

Two who had attended a conference were in earnest conversation. They had heard an address that impressed them greatly. The young woman who commented about what she had just heard may have been from England, or she may have come from the Atlantic seaboard. At any rate she had an English accent.

"I cannot visualize any one having a greater grasp of the suuject than he" she said. "It seems to me he had marvelous insight, breadth of vision of a tremendous sympathy witnal."

The young man with her hesitated a moment. Then he replied: "Yes, indeed, them guys certainly know their stuff."

MILLION IN HIGHWAY MONEY FOR TWO YEARS

Close to $1,000,000 will be allotted to Connecticut by the Federal govarnment for highway purposes during 1924 and 1925 under appropriation bills of the U. S. Department of Agriculture now before congress, the state highway department has been informed by Washington officials. The money has been apportioned for the next two-year period and approaches $130,000,000 for the next two years throughout the country.

From 1917 to 1923 inclusive, the state received from the Federal government for aid in highway building a total of $2,490,821. This money was divided by years as follows:

1917, $31,090.45; 1918, $62,180.68; 1919, $399,281.11; 1920, $583,422.94; 1921, $613,349.42; 1922, $480,897.78; 1923, $320,598.52; Total $2,490,821.00

Under the appropriations suggested for the current period, $414,860.09 is apportioned to Connecticut for 1924, and $488,998 proposed for 1925. The approximate grand total of money apportionments to this state, therefore from 1917-1925 inclusive, reaches $3,386,579.

Winter Find You Tired and Achy?

DO YOU SUFFER CONSTANT BACKACHE — FEEL OLD AND WORN OUT? THEN FOLLOW THE ADVICE OF THESE NORWICH FOLKS!

DO YOU get up these winter mornings feeling tired, weak—achy all over? Are you so lame, stiff and miserable it seems you can never get back in trim? Does your back ache with a dull, constant throb? Sharp, rheumatic pains torture you at every step?

Then you should be giving some attention to your kidneys!

Winter, you know, is danger time for the kidneys. That's because exposure to colds and chills wears down body resistance and throws an unusually heavy strain on the hard-working kidneys. The kidneys are apt to fall behind in keeping the blood-stream pure, and poisons accumulate that well kidneys would have filtered off.

Racking backaches come with stabbing pains; muscles and joints ache constantly; there are headaches, too, with dizziness and distressing kidney irregularities. Nerves are "jumpy"; one feels old—all worn out.

Give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They are recommended by many Norwich people. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Norwich Folks:

Geo. Conrad, meterman, 211 Palmer St., says: "I have attacks of lumbago caused by the constant jarring of the car. Mornings my back is lame and sore so I can hardly get out of bed. I have severe pains that feel as sharp as a needle cutting through my kidneys. I have dizzy spells. A friend advised Doan's Pills. They have always cured such attacks and I wouldn't be without them."

Mrs. Bernard Neeson, 54 Union St., says: "My kidneys were weak and didn't act properly. I had rheumatic trouble through my back and hips and when I bent over, I was so lame, I could hardly straighten. It seemed like my back was ready to give out. Doan's Pills cured me and I haven't been troubled since."

POETRY

The Lamp in the West

Venus has lit her silver lamp
Low in the purple West.
Breathing a soft and mellow light
Upon the sea's full breast;
It is the hour when velvet winds
Tremble the alder's crest.

Far out, far out the restless bar
Starts from a troubled sleep,
Where roaring thro' the narrow straits
The meeting waters leap;
But still that shining pathway leads
Across the lonely deep.

When I sail out the narrow straits
Where unknown dangers be,
And cross the troubled, moaning bar
To the mysterious sea,—
Dear God, will Thou not set a lamp
Low in the West for me?

Ella Higginson in Boston Transcript

Marian

She can be as wise as we.
And wiser when she wishes:
She can knit with cunning wit,
And dress the homely dishes.
She can flourish staff or pen,
And heal a wound that lingers;
She can talk the talk of men.
And touch with thrilling fingers.

Match her you across the sea,
Natures fond and fiery;
Ye who seek the turtle's nest
With the eagle's eyrie.
Soft and loving is her soul,
Swift and lofty soaring;
Mixing with its dove-like sole
Passionate adoring.

Such a she who'll match with me!
In flying or pursuing.
Subtle wiles are in her smiles
To set the world a-wooing.
She is steadfast as a star,
And yet the maddest maiden;
She can wage a gallant war.
And give the peace of Eden.

—George Meredith

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What's your objection to reckless driving?" Crimson Gulch was never noted for extraordinary caution."

"We ain't afraid of danger," answered Cactus Joe. "But hittin' a man with a flivver shows bad aim, and ain't no credit to nobody."—Washington Star.

J. L. thinks that Thackeray started one of the slang expressions we use today and by way of proof quotes as follows: "How are you, Sedley?" asked a character in "Vanity Fair.' "There's a hackney coachman downstairs, . . . vowing he'll have the law on you." "What do you mean, law?" Sedley faintly asked.—Boston Transcript.

"Suppose," queries the blurbist of a bit of new fiction, "you were facing bankruptcy. How would you tell your wife about it?"

Well, we should say, as we do about the first of every month: "Darling, I am facing bankruptcy." And she would say, in the customary patient tone of voice: "I am sure I haven't been spending much money on the house."—S. K., in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

There Was Nothing So Good for Congestion and Colds as Mustard

But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered while it acted. Get the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

Musterole does it. It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It is scientifically prepared, so that it works wonders.

Gently massage Musterole in with the finger-tips. See how quickly it brings relief—how speedily the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

LESTER & WASLEY CO. FOUNDED 50 YEARS AGO

The fifty Years Ago news appearing in the Saturday Bulletins has had several items regarding the shipment of printing presses and envelope machines built by the Allen Mfg. Co. which was located in the building on Broad St. now occupied by the Turner & Stanton Co.

It was fifty years ago Monday, February 18, 1874, that the partnership of Lester & Wasley took over the business of the Allen Mfg. Co. and for themselves started to build and sell envelope machines, a business which has been retained in Norwich for more than half a century.

The firm names of Lester & Wasley and that of Leader, the trade name of their product, are probably better known in their field than those of any other Norwich concern, for they have no only shipped envelope machines to all parts of the United States but to all parts of the world, there not being a single territory of either the old or new world that today is not operating the Norwich machine.

Much of the success of this industry has resulted from the ingenuity of Edwin Allen and Daniel M. Lester, both of whom were granted a large number of patents on envelope making machinery.

In 1910 the Lester & Wasley Company took over the plant and business and have since continued to develop and build this world-famed machine.

George W. Armstrong is the engineer now in charge of the development of the product of this corporation and it is through his efforts that the machine has been able to hold the place it holds today in the envelope world.

While this concern has never been considered among the large industries in Norwich, it has been one of those giving employment to the highest class of skilled workmen and has been exceedingly steady in its operation, having had but few dull periods during the fifty years.

OBITUARY

Israel Raphael

Monday morning at 5 o'clock Israel Raphael died at his home, No. 138 Laurel Hill avenue, death being caused by liver trouble. He had been in failing health for five months and had been confined to his room for a week.

Mr. Raphael was born in New York city and was one of twin sons, the other twin being Henry Raphael of New Haven. He was the son of the late Ellis and Rosetta Raphael. His father who died in this city several years ago was born in London.

During the Civil war days the family moved to htis city from New York and Mr. Raphael, Sr., was employed as a cigar maker by N. C. Breckenridge. Israel Raphael took up the cigar maker's trade and afterwards conducted a business of his own. For several years he conducted a lunch counter at the old Central Vermont depot and later conducted a simlar business on Main street. During the later year of his life he was associated with his brother, Reuben Raphael in the lunch room and cigar business on lower Broadway.

Surviving are the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Fanny Plummer, Mrs. Sarah Asher, Miss Agnes Raphael, Mrs. Carrie Church, Mrs. Annie Kempner of New York city; Reuben Raphael of this city, Max Raphael of New York city and Henry Raphael of New Haven. There are also several nephews and nieces.

John Raymond Twomey.

After a lingering illness, John Raymond Twomey, son of Police Captain and Mrs. Dennis J. Twomey, 24 years of age, died Monday morning about 1.30 o'clock at the home of his parents, No. 20 Grove street. He was born in this city in 1900 and had always lived here. He attended St. Pleasant street school and was a member of St. Patrick's parish.

Besides his parents he leaves two sisters, Miss Madeline Twomey and Miss Helen Twomey, and one brother, Walter J. Twomey, all of this city. Captain and Mrs. Twomey have the deep sympathy of their wide circle of friends and acquaintances in their bereavement.

R. R. McDonald.

Reginald R. McDonald, formerly of Colchester, died Monday morning in a Hartford hospital, following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. McDonald was the son of former Selectman Samuel McDonald of Colchester. Surviving Mr. McDonald are a wife and a child, his father, a brother, William McDonald of Colby college, Waterville, Me., and two sisters, Misses Mabel and Elizabeth McDonald of New York.

Mr. McDonald was a native of Colchester. He had been employed up to the time of his death by the Hartford Rubber Works.

Mrs. John Tillinghast

The death of Mrs. Mabel J. Tillinghast, wife of John H. Tillinghast, of the borough of Stonington, occurred at New London Monday morning at 1.30 following a lingering illness.

Mrs. Tillinghast was born in Groton, Nov. 22, 1856, and has had a long residence in Stonington, uniting in early life with the First Baptist church. For many years she was a member of the choir, and was also treasurer of the Sunday school. She was president of the Ladies Aid society and was a member of the Stonington branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union.

She is survived by her husband, two nieces, Miss Mary L. Pendleton, and Mrs. Fred Wilcox, both of Stonington, and one nephew, George B. Pendleton, of Flushing, L. I.

Miss Ellen Spellman.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Miss Ellen Spellman, suddenly, Saturday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Hogan, at Fitchburg, Mass. She was born in Norwich and was the daughter of the late Nicholas and Hannah Downey Spellman and was 73 years of age.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. James Hogan of Fitchburg, Mass., and a brother, Nicholas Spellman of this city, besides nieces and nephews in Norwich. Miss Spellman was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church.

FUNERAL

Ebenezer Comstock Miner.

The funeral of Ebenezer Comstock Miner was held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his home, No. 256 Broad street. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends and there was a wealth of beautiful floral offerings. The service was conducted by Rev. A. H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. The bearers were Charles L. Stewart, Elisha E. Rogers, Leon L. Hayden and Leslie L. Harteon, the last named of North Windham.

Burial took place in Comstock cemetery at Montville. There was a committal service at the grave. Undertakers Church & Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TROLLEY CAR DAMAGED BY FIRE AT BARN

Car 158, a double truck trolley used on the Jewett City line, was considerably damaged by fire which broke out in the car while it was in the car barn on Central avenue, shortly before two o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. An alarm from box 242, private box at the car barn, called out the department and one stream of water was directed on the flaming interior of the car. A line of chemical was also used on the flames.

As soon as the flames were squelched the damaged car was towed out of the barn onto Central avenue where an investigation was made by the firemen. Most of the windows were broken by the heat and water and the upholstery was badly damaged. The car had been run into the barn about 10.30 o'clock Monday night. There was no sign of fire when the car was run into the barn.

A short circuit in the motor or heater probably set the car on fire, although the exact cause of the fire had not been ascertained at press time.

Moslems Detest Bells.

Bells are never used in Mohammedan mosques. The Moslem race detests bells, under the delusion that they cause the assemblage of evil spirits.

FOUND ASPHYXIATED IN ROOM OF HIS HOME AT HALLVILLE

Asphyxiated in a room that was black with soot from an oil stove, Clarence Avery De Wolf, 47, was found dead in his home at Hallville Monday morning about 10 o'clock by a Mr. Maynard who had gone to see why De Wolf had not come to cut ice for him as he had engaged the man for that work Monday.

De Wolf lived alone in a house on the state road in the Hallville section of Preston. When Mr. Maynard got into the house and went to De Wolf's bedroom he saw the body lying on the floor by the side of the bed. It looked as if De Wolf had been aroused by the feeling of suffocation and had struggled out of bed to reach the door but had been overcome when he had taken but a step or two.

After the body had been seen by the medical examiner it was removed to the undertaking rooms of Cummings & Ring.

Mr. De Wolf was a native of Bozrah and was a farmer by occupation. For the past sixteen years he had been living in Preston. He is survived by his father, Austin De Wolf, his wife whose maiden name was Nellie Martin, and by three sons and one daughter, Clarence Avery, Edwin Clifford, Austin Williams and Sarah Ann De Wolf. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Lillie Belle Smith of Washington street, this city, and a nephew, Frank Arthur Smith.

BOY SCOUT DRIVE STARTS WITH BOOM

The drive to raise the Boy Scout budget of $6,000 opened with an enthusiastical meeting Monday night in the hall at the Elks home where between 50 and 60 men and women were assembled, including representatives of the Rotary club, Lions club, Daughters of Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps, Prudential Insurance company, Scout Council and women representing other patriotic and civic organizations.

At 6.15 a supper was served by Mrs. Lillian S. Young, Mrs. Fannie C. Adams and their assistants. The menu follows: Roast beef, mashed potatoes, green peas, pickles, cabbage salad, rolls, mock cherry pie and cheese and coffee.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Herbert W. Cary. George L. Ingalls, president of the local council, called the meeting to order, and spoke in high terms of the interest taken by the Rotarians in the scout movement and of his own interest as well. He then introduced A. L. Peale, who had been chosen chairman. Mr. Peale responded in a pleasing manner and congratulated the city on having so many representatives of organizations present. He called upon Charles A. Saxton, president of the Rotary club, who responded and pledged the support of that organization. The following organizations were called upon: Mrs. John C. Atterbury, past department president of the Daughters of Veterans, who told of her interest in boys and pledged her cooperation. Max Hanover responded for the Lions and gave a stirring speech in his usual enthusiastic manner and urged all to help in this great movement for the boys of Norwich, saying that the "Lions would do the Lions' share."

Mrs. Genie Evans, president of the Daughters of Veterans, Mrs. Charles S. Burke, president of the Woman's Relief Corps; Miss Mary Richards L. M. Crandall, Hon. William G. Park and E. J. Graham, superintendent of public schools of Norwich, all pledged their earnest support and promised to help put the drive over the top.

The meeting then proceeded to business and Scout Executive Benton presented prepared lists of names for the team workers to select from. These were soon disposed of and the meeting closed with a pledge of allegiance to the flag, led by the scout executive.

Hon. William G. Park acted as song leader and Henry La Fontaine presided at the piano. The singing was a feature of the evening.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Elks for the use of their building and to the women who furnished such an appetizing supper.

Six thousand dollars was set as the goal for the expenses of the council for the current year and with such enthusiastic spirit as was evidenced at the meeting the council expects to cover it in record time.

The meeting adjourned at 7.30 to meet at the Community house for supper at 6.15 Wednesday evening, when reports will be presented of what has been accomplished.

Flowers used in the table decorations were the gift of Otto F. Ernst.

SHETUCKET STREET FIRE STARTS IN HEATER ROOM

Damage amounting to from $600 to $700 to building and contents was caused by a small fire in the heater room underneath the store at 82 Shetucket street conducted by Walter N. Block. An alarm from box 4, Main and Shetucket streets, at 2.40 o'clock Monday afternoon called out the department and the fire which was beginning to spread rapidly was quickly under control. Two lines of hose were laid, one line being run from a hydrant on Shetucket street to the Laurel Hill bridge where it was carried down to the railroad tracks and used on the flames from the rear of the building.

The fire was quickly checked owing to a prompt response of the apparatus and good work by the firemen. About the only fire damage to the building was the charring of the rafters. However, stock owned by Mr. Block and stored on the lower floor suffered from fire, smoke and water. The recall was sounded very shortly after the box had been pulled in.

The building is the property of the estate of the late Judge John M. Thayer.

Part of the smoke and fire damage was the ruining of eight new meters of the gas and electric department that had but recently been put into the building.

BLACKSMITH SHOP AT BROOKLYN IS BURNED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Feb. 18.—Several houses in this vicinity were threatened with destruction tonight about 11.40 when fire was discovered in the blacksmith shop of George W. Ide at West Brooklyn, just below the Windham county jail. Ice on the roofs of the buildings that were threatened probably saved them from being destroyed as sparks and embers were showered upon them for half an hour while the blacksmith shop burned to the ground.

Mr. Ide said that his loss is about $2,000 with insurance of $1,000. Two old automobiles were included in the stock destroyed, one of these cars being the property of a Colchester man. Mr. Ide has no idea how the fire started. He had been there up till shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and there was no fire in the building after that time.

An alarm from Box 23 called out the Danielson fire department and the auto pumper went over to lend assistance. Mr. Ide was attending an American Legion dance in Danielson when news of the fire was telephoned him.

F. O. B. Trio Gave Musical Program.

The exceptionally large audience in the Hanover parish house at the giving of The Old District School play was delightfully entertained during the intermission by the F. O. B. trio of Norwich, which gave a program consisting of five vocal selections by George Fairbanks, assisted by Henry Boyman, violinist, and Robert Otis, piano accompanist.

MILDRED PEARSON RECITAL CHARMS MUSIC LOVERS

A song recital at Slater hall Monday evening under the auspices of the Norwich Music association gave an evening of rare pleasure to an audience of about 400 who gave enthusiastic applause to Mildred Pearson, lyric soprano, of New York, formerly of this city.

Displaying a voice of beautiful tone that was brought out in her opening number, an Aria from Radamisto, rendered with dramatic feeling, she went on to delight her hearers with its wonderful flexibility and control in Mozart's Alleluiah.

A group of French numbers in which a striking contrast was charmingly presented by equally successful renderings of Dalcroze's l'Oiseau Bleu and one of Massenet's smoothly flowing melodies closed with a brilliant rendering of Se Saran Rose (Arditi), for which there was an enthusiastic call for an encore. Miss Pearson responded with L'Heure Equise (Hahn).

An Aria from Tosca was an especially effective number of the program and was followed by Mavourneen as an encore after Miss Pearson had received a beautiful basket and a bouquet of flowers.

A group of Swedish folk songs was sung with a deft touch that appealed to her audience and brought her back for an encore and she closed the programme with a group in English with Taylor's Life and Death as the final number, but the continued applause brought her back to give one more selection before the audience was content to say "Good Night. As a final encore Miss Pearson gave The Year's at the Spring (Beach)

Miss Helen Wolverton at the piano provided accompaniments that were sympathetic and in excellent taste.

The following was the programme.

DEPUTY MULLIGAN WILL VISIT K. OF C. COUNCIL

White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., is to be honored this (Tuesday) evening by a visit from State Deputy, William J. Mulligan of Hartford and under the direction of Grand Knight Francis T. Diggins, arrangements have been made for a large attendance as it is expected that nearly the full membership of 800, will be on hand to receive the state deputy.

Mr. Mulligan is one of the most prominent members of the order in the country. In addition to the office of state deputy of Connecticut, which he holds, he is also the New England representative on the board of national directors. During the war, he was in charge of all the overseas relief work carried on by the Knights and in recognition of his services in the field he was knighted by the Pope.

State Deputy Mulligan is an eloquent speaker and it is expected that he will have an interesting message for Norwich knights.

Following the meeting luncheon will be served and a musical entertainment will be furnished under the direction of the minstrel committee.

ROOSEVELT FAMILY TUTOR SPEAKS AT ST. ANDREWS

Rev. Waldo D. Parker, assistant rector at St. Paul's church, Pawtucket, R. I., and formerly private tutor for the Roosevelt family at the time the late Theodore Roosevelt was the president of the United States, gave a very interesting talk on The Roosevelt Family, Monday evening at the monthly meeting of the Men's Club of St. Andrew's church, Greeneville. The meeting had an unusually large attendance. John W. McKinley, president of the club, called the meeting to order about 8 o'clock. Walter McNeely, the well known local vocalist, accompanied by Alfred Bruchs, entertained with a solo, Home O'Mine, giving as an encore, Sweetest Girl I Know. Rev. Mr. Parker was introduced by President McKinley.

The speaker told in an interesting way of the many happy experiences he had while acting as private tutor for the Roosevelt family. He had nothing but the highest praise for the Roosevelt family. He said he never loses an opportunity to pay tribute to Mrs. Roosevelt for the splendid treatment she afforded him and for the very praiseworthy way in which she brought up her four children. Rev. Mr. Parker told an interesting story to illustrate how the late president brought up his children to pay nothing but the highest respect to their mother.

The speaker told of all four boys enlisting and serving overseas during the world war. To show that patriotism ran high in the Roosevelt family he related how Kermit enlisted in the British army after he was rejected by the American army on physical grounds and then applied for and secured a transfer to the American army in France. Theodore and Archie were wounded and Quentin was killed.

The late president was an ardent believer in conservation of natural resources. Rev. Mr. Parker said. The greatness of Roosevelt is not overrated in any way. Roosevelt was a boy with his boys but yet he had a strong upper hand. Roosevelt's attitude toward the church interested me greatly, said the speaker. Mrs. Roosevelt was an Episcopalian as were all the children. Roosevelt himself was a member of the Dutch Reform Church but attended the Episcopal church at Oyster Bay, as there is no Dutch Reform church there. I sat in the Roosevelt pew on many Sundays and the way Roosevelt followed the service and the close interest he showed in the sermons greatly impressed me. Roosevelt was a very devout Christian. If there was ever a man who lived and acted the Christian life it was Roosevelt.

Speaking of the home life of the Roosevelts, Rev. Mr. Parker said that the late president put great trust and faith in all those around him. The dining table in the average family is quite often the clearing house for the family troubles and difficulties. Not so with the Roosevelt family. Mrs. Roosevelt instituted a rule that the family dining table was a place to eat and not a place for quarrels and this rule was rigidly observed. The children knew their father because he associated and chummed with them.

Roosevelt once said to me, I wish every man in the world would practice brotherly love. Then there would be no more wars. This was in 1908, six years before the world war broke out. Christianity teaches brotherly love and Christianity is tied up with Jesus Christ, said Rev. Mr. Parker. Christianity teaches us the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man. God has done His part but man has not done his part. As soon as we have the brotherhood of man we will have the Kingdom of God on earth Roosevelt was an exponent of that brotherhood of man, said Rev. Mr Parker in closing.

Mr. McNeely then favored with another solo, Before You Came and his encore was For You Alone. Refreshments of coffee and doughnuts were served and cigars circulated. Rev. Lionel E. W. Mitchell, rector of the church, entertained with a recitation, A Colored Man's Version of Lazerus and the Rich Man. The pleasant evening came to a close with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. During the evening a concert programme was rendered by Heimbold's orchestra.

President McKinley announced that the next meeting of the club the speaker will be Dr. Charles P. Tinker of Nutley, N. J., formerly chaplain of the Tomb's prison in New York city.

Good Evidence.

Hewitt—"What makes you think that Gruet is insane?" Jewett—"He has had his life insurance made payable to his mother-in-law."

ARMY-NAVY CLASHES WITH FLOTILLA FIVE AT PARISH HALL THIS EVENING

HARRY MILLS
High Scorer for Army-Navy

For the Second time this season the submarine base team and the Army-Navy five will clash at Parish Hall this evening. The first encounter resulted in a victory for the Army-Navy team. Fans that witnessed the first game will agree that despite the fact that the score was one-sided it was without doubt one of the best games seen on the local court this season and it was not until the last few minutes of play that the Army-Navy five piled up a comfortable lead.

The Sub Base will use the same line-up as in the first game. Comton and Osgood, formerly of the U. S. S. Birmingham championship team of the Pacific fleet last year will play the forward positions. Green, star center of the Naval Academy team for two seasons will jump at center. Harris and Barta, members of the Hampton Roads quintet, champions of the Eastern Coast last year will be at the guard positions. Keohoe and O'Hara will be on the reserve list.

The Army-Navy club has been [illegible] and so far this season [illegible] record of 13 victories out of 15 games played and after the double defeat of Plainfield last week [illegible] another victory in to-[illegible].

[illegible] for the local team will be Capt. [illegible] Belair, forwards; Mills, [illegible] and Coleman, guards. [illegible] in the utility role. [illegible] a fast preliminary game, [illegible] not yet having been [illegible].

RED SOX RECRUITS START FOR SOUTHERN CAMP

Boston Feb. 18.—The southern exodus of the Boston Red Sox began tonight when Pitcher Curtis B. Fullerton and Outfielder John Dunaghue, both of this city, boarded a train for San Antonio, Texas, with Secretary James Price. Lee Fohl, the manager with two recruits, will join them at Cleveland and at St. Louis other battery members are expected to do likewise.

The first "rookie" practice is set for next Friday at San Antonio and the rest of the team are scheduled to report there the week after. The men will leave their camp on March 11, according to schedule, playing at Fort Worth, Dallas, Shreveport, La., Memphis, and Louisville on their way back to Boston.

Before leaving here today Price said that three more men had signed contracts. These were Outfielder Joseph G. Connolly, formerly of the Cleveland Indians, and Pitchers Alex Ferguson and J. R. Turner. Ferguson played with the Red Sox last year and Turner with the Paris, Texas, club.

RUPPERT DONATES USE OF STADIUM FOR OLYMPICS

New York, Feb. 18.—The use of the Yankee stadium for the eastern Olympic preliminary trials, scheduled for June 7, has been attended free of charge by Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the world's baseball champions, the American Olympic Committee disclosed today.

Proceeds of the eastern trials, as well as the seven other sectional tryouts planned to give athletes throughout the country an opportunity to make the 1924 international team, will go toward the $350,000 fund needed for the invasion of Paris. No prizes will be awarded winners of the tryouts but athletes gaining the first three places in each event probably will be given certificates of merit.

In donating the Yankee Stadium, Colonel Ruppert asked that the Hammer, javelin and discus throws be held elsewhere so as not to injure the baseball playing surface. As a result these events will be staged at McComb's Dam Park, which adjoins the stadium.

DEMPSEY AND GIBBONS ARE EXPECTED TO SIGN TODAY

New York, Feb. 18. — Negotiations for the proposed return world's heavyweight battle in New York about June 1 between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons may be completed tomorrow at a conference between Promoter Tex Rickard and Jack Kearns, manager of the titleholder.

Several weeks ago Rickard announced he had arranged the match but Kearns has not yet signed articles, although it is understood he and the promoter are in agreement on terms. Eddie Kane Gibbons' manager, already has accepted terms on behalf of the St. Paul boxer, who stayed the limit with the champion at Shelby, Montana, last July.

Rickard said today he probably would build an arena somewhere in the metropolitan district which would be available for the Dempsey-Gibbons encounter as well as the prospective return match between Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo. He is disinclined to use either the Polo grounds or Yankee stadium because of seating difficulties in these fields.

Dempsey, according to Kearns, is expected to return to New York next Saturday.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL MEET AT "Y" THIS AFTERNOON

Some exciting competition is assured for the Y. M. C. A. gym this afternoon, when the athletic teams representing Broadway, Greeneville and Elizabeth street grammar schools meet to determine the school athletic supremacy, and incidentally "cop" the Ferguson trophy cup, which has been contributed by John A. Ferguson to help stimulate the big contest.

Each of the three schools has had preliminary meets for the purpose of selecting their best athletes, and each school has made some good records which it is expected will be broken this afternoon. Many school children are expecting to attend the meet to cheer for their school team, and special bleachers are being set up to accommodate the spectators. A special section will be reserved for the general public.

The meet will start as promptly at 4 p. m. as is possible and Physical Director Fritz has made arrangements so that the contest will be conducted systematically and without delay. The events are as follows: basketball relay race, potato race, obstacle relay race, standing broad jump and 15-foot rope climb.

MUST POST $50,000 OR RINGO-WILLS BOUT OFF

New York, Feb. 18. — Luis Angel Firpo today notified the syndicate which intends to promote a contest between the South American champion and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, that unless the sum of $50,000 was placed to his credit in Buenos Aires before the end of this week, all negotiations for the proposed bout would be considered cancelled.

The information was contained in a cable received by Billy McCarney, Firpo's American representative, who subsequently transmitted it to Lew Raymond, spokesman for the syndicate.

Raymond advised McCarney that not only would the $50,000 be posted to Firpo's credit within the next few days, but in addition the syndicate would further agree that unless the sum of $100,000 was turned over to Firpo within 48 hours after his arrival here, the original $50,000 would be given to the Argentine as a forfeit.

Young Coulon After DeForest

Young Coulon of Taftville is anxious to take a slam at Young DeForest of Danielson if a match can be arranged. Young Coulon who has been in New Bedford for the past few months is developing into some little bantamweight and will give the fans their money's worth. He predicts that he can put the Danielson boy away in even quicker time than did Falcone.

Celtics Beat Emps

The Taftville Celtics defeated the "Y" Emps Saturday by the score of 16 to 15. The game was fast and interesting. The teams have signed up for a three game series in the near future.

The men chosen are Gerald L. Patterson, former world's champion; Pat O'Hara Wood and R. E. Schlesinger, all of whom have been on previous Davis cup teams, and F. Kalms.

Kalms is practically unknown outside of Australia.

MISS KENNEDY RETAINS BERMUDA GOLF TITLE

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 18.—By defeating Mrs. George A. Plimpton of New York, 2 up and 1 to play, in the finals of the eighteen hole contest on the Riddell's Bay golf course here today, Miss Sybil Kennedy of Montreal, provincial champion of Quebec, retained for Canada the women's golf title of Bermuda. The championship was won last winter for the first time by Miss Willow Gage of Toronto.

Tomorrow sixty contenders from the United States, Canada, England and Bermuda will begin competition for the Riddell's Bay amateur championship.

JOCK MALONE RECEIVES OFFER TO FIGHT TODD ABROAD

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, tonight received an offer of $12,500 and expenses from a syndicate of London sportsmen to meet Roland Todd, British middleweight champion, in a 20 round contest to a decision in London in April.

Malone recently outpointed the British champion in a contest in Boston.

Todd expects to return to England shortly.

HARVARD BEATS TIGERS IN OVERTIME HOCKEY GAME

Boston, Feb. 18.—Harvard hockey team defeated Princeton here tonight, 2 to 1, the game running to two overtime periods. Princeton took the lead in the first period when E. Davis scored on a pass from Sayles. Austin tied the score in the second period on a long shot that bounced off the goal tender's pads. Neither team could break the tie until Beals of Harvard after 15 minutes 53 seconds of overtime play, netted a pass from Crosby.

Pal Moore Gets Decision.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Pal Moore won a decision over John McCoy of Cleveland in an eight round bout here tonight.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Larry Pratt of Peoria, former catcher, who retired from active playing several years ago, has been signed as a member of the Three-I League umpiring staff.

Herb Sudbrook, leading strikeout pitcher of the Mississippi Valley League last season, has been sold by the Rock Island Club to the new Moline Club of the League.

The Austin Club of the Texas Association announces the engagement of Outfilder Cecil Griggs as its manager for the coming season. He succeeds Rankin Johnson.

Report from Seattle is that the Seattle Club will swap Pitcher Jim Bagby, formerly of Cleveland, to Atlanta. Manager Bert Niehoff of the Atlanta team believes Bagby's arm will come back in the south.

Two transfers were made by the Houston Club last week. Pitcher Walter Schultz was railroaded back to Syracuse and Ed Handley, third baseman, was sold to Winston-Salem of the Piedmont League.

Scotty Finley, who was taken from Los Angeles to Boston by Frank Chance last year to be trainer of the Boston Red Sox, is back in the Coast League, having been signed by the Portland Club as its trainer.

Catcher Ralph (Cy) Perkins of the Philadelphia Athletics is a married man now. At Glouster, Mass., recently he led a Miss Rachel Nauss to the altar. She will not accompany him on the training trip to Montgomery.

The St. Louis Cardinals' first squad will be among the early birds, it being announced that a batch of battery men and rookies will report at Bradentown on February 18 with Assistant Manager Bert Shotten in charge.

The Los Angeles Club last week announced the sale of Pitcher Claude (Lefty) Thomas to the Shreveport Club, but Thomas says he won't accept any such transfer and that if he can't stay in the Coast League he will quit baseball.

Leo McDonnell, catcher, who managed the Grand Island team of the Nebraska State League part of last season and wound up as a back stop with Omaha, has been signed by the Peoria Club of the Three-I League for 1924 season.

Izzy Brandrimer, the little Jew infielder who was with Little Rock last season, isn't out of the Southern League yet. The Little Rock Club had planned to send him to Muskogee, but Chattanooga stepped in and claimed him on waivers.

Some 40 or more directors, stockholders and fans of Cincinnati are planning to make the training trip to Florida with the Reds and Pat Moran. With all that bunch on land the players will have a sweet time trying to keep their minds on the grind.

Hubert Pruett, clever southpaw of the St. Louis Browns, and former University of Missouri star, will this spring act as coach of the baseball squad of his alma mater, meanwhile also getting into condition himself. He will join the Browns in camp at Mobile later.

The club owners of the Pacific coast league have voted $1,000 to the widow of William J. Slattery, veteran San Francisco baseball writer, who died recently. Slattery was ill for several months before his death and as a result his family was left in straightened circumstances.

Merito Acosta, outfielder of the Louisville Club, came all the way from Havana to Louisville to have a specialist reset the ankle he broke last season and which was not properly handled in the first operation. He is promised that when the ankle heals again it will be as good as ever.

Charles Lee, aged 45, former sporting editor of the New Orleans Daily States and well known among baseball men in the south, committed suicide by shooting himself on February 4, in a down town office building in New Orleans. No cause for the act was disclosed in a police investigation.

The American League has decided that until June 1 the visiting team shall be allowed 30 minutes of batting practice before each game, instead of 20 minutes. After the first of June, the batters will get only the old 20 minutes, it being the idea that by that time they should be limbered up.

Cletus Dixon, former University of Chicago star and for two years past with the Cedar Rapids team, was last week traded to Waterloo that he might become manager of that team succeeding Bert Whalen. Dixon started his baseball career as an outfielder, but last year played most of his game at first bast for Cedar Rapids.

Down in Cuba they put small photos of popular ball players in packages of cigarettes. A number of the Southern, Texas and Association players who went to Havana last fall to spend the winter as participants in Cuban winter league games are sending to their friends in the states these miniature photos as evidence of how "popular" they are.

An interesting story came from New York that Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees fancies, from reports he has at hand, that Earl Combs, outfielder purchased from Louisville, may have the makings of an infielder in him, and that with a slim chance to break into the Yanks' infield, he may be used as an understudy for Everett Scott.

The veteran Jack Egan, who has been signed to manage the Scranton team in the New York-Pennsylvania League, will have as his assistant and field captain this year William (Red) Lowrance, who acted as captain of the Scranton team much of last season. Lowrance had a big year with Scranton and is one of the few players who will be retained.

Only 14 major league ball clubs out of 16 in existence sought the services of Paul Florence, catcher of the Georgetown University team, but he decided to take John McGraw's offer, according to the Gotham publicity agents. After the first of June Flossie will be wondering why all those 13 other clubs that wanted him so much waived him to the bushes.

The Fort Worth Club last week made another sale, disposing of Outfielder Chink Taylor to Beaumont. The latter club takes him on to replace Outfielder Lavallee, the outfielder who had been bought from the New York Yankees, but the deal for whom was cancelled when the Yankees decided to send him to Omaha in part payment for Pitcher Harry Cullop.

Charles (Hunky) Schorr, formerly with Seattle, but let out because of a lame arm, is going to attempt a comeback with San Francisco. Trainer Denny Carroll of the Seals saw Schorr pitch some winter league ball, his arm looked all right and it was decided to take him on. He is the second former Seattle pitcher now with San Francisco, the other one being George Berger.

The Boston Americans last week transferred Pitcher Dan Boone to the Mobile Club of the Southern League. Boone recently was obtained by the Red Sox from Cleveland, along with Catcher Steve O'Neil. He is no stranger in the Southern League, the Cleveland Club having gotten him from Chattanooga. He is a brother of Ike Boone, outfielder with the Red Sox.

The New York Yankees, too, it is rumored, will pitch their camp in Florida in the spring of 1925, just as Connie Mack has decided to do with his Athletics. The publicity agents have gotten hold of Miller Huggins during his stay in Florida this winter and made him so dizzy he's willing to tell them anything if they will just let him alone for a few hours.

The St. Louis Cardinals are going in for enough red to make the world mad. In addition to red stockings and that famous red bird on their blouses, Manager Branch Rickey has decided the players shall wear red undershirts under their blouses, the sleeves to show. It will be a picture of red legs, red arms and red breasts, with red belts and a touch of red on the caps.

Ed Hemmingway, who played third base for Sacramento last season, makes announcement that he has gone into the lumber business, has great prospects and means to quit baseball. He has notified the Sacramento Club to that effect—and taken the precaution to ask for his release. Just why he should want a release if he has quit baseball is not so clear, but then you never can tell what a ball player means to do from what he says.

BROADWAY THEATRE

An excellent Paramount picturization of Zane Grey's new novel, The Call of the Canyon, which was shown for the first time with unusually gratifying results at the Broadway theatre last night, is a story of a hero of the World war who finds health, happiness and love in the rugged, half civilized cattle ranges of Arizona.

The period depicted in the picture is that following the armistice, after the overseas army had arrived home and the wounded were being transported from France at irregular intervals. Richard Dix, Lois Wilson and Marjorie Daw are featured in the principal roles.

Glenn Kilbourne, returning to America from the front, looks forward to meeting his sweetheart, Carley Burch. His health shattered, the doctor orders him to seek a dry climate. But Carley is reluctant to give up the luxuries of city life and accompany him. She does, however, pay Kilbourne a visit at the ranch in Arizona. Carley is disillusioned when she learns of Glenn's occupation on a hog ranch and is deeply jealous in the knowledge of wits is waged by two girls for the affectations of Glenn. An odd, though pleasing, climax brings the production to a close.

Supporting the featured players in The Call of the Canyon is a cast of stellar prominence. In the principal roles are Noah Beery, Alcardo Cortez, Fred Huntley and Lillian Leighton. Others include Helen Dunbar, Leonard Clayton, Danny Hoy, Arthur Rankin and Mervyn Le Roy. Victor Fleming directed the production which was adapted by Doris Schroeder and Edfrid Bingham. James Howe was the photographer.

Short subjects on the bill included a Dan Mason comedy and a News Kinograms.

CHICAGO STOCK CAST IN "SMILIN' THROUGH"

The Chicago Stock Company opened a week's engagement at the Palace theatre on Monday when "Smilin' Through" made famous by Jane Cowl was presented with a charm that almost equal to the original production. "Smilin' Through" is a play that requires no little talent to do it justice. The dramatic situations and tender pathos of the production requires more than the ordinary dramatic talent to convey them to the audience. The Chicago Stock Company possessed these requisites and the cast is one that displayed ability in scoring in the play.

Each member of the cast was well chosen and executed his or her portrayals of the part with remarkable charm. Miss Jean white, feminine star of the company, gave a very charming interpretation of the role of Kathlee Dungannon, the leading feminine character of the play. Playing opposite Miss White as leading man Jack Berry who makes a most acceptable Kenneth Wayne, the hero of the production. The real character work is contributed by Edmund Mos and W. James Bedell, as John Carteret and Dr. Owen Harding, the two life-long friends and guardians of Kathleen. Their work is exceptional especially that of Mr. Moses. The remainder of the cast is equally as well chosen.

The play for today will be "Six Cylinder Love" a rollicking automobile comedy that will give the company a chance to show that they can produce comedy as well as heavier plays.

AT THE STRAND

The big time vaudeville playing the theatre for the first half of the week is a very attractive program and opened to capacity yesterday. The bill is well balanced and has some novel features that is very pleasing.

Josie Flynn's minstrels with seven people is a musical revue that is full of pep and ginger they are capable of giving a complete show, however variety is the spice of life, so the time is limited to make room for four other big time acts.

Novelle Brothers are tumbling clowns. They have some very clever stuff. They introduce the Farmer Loving Nightingales you'll like them.

Du Ball and McKensie were the dancing features with Raymond Hitchcock in Hitchy Koo. Last season they were with Will Rogers in Ziegfeld Follies. The boys are eccentric singers and dancers. Their songs are written especially for them and the dances are a brand of their own. There is humor in everything they do. Du Ball and McKensie are a pair of artists and they are well named.

Don Alfonso Zelaya, the Central American pianist, is one of the greatest vaudeville artists on the stage today.

His life reads like a romance. His father Zelaya, was once president of Nicaragua. A revolution in the country forced him to abdicate and come to the United States. His most astounding accomplishment is to play numbers by request. He will play any classical selection you ask for.

Munroe and Mac are in a class by themselves when it comes to singing and dancing. They are the kind that you will say are great.

The screen attraction is Regina Denny in Sporting Youth, is a comedy drama written by Byron Morgan author of the famous "roaring road" stories published in the Satuday Evening Post, several of which were later filmed starring the late Wallace Reid. The action is centered around the adventures of the good looking chauffeur who is mistaken for a famous racing driver. The chap has a hard time trying to explain the mistake and eventfully "railroaded" into the big road race.

The picture is literally crammed with thrills. The big annual Labor Day road race at San Louis Obispo California, was filmed in connection with the making of the picture and several natural accidents added to the spectacular action of the race stage by the Denny company.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Centenary of the birth of Orlando W. Wight, noted American author and author.

Lodges of the Knights of Pythias today will celebrate the 60th anniversary of the founding of their order.

Student teams of Williams college and Wesleyan and Cornell universities will engage in a triangular debate this evening.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Agriculture will open at Regina today, with delegates attending from nearly all of the Provinces.

A run-off primary will be held in Louisiana today to determine the contest for the democratic gubernatorial nomination between Hewitt Bouanchaud and Henry L. Fuqua.

Under the Red Robe Grows in Popularity

Under the Red Robe, the $1,500,000 picture with Robert B. Mantell, John Thomas and Alma Rubens in the feature roles, which is achieving a popularity seldom won by a film, is now in its third day of its highly successful engagement at the Breed theatre.

Under the Red Robe is winning enthusiastic approbation from motion picture fans who throng the theatre twice daily to see the authentic unfolding of the grandeur, romance and intrigue of France in the days of Cardinal Richelieu.

As a background are magnificent settings of the palace of Louis XIII, the Cardinal's palace, the castle of Cocheteret and other historic buildings. The romance between Gil de Berault and Renee, the forest scenes of haunting beauty, the thrilling struggle on a cliff between the captain of the King's guard and a retainer of the King's enemy bring added splendor and thrill to the picture.

A brilliant cast supports the three featured players. It includes: Otto Kruger, George Nash, Rose Coghlan, Ian MacLaren, Genevieve Hampe, William H. Powell, Mary McLaren, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Sydney Herbert, Andrew Dillon, Arthur Housman, Paul Panzer and Martin Faust.

At State Armory, Willimantic

Paul Whiteman's wonderful band which is now on furlough from the S. S. Lewiathan which is undergoing repairs after figuring in an accident, and touring parts of New England and through the efforts of Co. C of the 169th Connecticut Infantry, have been secured for an engagement in this city at the State Armory on Saturday, February 23.

The band are famous for inserting clever novelty numbers and vaudeville during the performance. Mr. Pitman is an actor and comedian in addition to being probably the best performer on the difficult bass saxophone. With the outfit which is coming here the renditions are sure to "go over big". The orchestra will also play for their patrons the four S. S. "Leviathan" records, "Louisville Lou", "Tell Me a Story", "Down the River" and "Tut-Ankl-Amen".

When you wake up at daylight and can't go to sleep again it's a sign it's a holiday.

NEWPORT PEOPLE SEND UP HOWL OVER DEMPSEY-WILLS BOUT THERE JULY 4TH

Newport, R. I., Feb. 18.—Aroused by a proposal to stage a world championship boxing bout between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight contender, on 4 fashionable Ocean Drive, almost directly in front of a number of Newport's finest summer estates and the country club, on July 4, members of the summer colony here have united almost unanimously in protest against the holding of the bout.

Out of 30 letters and telegrams received by the board of aldermen up to tonight, many of them from groups of residents and friends, only one, that of Norman D. R. Whitehouse, failed to express active opposition to the fight. A license had been sought from the board of aldermen by the Rhode Island department, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Unfavorable action on the petition at the board meeting Wednesday, as a result of the summer resident's attitude, was forecast tonight.

Among those who voiced their objection to the holding of the bout are Mrs. Paul Fitz Zimmons, Mrs. Richard Janbrill, T. Suffern Tailer, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver G. Jennings, Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore, Henry O. Havemeyer, Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs and John Aspegren, all of Newport and New York.

The site of the proposed bout would have been directly in front of the estate of Lewis Case Ledyard of New York.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE.

New York, Feb. 18.—Speculators for the decline regained control of today's stock market by launching a series of attacks against speculative rails and industrials which carried them down 1 to 3 points and forced a number of them below the resistance points obtained in the drastic decline last Friday. The bear attacks started after the week-end buying orders had been disposed of, opening prices displaying a rather firm tone.

Selling of stocks undoubtedly was influenced by the latest Washington oil developments, including the resignation of Secretary Denby; announcement of the decision of the house republicans to boost the proposed maximum surtax rate in the revenue bill to 37 1-2 per cent, and the acute weakness of French and Belgian francs, which established new low records for all time. A bearish bulletin by a stock market advisory service also was regarded in some quarters as a contributing factor.

Operators on the long side showed a disposition to suspend their operations, pending more definite developments in Washington, while powerful financial interests, with the Japanese government loan out of the way and allotments cut to sixty per cent, had no particular incentive in providing support at current levels. What little trade news appeared during the day was of a constructive stock market character, the principal item being another increase in the price of copper which carried it up to 13 1-2 cents a pound.

U. S. Steel common sold as low as 102, closing 1-8 above that figure for a net loss of 3 3-4 points on the day. Baldwin dropped back three points to 120, American Can showed a net loss of 4 1-4 at 110 7-8 and Studebaker broke below par and closed 2 1-2 lower at 99 1-2.

Net losses of 2 or more points also were recorded by more than fifty other issues including Allied Chemical, Corn Products, Cuba Cane preferred, Dupont, General Electric, Mariann, Republic Steel, Tobacco Products, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, American Car and Foundry, Air Reduction, Chandler Motors, Gulf States Steel, Davison Chemical, Houston Oil, Pure Oil, Otis Elevator and National Lead.

Rails offered better resistance than industrials although losses of a point or more were recorded by Erie, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, St. Paul preferred, Chicago and Northwestern, Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred and Northern Pacific.

Call money held at 4 1-4 per cent all day, time money rates were somewhat firmer, funds being quoted at 4 3-4 and 5 instead of 4 1-2 and 4 3-4, the ruling quotations last week. The bulk of prime commercial paper continues to move at 4 3-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange developed a reactionary trend, demand sterling being fairly steady, around $4.43 but French francs broke 25 points to 4.12 1-2 cents, a record low for all time, and Belgian franch dropped 24 points to 3.50 1-2, also a record low. Selling which originated largely in Paris, apparently was based on the delay in the adoption of Premier Poincare's fiscal program.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 18.—Bond prices wavered in a dull trading session today in sympathy with a further decline in the stock market and under the burden of absorbing the Japanese loan.

Allotments of the new Japanese bonds were made on a varying scale ranging from 40 to almost 80 per cent, with an average basis of about 60 per cent. Total subscriptions approximated $250,000,000, close to $100,000,000 in excess of the amount offered. Final allotments to industrial corporations were less than $4,000,000, but it was indicated that they received the smallest percentage of all subscribers.

Trading in the Japanese issues lagged, and the prices of other foreign government bonds moved within narrow and irregular limits. U. S. government issues also yielded fractionally.

General heaviness marked dealings in the railroad list, with numerous speculative issues recording losses and Northern Pacific bonds weakening on the government's threat to deprive it of additional land grants. Convertible Sugar and Copper issues were forced lower by the slump in stock prices, recent active bonds such as Punta Alegre 7s, Eastern Cuba 7 1-2s and Cerro De Pasco 8s losing a point or more.

Prospective early financing is said to include a Burlington issue for less than $20,000,000 and an offering of the $6,000,000 Hocking Valley 2-year 5s, authorized by the interstate commerce commission. Bankers also indicated that the groundwork was being laid for future Hungarian and Swedish loans.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Grain prices showed a downward tendency today, largely as a result of New York stock market weakness which appeared to intimidate buyers here and made sellers become bolder. Wheat closed unsettled, 3-4 cents to 1c net lower, May 1.09 7-8 to 110 and July 1.03 5-8@3-4 to 1.09 3-4. Corn lost 3-8 to 3-4@7-8, and oats a shade to 1-4c. In provisions, the outcome was unchanged to 7c down.

Setbacks in wheat values began within a few minutes after the opening, and continued throughout the day, except for occasional slight rallies. Persistent selling and inadequate buying support characterized the trade until the end. Selling came chiefly from commission houses and pit speculators and although of only moderate volume proved to be more of a weight than the market could sustain without yielding to a considerable extent. This was especially the case after announcement that all the plants of a Chicago flour milling concern had shut down for an indefinite period because of lack of flour buying.

Increased receipts of wheat at primary points acted as more than an offset for a decrease in the visible supply total. Meanwhile, world shipments of wheat were heavy, and a decided enlargement of the amount of wheat on ocean passage together with growing seriousness of the British dock strike counted as a further handicap for wheat. Bulls, on the other hand, talk about impaired prospects of winter wheat and about expected reduction of spring wheat acreage failed to stimulate demand.

Liberal arrivals of corn here, nearly 900 cars, had a depressing effect on the corn market and on oats as well. Besides, total receipts of corn at primary points were more than double the amount a year ago.

Provisions sagged in response to a decline in hog values.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 18.—Stock prices developed a reactionary trend in today's curb market when selling pressure developed against the oil shares. Prairie Oil & Gas and Magnolia Petroleum each dropped 5 points, Imperial Oil, 3 1-2; and Standard Oil of Indiana, Prairie Pipe, Continental and Cities Service a point or so.

Industrials held fairly steady during the morning but eventually weakened with the rest of the list. Dubilier Radio and United Bakeries Corporation each lost about two points on the day, the former rallying moderately above its low price of the day. Ward Baking B advanced nearly a point.

Mining shares held relatively firm with speculative interest centering in the penny issues.

The newly authorized stock of the P. Lorillard company was admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis but there were no transactions.

PLAINFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Butterworth left on the Sunday evening train for New York on their way to Florida. They will visit Mrs. Georgiana Lawton at her home in Orlando, arriving this (Tuesday) afternoon.

The Worcester Variety Orchestra is to be in Plainfield to play at the Community House for the special Washington program.

Joseph Beausoleil is taking an electrical course at the trade school at Putnam, attending three nights a week.

The Ladies' Aid Society is to meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Alfred D. Ashley.

George Skinner, who was injured recently on the Evans ice pond, is able to get about, although still quite lame.

The Girl Scouts will meet this Tuesday evening at the Community House, in charge of Miss Neisle Hartwell.

One of the new periodicals on the Plainfield library table at the Community House which is attracting atten is Bird Lore. This magazine is devoted to the study and protection of birds and is beautifully illustrated. It will prove popular with the children and young people of the public schools.

There is to be a double program at the Plainfield Grange this Tuesday evening, the program being arranged by the new lecturer, Mrs. Ernest E. Buell.

The tenth cottage service will be held this week Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Jeffers.

Samuel Baldwin and Thomas Barber were in Oneyville last week visiting the Providence Bleaching and Finishing Company. While in the mill they caught a glimpse of William Prentiss, who is employed there.

This will be a great week for basket ball at the Community House, for games are scheduled for three nights Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The first game this evening will bring together a crowd from out of town as Killingly High will meet Plainfield High.

After a young man has accepted a situation he soon discovers that he has to work just as hard as the one who got a job.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL TAKES ACTION ON DEATH OF THOMAS M. WALLER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Nellie Nevins Peckham, 36, wife of Howard S. Peckham of 211 Howard street, died at Lawrence hospital this morning, in which institution she had been under treatment for kidney trouble only since Friday. Besides her husband, she is survived by nine children, two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Connors and Miss Mary Nevins and a brother, John Nevins, all of New London.

Alfred H. Foote, commissioner of the department of public safety at Boston, has communicated with the New London authorities, stating that he holds a warrant for the arrest of Michael Loughran, charged with exploding dynamite in a building with intent to destroy. A description of Loughran was also received.

Patrolman Michael Corcoran will be confined to his home on Crystal avenue several days as a result of a fall on a slippery sidewalk this morning. The officer was passing through State street at 6.40 o'clock when he stepped upon the iron casing to the cellar entrance of the store of Leverone & Manente. The iron was covered with snow and the officer was thrown to the sidewalk. Patrolman Corcoran struck his hip in such a manner as to cause considerable pain, so much so that he was forced to report off duty.

Mrs. William Bradford of Westerly, James Baggs, Mansfield Depot, George Morris, Worcester, Mass., Orrin Brown, Quaker Hill, Mrs. Robert Meadnis and infant daughter, Thames street, Joseph Casimona, Steward street, Mrs. Bearthile Lawrence, Shaw street, Mrs. Florence Hart, Waterford, Eugene Woods, Poquonoc road, Groton, John Stuart, Willetts avenue, and Mrs. Alice Howard of Starr street patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Andrew J. Phillips, whose death occurred in Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, assisted by members of W. W. Perkins post, G. A. R., of which order Mr. Phillips had been a member many years. Members of the post acted as bearers. The committal was in Jordan cemetery and the service was conducted by Union lodge, Mr. Phillips having been one of the order's oldest members.

Funeral services for James H. Ames were held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiating. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Giovannina Pesqua has sold a house and lot on Jefferson avenue to Antonio and Guiseppi Grillo.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Irving Dean, 19 Garfield avenue, to be returned to the owner. The license was suspended several weeks ago, following Dean's conviction in the Waterford town court on the charge of reckless driving.

O .E. Neff, 16 Lincoln court, was in the Waterford town court this afternoon, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 90 days in jail, but the execution of the jail sentence was suspended, by Justice Thomas F. Morton. Neff was operating his automobile last evening in Waterford and in passing Station 24 1-2 he lost control of the steering mechanism, with the result his machine crashed against a motionless car at Darrow's garage. The state police barracks at Groton were communicated with Officer Burns who placed Neff under arrest, following an investigation. Today Neff did not have sufficient funds to pay his fine, but has made arrangements to do so tomorrow.

The automobile owned and operated by Emilio Falconi, of Noank, was in collision last night on Fort Hill, Groton, with a car owned and operated by Chester Gould, of Elm street, Noank. Falconi is alleged to have been under the influence of liquor and was arrested by State Policeman Schwerger. He will be presented in Groton town court next Monday morning. Gould was also ordered to appear in court the same day as Falconi, to answer a charge of violation of the automobile laws in operating his car with improper markers.

Peter Mros, 111 North Bank street, was taken into custody in Groton on Saturday evening by State Policeman Thomas F. Henry, charged with reckless driving of an automobile. He was given a hearing in the Groton town court this morning, but a continuance was granted by Judge Cornelius C. Costello until next Monday morning. Mros is alleged to have been operating his automobile on the Poquonoc road and to have cut in front of a car owned and driven by Bruno Benvenuti, of 9 Chelsea street, this city, the collision resulting in damage to Benvenuti's machine.

Morris Furth, familiar to New London residents for more than two generations as an expert in the care of sewing machines, is very ill with pneumonia at his home on Colt street, east of the armory. As he is in his 85th year his illness is of a critical nature but there are hopes that he will recover. Mrs. Furth died a year ago this month.

The ice dealers have been able to harvest ice of a thickness of seven and a half to nine inches. The ice is of good quality for there has been practically no snow and no thaw since the ice formed. What little snow fell could be swept from the ponds. The prospect is for more ice, if the receptacles for it will hold more.

Donald Chapman of Sigourney street, Hartford, was fined $100 in the police court this morning for operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was arrested on the 2d inst., but he was not presented in court until today.

John Vrenowski of Montville, a novice at operating an automobile, was fined $25 for recklessness in causing a collision between his car and a Waterbury truck that was passing along the highway between New London and Montville. The Montville man lost his head when he got into a tight squeeze and banged into the truck.

Robert McDermott has not been supporting his wife, so she sought to compel him to do his duty toward her and his two minor children. Probation Officer Mansfield was taken into the confidence of the pair and an arrangement was made by which McDermott will change his methods and contribute to the support of his family. That he may carry out his promise the case was adjourned till the 24 of May and McDermott was allowed his liberty, on his own recognizance.

A persistent rumor was circulated today to the effect that Rev. Edward R. Flynn of Niantic had received a communication purporting to have been written by members of the Ku Klux Klan, who caused a fiery cross to be erected on McCook's Point, Niantic, last week, and in which the clergyman was threatened because of his alleged tendencies against the teachings of the order. Inquiry at the residence of Father Flynn on Prospect street, Niantic, this afternoon disclosed that the clergyman was in Bridgeport and would not return before Thursday, but from the priest's brother, it was ascertained that Father Flynn had not received any such letter as rumored. It was reported that the clergyman had observed the cross ablaze, had gone to the place and had caused the fire to be extinguished by pulling the cross from its supports and because of this alleged action by the priest the ire of the Klan was fired and the supposed communication written. A brother of Father Flynn stated that he had heard of the alleged communication having been forwarded to the priest, but denied that such was the case.

At the time of the burning of the cross on McCook's Point, other crosses were set afire, two of them in New London and two more in Norwich.

Dr. Ephraim Shorr, connected with Yale, is in New London, being the guest for several days of Dr. Alfred Labensky of Bilnman street. Drs. Labensky and Shorr are classmates at Yale.

Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner has returned to her home in New York, having been the guest for several days of Mrs. Thomas Spiers, of Mohegan avenue.

Laurence Frazier has resumed his duties as messenger in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, having spent several days in Brattleboro, Vt., where he witnessed the skiing tournament.

Marion Lewis, colored, of 211 North Bank street, who caused the arrest of Stillman Peckham, white, of the same address late Saturday night, when Peckham is alleged to have knocked down the woman by striking her with his fist following an altercation on North Bank street, withdrew her complaint this morning, prior to the convening of the police court.

Allan T. MacDonald, 82, a former resident of Danbury, died Sunday at the Odd Fellows' home at Groton, where he had been a resident some time.

At the weekly meeting of the city council this evening resolutions were unanimously passed in respect to the memory of Former Governor Thomas M. Waller, whose death occurred a fortnight ago. The resolutions set forth that Thomas MacDonald Waller had held a high place in the councils of the city, state and nation, and had contributed much to the betterment of his beloved city and state.

The council of which the late Thomas MacDonald Waller was long an honored member, proclaimed the imperishable value of the high ideals, lofty principles and community building for which he strove. The council united with his family and with the city and state in mourning the passing of one who faithfully served as councilman, mayor, governor and American consul.

Mrs. Arthur Damon of 16 Lenox street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was able to return home today.

Mrs. E. E. Tabor, 90, sustained painful injuries at her home at the Golden Spur, Waterford, last evening, when she fell down stairs, getting a gash in her head which required five stitches to close. Besides she has bruises about the body. Because of Mrs. Tabors advanced years the result of the shock to her physical system cannot be foretold. Mrs. Tabor was going to descend the stairs. Her foot caught on one of the upper stairs, causing her to be thrown headlong to the bottom.

Pioneer Hose company of Groton was called out Sunday afternoon to quell a fire at the home of Ira S. Avery of Groton, cashier at the New London City National bank. The fire was located in a chimney, soot becoming ignited, and was quickly subdued with chemicals.

Rev. Philip M. Karridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, is confined to his home, suffering from a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism. Rev. Mr. Karridge's duties are being done by Rev. C. S. M. Stewart.

Mrs. Frederick J. Bacon of the Hotel Mohican apartments, is spending a few days in New York.

Mrs. Charles B. Gardner of Blackhall street, is in New York for several days.

MYSTIC

Those who attend the Baptist church these days are to be commended for their faithfulness, for entrance to the front of the church is now impossible owing to the condition of the roadwork under way, and entrance to the church has to be made from the side entrances through the basement, up inside stairs into the church. The face wall in front of the church has been removed and excavating has been carried on right up to the edge of the front steps so that the church has somewhat the appearance of being suspended in mid air.

Williams Woman's Relief Corps No. 41 is to meet this evening.

Herbert S. Davis has returned to New York after spending the week-end at his home in the village.

The diamond jubilee celebration observances of Mistuxet Lodge No. 42, Knights of Pythias, passed off successfully Monday evening and were much enjoyed by those who attended.

The choir of the Congregational church has recently been vested, adopting black caps and gowns with white collars, worn Sunday for the first time.

Frederic H. Cranston of Norwich was a visitor here Sunday.

Rev. G. E. Tobin of Christ Episcopal church, Westerly, preached at St. Mark's church Sunday morning in exchange with Rev. J. P. Beauchamp.

Miss Rosamond Holmes has returned, after spending the week-end in Waltham, Mass.

Hiram Burnet is confined to his home by illness.

The missionary society of the Baptist church is to meet this (Tuesday) afternoon with Mrs. Elias F. Wilcox at her home in Quiambaug. The members will take the 6 o'clock car.

The river is frozen over above the bridge and the boys have been skating on the upper portion of it the last few days.

Fire was discovered Saturday morning about 8 o'clock in the store of Conrad Kratzer, corner of Pearl and West Main streets. The fire was on the north side of the building and was between the ceiling and upper floor, and it is not known whether it started around the chimney or from wires. An alarm was rung and the fire was soon subdued although there was considerable damage to the building and stock.

Shortly after 12 o'clock an alarm was rung in for a fire at the residence of Charles Heydecker on Water street. This is said to have been caused from overheated wood which came in contact with the side of the house and set fire to it. The blaze was discovered before much damage was done, and was soon extinguished.

Mrs. Harriet P. Avery, who died on Friday at her home on Haley street, after an illness of about ten days from double pneumonia, was born in Gales Ferry, March 17, 1840, and was the widow of Timothy Avery, who taught school here in Mystic many years ago. Mrs. Avery had resided in Mystic for about twenty-seven years and for many years took care of the late Mrs. William Brewster at the Brewster homestead on Haley street, where she continued to reside after the death of Mrs. Brewster. Mrs. Avery was an active member of the Methodist church and for years gave the use of the upper part of her house to the Ladies' Aid society of that church for their work. She was also a member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Mystic League for Village Improvement and the Visiting Nurse association, and was keenly interested in whatever pertained to the welfare of the village. She was known in the community as a strong Christian character and by her life and example gave evidence of the faith she professed, being ever faithful in church attendance and zealous in church work, and attended church the Sunday before she was taken ill. A memorial service for Mrs. Avery was held at the Methodist church Sunday.

She is survived by two sons, Walter Avery of Portland, Ore., and Charles Avery of Boston, Mass., and a daughter, Mrs. Emma Hodgkins of Galveston, Texas, a brother, Charles Comstock of Gales Ferry, and a sister, Mrs. Hester Prentice, of Long Beach, Cal., as well as several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at her home on Haley street and the service was conducted by Rev. J. G. Sallis, pastor of the Methodist church. Willard W. Kellgwin Face to Face and Abide With Me. The bearers were members of the family. Burial was at Gales Ferry.

Charity & Relief Lodge, No. 72, is to meet this (Tuesday) evening.

George H. Griswold, who has been ill with pneumonia for the past few weeks, is improving.

Another successful whist was held Thursday evening in St. Mark's parish house, with ten tables in play. The prizes for highest score went to William Bellamy of New London and Mrs. Harry Allyn, and the consolation awards to Mrs. Henry Schaffer and Edward Cameron.

At the meeting of the Monday club at the home of Mrs. Walter H. Lathrop, the paper of the afternoon was by Mrs. Edna B. Colby on Cities of Egypt, Ancient and Modern.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. B. MacKenzie and Harry R. MacKenzie were in Norwich Saturday, attending the funeral of Mrs. Melissa Hill, widow of R. Frank Hill, who was formerly a resident of this place.

Miss Prudence Fish of Groton is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Mary Horton.

Mrs. Atmore Tucker of Providence has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Hewitt.

John Gallagher of Westerly was a caller here Friday afternoon.

Rev. J. G. Sallis conducted service in the Noank Methodist church Sunday afternoon; the fourth quarterly conference was held following the service.

Florine Dow Camp, Royal Neighbors, is to meet this evening.

Members of the Community House Chorus had a social to which they invited friends Monday evening. A special musical program, as well as the regular rehearsal under the direction of C. D. Geer of Norwich, was one of the features of the evening and refreshments were served. The facilities of the house were also free to the chorus and their guests from 10 o'clock on, when bowling, pool, etc., were enjoyed.

Mrs. Eva Burdick entertained two tables at whist at her home on East Main street Friday afternoon. Following the game refreshments were served. The prize for high score went to Mrs. Charles Dodd and the consolation award to Mrs. C. F. Congdon.

The funeral of Solomon Willis, who died Friday at the Spicer home, Noank, was held Saturday at 3 p. m. at local undertaking rooms and was conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Baptist church. He was born in Ledyard in 1847, the son of Caleb and Mary Crouch Willis, and he has no relatives living so far as is known. He was a printer by trade, and is said to have been connected with the New London Day at one time. "Sol." Willis, as he was familiarly known in the village, is about the last of the many unique characters Mystic has known, and he and his well remembered accordion will now be but a memory. He led a solitary existence and for many years lived on what were known as the Peace Meeting Grounds, now the site of Miss Jobe's Camp Mystic. At the peace meetings he always delighted the children with his music.

Mrs. Mary Horton has returned from a visit to New York.

Sheriff W. H. Casey of Westerly was a business caller here Saturday.

Miss Mildred Beebe has returned to New Haven after a visit with Miss Ellen Watson.

Miss Annis Rathbun was a caller in Westerly Saturday.

B. P. Hewitt, who has been ill, is improving.

For the first time in New York history, Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews united Sunday in a religious meeting, at which clergymen spoke to push joint efforts to bring about religious education of all metropolitan children in the faiths of their parents.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

What to look for in a loaf of bread

Crust, color, texture, flavor, feel—do you know how to judge bread by these?

LOOK at your bread when you cut it today. Study it. Does it meet the requirements that a perfect bread should have?

First of all, feel it

It should be firm, solid, a substantial loaf that will not squeeze to nothing in your hands.

The crust should be rich and tender. That is one way of judging the ingredients, for rich materials—milk and shortening and sugar—will give a deep, crisp crust that holds the loaf solid and keeps it from drying out quickly.

How long does your bread keep fresh?

Can you keep your bread two or even three days in the bread box and not have it grow stale or tasteless? A rich bread with milk and shortening in the recipe will stand this test.

Slice your bread

Does the knife cut through easily and evenly, without tearing the grain? Does your bread cut in thin slices without crumbling? That is because careful baking and the best ingredients have given a close, firm texture and an even bake, with no soggy center or loose crust.

Then taste your bread

It should be light and not doughy. It should have the wheaty, blended flavor of the grain, the sugar and all the other ingredients of the loaf—a real food.

More than 150,000 families in four New England States have discovered that White Rose, the Master Loaf of the Six Bakers, meets every one of these tests.

Now you yourself can test the Master Loaf. For the first time it is being served in a small section outside of New England. Your grocer has it. Ask for it tomorrow—the loaf with the pleasant checked wrapper, like a fresh, clean tea towel.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

It's Worth the Price

JUDGE BROWN RULES TRUSTEE LEE MUST PAY INTEREST TO COIT ESTATE

Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court, before whom were heard arguments in the claim for payment of interest made by F. C. Wight of New London, administrator of the estate of Charlotte Ranouf Coit, against Dr. Harry M. Lee, trustee for Mrs. Coit under a will under which Mrs. Coit was beneficiary, handed down his finding Monday in the case.

Judge Brown's finding is to the effect that the sum of $2,975.67, which the late Judge John M. Thayer as referee found was due for Dr. Lee to the estate of Mrs. Coit shall include two additional amounts of interest respectively on $1,875.67 and on $313.50.

Judge Brown's memorandum of decision is as follows:

The judgment entered in this case on Nov. 27, 1923, pursuant to the memorandum of decision on that day filed by Jennings J., having been opened Dec. 7, 1923, by order of court, Jennings J., the appellant claiming that it was not a fact as assumed by the court in reaching its decision as disclosed by its memorandum that the appellee as trustee, had since the death of the cestui que trust, kept the funds due her estate at her death Feb. 6, 1918, found by the referee's report to be $2,975.67, "segregated from his personal account and held in a special fund not drawing interest, subject to the determination of this appeal," and that the appellant should have an opportunity to offer evidence as to this fact, the matter comes before me on the motion for judgment solely for the determination of this question, as to what, if any, interest and costs are to be included in the judgment, the ruling of Jennings, J., upon what he denominates the "second" and "third questions" in his said memorandum, standing unchallenged by either party.

The evidence introduced as to the facts bearing upon the question in controversy, establishes that on or before April 10, 1918 the appellee paid over or had paid over to Hull, McGuire and Hull as his attorneys, the net sum of $1,386.50 to be paid by them to the beneficiary of the trust of which he was trustee. This money was forthwith deposited by them to a checking account of theirs in a New London bank where it earned no interest, and on this account a balance to their credit in excess of the above sum has ever since been maintained. On Oct. 18, 1923, five days after the referee's report was filed, the appellee paid to his said attorneys the further sum of $1,875.67 to be applied on the amount found due in the report. The balance of the amount $212.50, has remained in the appellee's hands to the present time.

Upon these facts, under the reasoning of Jennings, J., to which I subscribe, as expressed in his said memorandum, no interest should be allowed to the appellant upon the sum of $1,386.50. Nor should any interest since Oct. 18, 1923 be allowed upon the sum of $1,875.67.

I reach the opposite conclusion, however, with regard to the interest upon the latter sum from February 6, 1918, to Oct. 18, 1923, and upon the sum of $218.50 from Feb. 6, 1918 to the date of this judgment. During these periods stated, the appellee kept in his own hands and had within his control for his own use and benefit the amounts respectively stated. Under all of the circumstances here and having in mind the appellee's negligent administration of this trust and incorrect account filed as disclosed by the referee's report, I am convinced that it is but equitable and just that he should be charged with interest to the extent above indicated. I am further of the opinion that the law imposes this obligation upon him. Loomis vs. Gillett, 75 Conn. 398,360, and cases cited; Bruner's appeal, 57 Pa. 46.

The judgment therefore upon the $2,975.67 found due by the referee as of Feb. 6, 1918, shall include in addition to that amount, interest at the rate of 6 per cent. on $1,375.67 from that date to Oct. 18, 1923, and at the same rate on $213.50 from February 6, 1918, to the date of judgment.

No costs are allowed to either party.

NORTHFIELD ALUMNAE HELD ENJOYABLE REUNION

A valentine tea was given in the parlors of the First Baptist Church, New London, Saturday afternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock, by the New London Northfield Club, composed of former students of Northfield, Mass., Seminary, Eastern Connecticut section. After singing O Northfield the Beautiful, Mrs. Dwight C. Stone, of [illegible] told of her return to the seminary last spring, to attend commencement exercises, recalling many happy and sacred memories, also the immeasurable loss to Northfield through the death of her choral conductor, Nelson P. Coffin. A letter of greeting from Miss Fanny C. Hatch, alumnae secretary, was read by Miss Charlena Elliott, of New London, secretary and treasurer of the club. Miss Elliott also read letters from girls who were unable to be present. Miss Maude E. Allen of Norwich, President, called attention to the 45th anniversary of Northfield Seminary in June, and the Alumnae Campaign for $10,000. Miss Allen is local chairman of this campaign, of which Miss Bessie Hopkins of New Britain, is district chairman, whose committee consists of Miss Elliott of New London, Miss Nellie M. Comstock, of Ivoryton, Mrs. Tracy B. Perkins, of Clinton, and Miss Jennie G. Perkins, of Gale's Ferry. A committee of nine was appointed to assist the local chairman in soliciting, and an enthusiastic response is hoped for.

Photographs from the year 1891 up to the present time proved an interesting and amusing feature of the informal gathering, showing the many changes in styles, and the additions and improvements to the Seminary campus. The oldest class represented at the gathering was 1887, and the youngest visitor was little Miss Elizabeth Langworthy, daughter of Mrs. Harry E. Langworthy, of Westerly, R. I., class of 1914.

With an attendance of 20 loyal Northfield daughters, working wholeheartedly, the success of the Northfield club seems assured. Those present from Norwich were Miss Maude E. Allen, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, Mrs. Richard M. Harding, and Miss Blanche V. Smith, of Franklin. Other places represented were Chester, Gale's Ferry, Ledyard, Groton, New London, Stonington, Uncasville, and Westerly, R. I.

POINTS OUT MAN'S MANY LIMITATIONS

The Wide Area of Our Limitations was the theme that Rev. Charles H. Ricketts presented at the Richmond Radiator plant, Monday at the noon meeting under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Ricketts spoke in part as follows: One of the greatest men in Christianity second only to his Master said that "now we look through a glass darkly." He was not a petulant child who said it, nor a pessimist who constitutionally looks with dismay on everything and everybody. But it was the deliberate judgment of a man who, through pain, suffering and all kinds of privations had risen to the triumphant life.

The speaker then applied this thought to seven important phases of life which all people must meet in varying degrees.

1. The mystery of God's non-interference with law. This was applied to the vast realm of innocent suffering. God is greater than the laws He makes. If at times the regular course of law produces innocent suffering when doesn't God overrule His law? Of course God is good because He is love, but how can we reconcile the two?

2. How limited is our vision of future economic and business conditions! What will business be next year? Statistics show that in 1922, more than $200,000,000 were sunk in unprofitable investments, and much of it in fake securities. The expert as well as the amateur is limited in his vision of the financial tomorrow.

3. How far can we, or do we, penetrate into the other fellow's heart? We are constantly misjudging people because of our snap judgments. First impressions are not always correct because personality is not always pinned on one's coat sleeve. Our most intimate friends are constantly surprising us by phases of character we never dreamed of.

4. How little is our world of scientific reality. Is it not amazing that with all the scientific minds we have had from Archimedes down to Steinmets and Edison most of our scientific knowledge has been of recent development. The last century has opened more secrets of nature than the preceding 60. But as Steinmets said shortly before his death, "We have only touched the outer rim of a mighty circle."

5. Our partial knowledge is seen in a wide variety of religious beliefs. If only one interpretation of the Bible is admissable why this wide range of understanding? The greatest intellects and the finest saints have honestly differed. No one creed takes in all the truth and no one leaves it all out. This utter confusion of belief accentuates our mental limitations.

6. Political futures are always very difficult of forecasting, but the average politician is the blindest man in the world. Let him tell us who is going to be the next president! Among the big men of Washington—and there are really some—who knew how thoroughly Uncle Sam was being robbed of his oil? Even the honored man who died six months ago never suspected what was going on under the very shadow of the white house.

7. What do we really know of the hereafter? Just when are you going to die? What is the present status of the dead? What is death? What and where is heaven? Can there be any possible communication between the living and the dead? The only person who speaks dogmatically on these mysteries is the professional ignoramus.

Our hope lies in this statement: "Now we see through a glass darkly, * * * but then face to face * * * now we know in part, but then shall we know even also as we are known."

TILSON IN CONFERENCE OVER MELLON BILL

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Congressman Tilson of Connecticut was a leader in the conference which this afternoon decided republican members of the house should stand firm on the 25 per cent basis of the Mellon bill and not compromise with the threatened democratic insurgent coalition to force a 40 per cent tax. Tilson went to the White House before the conference and had an interview with the president.

NORWICH TOWN

At the Sunday morning worship of the First Congregational church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached on the Joy of the Church. The Scripture reference was Acts 2:46.

In the course of the service, Rev. Mr. Bailey, in referring to the recent Evangelistic campaign, under the leadership of Rev. Earl A. Kernahan, D. D., of Boston, mentioned that there were fourteen steady workers from the First Congregational church who interviewed one hundred and sixty persons during the week. As the result of these visits, it is expected that between forty and fifty will unite with this church on Easter Sunday. Some will transfer by letter from other churches, and the remainder by confession. Thursday evening some of the workers are to tell their impressions of this method of work.

Those who assisted the pastor Rev. Mr. Bailey, were H. L. Yerrington, H. D. Frazier, C. P. Learned, Miss J. M. Case, Miss Bernice L. Underwood, Miss Rose K. Durr, Miss Gertrude S. Avery, John L. Browning, C. M. Beebe, T. H. Bacheler, D. W. Avery, Arthur Avery, Robert Avery, Mrs. Burton Jopson and the Misses Hyde.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 7 o'clock was in charge of Miss Mabel Corrigeux. The topic was How and What Jesus Taught. Matthew 5:1-12, 13:3. The minister spoke on How and Why Did Jesus Use the Story Form in His Teachings. Others present were called upon by the leader to tell some story that had helped them. A chorus of young women sang several numbers, Miss Marjory Merry accompanying at the piano.

At the church night service of the Congregational church, Thursday evening in the chapel, the topic will be Christ and His Intimate Friend, Matthew 17: 1-13.

Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal curch chose for his text Sunday morning Matthew 9:9. And as Jesus passed forth from thence, He saw a man named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom; and He saith unto him, follow me, and he arose and followed Him. Special emphasis was laid on the words "Follow Me".

In speaking of the Evangelistic work carried out in Nine of the Norwich churches last week, under the leadership of Rev. Rr. Kernahan, Rev. Mr. Aldrich commented on the splendid results accomplished by the workers in securing 403 people who consented to unite with the several churches interested. The workers from the Norwich Town Methodist church who assisted the minister comprised Mrs. Richard Carter, Mrs. George H. Randall, Miss Florence M. Bennet, Edward E. Howe, Mrs. Miller, and Miss Ethel Miller. At least fifteen are to unite with this church in the future and it is expected more will be heard from.

Le Roy Miner was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening when the topic for liccussion was What Is Sin? How Does It affect Character? with reference to several Verses of Scripture. The Old Folks' Concert scheduled to take place Friday evening, has been postponed a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic H. Wyant of Town street entertained a company of friends Saturday evening at a pinochle party. After the game music was enjoyed. At 11 o'clock Mrs. Wyant served chicken salad, hot rolls and coffee

Mr. and Mrs. Wyant recently entertained at Mah Jong.

Miss Marion L. Bailey of Elm avenue was the guest over the week end of Mrs. William Chittenden, of Naugatuck.

Miss Eleanor Smith of Washington street was the hostess Thursday evening at a Valentine party at her home. The guests included James Mullen, Emily Bidwell, Bernice Hopkins, Blackstone Perkins, Crosby Peck, Lucile Browning, Marion Agew, Dunstan Perkins, John Baynes, Betty La Pierre and Arnaud La Pierre, most of them students in the Senior room at Town Street school.

Among the games played were hunting for the hidden paper hearts, in which Dunstan Perkins, while blindfolded, won the prize; cutting the strings to which paper hearts were attached, the prize being awarded to Marion Agnew. A feature was making as many words as possible out of the name of St. Valentine, in which Marion Agnew took the prize; but relinquished it to Lucile Browning, who had second score. In the game Marching to Jerusalem, Dunstan Perkins was the prize winner. To the music of a Victrola, the children enjoyed dancing. While seated at a table refreshments of sandwiches, ice-cream and cake were served by Mrs. Arnaud J. La Pierre assisted by Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy and Miss Ida Thurston. At each plate were nut basket filled with nuts and candy Mrs. La Pierre was in general charge of the games.

Divorce Is Granted.

A divorce from Florence Holder Burdick of Preston is granted to Beriah E. Burdick of Preston by Judge Allyn L. Brown in a judgment handed down Monday.

Judge Brown's ruling is as follows: Upon the filing of a sufficient bond in the amount of $1,000, with surety for the payment of $5 per week for the support of the defendant at the Norwich state hospital, which payment is hereby ordered until further order of court, a decree of divorce on the ground of the defendant's incurable insanity may be entered for the plaintiff.

The couple was married Sept. 10, 1913, and divorce was sought on the grounds of Mrs. Burdick's insanity since Feb. 1, 1918.

Secured Relief Through Foley's Pills

John R. Gordon, Danville, Ill., writes: "I have suffered with kidney trouble five years; could not sleep at night and was always tired. I was not strong and hard work made my back ache. I got some FOLEY PILLS and after a few treatments I felt better and could work with more ease, became stronger and could sleep better." BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building operations in and around Norwich have slowed up to a considerable extent during the past week or two owing to the weather conditions but it is expected that there is soon to be a resumption of the activities within a short time as local contractors expect an early spring. There is a noticeable lack of frost in the ground and some of the excavation work on new projects can be started much earlier than in previous years. The outlook for a banner year in building is very bright and local contractors are making preparations for a record building year. At the Norwich State Hospital where three new buildings are to be erected during the coming year preparations are being made to start the work as soon as the weather permits. Men connected with the H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden, which has the contract report that in all probability work will be started in earnest on the project soon—probably the middle or last of next month.

Plans are being figured for a number of new dwelling houses in the city. Included in these plans are several for houses in the East Great Plain section just outside the city limits. There will also be several houses erected in the Perkins road section of the city as well as in Norwich Town. The work on the new bungalow fire station on Perkins road will probably be started as soon as the weather permits.

Already there are a large number of permits which have been granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton that will be started next month and some on which work is already well along. No permits were granted during the past week although several applications have been given out.

NEW LONDON

The cellar is in for the frame cottage at the corner of Highland avenue and Woodland street for Dr Thomas Wyndruff. Front private plans the house will be 25x25 feet, with a garage, 15x22 feet in the rear. It will have hot water heat, hardwood floors and trim and all conveniences.

The permit has been issued to Mary Lampert for a dwelling to be erected at 49 Stewart street to cost about $3,500. The dwelling will be 19 x36 feet, and will have the usual improvements. The contract for its construction has been awarded.

Work has been started on a dwelling which is to be built at 98 School street. The house will be 26x36 feet, and will be arranged bungalow style for six rooms. It will have the usual modern improvements. The cost of the house, together with a garage to be erected in the rear, will be approximately $4,000.

A Hartford architect has prepared plans for a summer home to be erected here for Clayton W. Rowley, treasurer of the Hartford Times, 488 Prospect avenue, Hartford. The plans call for a frame dwelling 25x61 feet, with a wing 15x18 feet. A porch will run across the front of the house. There will be eight rooms and a two-car garage in the basement. A toilet and showers and fireplace will be provided and there will be yellow pine trim and maple floors. The specifications call for no heating or plastering, but provide plumbing and wiring.

Applications for Building Permits

Minucci Bros., dwelling and garage 98 School street, $4,000.

Thomas A. Woodruff, dwelling and garage, Stewart street, $6,000.

Mary Lampert, dwelling, 49 Stewart street, $3,500.

Number of permits issued for the week 5; estimated cost of buildings, $13,500.

MANSFIELD

Bids will be closed about Feb. 19, for the erection of the hospital dormitory and nurses' home for the Mansfield State Training School and Hospital, from plans of Architects Cudworth & Thompson, 402 Disco Building, Norwich, with E. D. Kimball, 6 Beacon street, Boston, heating and plumbing engineer. The buildings will be of brick, two stories and basement, with the hospital unit measuring 60x350 feet, the dormitory 40x80 feet, the nurses home 40x175 feet, and two ells 20x20 feet.

The State Situation

Building operations this past week as seen in the number of permits issued in the leading towns of the state do not show up very well, probably due considerably to the first touch of real winter weather. Permits for the week total but 112, for construction work amounting to $393,216. For the like week of last year there were 57 permits issued for new construction costing $231,579, while in 1922 in the corresponding week 96 permits were issued and the total cost of new work amounted to $278,495.

In a review of 262 major cities S. W. Straus & Co., find the largest volume of building permits for January ever recorded and they predict that building activities throughout the United States this spring will be of huge proportions. The total cost of building operations for the cities noted amounted to $233,348,079, a gain of 10 per cent. over January, 1923. New York heads the list with a total of $75,099,906 a gain of $16,000,000 over the same month in 1923. Boston ranks eighth with permits calling for construction work to cost $3,503,704. As an effect of the income tax revision a volume of real estate transactions in excess of the good record made in 1923 is predicted by Charles E. Noyes, writing for the New York Evening Post. Mr. Noyes points out that investors with incomes less than $50,000 will be placed in a position to purchase real estate advantageously where, heretofore they have been paying prohibitive surtaxes on such holdings.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 10 sales of real estate as compared to 15 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $31,150 and $92,100.

There were 14 sales of real estate in New London during the past week a marked increase over the same week a year ago when there were only three. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $102,594 and $40,900.

MILL MEN'S ASSOCIATION HEARS BOSTON SPEAKERS

The Eastern Connecticut Mill Men's association held the second of a series of meetings arranged for the year at the Community House, Plainfield, Monday evening, taking the form of a get-together meeting at which about 180 mill men were present.

The speakers of the evening were F. Nathaniel Perkins, a wool expert from Boston, whose lecture was accompanied by some very interesting slides which were gathered during his travels all over the world. The other speaker, Mr. Bishop, also from Boston talked on general improvements in quantity and quality in the textile industry, dwelling particularly on the new methods of winding which ultimately tend to make better cloth. At the conclusion of the speakers' talks they were heartily applauded and were given a rising vote of thanks.

The entertainment program which was in charge of Fred King of Goodyear, Conn., opened with the Wingfoot Serenaders, a 9-piece orchestra, playing a number of up to date selections. The feature of the program was the Wingfoot quartette who rendered a number of songs.

Among the invited guests of the evening was Frederick L. Babcock, editor of the Fibre and Fabric, a textile journal.

At the business meeting President Harry Richardson of the Aldrich Bros., Moosup, presided and considerable business of a routine nature was transacted after which the secretary, Walter M. King of the Beachmont Mills, Mechanicsville, Conn., and Treasurer P. W. Chase of the National Cotton Co., Jewett City, gave their reports. The report of the treasurer showed the association to be in good financial standing. It was voted to hold the third meeting of the association some time in April which will be held in the form of a ladies' night.

A buffet luncheon was served consisting of sandwiches, cake, hot dog cocoa and ice cream.

RURAL ASSOCIATION WILL DISCUSS SCHOOL PROBLEM

Discussion of the inadequacy of the present buildings and equipment of the Town street and West Town street schools is invited in a notice that has been sent out to members of the Norwich Rural association for a meeting at Norwich Town on Wednesday evening at 7.30.

EDWARD HANNIS ON ANNUAL SOUTHERN SOJOURN

Edward G. Hannis, formerly of Norwich, now a retired New York business man, writes Norwich friends of the pleasant days he is spending at Sarasota, Florida, where the sunshine is inviting, the roads are fine for motoring and he has only to walk a block or two to catch all the fish he wants, weighing anywhere from half a pound to five pounds.

Annually the baseball training season is the magnet that draws Mr. Hannis south and he will soon be watching the practice of the New York Nationals who come to Sarasota on the first of March. His brother, John, an old pitcher of the Arctic baseball team of this city owns a cottage at Sarasota where hundreds of other Northerners have places with oranges and grape fruit growing in the dooryards.

HOUSE DEFEATS THE MELLON INCOME TAX RATES 222 TO 196

A Group of Republicans Aided the Democrats in Substituting the Garner Schedule—Bill Fixes the Surtax Maximum at 44 Per Cent. on Incomes in Excess of $92,000—The Bill Also Provides Exemptions of $2,000 For Single Persons and $3,000 For Heads of Families.

Washington, Feb. 19—Aided by a group of republicans, most of them insurgents, house democrats today eliminated from the revenue bill the Mellon income tax rates. By a vote of 222 to 196 a schedule advanced by Representative Garner, democrat, of Texas, was substituted.

The bill as amended fixes the surtax maximum at 44 per cent. On incomes in excess of $92,000 as against 50 per cent.; on incomes exceeding $200,000 under existing law and 25 per cent. on incomes of more than $100,000 as recommended by the treasury. It also reduces normal income rates to a greater extent than Mr. Mellon recommended and increases personal tax exemptions, a feature not in the treasury draft.

Before approving the Garner proposal which received the support of seventeen republicans, one farmer-laborite, and one independent in addition to 203 democrats, the house went on record as opposed to rates substantially the same as those recommended by Mr. Mellon and rejected an amendment by Representative Frear of Wisconsin, an insurgent, to cut normal rates in half without altering the existing surtax schedule.

Republican organization leaders had no opportunity to bring a vote a compromise amendment which proposed a 25 per cent. reduction in both normal and surtax rates.

Rules in effect today prevented a roll call on the democratic substitute which was approved by a teller's vote. A record vote, however, on the amendment can be demanded before the bill comes up for passage and organization republicans are planning to bring this about. Such a vote would bring a straight out test of strength between the Mellon and the Garner rates. An opportunity also will be afforded the republicans to offer their compromise with a roll call on the proposition in order.

After disposing of the income rates section, an amendment offered by Representative Garner, proposing to make stock dividends taxable was defeated 141 to 137, the house proceeding with reading of the bill in regular order.

Debate on the income tax sections, the main target of democratic and insurgent republican opposition to the revenue bill, terminated by agreement at 3.30 o'clock, with practically every member of the house on the floor and the galleries filled with spectators.

A vote came first on the amendment offered at the last moment by Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee who declared the house should record itself on the Mellon rates. With the Garner and Frear amendments pending such a vote was not in order and to bring it about Mr. Madden proposed a surtax maximum of 26 per cent. instead of the Mellon 25 per cent. the only point of difference in the two schedules.

The Madden substitute was rejected 244 to 152, about forty republicans, including Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, joining the democrats in opposition.

By a standing vote of 254 to 46 the Frear amendment was thrown out and then a vote war taken on the Garner substitute, Representative Longworth, republican leader, having announced that he would offer a compromise to fix the surtax maximum at 37 1-2 per cent. only in the event the democratic plan was rejected.

One democrat, Deal of Virginia, who at the party caucus announced he was opposed to the Garner plan, did not vote, while three others, Wise, Georgia; Dupre, Louisiana, and Montague, Virginia, were absent.

The 203 other democratic members of the house marched up the center aisle to record their votes for the Garner amendment. With them were these republicans:

The ten in the Wisconsin delegation Reid, Illinois; Woodruff, Michigan; La Guardia, New York; Davis and Keller, Minnesota; St. Clair, North Dakota, and Mrs. Nolan, California; Wefald, Farmer-labor and Kvale, independent, Minnesota, also supported the democratic proposal, while Berger, Socialist, Wisconsin, was absent, as were eleven republicans, Representative Graham, republican, Illinois, presiding, did not vote.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away reading of the bill was proceeded with until 5:30 o'clock, most of the important administrative features receiving approval without question.

In offering his resolution to tax stock dividends, Representative Garner, who led the democratic opposition in the income rates fight, announced democrats were released from the party caucus agreement and said he expected the remainder of the measure to be considered in a non-partisan manner. He predicted, however, that on a record vote on his amendment, if a motion is made to recommit the bill, not more than 150 votes will be cast against the democratic income rates schedules adopted today.

Mr. Longworth said another vote would be sought but what course of procedure the republicans would pursue in this regard had not been determined tonight. No further action can be taken on this section until the bill is up for passage. The republican leader regretted that the compromise offer was not accepted and said the outcome had been expected in the light of the stand of the insurgents.

Asked as to his opinion of the probabilities of President Coolidge's attitude on the democratic rate schedules, Mr. Longworth replied merely that the bill as now framed would result in a deficit in revenue two years from now of $300,000,000.

THE GARNER, PRESENT AND MELLON INCOME TAX RATES

Washington, Feb. 19.—The democratic income tax substitute adopted today by the house provides:

Normal taxes of two per cent. on incomes below $5,000; four per cent. on incomes between $5,000 and $8,000; six per cent. on incomes exceeding $8,000.

A graduated surtax scale beginning at one per cent. on incomes between $12,000 and $14,000 up to a maximum of 44 per cent. on incomes exceeding $92,999.

Exemption of $2,000 for single persons and $3,000 for heads of families.

Existing law provides:

Normal taxes of 4 per cent. on incomes up to $4,000 and 8 per cent. above $8,000.

Surtaxes beginning at one per cent. on incomes between $6,000 and $10,000 and graduating progressively to 50 per cent. on incomes in excess of $200,000.

Exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for heads of families.

The Mellon provision eliminated proposed:

Normal rates of three per cent. on incomes up to $4,000 and six per cent. on incomes exceeding $4,000.

Surtaxes ranging from one per cent. on incomes between $10,000 and $12,000 to 25 per cent. on incomes exceeding $100,000.

No increase in personal tax exemptions.

The Frear amendment rejected proposed:

Cutting normal rates in half with surtaxes continuing at their present level.

No change in exemptions.

The Madden amendment voted down differed from the Mellon schedule in the maximum surtax rate which it sought to have fixed at 26 per cent.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The tariff commission made public its estimate of the cost of milling and marketing hard spring wheat flour.

The house approved the democratic income and surtax rates as a substitute for those proposed in the Mellon tax bill.

A debate on the soldiers' bonus was precipitated in the senate when Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, in a speech opposed it.

The senate ordered an inquiry into charges attributed to Colonel Thomas Miller, alien property custodian, that the treasury has juggled estimates of the cost of a soldiers' bonus.

The senate veterans committee conferred with director Hines regarding conditions in the New York office of the Veterans bureau and the personnel situation in general headquarters here.

Preparations were begun by Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, for their work as special government oil counsel.

Attorney-General Daugherty remained defiant in the face of new attacks aimed to bring about his retirement from the cabinet.

President Coolidge let it be known that he regards business as not seriously injured by developments in the oil inquiry.

Senate oil committee members said the name of at least one public official appeared on the list of stock brokerage transactions presented by broker officials.

The Wheeler resolution for investigation of Attorney-General Daugherty and the department of justice was sent to the committee, a vote in the senate being blocked on objection of Senator Lodge.

The senate engaged in debate over the oil situation during which Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, charged that friends of Attorney-General Daugherty had obtained money for services in connection with department of justice cases.

MURDER WITNESSED BY BOY IN WHEEL CHAIR

Buffalo, New York, Feb. 19.—A thirteen year old boy, confined to a wheel chair, was the sole witness of the slaying of an Erie County hospital inmate by a fellow patient this afternoon.

Seated helpless, in his chair at the door of an adjoining ward, Sylvester Salkowich watched Thomas Layton, 55 years old, slash the throat of William Burton, 66, while the latter was preparing food in the kitchen. Burton died twenty minutes later in the emergency ward. His jugular vein was severed.

Layton closed the razor with which he had inflicted the death wound and seated himself in a chair. Three hospital attendants found him.

A former employe of the state insane asylum, Layton was undergoing treatment for a broken him. He had to be assisted to the patrol wagon to be taken to the City hospital, where he was placed under observation. He said his home was in Highland, N. Y.

Burton, who was said to have relatives in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was sent to the hospital last November from Silver Creek. Authorities were unable to learn of ill feeling between the men. This afternoon Layton limped into the kitchen, and according to the Salkowich boy's story, suddenly leaned over Burton and drew forth a razor. "Now you'll get that!" he exclaimed and drew the blade across Burton's throat.

SHARP RALLY IN FRENCH AND BELGIAN FRANCS

New York, Feb. 19.—After establishing new low records for all time, French and Belgian francs rallied sharply in the late dealings today on the receipt of cable advices indicating the settlement of the reparations problem by placing a mortgage on German railways and without recourse to a reformidable international loan. French francs dipped to a new low level at 4.07 1-2 cents before recovering 10 points, and Belgian exchange touched 3.43 cents, later advancing about 5 points.

Short covering by speculative interests, whose heavy selling of the exchanges helped to precipitate yesterday's sharp break, aided in the recovery. Demand sterling was firm around $4.29 1-2 and Japanese yen improved after an early decline of about 20 points.

Bankers were inclined to see a more favorable turn in French financial affairs with the prospect of regular revenues from German mortgage bonds and the budget balanced by the increased taxes which were approved by the chamber of deputies.

Chooses War-Maimed Soldiers

Rome, Feb. 19.—War-maimed former soldiers only have been chosen by Premier Mussolini as candidates for the house of deputies in Tuscany. In announcing the list, the premier said he had restricted to Tuscany these qualifications in order to give that region special honor.

13 DEATHS IN EAST SIDE NEW YORK TENEMENT FIRE

New York, Feb. 19.—Thirteen coffins, containing bodies of the victims of this morning's tenement fire in the lower East Side, were tagged tonight with the names of those within and removed from the morgue to the homes of relatives. The last identification, that of the smoke-blackened body of an 11-months-old girl, was made by her father, the sole surviving member of his family.

The coffins were arranged in groups. There were five containing the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. William Barrett and their three small children. In four others lay all the fire had left of Mrs. Francis Harkaway and her three little ones. The bodies of Benjamin Dober, his wife and 10 year old son occupied three other coffins.

In the thirteenth was a body identified as that of Mrs. Bessie Smith, an aged suffered of rheumatism. She with those 12 others had been trapped high above the ground in one of the Ghetto's most fatal and mystifying tenement fires.

Two others, a man and a girl baby who were rescued only after having been burned so seriously that they may die, are at Governeur hospital.

Although several inmates of the tenement who barely escaped death declared the fire burst forth after a moonshine still explosion in the quarters of the janitor—a victim—police tonight were convinced the fire was set. They sought a half crazed pyromaniac whom some of the rescued reported having seen rush from lower hallway of the building at the first cries of "Fire."

Mrs. Mary Casey, a relative fo the Barrets who identified them at the morgue, was postive there had been a still explosion. But police, finding the charred remnants of two baby carriages beneath the lower haliway sairs, listed this fire with the score of other fatal "baby carriage fires" that have occurred in widely separated nations of the city in the last 18 months.

Although the authorities believe there may be more than one of the pyromaniacs, the course of recent tenement fires have been strangely similar. Almost invariably the source has been a baby-carriage which, parked beneath the hallway stairs according to the custom in such crowded dwellings, has been saturated with oil and set afire by a stranger to the neighborhood who slips into the building into the dead of night, applies the match and is gone again before the blaze sweeps death through crowded rooms.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT N. Y. ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

New York, Feb. 19.—Arthur J. Davis of Boston, superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon league, was elected superintendent of the New York State Anti-Saloon league today to succeed William H. Anderson, who resigned after his conviction for forgery.

Mr. Davis, nominated for the post by Purley Baker, national superintendent of the league, was unanimously confirmed by the directors of the New York league.

Mr. Davis has served as regional superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in New England and New York, is vice president of the Scientific Temperance Federation of Boston, and a member of the executive committee of the World League Against Alcoholism.

A statement issued by the league said: "During his term as superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon league that state ratified the 18th amendment. He is regarded as a competent executive and has had extensive business experience. He has had active political experience in the management of campaigns and of the campaigns of candidates for state office. He is deeply interested in the educational side of prohibition and believes real law enforcement will follow in the wake of willing observance of and respect for law."

Mr. Davis, it was said, will have complete charge of the "dry" program in New York state, directing the league's fight for a state enforcement law.

TRAIL OF OIL INQUIRY LEADS BACK TO SENATE

Washington, Feb. 19—The trail of the oil inquiry, after devious rambllnga led directly back today to the United States senate.

When the oil committee met behind closed doors to examine certain records of the Benkard Stock Brokerage firm, of New York it found the name of a senator entered there.

Pending a more complete examination of all the records of the firm in New York, the name was withheld. While pledged, to secrecy now, committeemen declared that when the audit of the books for transactions in oil and other stocks by other government officials had been finished there would be no suppression of any of the facts unearthed.

Additional information with regard to such stock transactions will be sought by the committee tomorrow at another executive session at which it expects to examine Harry Payne Whitney, New York financier, who failed to appear today in response to a subpoena. Mr. Whitney is hurrying to Washington from the south.

Aside from the examination of a trial record of transaction through the Benkard firm, the committee in consultation with Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel in the oil cases, discussed who might be able to furnish information of the highest importance.

FARINA MURDER CASE GIVEN TO THE JURY

New York, Feb. 19.—The case of John Farina, on trial for the murder of two Brooklyn bank messengers on November 14, was given to the jury at 11.05 o'clock tonight.

Morris and Joseph Diamond, brothers, already have been convicted of the crime.

Tonight's session of the trial was given over to summation of their cases by Samuel Siegel, defense attorney, and Assistant District Attorney Hughes, and the charge to the jury by Supreme Court Justice Cropsey.

Mr. Siegel asked the jury not to vote for a conviction if they felt there was any reasonable doubt in favor of the defendant.

Justice Cropsey's charge to the jury lasted one hour and thirteen minutes and was in almost every detail similar to the charges he made in the Diamond trials.

Strike in Britain Retards Commerce

Less Than One-Fifth of Normal Number of Men Are Working at the London Docks.

London, Feb. 19 (By the A. P.)—While the employers claim some slight improvement in the dock strike situation today so far as London is concerned there are no signs of a stir up at other ports in the United Kingdom. About three thousand men are still working at the London docks, which is less than one-fifth the normal figure.

Secretary Bevin of the DockWorkers Union asserts that the strikers' determination is increasing everywhere, and there are reports of defections to the ranks of the strikers from the "blue," or Stevedores' union, the members of which, together with a small contingent of employes of the Port of London authorities are attempting to carry on the work at the London docks, without overmuch enthusiasm. The cargoes of thirty-two ships are being handled, but as many more are being kept waiting.

Another big river plate mat ship, The Baronessa, has joined her sister ship, the Duquesa; neither cargo has yet been touched.

Meat prices are soaring, and importers say they will suffer in any case, as chilled meat will presently necessitate freezing with consequent depreciation in value.

Meanwhile new phases of the strike are developing. The Transportation union has instructed its members to refuse to carry goods to or from the docks. Four thousand carters quit this afternoon, findinfi their journeys to the docks wasted, and Secretary Bevin asserts that ten thousand will be out tomorrow.

The railwaymen at Grimsby and Hull, handling the fish traffic, have refused to work and big consignments of fish are left stranded. The dockers at different Ulster ports have also struck in sympathy and Secretary Bevin has called out the canal workers on the Manchester-Liverpool canal.

The council of the trade union congress unanimously decided tonight to support the strikers' demands, and there seems no likelihood of any mediation from that quarter.

The court of inquiry appointed by the minister of labor, Tom Shaw, will hold its first public session at the law courts tomorrow. Mr. Shaw in the house of commons this evening made it clear that this was no arbitration tribunal and that no undertaking to abide by its conclusions had been sought or given by the parties in the dispute.

The Liverpool employers have already offered to accept a unanimous decision by the court on condition that the unions would do the same and the official strike has come to a halt immediately.

Red-lettered bills appeared overnight on the boardings in Liverpool appealing to the dockers to stand pat and affiliate with the red internationals. The authors of the manifesto took occasion to denounce the members of the labor government, as for instance: "All power to the coming revolution. To hell with the labor government and their dupes."

About a thousand shipyard engineers at Southampton went on strike today for higher wages.

FINDS FLAW IN COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH GERMANY

Washington, Feb. 19—A shipping board resolution opposing the most favored nations clause of the commercial treaty between the United States and Germany on the ground that it would hamper development of the American merchant marine was place dtoday before the senate foreign relations committee, which has the treaty under consideration. Vice Chairman Plummer of the board appeared before the committee to urge its views on this section of the treaty.

In opposing the provision which would prevent the United States from imposing discriminating customs, duties and tonnage dues in favor of American ships the board took the position that it would be unwise for the United States to enter into a treaty which would restrict it "in the complete and full authority to enforce or put into effect any or all of the provisions of the Merchant marine act."

Section 34 of the act provides for such discriminatory duties.

Supporting the board's further assertion that shipping is an industry entitled to protective legislation "without asking the permission of any other nation", Mr. Plummer was said to have told the committee that any provision in the treats contrary to that principle should be eliminated.

REDUCING SALARIES OF OFFICERS OF SHIPPING FLEET

Washington, Feb. 19. — On recommendation of Leigh C. Palmer, president of the emergency fleet corporation, the shipping board today approved an aggregate reduction of $18,000 in the salaries of four vice presidents of the fleet corporation. Seven thousand dollars was cut from the pay of each of the two receiving $25,000, and $2,000 for each of the two receiving $20,000.

The reductions, effective March 1, were made, it was announced, "as a matter of economy and without any question as to the ability of these officers."

Additional salary reductions were made, Mr. Palmer said, "but only where such reductions will leave as much or even more efficiency," than before. He said he had found some duplications of work and surplus personnel in the fleet corporations which should be removed as a part of the general policy to cut down expenses to meet the $14,000,000 reduction in the combined budget for the board and the corporation.

FORMER GUNBOAT SEIZED FOR DEBT IN BOSTON

Boston, Feb. 19.—The steamer Yankton, which was a gunboat and despatch runner in the Spanish-American war under Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans, was in the custody of a United States marshal today for the non-payment of a $250 grocery bill. The Yankton encircled the world with the fleet in Roosevelt's administration and did duty in the North sea in the World war. She is now in the passenger and freight service.

Daugherty Defiant Toward His Critics

Senator Wheeler Charges That the Attorney General Has Portected Crime and Criminals.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The attempt to drive Attorney General Daugherty from the cabinet was renewed from a new angle in the senate today after he had adopted an attitude of defiance toward his critics.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, not only charged on the senate floor that the attorney general's name was mixed in the oil scandal from the first but he charged that Mr. Daugherty's personal friends had been accepting money in exchange for their influence with him and added that "if the attorney general has not actually got the money, he is a bigger fool than the people of the United States give him credit for being."

"This is only a small portion, an extremely small portion, of the testimony that will be produced," Senator Wheeler said, "showing beyond any question of doubt in my mind that the attorney general of the United States instead of prosecuting crime, has been protecting crime and criminals."

The speech of the Montana senator was delivered in behalf of his resolution asking for a sweeping investigation of Mr. Daugherty's official record. He sought immediate action but consent was refused by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, because of Mr. Wheeler's proposal that he himself select the investigating committee.

Tonight the attorney general not only maintained his determination against retiring from office under fire but also refused to make any reply to the attacks upon him. There has been suggestion that Mr. Daugherty might make a statement after today's cabinet meeting but he left the White House and went to his home to spend the remainder of the day without a word as to his intentions.

In his charges on the senate floor that friends of Mr. Daugherty had accepted money, Senator Wheeler named Jesse Smith, of Ohio, who committed suicide in the attorney general's apartment here last May, and "the attorney general's former partner and friend, Mr. Felder."

Senator Wheeler made his senate speech after he had appeared before the oil committee in executive session and laid before it certain information regarding investigations which have been made into charges of stock speculation by government officials.

The Montana senator proposed as members of the investigating committee, the selection of Senators Brookhart of Iowa, Jones of Washington, and McLean of Connecticut, republicans, and Ashurst of Arizona, and himself, democrats. Senator Lodge objected that designation of the committee members in the resolution itself was an insult to the presiding officer whose function it naturally would be to make the selections. Senator Wheeler in return asked whether Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, had not given the chair another list for membership on the committee after conferring with Mr. Daugherty. "Certainly I conferred with the chair," said Senator Willis.

"After just previously you had conferred with the man who is to be investigated," persisted Senator Wheeler.

"That statement like so many of the senator's is entirely gratuitous," replied the Ohio senator. "It is also beside the point."

Senator Wheeler then explained that he had undertaken to choose the personnel of the committee because he recalled what had happened during the Daugherty impeachment proceedings in the house in 1922. Instead of Mr. Daugherty, he said, "the man who introduced the resolution was, in reality, tried."

"Ever since the attorney general has occupied the important position he now holds," Senator Wheeler continued, "various charges have been made against him in the newspapers and by individuals from one end of the country to the other.

"Recently, when the oil scandal first developed, it appears that the attorney general's name was mixed in it. It appeared, if you please, that he was a friend of Ned McLean. Everybody knows he was a friend of Sinclair. Everybody knows he was a friend of Doheny. Everybody knows that those three men met in the apartment of the attorney general from time to time.

"Everybody knows that Jesse Smith, who was brought from the state of Ohio, and had an office in the department of justice, and who was not on the payroll, was accepting money in connection with various cases that arose in the department of justice."

REPARATION EXPERTS MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

Paris, Feb. 19.—(By The A. P.)—The expert committees are making excellent progress toward a tangible conclusion as to how to put Germany in the way to pay reparations.

SENATE TO PROBE MILLER STATEMENT ON BONUS COST

Alien Property Custodian to Be Required to Explain Charge That the Treasury Had "Juggled" the Estimates—Senate Vote Puts Investigation in the Hands of the Finance Committee—Senator Bruce Denounced the Compensation Proposal as a "Squalid and Odious Gratuity."

Washington, Feb. 19.—The senate took a hand today in the bonus stir-up. After listening to a fight precipitated by a declaration of Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, that the compensation proposal was a "squalid and odious gratuity," it voted for an inquiry into charges attributed to Colonel Thomas Miller, alien property custodian, that the treasury had "juggled" its estimates of the cost of a bonus.

The investigation was proposed in a resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, and which was adopted today without a record vote and after only a brief explanation by his Mississippi senator. It puts the investigation in the hands of the senate finance committee.

Before Senator Bruce had time for a breathing spell after his address on the bonus, Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, had called him a champion of the "Jack Dempseys of the war," and a number of others were on their feet to take exception to some of his remarks.

On top of this Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, charged that Major General John F. O'Ryan had violated the quasi-confidential relations of "lawyer and client" by trying to use in anti-bonus work the organization built up during his service as special counsel with the senate committee which investigated the veterans' bureau.

After Senator Bruce had expressed the opinon that the bonus was "indefensible in principle," Senator Caraway charged that the Maryland senator had evidenced no concern "when the railroads sought and got a bonus of $1,800,000,000."

"I remember," said Mr. Caraway, "that in his zeal to maintain the Esch-Cummins act, he switched his vote against a member of his own party. No man who has the proper American spirit will stand here and denounce the American soldier as a danger."

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, said most of the bonus opposition apparently was based on support of the Mellon tax plan. Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizont, interrupting the Maryland senator's remarks as criticising pro-bonus veterans for opposing the tax reduction, said he would consider their service in defeating the Mellon plan "equal to that which they rendered on the battlefield."

INVESTIGATING SHOOTING OF SENATOR GREENE

Washington, Feb. 19. — Senator Greene of Vermont, continued his fight for life tonight with attending surgeons announcing that while his condition remained critical he was holding his own. A second operation was performed last night which resulted in checking a brain hemorrhage that followed the wound received by the senator Friday night. The bullet which struck him was fired during a gun battle between prohibition agents and suspected bootleggers.

With the outcome of the senator's injuries still doubtful, United States District Attorney Gordon began an investigation today into the shooting, examining more than a dozen eye-witnesses. At the White House also it was indicated that action would be taken there through appropriate agencies on receipt of information requested from the District of Columbia commissioners and the prohibition unit as to regulations covering the sale and use of firearms.

The president was said to regard the shooting of the Vermont senator as a most lamentable affair and to have taken steps to ascertain who was to blame and to make certain that appropriate action is taken to insure against a recurrence of such a situation.

At the same time, Representative Gibson, republican, Vermont, gave notice that he would ask for an investigation by the house district committee, of which he is a member, into the alleged promiscuous use of firearms in connection with prohibition enforcement here.

Representative Sproul of Kansas, who, it was learned today, was an eye-witness of the shooting, said he was walking only two or three yards behind Senator Greene when he heard several shots. Seeing the senator stagger, he ran forward, he said, colliding with two men who were running west on Pennsylvania avenue. Mr. Sproul said he saw no automobile speed from an alley, as has been reported, and which is said to have contained the men being pursued by the revenue agents.

A NEW TEST OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Morristown, N. J., Feb. 19.—Hdson Maxim, famous inventor, of Lake Hopatcong, who has declared that under the eighteenth amendment tea and coffee are to be regarded as intoxicating, had traffic prohibited, announced today that he had retained Elmer King of this city, to bring suit against a well known hotel in Newark to test the validity of the amendment. He said that he was entirely in earnest in bringing the action.

Mr. Maxim said that he was strongly in favor of the moderation in drinking as in everything else, but that "prohibition at the point of a pistol" would never produce the cooperation "needed to destroy the evils of drink."

The eighteenth amendment, Mr. Maxim said, did not refer to alcoholic drinks but to intoxicating drinks and under this latter classification, he declared, tea and coffee came qquite as much as whiskey, though not in the same degree.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH IN HOUSE IN CHESHIRE

Cheshire, Conn., Feb. 19.—During the absence of Joseph Reilly and his wife and three older children fire broke out in their home in Mixville today and the youngest daughter, three years old, was burned to death when the house was destroyed.

He has been staying in Jackson, N. H., in the White Mountains with Mrs. Templeton. The latter is still there and expects to remain for a week or years.

REV. TALBOT BECOMES NEW BISHOP OF P. E. CHURCH

New York, Feb. 19—Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, D. D., bishop of Bethlehem, automatically succeeds to the office of presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, made vacant by the death in Dallas, Texas, yesterday of Rt. Rev. Alexander C. Barrett.

In making this announcement tonight the national council of the Episcopal church explained that under the constitution of the church as amended in 1916, Bishop Talbot will serve as ecclesiastical head of the church in America until his successor is elected at the General convention at New Orleans in September, 1925.

The constitution provided originally that the bishop next oldest in point of consecration would succeed on the death of the presiding bishop and hold the office for life. But experience showed that usually this brought a man of very advanced years to the chief post and the general convention voted that this was imposing too heavy duties on men physically unable to bear them long.

As amended the constitution provided for the election by the general conventon of a presiding bishop every six years, with the oldest bishop in point of consecration succeeding for unexpired terms in the event of the death of the incumbent.

Bishop Talbot long has been a leader in his church. Born at Fayette, Mo., October 9, 1848, he was graduated from Dartmouth in 1870 and the general Theological Seminary in 1873. He served until 1887 as rector of St. James Church, Macon, Mo., and as head master of St. James Military Academy of which he was the founder.

At the 1886 general convention at Chicago he was elected the first missionary bishop of the then "missionary district" of Wyoming and Idaho.

PASTOR CLEARED OF CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Dr. Carl D. Case, pastor of the Oak Park Baptist church was legally cleared of charges of misconduct made against him by Albert Leland a parishioner in his suit for divorce from Mrs. Charlotte Leland when Judge Charles Foell today denied the divorce degree for want of equity.

The Rev. Mr. Case had filed an intervening petition to clear his name after Mrs. Leland had made a written confession of improper relations with him to her husband, later repeating her story from the witness stand.

Judge Foell granted attorneys for Leland leave to appeal. The Judges' decision, rendered orally, came after the court had remarked that the case was "disgusting," and had deteriorated into "a scandal and a town meeting nothing else."

In their closing arguments attorneys for Dr. Case argued that Mrs. Leland suffered from hallucinations. Mr. Leland said he would live apart from his wife and could not decide on further action until he consulted his lawyers. Mrs. Leland refused to make a statement. "I am so happy that I can't speak," Rev. Case said as he rushed from the courtroom.

LINCOLN "DEATH CLOTHES" BROUGHT $6,500 AT AUCTION

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.— Clothe worn by Abraham Lincoln when he was assassinated in Ford's theatre, Washington, by John Wilkes Booth, today were sold at public auction here for $6,500. They consisted of an old black suit, the collar stained with the blood of the martyred president, the trousers wrinkled and a badly torn overcoat.

A man who gave his name as "Mr. Duglas" was the successful bidder.

The garments were originally presented by Mrs. Lincoln to Alphonso Donn, a White House doorkeeper of whom the president had been fond, and who had been his constant companion during his years in Washington.

HOUSE DEFEATS THE MELLON INCOME TAX RATES 222 TO 196

A Group of Republicans Aided the Democrats in Substituting the Garner Schedule—Bill Fixes the Surtax Maximum at 44 Per Cent. on Incomes in Excess of $92,000—The Bill Also Provides Exemptions of $2,000 For Single Persons and $3,000 For Heads of Families.

Washington, Feb. 19—Aided by a group of republicans, most of them insurgents, house democrats today eliminated from the revenue bill the Mellon income tax rates. By a vote of 222 to 196 a schedule advanced by Representative Garner, democrat, of Texas, was substituted.

The bill as amended fixes the surtax maximum at 44 per cent. On incomes in excess of $92,000 as against 50 per cent. on incomes exceeding $200,000 under existing law and 25 per cent. on incomes of more than $100,000 as recommended by the treasury. It also reduces normal income rates to a greater extent than Mr. Mellon recommended and increases personal tax exemptions, a feature not in the treasury draft.

Before approving the Garner proposal which received the support of seventeen republicans, one farmer-laborite, and one independent in addition to 203 democrats, the house acted on record as opposed to rates substantially the same as those recommended by Mr. Mellon and rejected an amendment by Representative Frear of Wisconsin, an insurgent, to cut normal rates in half without altering the existing surtax schedule.

Republican organization leaders had no opportunity to bring a vote a compromise amendment which proposed a 25 per cent. reduction in both normal and surtax rates.

Rules in effect today prevented a roll call on the democratic substitute which was approved by a teller's vote. A record vote, however on the amendment can be demanded before the bill comes up for passage and organization republicans are planning to bring this about. Such a vote would bring a straight out test of strength between the Mellon and the Garner rates. An opportunity also will be afforded the republicans to offer their compromise with a roll call on the proposition in order.

After disposing of the income rates section an amendment offered by Representative Garner proposing to make stock dividends taxable was defeated 141 to 127, the house proceeding with reading of the bill in regular order.

Debate on the income tax sections, the main target of democratic and insurgent republican opposition to the revenue bill, terminated by agreement at 3.30 o'clock, with practically every member of the house on the floor and the galleries filled with spectators.

A vote came first on the amendment offered at the last moment by Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee who declared the house should record itself on the Mellon rates. With the Garner and Frear amendments pending such a vote was not in order and to bring it about Mr. Madden proposed a surtax maximum of 26 per cent. instead of the Mellon 25 per cent. the only point of difference in the two schedules.

The Madden substitute was rejected 246 to 153, about forty republicans, including Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, joining the democrats in opposition.

By a standing vote of 264 to 46 the Frear amendment was thrown out and then a vote was taken on the Garner substitute, Representative Longworth, republican leader, having announced that he would offer a compromise to fix the surtax maximum at 37½ per cent. only in the event the democratic plan was rejected.

One democrat, Deal of Virginia, who at the party caucus announced he was opposed to the Garner plan, did not vote, while three others, Wise, Georgia; Dupre, Louisiana, and Montague, Virginia, were absent.

The 203 other democratic members of the house marched up the center aisle to record their votes for the Garner amendment. With them were these republicans:

The ten in the Wisconsin delegation Reid, Illinois; Woodruff, Michigan; La Guardia, New York; Davis and Keller, Minnesota; St. Clair, North Dakota, and Mrs. Nolan, California; Wefald, Farmer-labor and Kvale, Independent, Minnesota, also supported the democratic proposal, while Berger, Socialist, Wisconsin, was absent, as were eleven republicans. Representative Graham, republican, Illinois, presiding, did not vote.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away reading of the bill was proceeded with until 5:30 o'clock, most of the important administrative features receiving approval without question.

In offering his resolution to tax stock dividends, Representative Garner, who led the democratic opposition in the income rates fight, announced democrats were released from the party caucus agreement and said he expected the remainder of the measure to be considered in a non-partisan manner. He predicted, however, that on a record vote on his amendment, if a motion is made to recommit the bill, not more than 150 votes will be cast against the democratic income rates schedules adopted today.

Mr. Longworth said another vote would be sought but what course of procedure the republicans would pursue in this regard had not been determined tonight. No further action can be taken on this section until the bill is up for passage. The republican leader regretted that the compromise offer was not accepted and said the outcome had been expected in the light of the stand of the insurgents.

Asked as to his opinion of the probabilities of President Coolidge's attitude on the democratic rate schedules, Mr. Longworth replied merely that the bill as now framed would result in a deficit in revenue two years from now of $300,000,000.

THE GARNER, PRESENT AND MELLON INCOME TAX RATES

Washington, Feb. 19.—The democratic income tax substitute adopted today by the house provides:

Normal taxes of two per cent. on incomes below $5,000; four per cent. on incomes between $5,000 and $8 000; six per cent. on incomes exceeding $8,000.

A graduated surtax scale beginning at one per cent. on incomes between $12,000 and $14,000 up to a maximum of 44 per cent. on incomes exceeding $92,999.

Exemption of $2,000 for single persons and $3,000 for heads of families.

Existing law provides:

Normal taxes of 4 per cent. on incomes up to $4,000 and 8 per cent. above $8,000.

Surtaxes beginning at one per cent. on incomes between $6,000 and $10,000 and graduating progressively to 50 per cent. on incomes in excess of $200,000.

Exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for heads of families.

The Mellon provision eliminated proposed:

Normal rates of three per cent. on incomes up to $4,000 and six per cent. on incomes exceeding $4,000.

Surtaxes ranging from one per cent. on incomes between $10,000 and $12,000 to 25 per cent. on incomes exceeding $100,000.

No increase in personal tax exemptions.

The Frear amendment rejected proposed:

Cutting normal rates in half with surtaxes continuing at their present level.

No change in exemptions.

The Madden amendment voted down differed from the Mellon schedule in the maximum surtax rate which it sought to have fixed at 26 per cent.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The tariff commission made public its estimate of the cost of milling and marketing hard spring wheat flour.

The house approved the democratic income and surtax rates as a substitute for those proposed in the Mellon tax bill.

A debate on the soldiers' bonus was precipitated in the senate when Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, in a speech opposed it.

The senate ordered an inquiry into charges attributed to Colonel Thomas Miller, alien property custodian, that the treasury has juggled estimates of the cost of a soldiers' bonus.

The senate veterans committee conferred with director Hines regarding conditions in the New York office of the Veterans bureau and the personnel situation in general headquarters here.

Preparations were begun by Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, for their work as special government oil counsel.

Attorney-General Daugherty remained defiant in the face of new attacks aimed to bring about his retirement from the cabinet.

President Coolidge let it be known that he regards business as not seriously injured by developments in the oil inquiry.

Senate oil committee members said the name of at least one public official appeared on the list of stock brokerage transactions presented by broker officials.

The Wheeler resolution for investigation of Attorney-General Daugherty and the department of justice was sent to the committee, a vote in the senate being blocked on objection of Senator Lodge.

The senate engaged in debate over the oil situation during which Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, charged that friends of Attorney-General Daugherty had obtained money for services in connection with department of justice cases.

MURDER WITNESSED BY BOY IN WHEEL CHAIR

Buffalo, New York, Feb. 19.—A thirteen year old boy, confined to a wheel chair, was the sole witness of the slaying of an Erie County hospital inmate by a fellow patient this afternoon.

Seated helpless, in his chair at the door of an adjoining ward, Sylvester Salkowich watched Thomas Layton, 55 years old, slash the throat of William Burton, 66, while the latter was preparing food in the kitchen. Burton died twenty minutes later in the emergency ward. His jugular vein was severed.

Layton closed the razor with which he had inflicted the death wound and seated himself in a chair. Three hospital attendants found him.

A former employe of the state insane asylum, Layton was undergoing treatment for a broken him. He had to be assisted to the patrol wagon to be taken to the City hospital, where he was placed under observation. He said his home was in Highland, N. Y.

Burton, who was said to have relatives in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was sent to the hospital last November from Silver Creek. Authorities were unable to learn of ill feeling between the men. This afternoon Layton limped into the kitchen, and according to the Salkowich boy's story, suddenly leaned over Burton and drew forth a razor. "Now you'll get that!" he exclaimed and drew the blade across Burton's throat.

SHARP RALLY IN FRENCH AND BELGIAN FRANCS

New York, Feb. 19.—After establishing new low records for all time, French and Belgian francs rallied sharply in the late dealings today on the receipt of cable advices indicating the settlement of the reparations problem by placing a mortgage on German railways and without recourse to a formidable international loan. French francs dipped to a new low level at 4.07 1-2 cents before recovering 10 points, and Belgian exchange touched 3.42 cents, later advancing about 5 points.

Short covering by speculative interests, whose heavy selling of the exchanges helped to precipitate yesterday's sharp break, aided in the recovery. Demand sterling was firm around $4.20 1-3 and Japanese yen improved after an early decline of about 20 points.

Bankers were inclined to see a more favorable turn in French financial affairs with the prospect of regular revenues from German mortgage bonds and the budget balanced by the increased taxes which were approved by the chamber of deputies.

13 DEATHS IN EAST SIDE NEW YORK TENEMENT FIRE

New York, Feb. 19.—Thirteen coffins, containing bodies of the victims of this morning's tenement fire in the lower East Side, were tagged tonight with the names of those within and removed from the morgue to the homes of relatives. The last identification, that of the smoke-blackened body of an 11-months-old girl, was made by her father, the sole surviving member of his family.

The coffins were arranged in groups. There were five containing the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. William Barrett and their three small children. In four others lay all the fire had left of Mrs. Francis Harkaway and her three little ones. The bodies of Benjamin Dober, his wife and 10 year old son occupied three other coffins.

In the thirteenth was a body identified as that of Mrs. Bessie Smith, an aged suffered of rheumatism. She with those 12 others had been trapped high above the ground in one of the Ghetto's most fatal and mystifying tenement fires.

Two others, a man and a girl baby who were rescued only after having been burned so seriously that they may die, are at Gouverneur hospital.

Although several inmates of the tenement who barely escaped death declared the fire burst forth after a moonshine still explosion in the quarters of the janitor—a victim—police tonight were convinced the fire was set. They sought a half crazed pyromaniac whom some of the rescued reported having seen rush from lower hallway of the building at the first cries of "Fire."

Mrs. Mary Casey, a relative fo the Barrets who identified them at the morgue, was postive there had been a still explosion. But police, finding the charred remnants of two baby carriages beneath the lower hallway sairs, listed this fire with the score of other fatal "baby carriage fires" that have occurred in widely separated sections of the city in the last 18 months.

Although the authorities believe there may be more than one of the pyromaniacs, the course of recent tenement fires have been strangely similar. Almost invariably the source has been a baby-carriage which, parked beneath the hallway stairs according to the custom in such crowded dwellings, has been saturated with oil and set afire by a stranger to the neighborhood who slips into the building into the dead of night, applies the match and is gone again before the blaze sweeps death through crowded rooms.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT N. Y. ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

New York, Feb. 19.—Arthur J. Davis of Boston, superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon league, was elected superintendent of the New York State Anti-Saloon league today to succeed William H. Anderson, who resigned after his conviction for forgery.

Mr. Davis, nominated for the post by Purley Baker, national superintendent of the league, was unanimously confirmed by the directors of the New York league.

Mr. Davis has served as regional superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in New England and New York, is vice president of the Scientific Temperance Federation of Boston, and a member of the executive committee of the World League Against Alcoholism.

A statement issued by the league said: "During his term as superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon league that state ratified the 18th amendment. He is regarded as a competent executive and has had extensive business experience. He has had active political experience in the management of campaigns and of the campaigns of candidates for state office. He is deeply interested in the educational side of prohibition and believes real law enforcement will follow in the wake of willing observance of and respect for law."

Mr. Davis, it was said, will have complete charge of the "dry" program in New York state, directing the league's fight for a state enforcement law.

TRAIL OF OIL INQUIRY LEADS BACK TO SENATE

Washington, Feb. 19—The trail of the oil inquiry, after devious ramblings led directly back today to the United States senate.

When the oil committee met behind closed doors to examine certain records of the Benkard Stock Brokerage firm, of New York it found the name of a senator entered there.

Pending a more complete examination of all the records of the firm in New York, the name was withheld. While pledged to secrecy now, committeemen declared that when the audit of the books for transactions in oil and other stocks by other government officials had been finished there would be no suppression of any of the facts unearthed.

Additional information with regard to such stock transactions will be sought by the committee tomorrow at another executive session at which it expects to examine Harry Payne Whitney, New York financier, who failed to appear today in response to a subpoena. Mr. Whitney is hurrying to Washington from the south.

Aside from the examination of a list record of transaction through the Benkard firm, the committee in consultation with Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel in the oil cases, discussed who might be able to furnish information of the highest importance.

FARINA MURDER CASE GIVEN TO THE JURY

New York, Feb. 19.—The case of John Farina, on trial for the murder of two Brooklyn bank messengers on November 14, was given to the jury at 11.05 o'clock tonight.

Morris and Joseph Diamond, brothers, already have been convicted of the crime.

Tonight's session of the trial was given over to summation of their cases by Samuel Siegel, defense attorney, and Assistant District Attorney Hughes, and the charge to the jury by Supreme Court Justice Cropsey.

Mr. Siegel asked the jury not to vote for a conviction if they felt there was any reasonable doubt in favor of the defendant.

Justice Cropsey's charge to the jury lasted one hour and thirteen minutes and was in almost every detail similar to the charges he made in the Diamond trials.

Strike in Britain Retards Commerce

Less Than One-Fifth of Normal Number of Men Are Working at the London Docks.

London, Feb. 19 (By the A. P.)—While the employers claim some slight improvement in the dock strike situation today so far as London is concerned there are no signs of a let-up at other ports in the United Kingdom. About three thousand men are still working at the London docks, which is less than one-fifth the normal figure.

Secretary Bevin of the DockWorkers Union asserts that the strikers' determination is increasing everywhere, and there are reports of defections to the ranks of the strikers from the "blue," or Stevedores' union, the members of which, together with a small contingent of employes of the Port of London authorities are attempting to carry on the work at the London docks, without overmuch enthusiasm. The cargoes of thirty-two ships are being handled, but as many more are being kept waiting.

Another big river plate mat ship, The Baroness, has joined her sister ship, the Duquesa; neither cargo has yet been touched.

Meat prices are soaring, and importers say they will suffer in any case, as chilled meat will presently necessitate freezing with consequent deprecation in value.

Meanwhile new phases of the strike are developing. The Transportation union has instructed its members to refuse to carry goods to or from the docks. Four thousand carters quit this afternoon, findinfi their journeys to the docks wasted, and Secretary Bevin asserts that ten thousand will be out tomorrow.

The railwaymen at Grimsby and Hull, handling the fish traffic, have refused to work, and big consignments of fish are left stranded. The dockers at different Ulster ports have also struck in sympathy and Secretary Bevin has called out the canal workers on the Manchester-Liverpool canal.

The council of the trade union congress unanimously decided tonight to support the strikers' demands, and there seems no likelihood of any mediation from that quarter.

The court of inquiry appointed by the minister of labor, Tom Shaw, will hold its first public session at the law courts tomorrow. Mr. Shaw in the house of commons this evening made it clear that this was no arbitration tribunal and that no undertaking to abide by its conclusions had been sought or given by the parties in the dispute.

The Liverpool employers have already offered to accept a unanimous decision by the court on condition that the unions would do the same and the official strike has come to a halt immediately.

Red-lettered bills appeared overnight on the boardings in Liverpool appealing to the dockers to stand pat and affiliate with the red internationals. The authors of the manifesto took occasion to denounce the members of the labor government, as for instance: "All power to the coming revolution. To hell with the labor government and their dupes."

About a thousand shipyard engineers at Southampton went on strike today for higher wages.

FINDS FLAW IN COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH GERMANY

Washington, Feb. 19—A shipping board resolution opposing the most favored nations clause of the commercial treaty between the United States and Germany on the ground that it would hamper development of the American merchant marine was in place today before the senate foreign relations committee, which has the treaty under consideration. Vice Chairman Plummer of the board appeared before the committee to urge its views on this section of the treaty.

In opposing the provision which would prevent the United States from imposing discriminating customs, duties and tonnage dues in favor of American ships the board took the position that it would be unwise for the United States to enter into a treaty which would restrict it "in the complete and full authority to enforce or put into effect any or all of the provisions of the Merchant marine act."

Section 34 of the act provides for such discriminatory duties.

Supporting the board's further assertion that shipping is an industry entitled to protective legislation "without asking the permission of any other nation", Mr. Plummer was said to have told the committee that any provision in the treats contrary to that principle should be eliminated.

REDUCING SALARIES OF OFFICERS OF SHIPPING FLEET

Washington, Feb. 19. — On recommendation of Leigh C. Palmer, president of the emergency fleet corporation, the shipping board today approved an aggregate reduction of $18,000 in the salaries of four vice presidents of the fleet corporation. Seven thousand dollars was cut from the pay of each of the two receiving $25,000, and $2,000 for each of the two receiving $20,000.

The reductions, effective March 1, were made, it was announced, "as a matter of economy and without any question as to the ability of these officers."

Additional salary reductions were made, Mr. Palmer said, "but only where such reductions will leave as much or even more efficiency" than before. He said he had found some duplications of work and surplus personnel in the fleet corporations which should be removed as a part of the general policy to cut down expenses to meet the $14,000,000 reduction in the combined budget for the board and the corporation.

FORMER GUNBOAT SEIZED FOR DEBT IN BOSTON

Boston, Feb. 19.—The steamer Yankton, which was a gunboat and despatch runner in the Spanish-American war under Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans, was in the custody of a United States marshal today for the non-payment of a $784 grocery bill. The Yankton encircled the world with the fleet in Roosevelt's administration and did duty in the North sea in the World war. She is now in the passenger and freight service.

Daugherty Defiant Toward His Critics

Senator Wheeler Charges That the Attorney General Has Portected Crime and Criminals.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The attempt to drive Attorney General Daugherty from the cabinet was renewed from a new angle in the senate today after he had adopted an attitude of defiance toward his critics.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, not only charged on the senate floor that the attorney general's name was mixed in the oil scandal from the first but he charged that Mr. Daugherty's personal friends had been accepting money in exchange for their influence with him and added that "if the attorney general has not actually got the money, he is a bigger fool than the people of the United States give him credit for being."

"This is only a small portion, an extremely small portion, of the testimony that will be produced," Senator Wheeler said, "showing beyond any question of doubt in my mind that the attorney general of the United States, instead of prosecuting crime, has been protecting crime and criminals."

The speech of the Montana senator was delivered in behalf of his resolution asking for a sweeping investigation of Mr. Daugherty's official record. He sought immediate action but consent was refused by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, because of Mr. Wheeler's proposal that he himself select the investigating committee.

Tonight the attorney general not only maintained his determination against retiring from office under fire but also refused to make any reply to the attacks upon him. There has been suggestion that Mr. Daugherty might make a statement after today's cabinet meeting but he left the White House and went to his home to spend the remainder of the day without a word as to his intentions.

In his charges on the senate floor that friends of Mr. Daugherty had accepted money, Senator Wheeler named Jesse Smith, of Ohio, who committed suicide in the attorney general's apartment here last May, and "the attorney general's former partner and friend, Mr. Felder."

Senator Wheeler made his senate speech after he had appeared before the oil committee in executive session and laid before it certain information regarding investigations which have been made into charges of stock speculation by government officials.

The Montana senator proposed as members of the investigating committee, the selection of Senators Brookhart of Iowa, Jones of Washington, and McLean of Connecticut, republicans, and Ashurst of Arizona, and himself, democrats. Senator Lodge objected that designation of the committee members in the resolution itself was an insult to the presiding officer whose function it naturally would be to make the selections. Senator Wheeler in return asked whether Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, had not given the chair another list for membership on the committee after conferring with Mr. Daugherty.

"Certainly I conferred with the chair," said Senator Willis.

"After just previously you had conferred with the man who is to be investigated," persisted Senator Wheeler.

"That statement like so many of the senator's is entirely gratuitous," replied the Ohio senator. "It is also beside the point."

Senator Wheeler then explained that he had undertaken to choose the personnel of the committee because he recalled what had happened during the Daugherty impeachment proceedings in the house in 1922. Instead of Mr. Daugherty, he said, "the man who introduced the resolution was, in reality, tried."

"Ever since the attorney general has occupied the important position he now holds," Senator Wheeler continued, "various charges have been made against him in the newspapers and by individuals from one end of the country to the other.

"Recently, when the oil scandal first developed, it appears that the attorney general's name was mixed in it. It appeared, if you please, that he was a friend of Ned McLean. Everybody knows he was a friend of Sinclair. Everybody knows he was a friend of Doheny. Everybody knows that those three men met in the apartment of the attorney general from time to time.

"Everybody knows that Jesse Smith, who was brought from the state of Ohio, and had an office in the department of justice, and who was not on the payroll, was accepting money in connection with various cases that arose in the department of justice."

REPARATION EXPERTS MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

Paris, Feb. 19.—(By The A. P.)—The expert committees are making excellent progress toward a tangible conclusion as to how to put Germany in the way to pay reparations.

The sub-committee on the budget and currency continued their work actively today with the expectation of having a completed draft of their findings ready for submission to the full committee tomorrow.

The railroad experts also have nearly finished their task and will submit their final reports on Thursday at the latest. The full committee plans to consider it Friday and to hear the experts concerning it on Saturday.

The sub-committee on the proposed German gold bank heard Dr. Schacht, president of the German reichsbank this afternoon and discussed his plan to eventually consolidate his gold bank with that planned by the committee of experts.

BOSTON DRESSMAKERS ON STRIKE FOR 40-HOUR WEEK

Boston, Feb. 19.—Men and women dressmakers employed in 108 shops in this city and vicinity went on strike today in an effort to enforce their demand for a five-day, 40-hour week. Leaders of the locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union involved claimed that 1700 workers were out. The manufacturers made no estimate.

Vaudeville theatres in the United States raised more than $200,000 for Japanese relief immediately after the earthquake.

SENATE TO PROBE MILLER STATEMENT ON BONUS COST

Alien Property Custodian to Be Required to Explain Charge That the Treasury Had "Juggled" the Estimates—Senate Vote Puts Investigation in the Hands of the Finance Committee—Senator Bruce Denounced the Compensation Proposal as a "Squalid and Odious Gratuity."

Washington, Feb. 19.—The senate took a hand today in the bonus stir-up. After listening to a fight precipitated by a declaration of Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, that the compensation proposal was a "squalid and odious gratuity," it voted for an inquiry into charges attributed to Colonel Thomas Miller, alien property custodian, that the treasury had "juggled" its estimates of the cost of a bonus.

The investigation was proposed in a resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, and which was adopted today without a record vote and after only a brief explanation by the Mississippi senator. It puts the investigation in the hands of the senate finance committee.

Before Senator Bruce had time for a breathing spell after his address on the bonus, Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, had called him a champion of the "Jack Dempseys of the war," and a number of others were on their feet to take exception to some of his remarks.

On top of this Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, charged that Major General John F. O'Ryan had violated the quasi-confidential relations of "lawyer and client" by trying to use in anti-bonus work the organization built up during his service as special counsel with the senate committee which investigated the veterans' bureau.

After Senator Bruce had expressed the opinon that the bonus was "indefensible in principle," Senator Caraway charged that the Maryland senator had evidenced no concern "when the railroads sought and got a bonus of $1,800,000,000."

"I remember," said Mr. Caraway, "that in his zeal to maintain the Esch-Cummins act, he switched his vote against a member of his own party. No man who has the proper American spirit will stand here and denounce the American soldier as a danger."

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, said most of the bonus opposition apparently was based on support of the Mellon tax plan. Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, interrupting the Maryland senator's remarks as criticising pro-bonus veterans for opposing the tax reduction, said he would consider their service in defeating the Mellon plan "equal to that which they rendered on the battlefield."

INVESTIGATING SHOOTING OF SENATOR GREENE

Washington, Feb. 19.—Senator Greene of Vermont, continued his fight for life tonight with attending surgeons announcing that while his condition remained critical he was holding his own. A second operation was performed last night which resulted in checking a brain hemorrhage that followed the wound received by the senator Friday night. The bullet which struck him was fired during a gun battle between prohibition agents and suspected bootleggers.

With the outcome of the senator's injuries still doubtful, United States District Attorney Gordon began an investigation today into the shooting, examining more than a dozen eyewitnesses. At the White House also it was indicated that action would be taken there through appropriate agencies on receipt of information requested from the District of Columbia commissioners and the prohibition unit as to regulations covering the sale and use of firearms.

The president was said to regard the shooting of the Vermont senator as a most lamentable affair and to have taken steps to ascertain who was to blame and to make certain that appropriate action is taken to insure against a recurrence of such a situation.

At the same time, Representative Gibson, republican, Vermont, gave notice that he would ask for an investigation by the house district committee, of which he is a member, into the alleged promiscuous use of firearms in connection with prohibition enforcement here.

Representative Sproul of Kansas, who, it was learned today, was an eye-witness of the shooting, said he was walking only two or three yards behind Senator Greene when he heard several shots. Seeing the senator stagger, he ran forward, he said, colliding with two men who were running west on Pennsylvania avenue. Mr. Sproul said he saw no automobile speed from an alley, as has been reported, and which is said to have contained the men being pursued by the revenue agents.

A NEW TEST OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Morristown, N. J., Feb. 19.—Hdson Maxim, famous inventor, of Lake Hopatcong, who has declared that under the eighteenth amendment tea and coffee are to be regarded as intoxicating, and traffic prohibited, announced today that he had retained Elmer King of this city, to bring suit against a well known hotel in Newark to test the validity of the amendment. He said that he was entirely in earnest in bringing the action.

Mr. Maxim said that he was strongly in favor of the moderation in drinking as in everything else, but that "prohibition at the point of a pistol" would never produce the cooperation "needed to destroy the evils of drink."

The eighteenth amendment, Mr. Maxim said, did not refer to alcoholic drinks but to intoxicating drinks and under this latter classification, he declared, tea and coffee came quite as much as whiskey, though not in the same degree.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH IN HOUSE IN CHESHIRE

Cheshire, Conn., Feb. 19.—During the absence of Joseph Reilly and his wife and three older children fire broke out in their home in Milldville today and the youngest daughter, three years old, was burned to death when the house was destroyed.

Beatrice, six years old, the oldest of three children, left at home, carried her baby brother to safety to the home of a neighbor and returned to rescue her sister Mildred, but arrived too late.

Neighbors sent in an alarm of fire and attempted vainly to save the little girl. The building and contents were completely destroyed before the arrival of the fire department.

GOV. TEMPLETON HAS BEEN IN WHITE MOUNTAINS

Waterbury, Feb. 19.—Governor C. A. Templeton, whose recent unannounced absence from the state caused much speculation as to who is the acting governor, returned home tonight. He had slipped away from the cares of state and the business world for a few days without notifying either secretary or other associates as he felt that was the only way in which he could be able to get a complete rest.

He has been staying in Jackson, N. H., in the White Mountains with Mrs. Templeton. The latter is still there and expects to remain for a week.

REV. TALBOT BECOMES NEW BISHOP OF P. E. CHURCH

New York, Feb. 19—Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, D. D., bishop of Bethlehem, automatically succeeds to the office of presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, made vacant by the death in Dallas, Texas, yesterday of Rt. Rev. Alexander C. Barrett.

In making this announcement tonight the national council of the Episcopal church explained that under the constitution of the church as amended in 1916, Bishop Talbot will serve as ecclesiastical head of the church in America until his successor is elected at the General convention at New Orleans in September, 1925.

The constitution provided originally that the bishop next oldest in point of consecration would succeed on the death of the presiding bishop and hold the office for life. But experience showed that usually this brought a man of very advanced years to the chief post and the general convention voted that this was imposing too heavy duties on men physically unable to bear them long.

As amended the constitution provided for the election by the general convention of a presiding bishop every six years, with the oldest bishop in point of consecration succeeding for unexpired terms in the event of the death of the incumbent.

Bishop Talbot long has been a leader in his church. Born at Fayette, Mo., October 9, 1843, he was graduated from Dartmouth in 1870 and the general Theological Seminary in 1873. He served until 1887 as rector of St. James Church, Macon, Mo., and as head master of St. James Military Academy of which he was the founder.

At the 1886 general convention at Chicago he was elected the first missionary bishop of the then "missionary district" of Wyoming and Idaho.

PASTOR CLEARED OF CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Dr. Carl D. Case, pastor of the Oak Park Baptist church was legally cleared of charges of misconduct made against him by Albert Leland a parishioner in his suit for divorce from Mrs. Charlotte Leland when Judge Charles Foell today denied the divorce degree for want of equity.

The Rev. Mr. Case had filed an intervening petition to clear his name after Mrs. Leland had made a written confession of improper relations with him to her husband, later repeating her story from the witness stand.

Judge Foell granted attorneys for Leland leave to appeal. The Judges' decision, rendered orally, came after the court had remarked that the case was "disgusting," and had deteriorated into "a scandal and a town meeting nothing else."

In their closing arguments attorneys for Dr. Case argued that Mrs. Leland suffered from hallucinations. Mr. Leland said he would live apart from his wife and could not decide on further action until he consulted his lawyers. Mrs. Leland refused to make a statement. "I am so happy that I can't speak," Rev. Case said as he rushed from the courtroom.

LINCOLN "DEATH CLOTHS" BROUGHT $6,500 AT AUCTION

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.— Cloths worn by Abraham Lincoln when he was assassinated in Ford's theatre, Washington, by John Wilkes Booth, today were sold at public auction here for $6,500. They consisted of an old black suit, the collar stained with the blood of the martyred president, the trousers wrinkled and a badly torn overcoat.

A man who gave his name as "Mr. Duglas" was the successful bidder.

The garments were originally presented by Mrs. Lincoln to Alphonso Donn, a White House doorkeeper of whom the president had been fond, and who had been his constant companion during his years in Washington.

SOFT COAL MINERS SIGN THREE-YEAR WAGE CONTRACT

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 19 (By the A. P.)—Signing a three-year wage contract for the bituminous miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and western Pennsylvania, miners and operators' representatives here late today laid the groundwork for peace in the industry and according to statements of John L. Lewis, president of the miners, and Michael Gallagher, spokesman for the operators, gave America assurance of an adequate and continuous supply of coal for at least three years.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

WILLIMANTIC

County Investigator William E. Jackson, of this city, was charged with assault in the local police court Tuesday morning the complainant in the case being Philip Pagano, also of Willimantic. Jackson had retained Attorney Gaucher as counsel and the case was continued to Saturday March 1. Jackson was released on his own recognizance. As told in Tuesday morning's Bulletin, the case is the outcome of a raid at Pagano's store Saturday evening, February 9, when Jackson assisted Federal Prohibition Enforcement officers. Pagano alleges that Jackson assaulted him after the raid. Pagano's case also is scheduled to come up in the police court March 1st, when he will be charged with keepink liquor with intent to sell. The warrant for Jackson's arrest was signed by Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey and was served by Chief of Police Allan MacArthur.

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Willimantic Welfare Bureau the main business was the election of officers and the voting of an increase in the secretary's salary to $20 per week. Seven members were present: President M. E. Lincoln, Rev. Arthur W. Clifford and Rev. William M. Brown of Windham, Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's church, Charles F. Risedorf, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton and Mrs. Helen B. Brown.

President Lincoln was elected secretary pro tem, in the absence of Miss Elizabeth Anderson, secretary of the bureau. Officers were elected as follows by ballot with Rev. F. C. Williams as teller: President M. Eugene Lincoln, first vice president, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton; second vice president, John Reiley; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Anderson; treasurer, Pierre J. Laramee; auditors, Herbert A. Sanderson and H. D. Pollard. The committees were appointed in the order as listed below:

Finance—James P. Bath, John P. Carlsen, J. E. Sullivan, Charles F. Risedorf, Russell A. Andrews.

Executive—Samuel Chesbro, Otto B. Robinson, Mayor Hormisdas Dion, John Reilly, John F. Carr.

Decisions—Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, Mrs. Christopher Case, Mrs. Edwin Clark, Mrs. Arthur W. Gates, James L. Harroun principal of the Natchaug Grammar school, Frederick Noble, principal of the Windham Street school and Miss J. E. Stone, school nurse.

Ways and means—Mrs. George E. Hinman, Mrs. William A. Dawson, Mrs. Arthur Racicot, Mrs. William E. Hendry, Mrs. Herman C. Little, Mrs. Daniel A. Sullivan, Mrs. G. Everett Harrington, Mrs. Hormisdas Dion, Mrs. Joseph St. Onge, Mrs. John Reilly, Roland B. Jordan, Harry W. Standish, George W. Hickey, Joseph M. Bedard, George A. Bartlett, Nelson A. Daniels, Ralph W. E. Carpenter and John G. [illegible].

The matter of increasing the secretary's salary to $1200 a year was discussed from many angles. A number claimed that the finances of the Welfare Bureau were not in a condition to grant the increase which would amount to $360 a year. During 1923 the secretary was paid at the rate of $70 a month. It finally voted to increase the salary of the secretary to $30 a week equivalent to an increase of $200 a year. The meeting was then adjourned.

Dieudonne Desjardins, 72, of this city, died Tuesday morning at five o'clock at St. Francis' Hospital, Hartford, after a short illness with bronchial pneumonia, although he had been ill for the past three weeks. The body was brought to this city to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Robitaille, of 129 Natchaug street. Mr. Desjardins was born in St. Rosalie, Canada, June 6, a son of Baptiste and Genieve Rondeau Desjardins. He retired about two years ago from the employ of the American Thread Company. Previous to that he was employed by the Rossie Velvet Company. He had been a resident of Taftville for thirty-two years where he was employed as a teamster by E. W. Grant. He is survived by eight children, Mrs. Uderic Tanguay of St. Rosalie, Mrs. Henry Gauin of St. Cesaire, Canada, Mrs. Exite Bernard of Marie Ville, Canada, formerly of this city, Mrs. Arthur Robitaille and Mrs. Alphonse Michaud of this city, Pierre Desjardins of Norwich, Mrs. John Murtha of Norwich, Mrs. John Dreschler of Norwich and Mrs. Manuel Monis of this city. He had 24 grandchildren. He was a devoted member of St. Mary's parish.

Anniversary Week was observed on Tuesday at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club. The week marks the anniversary of Rotary International and the foundation of the local club. The club was founded, February 23, 1933 and since that time has steadily increased its membership. President James P. Mustard was in charge of the session. It was announced that 94.4 per cent. of the membership was in attendance, four members being absent. Albert B. Smith, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was a guest of the club. The educational committee, comprising Frank H. Foss Valentine L. Murphy and George H. Shafer was in charge of the program for the day. The first two named introduced the speakers who were, Mr. Murphy, James P. Bath and John F. Ahern. Brief addresses were made with regard to the history of the local lorganization and Rotary International.

Communications were read by Secretary Hill from clubs in Hartford, New Britain and Rutland, Vt., with reference to the district conference to be held in the Hardware city April 3 and 4th. The meeting February 26 will have a special entertainment program, in charge of the Boys' Work committee.

This month's edition of a sporting magazine carried an interesting article in which were related some of the experiences of Billy McLean, old time bare knuckle fighter and big league baseball umpire who passed his ninetieth birthday last December and is still alert and healhty in spite of his rough life. Billy McLean is now in Philadelphia where he is employed as caretaker of Rittenhouse Square where he is the popular friend of the hundreds of children who come there to play. Billy has tarnished barroom floors, private rooms and gutters with his blood and that of his antagonists in the old days of fist and skull fighting. He was never defeated in a fight and still retains much of his alertness and vigor. He was widely known for the strength in his arms which were the foundation for many a victory over heavier opponents. Among some of the noted fighters with whom he has engaged were: "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Peter Jackson, Joe Coburn, Tom Allen, O'Baldwin, Tim Hussey, Jim Mace, Joe Goss and Con Foley. Billy fought in the middleweight class, which in those days called for 155 pounds. Fighting for hours in back rooms and getting off a sick bed to answer a challenge are some of the reminiscences of the grizzled old battler. He was also an umpire in the National, American and International Leagues and was the arbiter for games between Yale, Princeton and Hartford, and Hartford. Billy is well known in this city adding to his local acquaintances every year on his annual visit with his son, Lieutenant Frank McLean of the Willimantic police department. He also calls annually at the home of his other son, William McLean, of Webster, Mass., and visits his daughters. Billy has twenty grand children of whom he is proud.

Michael Wojtas and Jennie Josephiac were married at eight o'clock Monday morning at St. Edward's church, Stafford Springs, by the pastor, Rev. Felix J. O'Neill. Both are Stafford young people. Local friends attended the wedding which was followed by a breakfast served at the bride's home.

Rumors which have circulated about town recently to the effect that George King of the United States Navy was injured in an explosion at Panama were boiled down and found to be without foundation. The young man's father, Walter R. King of Pleasant street received a telegram in reply to his letter, from the navy [illegible] informing him this son did not figure in the explosion at [illegible] found physically and mentally. A few months ago George King was instrumental in saving the lives of four sailors, who had been swept from the deck of a submarine near New London.

Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, pastor of the Spring Hill and Mansfield Center churches is to give his illustrated lecture on India at the local Y. M. C. A. under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Baptist church, next Sunday evening. Mr. Jones speaks from intimate knowledge of his subject, having spent several years in India, being educated there and later employed by the government.

Court Fleurs-de, No. 74, L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique voted to send a representative to the quarterly district convention of the Connecticut branch of the order, to be held in Moosup Sunday next. Fifteen delegates were elected to attend the affair. This action was taken at a meeting held this week at the Al-Pierre Tabarin hall.

A warning will be issued within a few days by the board of selectmen for a town meeting to be held during the first week in March for the purpose of levying a tax on the grand list of the town for 1923 as completed at the joint meeting of the boards of relief and assessors. One of the questions to be brought up will be with regard to reducing the commission of the town tax collector, which has been at the rate of three-quarters of one per cent for thirty odd years.

Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean has given judgment for the plaintiff to recover damages of $16.50 and costs of the action, in the case of Samuel Stimpson vs. Benjamin Eisenberg. The suit was brought over the alleged poor quality of a suit of clothes purchased from the defendant. Mr. Eisenberg has announced his intention of appealing from the decision.

The annual promenade of the Junior Class of Windham School is to be held Friday evening at the Al-Pierre Tabarin. The Peerless Orchestra will furnish music.

Egbert A. Case, principal of the Windham High school will leave Saturday to attend the meeting of the National Educational Association of Superintendents in Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Ralph U. Wolmer, of Lewiston avenue, entertained the members of the Congregational church sewing club, of which Mrs. Harvey Bronson is leader, at her home Monday afternoon. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Russell W. Potter is resting comfortably at Stafford Springs hospital, where she underwent an operation recently.

Mrs. W. P. S. Keating of Walnut street, is improving in health after a confinement to her bed for seven weeks.

In the account of the degree work of the Pythian Sisters, Puritan Temple, No. 2, omission was made of the fact that Master Worker, Mrs. John N. Gilman and her team were in charge of the work which was successfully carried out.

Miss Agnes Murphy, of Taftville, with a Norwich Business College classmate, Miss Sabra Stoughton, spent the week-end at the latter's home on Pleasant street.

WINDHAM

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Trigger have announced the engagement of their daughter, Anna Elizabeth, to David T. Light.

Miss Anna Trigger was given a surprise party on her birthday recently. The guests spent a very pleasant evening. Refreshments were served.

Miss Annie Service of Willington, spent Suday with Mrs. Charlotte Latrhop.

Thursday afternoon the Parent Teachers association gave a kitchen shower in the form of a cobweb valentine party for the principal of the Grammar school, Miss Florence Truett, whose engagement to Harry Moseley of Scotland was announced recently. The strand of the web intangled by Miss Truell led to one of the dressing rooms inside the stage in the assembly hall, where it terminated in a clothes basket overflowing with packages. Later a dainty lunch was served in the domestic science room. Decorations were in keeping with Valentine day. The affair was in charge of the executive committee of the P. T. A. the president, Mrs. F. G. Barber, Mrs. Annie Jacobs, Mrs. Edward Bailey, Mrs. John Webster, Mrs. A. W. Clifford, Mrs. M. C. Hatch, Mrs. John Potter, Mrs. H. E. Lockingwell and Miss Gertrude Arnold. A silver offering for the National Organization whose anniversary was the 17th was received by Doris and Elizabeth Webster, Marian Bartley and Bettie Barber who had heart-shaped aprons and headdresses. There were about 40 present.

The Junior C. E. society had a valentine party in the chapel Saturday p. m. The children had a merry hour playing games with valentine favors. Refreshments were served. Mrs. A. W. Clifford was in charge.

A very pretty valentine party was given in the chapel Friday evening by the C. E. Society, in charge of the entertainment committee of the social committee, Mrs. John Potter. Heart games were played with valentines for prizes. The refreshment table was decorated with fancy crept paper and a fortune cast in the center had a tiny cupid in the centre, the cake contained a ring found by Stella Gubisky, a coin found by Frank Barber and a date found by George Bass. Raised doughnuts, cookies, coffee and stuffed dates were the lunch.

BOLTON

The town fathers held their February meeting last Monday.

Mrs. Jane R. Sumner who was born in Bolton 94 years ago and has lived nearly all of that time in town, passed her birthday at her daughter's, Mrs. Clair S. Hutchinsons, Hartford, February 13th, where she is spending the winter. Mrs. Sumner looks many years younger than she is, is keen mentally, well physically and active in getting about.

Miss Adelaide E. Sperry of Rockville, a resident of Bolton for many years has been visiting her cousins, Miss Winifred G. Carpenter in New Rochelle, N. Y. and Miss May L. Carpenter in South Norwalk.

Miss Ruth S. Jones who is a student at Moody School, Northfield, Mass., writes home they expect soon to be out of quarantine, which they have been under sometime on account of contagious diseases in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Massey's small son Bobby is recovering from the grip.

Rev. Frederick C. Taylor gave a fine talk of Life of Abraham Lincoln at the Sunday morning service.

JEWETT CITY

The board of electric light commissioners, George J. Moeller, E. G. Lague and L. G. Buckingham, at their February meeting, at which time they consider matters for the general benefit of the local system, are confronted with the old problem of those who fail to pay on time. The list contains individuals, religious corporations, and civic establishments.

It has proven a matter of much embarrassment to the commission. During the past year it was expected that improvement would be noted, but now two or three letters are necessary before settlement is made.

The board has decided to adopt the plan of adding, beginning March 15, an extra cent per kilowat to all bills which are not paid promptly, or by the 15th of the month following that in which the electricity is consumed.

Forty-five friends and parishioners of Rev. J. P. Richardson of Pachaug, gave him a surprise call Monday evening, it being his seventy-ninth birthday. The evening was spent with music and games. Cake and coffee were served. Mrs. Willis K. Terry made a birthday cake, and Mrs. Chauncey Robie was chairman of the arrangement committee. W. B. Montgomery, after a brief speech of congratulations, presented Mr. Richardson a substantial sum of money, which is to be used in purchasing a talking machine. Mr. Richardson was very appreciative of being thus remembered on his birthday, and so expressed himself.

Mrs. F. D. Ballou is to entertain the Ladies' society of the Congregational church at her home Thursday afternoon.

At a meeting of Pachaug Ladies Aid Society at Mrs. W. B. Montgomery's, committees were appointed for several affairs during the year. In May Mrs. Victor Campbell, Mrs. W. C. Terry, Mrs. LeRoy Holmes, Mrs. C. D. Babcock, and Mrs. J. P. Richardson. In July Mrs. Harold Dunbar, Mrs. Chauncey Robie, Mrs. Frank Browning and Mrs. Walter Johnson. In September Mrs. William Reed, Miss Bessie Burton, Mrs. George Geer, Mrs. William Briggs, Mrs. William Edmond and Mrs. Horace Needham. In November, Mrs. W. B. Montgomery, Mrs. William Bitgood, Mrs. Arba Browning, Mrs. Jane Lester, Mrs. William Christopher and Mrs. Henry Guile.

At the Methodist church this (Wednesday) evening, the pastor will lecture on the subject, Is the Bible Infallible? Following that there will be a social program, in charge of the men's class.

Miss Elizabeth Clarke, who has been visitor for the Connecticut Children's Aid Society for four and one half years, has resigned as noted in the Bulletin, Monday. She has a position in Milwaukee, Wis., where she is to be connected with the Juvenile Protective association. Previous to her work in Connecticut, she was associated with the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities and did settlement work with the Rivington Street Settlement House. Miss Clarke goes to her new position March first.

A surprise party was given Miss Olive Stafford at her home on South Main street, Friday evening by girl friends. The party was in the form of a farewell, as Miss Stafford leaves for Providence, the coming week, to take up her duties in a hair dressing parlor. In behalf of many friends Miss Celia Liberty presented Miss Stafford a purse of gold, as a token of friendship and esteem. The evening was pleasantly spent playing games and with victrola and piano selections. A pleasing solo, A Kiss in the Dark was sung by Miss Dorothy Moore of Webster, Mass. Later in the evening a fine lunch was served by Mrs. Joseph Stafford, Miss Delia Shea, Celia Liberty and Agnes Gill. The lunch included salad, sandwiches, cake, cookies, coffee, nuts, oranges, bananas and candy. Those in the party were Celia Liberty, Agnes Gill, Olive Stafford, Ruth Peterson, Angeline Pariseau, Delia Shea, Emma Potter, Dorothy Moore, Alice Jodoin, Estelle Jodoin, Elizabeth Stafford, Diana Cretin, Vivian McLaughlin, Madeline Margaret Gill, Amelia Liberty, Alice Brennan, Theresa Ashey, Valedia Eoule, Catherine and Marjorie Stafford, Jennie Blake, Madeline Raille and Violet Peterson. Also Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stafford and James Stafford.

The following scores were shot on the Voluntown Rifle Club range. Clarence Gaudette and George Sheldon put up the high scores for the Edmond Medal 95 out of a possible 100. These two crack shots are putting up some fine scores since their shooting master had a new barrel rebored for them, it is to be hoped that they will keep up the good work.

50 shots on the N. R. A. target: John Kaufmann 96, 94, 94, 98, 94—470; George Sheldon 93, 94, 93, 95, 93—468; Clarence Gaudette 86, 95, 90, 88, 89—448. Ernest Dupont 84, 86, 82, 84, 80—416.

Edmond Medal: Clarence Gaudette 95, George Sheldon 95, John Bradford 92, Joseph Herbert 91, Ernest Dupond 90.

The state road department has caused to be placed at the lower Tadpole overhead bridge and at Bishop's Crossing, sample targets with a red glass reflector attachment. In the night, when the shaft of light from an approaching automobile swings into the plane of the target it shows red, bright and clear, to the driver at a distance of several hundred yards. The other night a party of young people was coming down from Plainfield. As the machine approached Putnam's the red light showed up with what seemed extra brilliance. One of the party was able to explain to the others on the back seat, all the whys and wherefores. It was told that by an arrangement with the Connecticut company, that at Bishop's and Tadpole the trolley wires had been tapped and connections made with the signal so that it was electrically lighted at night. The driver is said to have hung fast to the wheel, and when making the turn, was heard to remark 'It's a good thing too."

A considerable number of local automobile drivers in town have purchased the "Easy See" attachment. It is a green arrangement, which when fastened to the wind-shield, serves to dim the glare of the headlights of approaching machines. It is reported that when the vision is directed through the green glass at night, there is some sort of color neutralization, that renders the red reflection targets at Bishop's and Tadpole, invisible to the driver.

New Method Of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals, is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a box which is decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Henry Dorrance has been honored with membership in the Connecticut Historical society. The headquarters of the organization is in Hartford where it has a large and valuable library. Mrs. Dorrance is not only an authority in local, historical matters, but also versed along genealogical lines, doing considerable research work.

Ralph Hopkins is in Boston for a few days attending a social function connected with Wentworth, Mr. Hopkins having taken an electrical course in this institute a few years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Tillinghast motored Sunday to Hope Valley where Mrs. Tillinghast called on her niece, who is ill.

Reports come from St. Vincent Hospital, Worcester, that Leon H. Frink is gaining steadily after a surgical operation and thy he is expecting to return home the last of this week.

Frances Mathewson is unable to attend school owing to the fact that she is suffering from whooping caugh.

New radio outfits have been installed by John Lees and J. L. Chapman. Charles Rundell has his second radio equipment.

The funeral of Georgiana. Hopkins was held Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock at her home. Many friends and relatives attended, a number coming from out of town. There were beautiful flowers. The service was conducted by Rev. William C. Prenticss, pastor of the First Congregational Church. The bearers were, Loren E. Hopkins of Washington, R. I., Havilah Howland of North Situate, R. I. Charles E. Hopkins, and Jason P. Lathrop. Burial was in the family lot in Brooklyn cemetery.

This Wednesday evening comes the first basketball game in a series of three scheduled with the fast team at South Manchester. The outcome of the game will be awaited with much interest and supense. The Buddies will put up a good fight against the Army-Navy team, of Taftville.

Margaret Heatherston, who is ill with grip, is reported a little more comfortable.

The Masonic lodge is to meet at Moosup this Wednesday evening to work the first degree.

Work is being rushed at the new high school, finishing the workmanship on the building and completing the equipment preparatory to entering in the near future.

The ladies' gym classes and swimming in the pool are to take place as usual Thursday evening at the Community House.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Mrs. Caroline Chaffee has congestion of the lunge.

Mrs. Christine Anderson gave a small dinner party last Thursday evening in honor of Miss Hilda Morrison, who has boarded with Mrs. Anderson since school opened last fall. Miss Morrison has been transferred to the Quassete district.

Mrs. Josephine Steere is visiting friends in East Douglas.

Miss Eleanor Lindeman, of Willimantic, spent the week-end at her home. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth Bridge, of Hazardville.

A missionary meeting was held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. E. E. May. The study of Japan was continued under the leadership of Mrs. L. H. Linderson and Mrs. A. H. Hibbard.

The society recently received a gift of $5.00 in memory of Miss Lucy Symonds. The members sent two potted plants, tulips and primoress to Alan Upham who is at a sanatorium in Worcester.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Grangers from all parts of the jurisdiction of the organization—and that means Windham county and adjoining territory in Tolland county, will be here Saturday to attend a meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange in nOdd Fellows' hall, in the town hall building.

The meeting is to open in the fifth degree at 10.30 a. m., when business of a general nature will be transacted and reports covering the past year of activities given by the secretary, the treasurer and a representative of the executive committee.

The afternoon session, opening at 1.30 is to be open to the public. An interesting program has been prepared. Among the speakers will be Dr. A. Elizabeth Ingraham of the state bureau of Child Hygeine. Dr. Ingraham will speak on The Importance of Keeping Well Babies Well. This lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides.

Features at this session, to which all will be welcomed by Rev. C. A. Downs, of Goodyear, the worthy master, will be a violin and piano duet by Ethel Tourtellotte of Putnam and Mr. Tilliquist, a piano solo by Miss Elizabeth Byrne of Putnam, a vocal solo by Miss Katherine Byrne of Putnam and a reading by Miss Tourtellotte.

Of interest to the membership of Pomona grange this year is the fact that an annual prize of $5 will be given to the subordinate lodge having the highest percentage of attendance at the fifth degree session figured on thir Pomona membership, also a prise for each meeting, this prize offered on the same basis.

The annual Hand Book of Quinebaug grange just issued lists the meetings scheduled for this year. Saturday's to be the first in 1924. The spring meeting is to be held May 31 at Thompson with Quinnatisset grange. The Tri-Pomona field meeting will be at Connecticut Agricultural college, at Storrs, on or about August 14. East Central and New London Pomona granges being invited to join Quinebaug Pomona, in making this a memorable gathering. The fall meeting will be held with the grange at Ashford, October 25, and the winter meeting with Plainfield on December 6.

Tuesday morning the funeral services of Patrick McBride was held at his home on North Main street with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Charles Kirby, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem, attended by relatives and many friends. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Hugh Gorman, Sr., Thomas Gorman, James Gorman, Edward McDermott, Peter Reynolds and Daniel Smith. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

At her home in Plainfield Tuesday afternoon a funeral service for Mrs. Georgianna M. Hopkins was conducted by Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield Congregational church. Numbers of relatives and friends attended. Burial was in the South cemetery in Brooklyn. The bearers were Jason Lathrop, Charles E. Hopkins, Loren Hopkins and H. J. Howland. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott was engaged Tuesday in bringing prosecutions for violations of the dog laws against certain residents of the town of Brooklyn. In the majority of cases keeping unlicensed dogs was the charges made. Mr. Elliott's activities have covered several towns in this vicinity during the present month and will embrace other towns before the work being done is completed.

A deputy collector of international revenue will be at the Windham County National bank from February 25 to 27 inclusive to lend his assistance, without charge, in filing tax returns. All are welcome to call upon him.—Adv.

Though the sounding of Box 23 just before midnight Monday would indicate a fire in the very heart of the borough's business section, very few braved the extreme cold to dress and go down town to see what it was all was all about. This did not apply to the firemen, however. These faithful servants of the public, working practically as volunteers, responded, as they do to all alarms, at any time of day or night, in any season of the year. They had a blighting cold ride to Brooklyn and back again, but they willingly performed a service—service such as they have rendered here at home for years, with too little credit or consideration from the public that owes them so much.

Well, there is one thing that has not changed much with the passing years, the general trend of things notwithstanding. Those who went to the Casino arena Tuesday evening to watch roller skating here for the first time in many a day found that it is just as easy to skid most extraordinarily and to stand on one's ear as readily as ever was the case in mastering a diversion that has lost not a whit of its attractiveness or good fun. The indications are that roller skating is going to be popular here. A lot of those who tried the skates last night vowed they would be on hand again tonight and tomorrow night, too, if necessary—and until they can just make those feet behave.

Now to straighten out a little matter pertaining to Bulletin circulation that appeared in this column Tuesday morning, when it was stated that the daily sales by news dealers in Danielson is in excess of 6,000. That is too good to be true. And almost as far away from the facts as some other claims recently made about some other things, including volume of Danielson news printed and such like. The Bulletin's daily sales by news dealers in Danielson is well in excess of 600—not 6,000. An extra 0, where one has a trunk full, might not be missed, but improper use of ciphers does make all the difference in the world.

Boxers who came to this town in the future to appear in exhibitions will know before they start to exhibit their wares in the Casino ring that they will have to do their best, or be heavily penalized financially for doing otherwise. Promoter Frank Barber will ask posting of forfeit money by all participants in future important bouts, and this forfeit money, with share of the purse guaranteed, will be held until after the bouts are concluded. Bobby Williams' stunt will not be repeated in this town right away, for a boxer is about as careful as any other business man when his own money is at stake.

Numbers of Killingly High school students and friends of the basketball team of the school were at Plainfield Tuesday evening, to see the Killingly-Plainfield game.

A case against George LaBelle, resident in Connecticut college, was settled in the town court. Mr. LaBelle was charged with keeping an unlicensed dog, but denied ownership of the animal.

Worthy of mention is the fact that Officer Christopher Andrews, on night duty, stood guard at the Main street crossing Monday midnight while fire apparatus and various other machines were rushing through the street to the fire at the George W. Ide place in Brooklyn. Officer Andrew's watchfulness being insurance against a grade crossing accident, the gates not being in operation at that hour.

Orient lodge, K. of P., observed the diamond anniversary of the founding of the order, Monday evening, at a meeting in castle hall. About 100 were in attendance. The formal program included addresses by local and visiting members. There was dancing during the evening and refreshments were served.

That particular kind of nuisance that goes about delivering advertising circulars and thinks it necessary to ring a doorbell to announce his call still thrives in Danielson, and those responsible for him appear immune to all criticism though the practice is really an imposition on the public and a great irritant to housewives.

Milton Reed of Boston has been a visitor here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Reed of Hawkins street.

In these days of steady and bitterly cold weather, the groundhog is getting a higher rating as a weather prophet than many were willing to bring him, prior to his annual appearance February 2.

Within a few days members of the board of relief will be concluding their labors for the year and the grand list will be finally complete and ready for the financial meeting of the town, which meeting will come in March.

It has been noted that there will be an eclipse of the moon this evening (Wednesday) but not visible in the eastern part of the United States.

Rev. A. Avery Gates of Hampton will conduct the prayer service at the Baptist church Thursday evening and will be a gues tat the February meeting of the officers and teachers of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Longo have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Frances Longo, and Louis Bertorelli, at St. James' church, at 8 o'clock of the morning of Monday, March 3.

A full moon and an eclipse being due tonight some of the weather prophets were inclined to predict a heavy snowstorm, especially in view of the fact that the wind was out of the northeast at sunset Tuesday. We shall see what we shall see.

Lessening in the number of applications for lodging from the police is taken as indicating that most of the rounders have finally managed to get themselves into some jail for the balance of the winter.

St. James' school basketball team defeated the Danielson Graded school team 22 to 9, at a game played Tuesday afternoon, in the town hall.

PUTNAM

For better or for worse, as life will determine, a family was split three ways, when an interesting divorce case was tried before Judge George E. Hinman, in the superior court here Tuesday morning.

Blanche Lamiotte, married to Arsene Lamiotte of this city in Southbridge in 1915, came seeking a divorce from her spouse and asking the custody of their three children—two girls and a boy.

Though Lamiotte did not oppose granting the divorce he was in court and was represented by counsel, his interest being in seeing that Mrs. Lamiotte did not obtain custody of one of their children—Rose Eva, nearly six years old, who since before she was able to walk, according to the testimony of two witnesses, has been cared for and has lived with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Osias Lamiotte, of this city.

The petitioner for the divorce and her husband did not have the happiest of home lives during the time they lived together. Mrs. Lamiotte charged that her husband was neglectful and that he left her at one time just prior to the birth of one of her babies. She also told of being summoned to Maine during the past year to appear against him, when he was charged with bigamy in that state. On the witness stand Mrs. Lamiotte was unable to recall the name of the woman with whom her husband had become involved in Maine, but Lamiotte, at request of counsel, obligingly supplied it, standing up in the court to declare that she was Georgianna Pettigrew.

It developed during the course of the hearing that Lamiotte had been in jail three months in Maine awaiting trial, and that in view of this fact his case was placed on file, after it did finally get consideration from the court, on the ground that he had been punished sufficiently.

Mrs. Lamiotte testified that she is now engaged in doing housework at Shrewsbury, Mass., and out of the $9 weekly competence she receives she is buying the clothing of her daughter, Beatrice, aged about 8 years and her son, Amadee, age about four years, who are in a convent at Holyoke. The town of Southbridge is paying $3 weekly board for each of the children.

The Lamiottes at one time lived in Willimantic and it was in that city that the breaking up of the family appears to have come about, or at least events leading up to it. Of interest relative to events in that city was the insinuation that Mrs. Lamiotte had willingly agreed to give away one of her daughter, Rose Eva, now with the grandparents, when a woman came to adopt a little girl of her husband's widowed sister expressed a preference for Rose Eva. Mrs. Lamiotte denied this, but when her husband was later summoned to testify he made no reservations to the bold statement that his wife had told the woman she could have Rose Eva if she wanted her and quoted her as saying: "If you want that girl you can have her; I have enough with one daughter."

Rose Eva was so young she was unable to walk when her grandparents took her. Lamiotte testified, and this same assertion later was made by his father, though Mrs. Lamiotte the petitioner for the divorce, said, that little Rose Eva could walk "good" when her husband's parents took her into their home.

Osias Lamiotte, grandfather of Rose Eva, as a witness, stated that he had heard the little girl's mother offer to give her away. He said that he and his wife loved the child, were willing and able to take care of her and hoped to be allowed to continue to do so. As establishing his responsibility Mr. Lamiotte told of being a property owner here. In answer to a question, he established quite clearly that he would take full responsibility for the care of the child, whether his son, Rose Eva's father, helped with her support or did not.

Mrs. Lamiotte was granted her divorce and allowed custody of the two children now in the convent. In passing on the case Judge Hinman said that under the circumstances he believed that custody of Rose Eva should not be given to either of the parents and ordered that said custody should rest in the grandparents, the parents to have opportunity to see the child at reasonable times and under reasonable conditions.

Dancing Washington's night at Danielson Armory. All welcome. Tues. Mar. 4. Big free dance.—Adv.

As a Day Kimball hospital patient little Lillian Bibeault, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Bibeault, probably holds the briefest of in-and-out record. Rushed to the hospital by Oliver P. Bancroft after his car had struck the child—the accident occurring in Main street, near the new Seder building—the child was left in charge of attendants at the receiving ward while Mr. Bancroft rushed back to the city to get the child's mother. While someone had gone to another part of the hospital for a physician, leaving Lillian alone for a minute, she brightly told a man that drove up with an automobile that she had been brought to the hospital and left there and that she would like to be taken home at once. Not knowing the circumstances of her being at the hospital, her request was complied with, and for a time there was some doubt among all concerned in the affair as to just what had become of the little girl, who was not at all seriously hurt when the Bancroft car bowled her over, as she was crossing the street.

It was definitely established Tuesday that a farm in Woodstock is being looked upon with favor for the establishment of a home for some members of the cult who have much the same ideas of the simple life as Charles Garland, owner of the much talked of April farm at North Carver, Mass., and scorner of a million dollar heritage from the estate of his father.

An important point with those negotiating for a farm in the neighboring town of Woodstock is that there must be a large house upon it. Other considerations are not so important.

Negotiations for the particular place that now seems to stand in high favor with the North Carver customers were continuing during Tuesday. What will come of them may not be forecasted at this time, but there is the possibility of having a colony of advanced thinkers in this part of the county during the coming spring and summer.

This is of particular interest here, especially among those who recall what a stir was created and what great attraction developed for the public at large, when a school for aesthetic dancers was established in Woodstock a few years ago.

The school has long since departed, but memories of it remain.

As had been indicated, there was no inclination Tuesday on the part of firms or individuals who owe back taxes to the state to quibble with the sheriff about settling the accounts. Those of the delinquents who had been interviewed by the sheriff were practically unanimous in assertion of their willingness to pay just as promptly as arrangements can be made to do so. In all likelihood no one will go to jail as the result of the state's efforts to collect. Most people would rather pay than submit to that.

New handbooks of Quinebaug Pomona Grange have been issued for 1924. These books are much the same as has been the rult for several years. They contain a great deal of information relative to grange affairs, including the the program of meetings arranged for the year, reports of the secretay, the treasurer and membership lists.

The membership of Quinebaug Pomons grange on January 1 of this year was 511, a net loss of ten members over the record for the year previous. The organization is in good financial condition, having a balance of $536.33.

The next meeting of Quinebaug Pomona is to be held with Killingly grange at Odd Fellows' hall in Danielson Saturday of this week. Putnam members will assist in giving the program of the day.

Special Deputy Commissioner Howard A. Eliot, of the bureau of domestic animals, continues to be engaged in towns in this section in prosecuting persons who are keeping unlicensed dogs.

Ice is so plentiful now that surplus supplies, to be used before the coming of the real warm waether period, are being stocked following the filling of storage buildings to capacity.

Up to Tuesday afternoon no arrest had been made for the robbery at the Jarvais store on Providence street during the early hours of Sunday morning.

Scottie poisoning following scarlet fever is held to have caused the death at Thompson this week of Lester Green, 28, a married man with three children. Though a number of scarlet fever cases have been reported from Thompson, Mr. Green's death is the first reported there due to the disease.

Work on construction of the concrete highway out Killingly avenue toward Attawaugan will be resumed as soon as weather is suitable in the spring. This contract could not be completed before winter set in.

Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Willimantic was in Putnam Tuesday, attending the session of the superior court.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Mrs. Gunderson and her nephew William Winthem were in Danielson Saturday.

Ruth Coffey spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Harry Young, of Danielson.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Place and children of Foster spent Sunday with Mrs. Place's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barlow.

Lillian Terwilliger of Putnam was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Terwilliger over the week end.

The Girls' Club met in the Community House Friday afternoon. Volley ball and various other games were enjoyed. Plans were made for an apron and necktie social.

Mrs. P. H. Coffey and daughter, Beatrice, attended the pictures at the Orpheum theatre in Danielson Saturday.

A marriage of local interest took place in Wauregan recently when Miss Catharyn Terwilliger became the bride of Anthony Campbell of Wauregan. Miss Terwilliger is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Terwilliger of this place and spent her early years here. Many friends here join in wishing them much happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crowley of Valley Falls spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Phillips.

The usual service of worship was held in the church Sunday evening. Rev. W. B. Williams' discourse was from the story of Joseph and his brothers.

LEONARD BRIDGE

Friday evening, Rev. (Miss) Lydia Hartig and the members of her primary Sunday school class gave a valentine social at the Community club room. Favors in the form of little paper caps and valentines were received by all present. Games were played. Heart-shaped cakes, chocolate candy and cocoa were served. The members of the Sunday school presented Rev. Miss Hartig two pretty glass dishes, one filled with candy and the other filled with fruit, as a valentine gift. The presentation was made by the Misses Sophia Gorski and Sophia Shaida. There was a good attendance, including a party of young people from Norwich.

Benjamin Malkin returned Sunday to New York after spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Max Himelstein.

Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Cummings and daughter, Bernice, were in Willimantic Saturday.

Miss Laura McCall is ill with grip.

William E. Hinckley and two sons of Willimantic were in attendance at the auction held at the late residence of Miss Electa Brown Thursday.

Miss Annie Gillett was leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting held at the Goshen Hill schoolhouse Sunday evening.

Newton Wheaton returned Thursday to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lewis after several weeks' illness with pneumonia at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic.

Mendel Malkin of Winnipeg, Canada, was a recent guest of his niece, Mrs. Max Himelstein.

Miss Lizzie Newberry and George B. Watrous were in Willimantic Saturday.

The auction held at the late residence of Miss Electa Brown Thursday was well attended.

NORTH STERLING

Fred Chesley of Putnam called on friends here recently.

Mrs. Frank Corey has been spending ten days in Providence and Boston.

Ice still remains on the trees from the storm two weeks ago.

Mrs. Horace Swan, who has been at Day Kimball hospital ill with pneumonia for four weeks, has returned home.

Mrs. William R. Spooner heard a strange noise at the door. On going out she found a partridge trying to find shelter. It was nearly frozen and there was no food in its crop. After being cared for and fed by Mrs. Spooner it soon recovered and was carried to the woods and put down near a good supply of food.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Crossman was taken to Day Kimball hospital the past week for an operation for appendicitis.

Game and birds are dying for want of food as the ground is still covered with ice. Good sportsmen will feed the birds.

Four children in the family of John Griffiths are ill with measles.

Walter Young made a trip to Danielson the past week.

HANOVER

A very successful play was given under the auspices of the Hanover Christian Endeavor, Friday evening, in the parish house. One of the largest crowds ever entertained in Hanover attended The Old District School. Among the featured of the evening were a duet by John and Earl Papineau, recitations or readings by Mrs. W. G. Park, Miss Vivian Depathy, Miss Lord, Mr. MacLeod, Charles Blackburn, Miss Gertrude Ladd, Mrs. Irene Mann and Kenneth Doyle. One special feature was the successful usage of the spanking machine upon W. G. Park. Many compliments were paid John Scott for the excellent way in which he portrayed the old schoolmaster and Mrs. Bamford's fine work as pianist.

The cast follows: Professor Ezekial Simpkins (teacher) John Scott; Deacon Tidd, W. G. Park; John Jacob Astor, Charles Blackburn; Patience Puddifoot, Miss Florence Lucy; Ben Butler, W. G. Park; Tooty Frooty, Miss Ruth Lee; Cornelius Vanderbilt, Earl Papineau; Peruna Jones, Miss Vivian Depathy; Jim Blaine, Miss Gertrude Ladd; Christopher Columbus, John Papineau; Samanthy Small, Miss Dorothy Lee; Petey Barnum Thomas Bamford; Buster Brown, Rev. Roderick MacLeod; Lydia Pinkham, Miss Minnie Lord; Jesse James, William Campbell; Liza-Ann Snodgrass, Mrs. W. G. Park; Brigham Young, Kenneth Doyle; Mehetable Honswoggle, Mrs. Irene Mann; Mrs. Amanda Jerusha Quackenbush, Mrs. Roderick MacLeod; Daniel Webster, Storrs Lee. Mrs. Thomas Bamford was accompanist.

The F. O. E. trio from Norwich, Robert Otis, George Fairbanks and Henry Brynan played and sang between the acts.

COLCHESTER

Oliver Woodhouse lodge, K. of P., held their meeting in Pythian hall on Tuesday evening, Woodbridge lodge No. 80, of Salem, held a special meeting in the hall at 7 o'clock for the purpose of balloting on three candidates whom they brought up. The rank of page was then conferred on the three candidates, also on two candidates of Oliver Woodhouse lodge. After the work of the evening a social hour was spent. Friday evening an invitation was extended to Oliver Woodhouse lodge to visit with Woodbridge lodge, when the rank of esquire would be worked on three candidates by the second rank team of Trumbull lodge of New London. An invitation was extended Oliver Woodhouse lodge and Hattie Jackson emple, Pythian Sisters, to join with Trumbull lodge of New London in the celebration of the diamond jubilee in New London, where lodges and temples from Norwich, Mystic and Salem would also participate in the ceremonies.

Word was received here Monday of the death in Hartford of Reginald McDonald, son of Samuel McDonald of this place.

Makes Oats the Quickest Breakfast

Your grocer now has 2 styles of Quaker Oats—Quick Quaker and regular Quaker Oats, the kind you've always known.

For a hot breakfast quick, ask for Quick Quaker.

Cooks in half the time of coffee — scarcely longer than simple toasted bread.

Same plump oats as regular Quaker Oats. But cut before flaking, rolled very thin and partly cooked — smaller flakes that cook faster, that's the only difference.

All that rare Quaker flavor. All the joy of hot breakfasts without bother or delay.

Quaker Oats, too

SUCH hands are usually caused by common household soaps which irritate the skin, a condition you can avoid by choosing a household soap as carefully as you choose your toilet soap. To thousands of thinking women this means Kirkman's Soap.

For Kirkman's Soap, being free from irrritating lye, will not injure the hands or the most delicate fabrics. The perfect purity of its ingredients is now widely known—also the fact that it contains absolutely no adulterants such as starch, talc or waterglass, which have no cleansing value.

For the sake of your hands always insist upon Kirkman's Soap.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brains and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Rub It On At Bedtime for All Deep Chest Colds

Absorbed Like a Liniment and Inhaled as a Vapor, Vicks Quickly Reaches The Affected Parts.

When a cold goes down deep—threatens to turn into bronchitis or pneumonia—with soreness, tight breathing and a heavy, hollow cough, try the external vaporizing treatment.

First redden the skin over throat and chest with hot, wet towels to open the pores. Then massage with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.

The penetrative and stimulative effect of Vicks thru the skin helps to relieve congestion. At the same time, the vapors, inhaled with each breath all night long, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

DEBT PAYMENTS.

When it was announced following a meeting of the debt funding commission of this country that the policy of the country upon this subject remained unchanged, it created no surprise. No one in fact had anticipated that there would be any alterations in the plan inasmuch as it has already been put into effect with one country and it could hardly be expected that anything different would be favored for the others. The fact is that the same general policy must govern all. It is out of the question to think of forcing one to pay and cancelling the debt of others.

If there had been any thought that the British government would seek to bring about a change in the agreement which it made concerning the payment of the debt on which it has already entered, it was set at rest by the statement of the British premier who told the house of commons that the British government had accepted settlement, that it intended to respect the agreement and there could be no thought of trying to reopen negotiations.

This government has not been trying to press other governments to pay up. It has named its commission for the purpose of coming to an understanding with the debtor nations. The British were decidedly prompt. Others have indicated that they intended to do likewise and in some instances these are representatives named or soon on their way to this country to conduct negotiations.

The importance of reaching an agreement concerning the debt payment is what is emphasized at the present time. The purpose isn't to place an unwarranted burden upon the nations which have been hit hard by the war, but rather is it to have it understood that we have no disposition to cancel the debts. We expect them to be paid and such payment ought to be considered in connection with the financial problems that have to be wrestled with.

Thus far Uncle Sam has pursued a reasonable course in connection with debt payments and there is no reason to expect that there will be any friction over the matter.

OVERCOMING WASTE.

Once in a while there is a disposition to overcome waste in a manner that attracts attention. Whether this is due to the fact that the tendency is to pile waste onto waste and to encourage extravagance matters little. Sufficient is it to make note of the fact that much that is waste ought not to and need not be.

From London there comes the report that a firm of engineers has made a successful bid for salvaging the German warships that were sunk in Scapa Flow, and within a few days announcement has been made that bids would be asked for the hulls of three warships that were used for targets by aerial bombers and which have since rested, with their decks awash, on the shoals off the Virginia coast.

Clearly nothing but junk can be obtained in either instance, and the expense of getting the junk is going to be such that little in the way of a bid can be expected, when it is realized that it is a relatively small sum that is paid for those warships destined to be scrapped but which are afloat.

However, it has long since been maintained that the material in warships which have become obsolete should be redeemed instead of being taken to sea and sunk. There is a vast amount of metal that can be reworked, and when it can be made available for a lesser sum than it would cost to produce it otherwise that course should be followed. There is no expectation that it would go into new warships, but into the general trade that requires steel, iron, brass, lead and the like.

The folly of yielding to the practice of waste cannot be too strongly set forth in these days of big expense and skyrocketing costs. If these vessels were to receive attention solely because they are menaces to navigation there would be no thought of salvage. In each instance the idea is to recover whatever is available for junking purposes, to make use of what is worth saving and to turn it into the channels of trade instead of permitting it to rust to pieces for the good of no one. No gold mine may be disclosed in any case but it is economically sound.

DEALING WITH CRIMINALS.

Not so long ago, when New York was suffering from what was called a crime wave, the order was issued in that city directing the criminal class to get out of town. It was hoped thereby to reduce the number of robbers, holdup men and gunmen. It was not cared where they went, so long as they went somewhere. Instead of dealing with this problem of a large class of criminals and suspects New York, resorted to the practice of bouncing them out for someone else to deal with.

Any such method of handling a criminal problem is bound to have its limitations. If New York is the city where, because of conditions that are permitted, robbers, crooks and gunmen find their business the most lucrative and the least opposed, that is the city to which they are certain to drift back after a brief vacation.

More crime can be expected in New York than in a small city, but the methods of dealing with it must be effective in either instance if it is to be prevented from getting the upper hand.

Philadelphia has been suffering from the lawlessness that has prevailed there. When the decision was made that there must be a cleanup it was not undertaken by giving notice to the criminals that they must get out of the city. There a well organized effort has been made for the purpose of bringing to justice the criminal class. That such is bound to have the effect of causing the lawbreakers to flee elsewhere can be appreciated, but the Quaker city didn't adopt New York's plan of putting down crime.

Whether it is the return of those who were asked to move out, or the coming of those who have feared to stay in Philadelphia, New York finds itself again infested with too many criminals of the various classes. Bandits, murderers, robbers and lesser crooks are causing a period of terror. Thus far the police do not seem able to stem the tide, but there of course remains unapplied at this time that plan of serving notice on them that if they don't stop they'll be escorted out of town.

CRIPPLED WARSHIPS.

Whatever the view may be in regard to expenditures for the navy, there can be no question but what consideration must be given to the refitting of the half dozen battleships making up the Atlantic squadron with boilers that are safe for such operation as might be required of them.

There may be some question as to just how much ought to be spent on vessels which are more than half way to the graveyard. It is within the province of the experts to say whether it is advisable to incur the expense that would be necessary to convert them from coal to oil burners. The idea is not a new one. It has been advocated and failed to get approval. Now the ships have gotten to the point where something must be done. Either they must be equipped with boilers for burning coal that will make the operation of the ship safe, or they must be put out of commission. A battleship that can make no more than 12 knots an hour is not much of a fighting unit.

Whether it will be advisable while changes are being made to modernize the vessels so that they can burn oil ought not to be difficult to show. There needs to be taken into consideration the cost of such a change and the probable life of the ships even though they are not called upon in clear for action.

Such changes as have been urged do not as understood, interfere with the naval agreement. It is a question what outlay is most advisable in order to bring them up to the point of efficiency for the next ten or a dozen years. As long as it is necessary to maintain a navy it cannot fail to be appreciated that it should be a navy in fact and not solely in name.

GASOLINE.

There is a good work that is done by the sealers of weights and measures in protecting the purchasing public against short weights and short measures, whether such are intentional or accidental.

It is much the same service that the bureau of mines is rendering for the purpose of determining whether the public is getting honest gasoline. In order to get the benefit of the outlay for such fuel and to get the desired mileage, if it is an automobile that is being run, it is desirable that it should be gasoline that comes up to government tests.

After an investigation of gasoline, samples of which were taken in various cities, it has been announced by the bureau of mines that the gasoline which is being sold in Washington this winter "more nearly meets government motor gasoline specifications in every particular than does motor fuel sold in eight other cities, including the largest cities of the country scattered from coast to coast."

It doesn't appear from this statement that Washington is paying any more for its gasoline than are other cities, but it does appear to be getting more for its money in high grade fuel.

The bureau of mines doesn't intimate that this may be due to the hearings that are being held or urged relative to oil and gasoline prices, but the fact that Washington is getting better gasoline than other cities is likely to mean that the others will raise a howl that will be heard. If gasoline that meets government specifications can be sold in Washington other cities are bound to cry for it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

With 10,000 feet of snow in Greenland what a lot of spoon there must be during the January thaw!

The real object henceforth must be to drive oil wells without going through any strata of scandal.

The idea of repeating unjust gossip for the sake of denying it will be known as Vanderlipism hereafter.

The man on the corner says: Every thought of spring makes it plain that housecleaning cannot be far away.

Congress certainly does some strange stunts for a body that expects to get a vote of confidence later on.

While the advocates of the English language for all citizens are busy someone throws a monkey wrench into the machinery by introducing mah jong.

Neuritis has been keeping Premier Macdonald awake nights. Usually it is public ills rather than private ones that disturb the night for prime ministers.

While there is a constantly increasing demand for eight-hour days, or less, those buying commutation tickets of railroads want a month to cover 35 days.

Despite the splendor of his sleeping cars we have no doubt King Tut would have been happy had he received the free advertising he is now getting while alive.

According to Mr. Vanderlip, everything that is heard ought to be spread broadcast whether it is so or not. That's the kind of stories that too often closes banks unjustly.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—Was the organized fight in the senate against the confirmation of the counsel selected by President Coolidge to act in the oil investigation cases, a retaliatory measure on the attitude of the president in not acting on the demand of democrats and insurgent republicans in ousting Secretary Denby from the cabinet? Or did the opponents rest largely with Senator LaFollette and his followers who were bitterly opposed to the confirmation of Mr. Pomerene. Perhaps both these things are contributing factors. It may be only a "happenstance," but it was Mr. Pomerene who signed the minority report insisting on an investigation of Mr. LaFollette's action when he can under the ban by having charges brought against him from Minnesota, as a result of his speech at Minneapolis in the spring of 1917. The charges were that he had been then guilty of "seditious utterances." The charges were filed by former Senator Kellogg and the committee to which it was referred advised dropping the matter uninvestigated, except Mr. Pomerene, who demanded a hearing should be conducted. Now it is Mr. La Follette who seems to lead the opposition to Mr. Pomerene as counsel in the oil scandals and it was Mr. LaFollette who led the unsuccessful attempt to prevent the confirmation of Mr. Kellogg as ambassador to England. Maybe it's only a coincidence, but Washington is not unmindful of the facts as they exist. Moreover a democratic senator was heard to remark the day following the president's refusal to act on the senate's demand in the Denby matter "by his refusal President Coolidge will find we shall block his every move this session."

"Senator Walsh of Montana expressed our feeling when he said on the floor of the senate last week, it is open to most serious doubt as to whether evidence thus far taken by committee warrants the belief that Mr. Denby can be removed by impeachment—but I desire Edwin Denby driven from public office with all the odium and ignomy that the occasion can possibly demand." "You will find that from now one" continued the democratic senator "that the senate will fight every move made by President Coolidge, and fight it to the bitter end." So, whether the opposition to Strawn and Pomerene was because of the president's attitude on the Denby resolution or because LaFollette leading the opposition on the republican side is an unplacable enemy of Pomerene may some day be disclosed.

Reference to the public statement of Senator Walsh, chairman of the oil investigating committee, that though there was no evidence warranting impeachment, yet Denby must be "driven from public office" has raised the opinion here that should impeachment proceedings ever be instituted against him, the country would rise with hue and cry over the possibility of judgment being rendered by the votes of senators who, sitting as a jury to determine facts, by evidence, had prejudged the case and gone on record as against the secretary of the navy.

It is an interesting commentary on the trend of public interest that when investigations, recrimination and hot partisan politics are on the docket, the capitol galleries and corridors are crowded to the limit, extra police guards needed to keep the throng in line and in order, but when the regular business of congress is the order of the day, when the tariff, the tax bill, appropriation bills and other great national legislations is at the front, the galleries are "sparsely settled" as one old man described the scene. Thrillers in congress are demanded by the public to as great an extent as are thrillers by the movie patrons.

Nothing has so roused the indignation of Washington as the reckless shooting by officers that resulted in the serious injury to Senator Frank H. Greene of Vermont. Taken in connection with the intense factional difference in carrying out the prohibition measure, Washington is seething with criticism over the possibility of such an accident happening on its streets, and placing the blame is the most active comment of today. Senator Greene is in a critical condition at the hospital, and at this moment of writing the result cannot be forecasted.

Several shooting accidents have previously occurred in which the officers of the prohibition forces were mixed up, so it is said, and the fact that the officer supposed to have fired the shot that wounded Mr. Greene was released on a low bail and within twenty-four hours was again leading the arresting prohibition forces, has added to the comments. President Coolidge has taken a hand in the matter by seeing to it that facts are placed before the attorney general and an investigation by congress on the method of enforcing the prohibition law is more than likely to follow. Mr. Greene is a leader in the New England delegation and beloved and respected by every member of it regardless of political affiliation. It is expected the New England men will take the lead in insisting the cause of the accident, and on whose shoulders the blame rests, shall be fully looked into. The fact that Mr. Greene was walking towards his home in company with his wife, has done much to call attention to the danger all persons are liable to, if the present method of shooting at suspects is permitted to continue on the populous streets of the city.

When it is said that "nothing has so roused" one exception should be made, and that is the testimony of Vanderlip at the oil hearings when he sought to bring the name of former President Harding into the oil scandals. It was the most pitiable attempt to besmirch a name that ever won universal condemnation of all listeners. Time after time Mr. Vanderlip reiterated "I have no proof—I don't care what the facts are" and when he said it was done with "good intent" or words to that effect, the entire assemblage that packed the committee room laughed openly in derision of such a statement. It was a revelation of the "village gossip" quality of rumors, even to hard boiled reporters and attendants at investigations.

Senator Brandegee took an active part in preserving as far as possible order and decorum on the senate when the heated debates on the oil investigation and the appointment of special counsel were under full swing. Senator Ashurst of Arizona declared under existing circumstances he would disregard the senate rule of not disclosing what happened in executive session. Senator Brandegee, who is one of the highest experts in the senate on parliamentary law and senate rules of procedure, rose and straightened out the question before the senate and order was restored.

In fact members of the Connecticut delegation in both houses have been active and in the foreground this week. In the house Tilson of the third district was a leader in the fight to sustain the Mellon plan, in this he is actively aided by Merritt, Freeman and Fenn, the republicans of that delegation being a unit in favor of the Mellon plan while Tilson as member of the ways and means committee has made a strong floor speech urging its passage as submitted.

Former President William H. Taft has so far recovered from his recent illness as to make a short visit to the supreme court at the capitol on Saturday. The fact that Chief Justice Taft is the only living ex-president caused unusual interest in even a slight indisposition and temporary confinement to his bed. It also caused much comment on the evident hardship of presidential office holding, when it is recalled that although Mr. Taft is the only living ex-president there are a number of wives of presidents who still live and enjoy excellent health. Among them are Mrs. Cleveland-Preston, Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Harding, and Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Harding is living quietly at one of the leading hotels here. She is taking no part in the social life of the Capitol, but mingles freely with her intimate personal friends. Some one who recently called on her said "You would know it was Mrs. Harding who had made over the stiff hotel parlor of her suite into a real family living room. Potted plants and big cases of roses filled every corner, the great library table was covered with magazines and other current literature, a beautiful miniature of President Harding has a place of honor on desk, and one or two informal photographs of the late president were scattered round the room, one of them showing him on the golf links, evidently a snap shot. "Mrs. Harding wears deep mourning and her face shows lines of care and sorrow, but her manner is the same cheerful and cordial warm-heartedness as of old."

The threat of the republican insurgents in the house that they will join the democrats in forcing an adoption of Garner plan rather than the Mellon tax program, has brought to mind the story told by former Senator John Sharp Williams about a staunch daughter of the confederacy and her famous silk stockings. It seems that the old lady had but one pair of silk stockings, but during the privations of the war she darned them so constantly with cotton that by the time Lee surrendered they were all cotton. But she kept right on calling them her silk stockings. Some one remarked this week that the same thing applies to the insurgent republicans—"they still call them republicans."

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

When I was visiting the Burch farm last June I said to Adeline that I hoped she and Ned would surely come to stay with me whenever they could. As I did not hear from them all summer, I had quite forgotten the matter, and it certainly was not altogether a pleasant surprise when I received a letter from Adeline saying that she was about to avail herself of my lovely invitation. She said that she would come at once for a week and that Ned would join her at our house for over Sunday.

"Good gracious," I moaned to Betty, who happened to be with me when the letter came, "it's cheeky of Adeline to make all these plans without consulting me."

"But, Lucile, you urged her to come at any time," said Betty.

"I can't have the Burches now, for I have that expensive Miss Barker coming to sew for me. How would you like to entertain them?"

"Sorry not to accomodate you, Lucile," answered Betty, airly. "Molly and I are cleaning house."

"You can put off housecleaning, but you can't postpone a dressmake and be sure of securing her later. You're fond of Adeline?"

"Very. I hope to see a lot of her while she is with you," replied Betty, annoying. I often wish that my uncle Bob had married some one with a more pleasant disposition. Just because she was so exasperating I quickly made up my mind to show her that I did not have to entertain Adeline and Ned.

I wrote a very sweet letter saying how dreadfully sorry I was that the proposed visit was not timely on account of family matters too complex to explain in writing, and I said I sincerely hoped that later in the year they could come, that I regretted deeply that Adeline had not given me longer notice so that I could have arranged to have them, but that I trusted it was a pleasure merely deferred. I often think that I have a special talent for inditing graceful notes.

I sent my letter by special delivery and I certainly was astonished when Adeline drove up to our house in a taxi at the very day and hour at which she had said she would arrive.

"Ned will be here on Friday evening," she said gayly. "He went to Green Bay and Milwaukee to attend some business, but he promised to turn up here for dinner on Friday without fail. Oh, Lucile, ain't we got fun? Do you realize that I haven't been in the city for months and months—almost a year?"

'Dear, dear, is it so long Adeline?" I responded as warmly as I could, while I wondered what in the world I'd do with Adeline during the time I had to devote to Miss Barker, who wished both to fit and confer with me often.

"I have a lot of shopping to do," continued Adeline, and I must get that all done before Ned comes. Will you steer me around?"

"I should love to, but Betty has asked the privilege of claiming a lot of your time, and she will wish to be your shopping guide. You must phone her right away, Adeline, dear."

When Betty came the next morning to get Adeline she gave me a most reproachful glance and she murmured about waxed floors and washed curtains which I did not grasp. I called her attention to my generosity in letting her have a whole day down-town with my guest, and she said in a suitful tone that she knew she would enjoy having Adeline all to herself, meaning, of course, without me.

'Good gracious! What's all this?" I asked Adeline when I came home from a bridge party late in the afternoon and saw her settling herself bag and baggage, into a taxi.

"The special delivery you sent me was forwarded here and I found it when I came from downtown, I can't express my chagrin, Lucile, in having trespassed upon your hospitality, and I—"

'Oh, my dear, please, please say nothing, I—"

"There's really nothing to say, except to offer my apology," she remarked coldly, and then she gave the driver Betty's address. "I wished," she continued, "to go to a hotel, but Betty insisted that Ned and I visit her. She went home while I was getting my things together to prepare a refuge for me in the midst of her housecleaning. What a darling she is, isn't she?"

Of course I nodded my assent as the cab drew away, but I shall never forgive Betty her duplicity. I suppose next summer it will be Betty who will visit the beautiful Burch farm instead of me.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Edward Benes, who is coming to America this year to lecture before the Institute of Politics at Williams College, is prime minister of Czecho-Slovakia and has been conspicously identified with the government of that country since its establishment in 1918. Dr. Benes is himself a product of the intense national life of which he is the exponent. As he delights to explain, the Czecho working class, after the aristocracy and bourgeoise of the nation had been annihilated by the German conquest of Bohemia in the sixteenth century, set itself to build the nation anew, and with the French revolution there finally dawned for it an era of ressurrection. The nation of peasants evoled for itself a new aristocracy of intellectuals, professional men and merchants, who have led their people to freedom. Dr. Benes himself is one of these. Although of peasant ancestry, he became a professor in the University of Prague, and today he can lay claim to a statesmanship that has won for his country a high place among the nations.

Stories That Recall Others

His Blessing

"B-l-e-s-s-i-n-g" spelled the new Sunday school teacher brightly. "Now what little boy can tell what a blessing is?"

No answer.

"What, can't think of even one, and you have them at least three times a day?" the teacher protested encouragingly.

"Oh, gravy!" said one youngster who had the inspiration needed.

Caught in the Act

Marie had just returned from a visit in the west. As soon as she arrived, her greatest delight seemed to be in boasting endlessly of the things she had done and seen. One day after she had been expounding at length, she suddenly sprang this on them: "Oh, yes, and even Victor Hugo was there. I saw him and bumped into him. He's darling."

At this Louise decided she could stand it no longer. She excused herself and returned in a minute with a book. She turned to the front page and said:

"Here, Marie, I thought you would be interested. You say that you saw Victor Hugo? Here is a picture of him taken in 1883, just two years before he died. Does he look like himself?"

POETRY

SOMEWHERE THE LILACS BLOW

I rub the frost-film from the pane,
But all without is bleak and bare;
My winter-weary heart no gain
Can find amid the freezing air.
Then comes a little thought to me
That thrills and sets my spirit free;
Though far away, not less I know,
Somewhere the Lilacs blow.

It breaks the dreary woes that wail
My tired soul and make me dumb;
From things more immaterial
Sweet solaces thus often come.
And willing fancy, faithful sprite,
Who's ever with me, day and night,
"Yes," she murmurs soft and low,
"Somewhere the Lilacs blow!"

Lilac blooms—I love them well;
Though I were blind I'm sure I'd see
Their springtide grace, and feel the spell
In childhood days they wove for me.
What if the sky's leaden hue,
Still there are blossoms with dew—
Somewhere, somewhere beyond the snow,
Somewhere the Lilacs blow!

In garden South that no chill mars,
In some soft clime forever May,
Those galaxies of purple stars
Even now in winsome beauty sway;
And here amid these Northern hills
That distant charm my being thrills
Till southward all my longings flow—
Somewhere the Lilacs blow!

Ah, it's so hard, so hard to wait
For beauty pictured in the heart,
A longed-for pleasure's ever late—
And those of Nature more than Art.
So let me close mine eyes and lean
A fragrant memory never dim;
But, oh, the Winter's feet are slow—
When will the Lilacs bow!
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

Opportunity

To nearly every one there comes a tide,
On which our splendid dream ships ride and ride;
With longed-for treasure from Hesperides,
That lie beyond the wide and tossing seas.
Yet strange, sometimes our eyes may not discern
Their bright arrival and from them we turn,
Or with some dear delusion we insist
That richer cargoes towards us swing and list.
Then, through the bitter rains of vain regret,
We cry for chances which we can't forget.
—Thomas J. Murray in Farm Life.

HUSBAND SAID WHY NOT TRY IT

Wife Said She Would. Result, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

East Hardwick, Vermont.—"Last winter I was not able to do any work at all. I had backache, headache, sideache, and was sick all the time for six months. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and my husband said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' So I said I would, and he went and got me a dozen bottles. It has done me more good than I can ever tell, and my friends say, 'What have you done to yourself? You look so well.' I tell them it is the Vegetable Compound that makes me so well and strong. There is no use to suffer with backache and pains. I will tell every one what it has done for me."—Mrs. FRED. PRIMO, Route No. 2, E. Hardwick, Vermont.

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must be Done and Done Darn Quick, Too.

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back—and only 60 cents a box. Ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any live pharmacist anywhere.

The Vogue of Colored Dress Linens

Will be more in evidence the coming season than ever before, according to the fashion journals and judging by the present popularity of linens for wear at Palm Beach.

Moreover the mills in Ireland are overstocked and wholesale prices have advanced.

Fortunately we ordered quite some time ago, dress linens of superior quality which have just arrived from Belfast, in a beautiful array of colors, thoroughly shrunk and guaranteed as to color.

This is not to be confused with the dress linens found in every town and hamlet. On the contrary, you will find here an assortment of colors that are decidedly new and pleasing. Priced at $1.25 the yard (36 inches wide).

Real Irish Dimity

It is so long since we had printed Irish Dimity it seems almost as welcome as Spring.

This beautiful material is now being shown in some charming colors and patterns.

It is not a bit to early to plan your summer frocks—start now before the rush begins and while the assortment is so full to select from.

These goods are 32 inches wide — three the yard.

Tuesday morning at 8.30 o'clock, the funeral of Mrs. Henry Buteau was held from her home in Baltic and at 9 o'clock a mass of requiem was celebrated at the Immaculate Conception church, Baltic, by Rev. W. T. O'Brien. The choir sang. The bearers were Roderick A. Jodoin, Norman Reeves, Montcalm Ethier, Arthur Bessette, Laurent Genard and Leo Despathy and burial took place in the family plot in the Baltic cemetery. There was a large attendance at the funeral and there were many beautiful floral offerings. Relatives and friends were present from Willimantic, Windsor, Danielson, Mousup, New London, Norwich, Taftville, Taunton, Mass., Hope Valley, Mass., New Bedford, Mass., Hills Grove, R. I., Arctic, R. I., Centerville, R. I., and New York city.

Undertaker G. G. Grant of Taftville had charge of the funeral arrangements.

WINTER SLUMP IN FARM LABOR DEMAND

A seasonal slump in the demand for help, especially on farms, was reflected in the January figures of the five free public employment bureaus of the state bureau of labor, issued Tuesday. Of male applicants for employment 66 per cent were supplied placed as compared with 71 per cent in December, while of females 86.3 per cent were found situations as compared with 90.2 per cent. This made an average of 76 per cent as compared with 87.1 per cent in December.

The total applications for employment were: Hartford, 689; New Haven, 739; Bridgeport, 719; Waterbury, 1001; Norwich, 117; total 3265, or 1655 males and 1610 females.

The total applications for help were: Hartford 625; New Haven, 737; Bridgeport, 586; Waterbury, 704; Norwich, 119; total 2771, or 1216 males and 1555 females.

The number of situations secured were: Hartford, 531; New Haven, 648; Bridgeport, 549; Waterbury, 547; Norwich, 110; total 2385, or 1023 males and 1390 females.

NO PROSECUTION TO FOLLOW OVER OPIUM TAKEN AT STATE HOSPITAL

Chemical analysis of the powdered opium that was taken charge of at the Norwich state hospital a week ago by federal narcotic agents has demonstrated that the drug was aged and this test supports the claim of Mrs. Frances King of Madison, from whom it came, that she had bought it before the Harrison narcotic law went into effect in 1916.

This turn of the case has satisfied the narcotic agents that their suspicion that they had found the trail of an opium-running band between New York and Boston was unfounded and gives them no ground for the criminal prosecution that they expected would follow when they got to the bottom of the case.

The 10 pounds of opium, in pound and half pound tins, were brought to the hospital from Mrs. King's home in Madison by a woman who had found them among Mrs. King's effects several months ago. As the cans were without labels and she did not know what they were, this woman brought them to the hospital and turned them over to one of the doctors on the staff to be given to Mrs. King. According to the usual practice, the doctor examined the package and ascertained its contents but delayed for some time in reporting it and turning it over to Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the hospital. There was further delay before Dr. Wilcox reported the presence of the opium to Internal Revenue Collector Robert Eaton with an inquiry as to what he ought to do with it. When Dr. Wilcox turned the opium over to the narcotic agents he gave them Mrs. King's statement that she had the drug in her house before she became a patient at the hospital five or six years ago, which is now substantiated by the tests of the drug that have been made.

GROTTO SECURES QUARTERS IN BROADWAY BUILDING

Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V., P. E. R., has taken a two year lease of St. Mary's hall at the T. A. B. building on Broadway and will soon move into the new quarters. Since their organization the members of the Grotto have had rooms on Water street. It is understood that the terms of the two year lease include an optional three year extension.

The Grotto is making plans for the staging of a Spanish production, Marcheta, in a local theatre. The following sub-committees have been appointed by the general theatrical committee:

Talent, Frederick G. Prothero; details, Harry Carlson; publicity committee, Wilbur Williams; ticket committee, Louis Brown; program committee, Tyler Rogers; ushers, Charles A. Hagberg.

Alexander Finlayson is chairman of the general committee, Tyler Rogers is secretary and W. Manley Eastwood is the committee treasurer.

AMERICAN WOOLEN TO OPEN WOMEN'S WEAR LINES

Official announcement was made this week by the American Woolen company, with two mills in Norwich that it will open the women's wear lines in Department 4 next Tuesday. The date selected is more than a month later than was the case last year. The delay is welcome to the cutters, particularly the stock houses, which have been asking the mills to bring the time of showing closer to the period when retailers begin to cover their requirements. General markets conditions are also held responsible for lateness of the date, the indications being that the buying will tend to be conservative. One aspect of this the mills welcome, namely, the lack of speculative tendencies. The lines to be shown by the American Company are understood to be among the most varied ever offered. Prices to be named will, it is believed, show small advances on woolens, with the worsteds rather low.

RECORD MEETING GREETS DEPUTY W. J. MULLIGAN

Tuesday night's meeting of White Cross council, No. 18, Knights of Columbus, will be memorable as one of the largest meetings ever held by the council, the attendance being such as to tax the capacity of the Knights of Columbus home on Broadway.

The occasion was the annual visitation of State Deputy William J. Mulligan of Hartford, who is always assured of a large audience of the knights whenever he finds an opportunity to visit the council.

Following the regular session of the council, Grand Knight Francis T. Diggins presented State Deputy Mulligan and in the course of his introductory remarks took occasion to express, in behalf of the council, their appreciation of the coming of Mr. Mulligan, at a sacrifice of valuable time, to address, the members of the council. He reminded the members that although Mr. Mulligan is busy as a practicing attorney at law in the city of Hartford, yet he finds time to respond to the many demands that are made upon him to speak at various Knights of Columbus functions, throughout the country. As the New England representative on the board of supreme directors of the order he is instrumental in helping to solve the various problems that are constantly arising in an organization whose membership is numbered by the hundreds of thousands and whose field covers not only the United States but which has branched out into the neighboring countries, notably Canada and Mexico. His active participation in the war work of the order, he being in charge of all overseas relief work, was recognized by His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV, who conferred upon him the distinguished honor of Knight of St. Gregory and he was further honored, on two different occasions, by the commendation of the French government for his efficient work. As a result of his prominence in Knights of Columbus activities he was honored, also, by two of the leading Catholic colleges in the east Holy Cross and Fordham, they conferring upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Mr. Mulligan was given a most enthusiastic reception as he arose to speak and his address which was devoted almost entirely to the work of the order, stirred the members to great enthusiasm and was punctuated by frequent outbursts of applause.

After commending the work of White Cross council, which was one of the pioneer organizations in the order, and complimenting the board of directors upon the many activities which the present board has promoted, Mr. Mulligan then dwelt upon the work that the order is doing in a national way, explaining the purposes of the many big projects which are now claiming the attention of the supreme body, and asked for the cooperation of all the members in upholding the efforts of the supreme officers, stating that the success of these projects, largely depends, upon the interest and support of the great army of members throughout the country.

In speaking of the accomplishments of the order Mr. Mulligan said: "The order of the Knights of Columbus has done an enormous amount of good work during its nearly half a century of existence. Nothing has been left undone to provide for the care and education of the orphans, the sick in hospitals, relief of the needy, instruction for those ambitious to learn, and above all, the promulgation of those Christian principles essential to the life and progress of any great nation."

"It may be profitable," said the speaker, "for us at this time to consider the religious bigotry, the narrow racial prejudices and other un-American principles and practices of a notorious dark-lantern organization, with the unrestricted tolerance, the broad charity, and the splendidly loyal service of the Knights of Columbus."

"We Catholics are proud of our order and claim for it that under its sheltering influence a man finds himself estimated for what he is worth, he proceeds in his career with the satisfying realization that he belongs to a body of men spread throughout the country, who will do everything in their power to assist him in every way possible; a body of men taught to believe that clothes do not make the man; that all who contribute to the nation's greatness and have the good of the country at heart, no matter what their position in life, their ancestry or surroundings, stand upon a common ground and share in a common citizenship. I believe our order lives in the golden age of chivalry and the conquest is none other than the battle for life eternal. The City of God is still assailed on all sides by the enemy. The call is urgent the cause most sacred and the conquest one in which every member can win the title of true knight. To imitate the example which the history of knighthood offers us is our duty; to labor for the common good of man, in the name of charity, is the keynote of our greatness and the promise of our triumph. We are not so deaf as not to hear, on all sides, the cry for help that is filling our streets and our cities. The cry of the children neglected by those that should care for them. The cry for sympathy arising from the multitude of those who suffer injustice. The cry in the court for the protection of the law against the brutal force of might. The cry of the sick and ailing, who have no friends to bring them a remedy for their ills. The cry of those who have fallen and are spurned by the world for seeking to rise again. Is it possible that men with hearts, hear all this and steel themselves against it? Or has the very commonness of suffering and need served only to make it appear hopeless and beyond the reach of aid? We have multiplied in strength, not only in numbers, but in claims for noble recognition, and we must resolve to reduce, to its lowest factor, all that is selfish and to elevate to its highest point all that tends to bring out from every member of our corporate body the elements of true knighthood—fidelity to God's laws, fidelity to his church and her laws—which will bring us wherever there is human need. As Catholic men, the world knows we have the ability to succeed; that we have the energy to endure and that we have principles fundamentally indestructible."

"We are not organized in a selfish movement; we have no desire to withdraw from the healthful social life we enjoy in common with all classes of people; we have no desire to become a narrow clique with interest apart from other men: our ambitions and aspirations are nobler and grander than the following of such lines would permit; our success is a success which all can enjoy."

Following the state deputy, interesting remarks were made by State Advocate J. J. Collins, District Deputy P. F. Day and Past District Deputy M. J. Sullivan, all of New London.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Mulligan was given a reception by the members after which a social hour was enjoyed, with a buffet luncheon and music under the direction of the minstrel committee.

WILL REQUIRE INOCULATION AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER

All applicants who attend the Citizens' Military Training Camps, to be held in New England this summer, may secure the physical examination and be inoculated against typhoid and paratyphoid fevers without expense to themselves and with very little inconvenience. This is made possible because of the fact that officers of the Medical Reserve Corps throughout the country have patriotically volunteered their services. A list of medical officers in Connecticut, who will render this service free or charge appears below. Former students of the training camps who have been inoculated and vaccinated are not required to again be immunized:

New London County—Dr. H. M. Lee, New London; Dr. Roy C. Jackson, Norwich State Hospital, Norwich.

Tolland County—Dr. Elliott H. Metcalf, 50 Elm street, Rockville.

Windham County—Dr. William P. S. Keating, 33 Church street, Willimantic; Dr. Louis I. Mason, Fairview street, Willimantic.

FORMER SCOTLAND MAN DIED IN BRIDGEPORT

John H. Wilson, who died in a Bridgeport hospital Saturday at five o'clock was well and favorably known in Scotland, this state, having been a resident for the past twelve years. He was at first employed by Gerald Waldo and afterwards rented a farm of his own which he conducted until recent, when he accepted a position in the employ of the state as milk tester. Mr. Wilson was a member of Shetucket Grange, a good citizen in every respect and expressions of regret are heard on every hand that his life was so soon cut off as he was only thirty years of age. Mr. Wilson will be buried in Cape Cod, Mass., where he spent his early childhood.

LOCATED STILL IN SPRAGUE FARMER'S HOUSE

Following a state police raid Sunday night on his farm in Sprague, Mike Bohme, was fined $160 and costs on charge of violation of the liquor law Monday morning before Justice of the Peace Bennet of Sprague.

Officers Caron and Schweikert of the Groton barracks visited Bohme's farm Sunday night and seized a 30-gallon still which was in the farmhouse and small quantities of liquor and mash.

Presented before Justice Bennet, Bohme pleaded guilty to the charge and paid his fine without offering testimony in the defense.

ROCKWELL ST. RESIDENT BOUGHT BY M. LEVIN

The fine residence property of Mrs. J. Dana Coit, 34 Rockwell street, has been purchased by Michael Levin, of 113 Washington street, and is to be occupied by Dr. and Mrs. David Susler, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Levin. The latter said Tuesday night that it would probably be two months before Dr. and Mrs. Susler would take up their residence there.

ARCHDEACONRY MEETING WITH MYSTIC CHURCH

A joint meeting of the New London Archdeaconry and the Clericus was held at St. Mark's church, Mystic. It opened with the celebration of holy communion, with Archdeacon J. Mildred Brown of this city as celebrant, assisted by Rev. J. F. Beauchamp of St. Mark's. At 12.30 a bountiful luncheon was served in the parish house by the ladies of the parish.

Recommendations for appropriations for the year 1925 to aided parishes and missions were adopted. Appropriations were recommended for a new furnace in Grace church, Noank, and for a new furnace in the rectory at Blackhall, as well as an appropriation to wipe out the debt on St. Paul's rectory at Plainfield.

All the clergy of the archdeaconry were present, with the exception of Rev. F. M. Kerridge of New London who was detained by illness. A resolution of regret at his absence was passed and it was ordered that he be sent flowers. At this meeting Archdeacon Brown presided and Rev. F. C. Williams of Willimantic, the newly appointed secretary, acted in that capacity. Lay delegates were were present from Trinity, Norwich; Trinity, Brooklyn, and several others of the parishes and missions. A vote of thanks to the rector of St. Mark's and to the ladies was passed for the luncheon was provided.

This meeting was followed by a meeting of the Clericus, which was presided over by Rev. T. D. Martin of Woodstock, the president, Rev. R. B. Day, of Yantic, secretary. The address of the afternoon was by Mr. Wood, librarian of the Westerly library, upon Multiple Personality. After a vote of thanks to Mr. Wood for his address the meeting adjourned.

An invitation was presented by F. H. Bigelow to hold annual meeting on June 10th at Pomfret and was accepted.

EXHIBITING PAINTING OF FORMER MAYOR LEROU

A portrait of Herbert Morgan Leroy is soon to be added to the gallery of Norwich mayors in the common council chamber. The painting is now on exhibition in the window of the Butts Art & Gift Shop on Broadway. It is by J. F. Cooley, a New York artist, who formerly resided here, and is an excellent likeness of Mr. Leroy at the time he was mayor of the city from 1920 to 1922.

CONGREGATIONAL PASTOR BUYS NORWICH TOWN RESIDENCE

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, has purchased the so-called Sterry property at Norwich Town, adjoining the Johnson home. Rev. Mr. Abbott and family are to make this their residence after a number of repairs and alterations have been made, but have not yet determined when they will be able to move from their present home on Union street.

SAYS PEACE-TIME SLACKER IS THE REAL MENACE

Because he is despised, the war-time slacker does not constitute a menace to American institutions and liberties. On the other hand, the peace-time slacker is a real menace.

These views were expressed to newspapermen at Hartford by Lieutenant Colonel Orville A. Petty of the 169th Infantry, C. N. G., which is opening a recruiting campaign. "The Fighting Parson" hit from the shoulder when he was asked his views of slackers in war and in peace times.

"War-time slackers are detestible," Col. Petty told the group of newspapermen, "while peace-time slackers are dangerous. Years of peace rather than days of war is the test-time of patriotism. If we sleep during the peace-period about all we can do is to shout for help when the calamity of war is upon us.

"We meet the war-time slackers of 1917-18 every day or so. They are still ashamed of themselves and we agree with them. We greet them when we meet them, but our contempt is only half-hidden behind a generous smile of half-hearted pity. Flimsy excuses about 'home duties' do not conceal the goose-flesh on their saffron skin. Public contempt for these specimens of moral jaundice prevents the spread of this 'yellow peril.' Their children and their children's children may feebly excuse their cowardice but certainly cannot commend it. Thus cowardly citizens in war are so unpopular then and ever afterward that they never really menace our institutions and liberties."

"The peace-time slacker is 'true-blue' at heart but is so preoccupied that he does not think clearly or completely about his citizenship and the nation's claim for a fraction of his time. Life insurance, fire insurance and burglary insurance cost something when disaster overtakes us. Investment for protection is commonsense. All who know war at first hand decry it; all who read history and sense the national ambitions of today expect it; all who are true to their heritage are alert and ready. Defenseless prosperity invites attack. Although war is always wrong for one party and often for both it is sometimes divinely right—that is, in self-defense and in defense of the oppressed, after peaceful methods fail. True Americans love the ideals of liberty and justice more than that of peace made by moral compromise or accepted with slavery and injustice.

"Col. Petty was asked his idea of a peace-time patriotic service and he replied—"With our small and widely scattered regular army, a well-organized militia—our National Guard—is a prerequisite of peace with liberty and justice and a guarantee of our national integrity and stability, and of inter-national service. All sane and able-bodied men between 18 and 45 years of age belong to the unorganized militia of America and may be called into military service in an emergency. The National Guard is the authorized militia of America and now constitutes the first line of national defense. If you can qualify, it is an American duty for you to join this New Guard and there receive the good military training now available through complete reorganization. Save an hour and a half each week for training in this efficient form of the organized militia in order to preserve our American institutions, and ideals of liberty, justice, service and peace. This is practically patriotism. The peace-time slacker is not an honest-to-goodness patriotic citizen. Think it through. The National Guard is the common-sense American plan. If you skirk this American duty in order to make more money, to seek exciting pleasure and to obtain ignoble ease, others just as thoughtlessly will follow you down hill, and America will stumble and suffer and fall, perhaps utterly.

"We despise the war-time slacker because his malady is not contagious, but the peace-time slacker is a real menace. He means well and the public does not condemn him as a quitter. With some patriotic feeling and little patriotic thought he leaves military training to others and his friends do likewise."

Col. Petty told the newspapermen that his message to the young man of today is this—"Be a practical patriot. Grapple with the duties of citizenship. Do not evade the issue. Do not equivocate. Appreciate your heritage and how it was earned and kept by blood. Do not mistake the mood of the world. Do not think you can save the Nation's neck by hiding your head in the sand. Get into the National Guard. Accept this basal duty of able-bodied Americans and do your bit weekly, not weakly like a slacker, but as a thoughtful, unselfish citizen to achieve justice and insure peace for all."

Entertained For Brooklyn Guest

John Atchison of Brooklyn, N. Y., is passing two weeks at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. John E. Blackburn of Prospect street. Monday evening at 6 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gilman of Spring Garden avenue gave a dinner in honor of Mr. Atchison. Those present included Capt. and Mrs. Blackburn and the latter's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle and children, Henry and Arline Doyle of Norwich Town. Following the dinner music and dancing were enjoyed. This (Wednesday) evening the same company are to be entertained at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Blackburn.

NO NEED TO BE DYSPEPTIC

If Stomach Sours, Gets Gassy and Heavy, Sweeten and Lighten With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

One never grows too old to forget the delights of eating. And yet old people will sometimes play on these memories and bring on dyspeptic attacks even though the diet be simple. Every family should be supplied with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. From childhood to old age they daily overcome or prevent the distresses due to indigestion. They sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect as in health, they absorb the gases, they lift off the feeling of heaviness, they stop sour risings or heart burn, they actually assist in the digestion of food, and from all points of view are one of the most invaluable aids to health to be found. So, no matter what you eat, if your stomach rebels, always remember that a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will keep your stomach sweet and thus aid to prevent much of the distress that comes late in life.

BROADWAY ATHLETES WIN TITLE IN GRAMMAR SCHOOL ATHLETIC MEET

In what was probably the most exciting athletic contest that has taken place in this city for years, Broadway ran away with a victory over Greeneville and Elizabeth street grammar schools in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon, winning by a lead of six points, with Greeneville and Elizabeth street being tied for second place with 13 points.

Excitement reigned from beginning to end of the meet. Every athlete was tempered to do his best, and the big crowd of school rooters did all they could to cheer their schoolmates to victory. One of the tense moments of the meet occurred in the middle of the contest when all three teams tied with 9 points, and the spectators jumped to their feet with shouts that might have been heard a block away.

The Y bleachers were used to accommodate the big crowd of school children who turned out to see the meet, and each school had a special section where the school cheer leaders kept the youngsters busy with their school cheers and yells.

Yesterday's meet marked the fourth season for the athletic meets, which have been promoted through the cooperation of the Y. M. C. A. and grammar school principals.

At the close of the contest Secretary Hill of the Y. M. C. A. presented the beautiful trophy cup to the winning team. The cup, which was contributed by John A. Ferguson, the Main street jeweler, will be suitably engraved and become the permanent possession of the Broadway school.

Results as follows:

16-foot Rope Climb—Nicholas Chapleiff (G) 6.1 seconds; Vitgliano (B); William Epps (E).

Standing Bread Jump—Jackson (E) 8 ft. 6 in.; S. Ozik (G); Vitgliano (B).

Potato Races, semi-finals—Greeneville: Dennie Witkin, Peter Krzywicki; Broadway: Foster, Vitgliano; Elizabeth street: Nathan Meyer, William Epps.

Basketball Relay — Broadway, Greeneville, Elizabeth street.

Obstacle Race—Broadway, Elizabeth street, Greeneville.

Potato Race, finals—Broadway, Elizabeth street, Greeneville.

Officials—J. B. Stanton, J. E. Murphy, F. Clapp, R. Ludlow, E. Davis, E. Fritz, D. Grieco.

LOCAL "Y" MAKING GOOD SCORES IN HEXATHLON

The national Y. M. C. A. hexathlon athletic meet is being conducted in the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this week and some good scores are being made by the athletic members of the "Y". The hexathlon meet is an annual contest which is open to all Y. M. C. A.'s in the country, and participating associations conducting their events on their own floors, and afterward sending their athletic record to national headquarters from where the winning teams are announced. About twenty thousand athletes compete in this event each year. In last year's meet the local "Y" placed 34th, the leading high point men for the locals being T. Kundig, Mosessian, A. Charnetski, J. W. Barwell.

Last night's events were running high jump, won by Roland Harris, who cleared 4 ft. 11 in.; 60-yard potato race won by Milton Adnopos, and the 12 pound shot put won by J. W. Barwell, who made a put of 37 feet. The leading point men for all three events were T. Kundig 168 points; Fred Handy, 152; R. Harris, 149; J. W. Barwell, 148.

The remaining events, which include the bar vault, broad jump and long distance potato race will be conducted Friday night.

D'ROURKE SENSATION OF "TICKET SCANDAL" HEARING

Albany, N. Y.—Feb. 19.—Charges of collusion between promoters of prize fights in New York state and ticket speculators, which in the past are alleged to have sharply increased the price of tickets for championship bouts, brought a climax to the hearing today before the assembly ways and means committee on the Lord bill, designed to repeal the Walker boxing law.

Getting off to a slow and uninteresting start, the hearing steadily grew in interest and excitement, until it was brought to a close by a definite threat from assemblyman Peter J. Hammill, Democrat, New York, that the "ticket scandals" must be checked at once, or the law would be repealed.

Advocates of boxing who packed the hearing room interpreted this as a death knell for the sport as now conducted, unless the changes sought were brought about, for Hammill has been in the past one of the staunchest supporters of boxing as conducted under the Walker law.

The real sensation of the gathering, however, was occasioned by the appearance just before adjournment of Thomas O'Rourke, New York city boxing promoter. Ripping the cover from incidents surrounding the Dempsey-Firpo bout at the Polo grounds last fall, O'Rourke disclosed what he declared had been his experiences in connection with the sale of tickets for the fight.

"You can't get tickets for any fight at Madison Square Garden," he finally charged, "nearer than the sixteenth row on the day tickets are delivered from the printer. I don't know whether Mr. Rickard is here, but if he is I want to tell him this to his face, as I have many times before."

Then reverting to the championship fight at the Polo grounds O'Rourke continued:

"At the fight I represented the Polo grounds. On the morning of the fight we had a long line waiting for tickets, of which only a few were left. I telephoned Tex Rickard's office at Madison Square, and asked them to send some more tickets, but was informed they had only 36 left.

"That afternoon, Jacobs, the ticket speculator, drove a wagon up to 145th street and Broadway, and attempted, with police protection, to sell tickets for the bout. When the crowds found that the tickets were being sold at greatly increased prices over their face value, the wagon was overturned, and it was with difficulty that the salesmen were able to escape.

"After the fight I wanted the tickets counted at the Polo grounds," O'Rourke continued, "but I was overruled, and they were taken to Madison Square Garden.

"It was found there that $135,000 worth of unused tickets were turned in by Jacobs to Rickard."

Jacobs did not pay for the tickets he was trying to sell for Rickard, O'Rourke asserted, but in some cases the prices he obtained for them went as high as 75 in some cases. As a remedy, O'Rourke suggested the sale of tickets by the official boxing commission under the so-called "French plan."

"Boxing bouts as conducted under the Walker law constitute a degenerating influence," is was charged in the fight for repeal, led by Assemblyman Bert Lord, republican Cenango, sponsor of the repeal measure.

bank messenger for money a short time ago," he declared. "Not much later Bud Taylor killed Frankie Jerome in a prize ring, for money. What is the difference?"

"If a Firpo-Wills fight is held, such as now is being predicted by sport promoters, serious results, taking the form of race riots, are almost certain to take place," was the warning voiced by Deets Pickett ,of Washington, representing the Methodist Board of Moral Reform.

"Forty or fifty negroes will die in this country," he declared, "because of the hatred which will be stirred up if such a match takes place."

KASKY AND GORMAN DIVIDE SKATING HONORS

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Harry Kasky, Chicago, and Charles Gorman, St. John, N. B. divided honors here today at the opening of the International speed skating championship races on Mirror Lake.

Kasky, the only member of the American Olympic skating team to show real form, won the 220 yard dash in 30 seconds, which Gorman, taking the lead after holding well back throughout a slow race, captured the one mile event in 3:09 3-5.

The ice was fast today, but the weather was bitter cold and a keen wind cut the skaters and drove to shelter the small crowd.

The 220 yard event was both an upset and disappointment to the spectators. The fleet Kasky led from the start, while Gorman and Joe Moors, New York, the favorites, were hopelessly pocketed and found no opportunity to make use of their speed.

The one mile race was slow from the start. McWhirter and Valentine Bialis, Lake Placid, led the first four laps and then resigned the windbreaking position to Kasky. Gorman hung well back until the end neared and then entered into a competition sprint with Kasky. Francis Allen, Chicago, also moved up when the gun for the final lap sounded and slid into second place across the finish line, close behind Gorman and nosing out Kasky. By dint of victories and places today Gorman and McWhirter moved up in competition for the Maxwell "500-point" trophy, for which, however, Charles Jewtraw, Lake Placid, and Moors still have safe leads.

PLAINFIELD HIGH TAKES GAME FROM KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Plainfield, Feb. 19.—Plainfield High school basketball team showed a complete reversal of form here tonight and handed Killingly High a bad beating 41 to 27. The Plainfield five played the best basketball of the season and at no time during the game were they in danger of being headed by the Killingly boys. The game was a trifle rough and many fouls were called on both teams, the Killingly team scoring on nine of the free tries. Plainfield led at the end of the first half 17 to 11, and increased that lead during the second half of the game. The summary:

GIANT AND YANKEE PLAYERS SLOW IN SIGNING UP

New York, Feb. 19.—Eighteen members of the New York Yankee and Giant squads have not yet signed 1924 contracts, club officials reported today. Of this number only two Giant pitching recruits are known to be holdouts. Wayland Dean, obtained from Louisville, demanding more salary, while Ernie Maun, bought from Wichita, Kas., wants a part of his purchase price.

Herb Pennock and Wally Schang, veteran Yankee battery, expect to confer with club officials Thursday before signing. If they come into the fold, they will leave immediately for Hot Springs, Ark.

Harvey Hendrick, outfielder, and Adolfo Arguiko, a Mexican pitcher from Brownsville, Tex., sent in their signed contracts to the Yankees today.

The Yankees who have not yet signed include Joe Dugan, Waite Hoyt, Walter C. Pipp, Aaron L. Ward, Lawton Witt, Robert J. Shawkey, Robert Meusel, Samuel P. Jones, Earl B. Combs, Milton Gaston, Herbert J. Pennock, Henry Swenson and Walter Schang.

The Giants not yet in line include Virgil Barnes, Frank Snyder, Ross Young, Ernie Maun and Wayland Dean.

Oliver Tucker, farmed out to the New Orleans club of the Southern association last season, but recalled by the Yankees at the close of the season, has been released outright to the New Orleans club.

The vanguard of Giants going to Sarasota, Fla., training camp, leaves tomorrow.

SO. MANCHESTER PLAYS AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

Another stellar attraction is promised the basketball fans of Plainfield and vicinity when the Recs of South Manchester meet the Plainfield quintet at the Community house tonight. This will be the third time that these two teams have met. On their first appearance here the Rec team came out on the long end of the score, defeating the Plainfield team by the score of 42 to 18. On their second invasion they found the going somewhat different and in one of the fastest games ever seen on the Plainfield court the home team, strengthened by the addition of Harry Mills at center, came out victorious by the score of 38 to 24.

Last Saturday night the Rec team met the Atlas quintet of New Haven, who are considered the champion bunch of basketball tossers in the state, and in one of the fastest and most spectacular games ever seen on the Manchester floor the Atlas team finally nosed out the home outfit by the narrow margin of two points.

Both teams, when they take the floor tonight, will be composed of the same players who faced each other in their last tilt.

The Rec team will use Angelli and Ballsieper in the forward positions; Gustafson, center; Crockett and Benson, guards.

Plainfield's team will be composed of Belair and Benjamin, forwards; Mills, center; Swanson and Provost, guards; Blake and Dougherty, guards. Rice of New London, who officiated in the Plainfield-Army and Navy game, will referee.

In the preliminary game the Buddies will clash with the Army and Navy Seconds.

CORNELL HOLDS LEAD IN COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Cornell retained its hold on first place in the intercollegiate basketball league tonight by defeating Columbia, 24 to 29, in the fastest contest of the season on the local court. Cornell led at half-time, 11 to 7.

Cornell now has won 5 and lost 1 game and Columbia has won 3 and lost 2.

The latter part of the second half was the most exciting period on the Ithaca court for years.

Columbia jumped into a 19-18 lead when Cornell staged a desperate rally and made five points. Dake, Cornell center, and Strom, Columbia left forward, were the stars.

ARMY-NAVY FIVE TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM SUBMARINE BASE QUINTET

In a hard fought and rough game at Parish hall on Tuesday evening the Army-Navy club defeated the Submarine Base quintet for the second time this season, winning 35 to 32. The early lead piled up in the first half saved the Army-Navy team from a defeat as the flotilla team was going strong and fast overtaking the locals when the final whistle blew.

The local team worked fast in the first half and their speed was baffling to the Sub Base team. Pretty team work and some fast floor work by Cardie, Belair and Mills brought the score at the end of the first half to 25 to 13 in the Army-Navy favor. In the second half the Flotilla five opened up a whirlwind attack and swept the locals completely off their feet. However, the local team managed to weather the attack and keep in the lead although the submarines were coming along at a fast clip and threatened to overtake them when the final whistle ended the game.

Compton and Greene were the stars for the Flotilla team while Mills and Cardie were the high lights of the Army-Navy quintet. In the preliminray game the Army-Navy seconds trimmed the Battery B team 32 to 14. The summary.

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR NATIONAL RACQUETS PLAY

Boston, Feb. 19.—The annual United States squash racquets championship, the preliminary and first rounds of which will be played here Friday, holds its international flavor in spite of the withdrawal of the Canadian players as the British Isles team will make a bid to carry away both the team and individual titles.

The largest entry in the history of American squash racquets will start play. England and eight American cities will be represented both by five man teams and division champions. In the preliminary round Boston plays Washington. The following is the draw for the first round: Philadelphia vs. Buffalo; New York vs. Baltimore; Detroit vs. winner of Boston-Washington match; Providence vs. England.

The entries for the individual championship are as follows: Philadelphia, W. F. Harrity; Buffalo, Lyman M. Bass; New York, Arthur L. Ellis; Baltimore, L. M. Bailliere; Boston, Palmer Dixon; Washington, Richard Wigglesworth or D. M. Key; Detroit, R. L. Mason; Providence, Fred B. Read; England, S. M. Toyne or Gerald Robarts.

DEMPSEY-GIBBONS BOUT ARRANGEMENTS HANG FIRE

New York, Feb. 19.—Negotiations for the prospective return heavyweight title match between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons hung fire today when a scheduled conference between Jack Kearns, the title holder's mentor, and Tex Rickard, who plans to stage the fight here the first week in June, failed to materialize. Kearns and the promoter expect to get together, however, before the end of the week to discuss final terms. Gibbons already has agreed to the match.

Meanwhile, according to Billy McCarney, Firpo's American business representative, the New York syndicate which is negotiating for a match between Firpo and Harry Wills in July expects to arrange this week a deposit of $50,000, transferable to a Buenos Aires bank, to bind a tentative agreement with the South American; Firpo has stipulated that this part of the $250,000 guarantee offered him must be deposited before the end of the week if negotiations are to continue.

WANDERERS MEET DANIELSON TEAM THIS EVENING

The Baltic Wanderers tonight will clash with the Service Battery team of Danielson, in what is expected to be a fast game on the Baltic gym surface. Manager Collins, who has made an agreement with the club to give the fans in Baltic a chance to see some more games before the end of the season will have all his regulars in the line-up. If the team makes a good showing he hopes to have the Taftville and Plainfield teams appear in Baltic. The Wanderers will line-up the following: Ridgeway and Simoneau, forwards; Charron, center; Despathy or Ralph Robitor, left guard; Swanson, right guard.

In the preliminary the Bantams will play the Service Battery 2nds, of Danielson.

MARSANS SIGNED AS COACH BY GIANTS

Havana, Feb. 19. — Armando Marsans, Cuban ball player who was noted in the major leagues some years ago for his ability to run bases has been employed by Manager John J. McGraw to teach his art to the youngsters on the Giant team. McGraw is here on a visit. The batterymen of the Giant squad will start practice at Sarasota, Fla., Saturday.

Armando Marsans had a colorful diamond career and was regarded as one of the best Cuban players ever developed. Between 1911 and 1918 he played with the Cincinnati Nationals and the St. Louis and New York Americans. He jumped to the Federal league in 1915, playing with the St. Louis club of the former outlaw circuit.

LEDOUX WINS TITLE FROM FRENCH CHAMP

Paris, Feb. 19.—(By The A. P.)—Charles Ledoux tonight defeated Eduard Mascart on points in a twenty round bout, winning the featherweight championship of France and Europe.

The defeat of Mascart probably will cause him to forego his proposed journey to the United States. He had intended to leave for New York in March.

Mascart was awarded the featherweight title of France in December because of the failure of Eugene Criqui, the champion, to meet him. At the time it was stated that Criqui was in bad shape physically and unable to box Mascart.

ANNUAL N. C. A. A. MEET TO BE ABANDONED THIS YEAR

Chicago, Feb. 19.—General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, advised Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago today that the annual N. C. A. A. track and field meet held in Chicago will be abandoned for 1924.

The determination to do away with the meet this year was occasioned by a desire to promote the various sectional meets for selection of athletes to take part in the Olympic game tryouts to be held at Harvard stadium, June 14, General Pierce declared. The N. C. A. A. contests usually were held in June.

Twenty-five collegiate conferences of the country are uniting to foster elimination contests for selection of college athletes to compete in the Olympic tryouts.

CHANCE WILL DIRECT 1924 DESTINIES OF WHITE SOX

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Frank L. Chance, manager of the Chicago White Sox, will probably join his club before the season starts, to direct its destinies through the 1924 pennant race.

Definite assurance of his decision to manage the Chicago American league team was contained in a telegram received today by Charles A. Comiskey, president of the club. In his message Chance said: "Very much pleased that you are willing to await my recovery. I am greatly encouraged as the doctor thinks he will have me in good condition to join the team before the season starts."

The receipt of this telegram set at rest rumors of the resignation of Chance, and of internal dissension on the Sox squad.

DELANEY BEATS LOUGHRAN IN DECISIVE MANNER

Boston, Feb. 19.—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., decisively defeated Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, in a ten round bout here tonight. Delaney's right hand attack carried six rounds, according to ringside opinion, while the first two were conceded to Loughran and two were even. Delaney weighed 162 pounds and Loughran 168.

In a preliminary eight round bout, Tommy Milton of New York, was awarded the decision over young Bones of Bridgeport, Conn.

MISS HOLLINS RETAINS TITLE BY DEFEATING MISS BROWNE

Delmonte, Calif., Feb. 19. — Miss Marion Hollins, former national women's golf champion, retained the Pebble Beach women's title today by defeating Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, former national tennis champion, 5 and 4, in the final match of the tournament. The match ended on the fourteenth fairway before reaching the green after Miss Browne had ruined her last chance by three dubbed shots.

YALE TO SEND COMPLETE TRACK TEAM TO N. Y. GAMES

New Haven, Feb. 19.—For the first time in the history of Yale athletics, a complete Eli indoor track team will take part in the New York Athletic club games in the 22nd Regiment Engineers armory on Thursday night, it was made known tonight by Coach George Connors. The team will be headed by Captain Malcolm K. Douglas, who will run in the Baxter mile event, one of the features.

NEARLY ALL CARDINAL PLAYERS IN THE FOLD

St. Louis, Feb. 19.—Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Nationals today said several players still were unsigned but that he expected no difficulty in lining them up.

Rickey described as ridiculous a report that he would trade Pitcher Jess Haines to Pittsburgh for Pitcher Wilbur Cooper.

MICKEY, WALKER AND LYNCH RESTORED TO GOOD STANDING

New York, Feb. 19.—Two world's boxing champions—Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight titleholder, and Joe Lynch of New York, bantamweight king—were restored to good standing and title recognition in this state today under a decision of the state athletic commission lifting all suspensions made prior to February 13, last

PONIES TRADE TECARR FOR CLIFF BEST

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 19.—The Springfield club of the Eastern league announced tonight that it had traded Pitcher Robert Tecarr to Atlanta, of the Southern league for Pitcher Cliff Best formerly of the Red Sox. Best was in the Eastern league in 1921, being a member of the championship Pittsfield team. Tecarr was obtained by Springfield from Jersey City of the International league last season.

RED SOX TRYING TO LAND COLLEGE SHORTSTOP

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 19.—James Y. Cushing, St. Xavier college graduate and one of the best known Cincinnati shortstops, will probably accept an offer wired him to join the Boston Red Sox, it was announced tonight.

The Red Sox have been after Eddie Coons, former University of Cincinnati shortstop, but Coons said he did not desire to enter the professional field.

Volleyball Games Tonight.

Some interesting volleyball games are scheduled for the Y. M. C. A. tonight when the men's championship volleyball league games take place. Some of the "Y's" best volleyballers are playing in the league and the games are full of competition. The schedule is as follows: 7.45 sharp, Yankees vs. Senators; Pirates vs. Braves; 8.20: Giants vs. Cubs.

The gymnasium will be open to spectators and all those who are interested in watching this popular game are invited to attend. The Cubs, who are now in the lead, consist of the following players: A. F. Finlayson, L. Jacques, W. R. Frisbie, A. Grebe, P. Hollander, W. C. Noyes, R. Perry, Dr. A. Richards.

Gowdy and Hart Off For Camp.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 19. — Catcher Hank Gowdy and Tom Hart, former catcher for the St. Xavier college team of this city left Cincinnati late tonight for the New York Giants' training camp at Sarasota, Fla.

Freedman Gets Verdict.

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—Sailor Freedman of Boston, was awarded the judges' decision tonight in his ten round bout with Bobby Barrett of Clifton Heights, Philadelphia, although he failed to score a knockdown. Freedman gave his opponent some severe punishment. Freedman weighed 139 pounds and Barrett 139 1-2.

Russell Beats Silverberg.

Passaic, N. J., Feb. 19. — "Spark Plug" Russell of Newark, earned a clean cut victory over Young Silverberg of Ansonia, Conn., in a 12 round bout staged by the Hamilton club here tonight, according to newspaper men at the ringside. Silverberg substituted for Harry Gordon of New York. Russell weighed 119, and Silverberg 120.

Speedboys Beat Troop 3.

The Taftville Speedboys trimmed the Troop No. 3 basketball team on Monday evening in an easy game by the score of 52 to 31. Phaneuf and Kunnel were the stars of the game. The Speedboys would like to get a return game with the "Y" Emps and the Laurel Hill Crescents.

Murray Signs His Contract.

Boston, Feb. 19.—George K. Murray, young right hand pitcher, who won seven and lost eleven games for the Red Sox last season, telegraphed President Robert Quinn of the Boston American league club today that he was forwarding his signed contract. Murray asked permission to remain at his home in Charlotte, N. C., until the end of the week before joining his teammates at the San Antonio, Texas, training camp.

Unknowns Play at "Y" Today.

The Unknown Cagers will play a team representing the Y. M. C. A. this afternoon. The Cagers will be represented by Burdick, Burns, Couture, Murphy and Moran. A fast game is expected.

Villa Matched With Taylor

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Pancho Villa, flyweight champion, today was matched to meet Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, Ind., in Milwaukee March 6th.

Hockey Results

Williams 5; Massachusetts Aggies 1.

New Haven, Feb. 19.—Yale 4; Cornell 3.

The Nashville Club has been separated from both its Murphys. The catcher of that name, recently signed as a free agen, has been awarded to Little Rock, which put in a claim that it had signed him first, while Frank Murphy, the shortstop, has been sold to Danville of the Three-I League.

According to report from Beaumont, Manager Mike Kelley will have a big squad of players, trainers and newspaper men in camp in the Texas city, selected as the conditioning point for the Minneapolis Millers to make reservations for no less than 50 persons.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

aREED THEATRE

Seldom has a motion picture received such instantaneous recognition on its merits as has Under the Red Robe, the $1,500,000 photoplay featuring Robert B. Mantel, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens, which will be shown for the last two times today at 2:30 and 7:30.

Reviewers and public have been in perfect accord as regards the beauty and romance of this big historical masterpiece. While the perfection of antiquarian detail delights the historian and connoisseur, the regular film fan revels in the swift movement of the dramatic story.

Pisturized from Stanley Weyman's historical masterpiece of the same name, Under the Red Robe, as presented on the screen, has further increased the great popularity of the book. When first published in book form Under the Red Dobe proved one of the best sellers of the day. The beautiful and interesting manner in which the Cosmopolitan Corporation has brought this pulsating story to the silver sheet has spurred on the sale of the book to such an extent that Grosset and Dunlap have just published a new edition of Under the Red Robe specially illustrated with scenes from the magnificent photoplay.

AT THE PALACE

The Chicago Stock Company at the Palace theatre has set the whole town talking, on all sides nothing but words of praise can be heard for the excellent productions they are presenting. Their opening production Monday Smilin' Through was a real dramatic triumph and yesterday the comedy Six Cylinder Love was excellently acted and staged and thoroughly delighted the large audiences present. Their engagement is for only one week and lovers of the really worth while, in the theatre, should not miss this opportunity. The price for admission are within reach of everyone and it is safe to predict the theatre will be taxed to its utmost capacity the remainder of the week.

This afternoon and evening the players are offering Francine Larrimore's former New York Klaw Theatre hit Nice People, the jazz drama by Rachea Crothers which broke all Broadway records. It is the story of what might happen to the flapper of today in pursuit of pleasure at any cost. A feature of this production is the handsome gowns worn by the feminine members of the cast.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening William Courtnay's former New York Frazee theatre success Her Temporary Husband will be staged and on Washington's birthday, Friday afternoon and evening the sure cure for the blues, the Avery Hopwood laugh festival Getting Gertie's Garter will be produced.

Two productions are underlined for Saturday, the matinee attraction being the dramatic success The White Sister the romance that stirred the heart of the world and the evening offering the American sweetheart play The Love Test a play of thrills, chills and laughs.

Matinees are given daily at which time the seats are not reserved, the entire theatre is reserved for the evening and seats are now selling for all week.

The company at the Palace is really worth while—follow the crowds.

"Helen of Troy, N. Y."

"Helen of Troy, N. Y." "the rollicking musical comedy," which Wilmer and Vincent, in association with George Jessel, are to present at the Broadway Theatre, Wed. night March 5 direct from seven months in New York differs so radically in both theme and treatment from conventional musical comedy as to mark a distinct innovation in stage fare. The book of this play was written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, who are also the authors of such hits as "Merton of the Movies," "Dulcy," and "To The Ladies." The music and lyrics are by Bert Kalmar and Harry Ruby, whose tuneful melodies are being sung and whistled the world over. "Helen of Troy, N. Y." is full of fun, tuneful music and superb dancing. It is a mammoth and georgeous production handsomely staged and exquisitely costumed. There is an excellent cast which includes, Pauline Chambers, Marcella Shields, Wm. Sellery, Marie Berno, W. J. McCarthy, Lew Christy, Thomas. Irwin, Chas. Williams and a glittering glaxy of georgeous girls possessed of real vocal and terpsichorean talent.

Vaudeville at the Broadway

The last half of this week will again see vaudeville at the Broadway Theatre.

A real Keith program has been arranged.

Ruth Budd, who has the distinction of having appeared before the crowned heads of Europe is the super attraction and offers a sensational surprise.

Silver & Ross two comedians offer a song and talk review.

Deane Bernard & Mabel Merrit offer a musical deversion called "Variety Frolic".

Fred Jarvis & Freddie Harrison will appear in a comedian frivolity called "Lonesome".

John Regay assisted by Miss Vera Delores offer a terpsichorean classic.

The screen atraction will be Hoot Gibson in Blulky the best this star has ever done.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist nd David Torrence are featured players in George Melford's Paramount production, "The Light That Failed," from Rudyard Kipling's famous story, which will be on view at the Strand Theatre for three days beginning Thursday.

Jacqueline Logan, who heads the cast, is one of the best known heroines of the screen. She has appeared in many Paramount pictures in roles which called for unusual ability and has a large following. Fourteen pictures in two years is the medium through which this popular player has won her way to public favor. Among these are "White and Unmarried," "Ebb Tide," "Java Head" and "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime" and "Salomy Jane."

Percy Marmont, who plays the role of "Dick Heldar," opposite Miss Logan's characterization of "Bessie Broke," is an English actor whose appearance and experience render him especially fit for this role. Mr. Marmont is well known in England where he achieved distinction in motion pictures and on the stage.

In the role of "Maisie Wells," Sigrid Holmquist is given an opportunity to display her talents.

She already possesses a large following which her recent Paramount picture, "A Gentelman of Leisure," in which she appears with Jack Holt, has done much to increase.

David Torrence, who plays "Torpenhow," is a brother of Ernest Torrence of "Covered Wagon" fame and has many successes to his credit.

Much of the story action in "The Light That Failed" is located in Port Said and the Soudan country. This is one of the most ambitious pictures yet produced by George Melford. It shows the terrible hardships of the Soudan campaign which avenged the death of General Gordon at Khartum. Among the big scenes is a surprise attack by desert tribesmen on the British camp. Several thousand minor players participate.

The love interest between two of the strangest sweethearts ever seen on the screen has as a background a passage in nineteenth century history which is filled with color and drama. Luke Cosgrave and Mabel Van Buren are in the supporting cast.

PATRICK M'GUIRE, N. Y. PASSENGER, MISSING FROM NEW LONDON STEAMER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Warren E. Burrows and infant son, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Arthur Page of Waterford will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the law in operating an automobile past a standing trolley car while passengers are being received or are alighting. Page was operating a machine owned by Tony Sabillo of Waterford on Bank street this noon when he automobile is alleged to have passed a trolley car that had come to a stop, corner of Bank and Tilley streets. Motorman Phinney, who was in charge of the trolley car, complained to Patrolman Clarence Wells and Page's arrest followed.

Adelbert Field, of Essex, will be in the town court of Waterford Saturday afternoon, charged with reckless driving of his automobile. Field was taken into custody yesterday afternoon by State Policeman Leon Schofield and William Kirschner of the Centerbrook barracks. The case was not ready for trial, so a continuance was granted. The officers allege that they followed Field's automobile for a half mile and that the machine was traveling at a rate of speed of 47 miles an hour.

Mrs. Molly White, wife of Clarence W. White, an employe of the New Haven railroad, attempted to end her life by swallowing a quantity of poison at her home last night. She was unsuccessful, however, for medical aid was procured and today the young woman is not much the worse for her experience.

Mrs. White, it is alleged, engaged in a quarrel with her husband during the evening and sometime later went to a closet and procured a small vial of iodine. The woman started to drink its contents, but she was observed in her act by her father, Charles Greig, who rushed toward his daughter and seizing the bottle of poison, he succeeded in forcing it from her grasp, but not before Mrs. White had swallowed a portion of the liquid. A hurry call was given the police to provide medical assistance, but a physician could not be located until about a half hour later. Dr. Alfred Labensky finally responded and administered antidotes.

Patrick McGuire, of 322 West 42nd street, New York, is believed to have ended his life by leaping from the Fall River line steamer Chester W. Chapin between New Haven and this city late last night or early this morning, for when the steamer arrived at her pier here, McGuire was nowhere to be found and his effects remained in the stateroom assigned him when he procured passage for the trip through the sound.

McGuire boarded the steamer about 5 o'clock and was assigned to room 41. He was observed about the boat as late as 11 o'clock by members of the crew. This morning the key to McGuire's room was found on the deck and when this room was opened it was found that the bed had not been occupied. Two suitcases and an overcoat and umbrella were found there. In one of the cases were letters addressed to McGuire, at the New York address and at 614 Warren street, Boston, one of the letters being from the Democratic League, with headquarters at 597 Washington street, Boston.

George H. Enos, a chauffeur, was fined $100 in the police court this morning for operating a bus while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Enos was serving as a substitute for the driver of the bus. He had been at work long hours. In front of the Odd Fellows' building on Bank street about 11 o'clock last night two automobiles were parked alongside the curbing, a Ford car being nearest the bus as it came tearing along the street on the way to Niantic. It sideswiped the Ford car and sent it crashing into the automobile ahead of it, driving that vehicle upon the sidewalk. Enos was taken into custody by Officers Sergeant Frank Howard and George Lebeue. He went to the police station not showing the effects of liquor particularly, but when he had been in the warm room a few minutes he was dead to the world. The policemen appeared against him in court today and declared there was no doubt whether Enos was drunk. A bystander testified to the same effect. Enos simply pleaded that he was not guilty. He would not say more nor did he have any witnesses to introduce who might give testimony that would disprove the allegation against him. The operating license of Enos was taken by the court and turned in to the office of the motor vehicle department.

James F. Murphy of Walden avenue became so demonstrative in a restaurant last night that Officer Augustus Ray was called to arrest him. Murphy resented this and struck the officer a stinging blow in the face. This was met with a wallop from the policeman's night stick and as a result Murphy's head was laid open so that the attention of a surgeon was needed. Murphy gave a bond when he was taken into custody for appearance in the police court this morning, but his condition was such when the court convened that Murphy could not keep his engagement and the case was continued to Saturday morning.

Miss Blanche Smith of Franklin is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Maine of Groton.

An automobile truck of the Howard Street Coal company in backing from the private driveway at the entrance of 939 Pequot avenue, passed over a bicycle belonging to a newsboy, and wrecked the wheel. The truck was in charge of Leslie Pearson, but he did not know the owner of the cycle nor the extent of the damage occasioned.

Mr. and Mrs. William Savard have been called to Haverhill, Mass., by the death of Mrs. Savard's sister.

The authorities of New Haven have requested the New London police to supply them with the local police record of Theodore Lusta, alias Theodore Lasta, locked up at New Haven, charged with burglary and theft. The New London police have no record of Lusta and neither is he known here.

This afternoon it developed that Sergeant Charles Hammond has been working with the New Haven authorities in an endeavor to fathom some of the lodging house thefts committed in New London within the last few weeks and it is apparent that the New London officer has succeeded, for a picture of Lusta has been identified as the lodger at some of the houses where thefts were committed. A warrant will be forwarded to the New Haven police for the arrest of Lusta as soon as his case in that city is disposed of.

Sergeant Hammond obtained knowledge of the arrest of Lusta and communicated with the New Haven authorities as the nature of the breaks in that city were very similar to the New London thefts. A description of Lusta was furnished Sergeant Hammond and in each of the places where thefts were committed those robbed described the lodger at the respective places when the thefts were committed as identical. This led to the issuance of a warrant by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin.

The business block, a two-story wooden structure, at Nos. 155-157 Bank street, owned by Meyer H. Horlandzsky and occupied on the ground floor by stores and the second floor for dwelling purposes, was threatened with destruction by fire, early this morning. Although the building was partially gutted, the walls remained intact. Besides the destruction caused by the flames added damage was occasioned by the large volume of water necessary to subdue the fire. The damage, it is estimated, will be between $25,000 and $30,000.

The building was occupied on the ground floor by Johns & Manavas, confectioners, and R. H. Siebler, tobacconist. The fire started in the Johns & Manavas store and was discovered by a passerby, who saw the flames in the center of the store, near a stove. An alarm was sent in from Box 32, in front of the firehouse of the Allen Hook and Ladder company. With the arrival of the department the flames were burning fiercely and had made their way to a stairway about six feet from the stove and had progressed toward the apartments above, following the partitions. Streams of water were emitted upon the fire from the front and rear, but not until two hours after the alarm was sent in was the fire subdued and then not until the living apartments and the Siebler store had been eliminated by the flames or by the volumes of water.

The fire is supposed to have originated from the overheated stove in the confectionery store. The place was closed about 11.30 o'clock, but the flames did not appear until about two hours later, but when they were discovered it was evident that the fire had been in progress sometime, because the entire center of the store was a mass of flames.

With New London reputed by prohibition enforcement agents to be the dryest city in the state, the street sergeants of the New London police force today received instructions from Captain Charles A. Pinney to maintain a strict watch of all places where it is believed a violation of the liquor law may be in progress. The street sergeants were instructed to issue orders for all patrolmen to make a report of any and all places where the sale of liquor was suspected.

Although this order is of the same nature as orders previously issued it is doubtful if any reports of a specific violation of the law will be forthcoming for like the enforcement agents, the officers of the New London department realize that the illegal sale of liquor here has been reduced to a minimum.

Prohibition Enforcement Agents Harry Avery and Joseph Fitzpatrick have been in the city the past two days and their watchfulness did not reveal any places that were distributing liquor and neither have the dozen or more officers stationed at the Groton barracks been able to find any violation of the law. With bootlegging activities reduced to almost nothing here, this city is getting free of crime, but in spite of this fact it is apparent that the authorities are centering their efforts or putting an end to any form of liquor selling and gambling, for the latter offense is being watched almost as thoroughly as that of liquor selling and with all the watchfulness of the officers not a single gambling place has been revealed.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

IMPROVEMENT IN MARKET.

New York, Feb. 19.—Selling pressure was lifted from today's stock market and the general list moved to higher ground, gains of 1 to 2 points being quite common at the close. Statements by President Coolidge and Secretary of Commerce Hoover that business was in a healthy condition helped to impart a more cheerful tone.

While the operators on the long side showed a disposition to limit their commitments, pending more definite developments on the revenue bill and the oil lease investigation, they were encouraged by reports from steel trade circles that the mills of the United States Steel corporation were operating around 94 per cent of capacity, the highest since last June, and by the series of favorable earning reports.

U. S. Steel common, which sold as low as 102 yesterday, rallied to 103 3-4, closing slightly below that figure for a net gain of 1 1-4 on the day. Gulf States Steel closed 2 1-2 points higher at 82 1-8 and Republic and Crucible Steel each showed net gains of more than a point.

Baldwin, Studebaker, American Can, American Locomotive and U. S. Industrial Alcohol also closed a point or so higher on the day. Short covering was particularly noticeable in the Pan-American issues, the common closing 3 5-8 higher at 48 and the "B" stock 1 5-8 higher at 45 3-4. Houston Oil rallied more than two points but most of the other issues in that group showed only nominal changes on the day.

Congoleum, which was one of the few issues to move against the downward trend yesterday, slipped back 2 3-4 to 63 1-4 today on profit-taking. Heaviness also developed in American Radiator, Great Western Sugar, May Department Stores, Mathieson Alkali and Van Raalte Silk, the net losses ranging from 1 1-4 to 3 5-8 points.

Heavy liquidation of Erie common, which dropped 1 point to 24 was one of the features of the trading in railroad shares. Most of the other issues in that group, particularly the low priced carriers moved to higher ground under the leadership of Southern railway which closed nearly 2 points higher at 47 3-4.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent and continued at that rate until just before the close when it dropped to 4 per cent. The time money market was quiet with the rate quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent depending upon maturity. The commercial paper market was slightly more active but the ruling rate for prime names was unchanged at 4 3-4 per cent.

French and Belgian francs established new low records for all time at 4.07 1-2 and 3.42 cents respectively in the early trading but made substantial recovery later on heavy short covering by speculative interests. Demand sterling was firm throughout the session, being quoted around $4.39 1-8. Japanese exchange made a further drop of 20 points to 44.50 cents before recovery set in.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 19.—Bond prices drifted irregularly lower today in a dull trading session marked by the absence of general public participation. Reactionary tendencies developed in the U. S. government issues, which apparently were being sold in "switching" operations to high grade investment mortgages. Public utility bonds gained as a result, many issues moving counter to the general market trend.

The hesitancy of prices was attributed to the influence of the Japanese loan as well as uncertainty over the outcome of the tax reduction bill. The more cheerful tone in the stock market, however, was reflected to some extent in the late dealings, where there was partial recovery from earlier quotations.

French government bonds were firm on the receipt of cable advices indicating that a reparations settlement might be made on the basis of a ten billion gold mark mortgage on German Railways and other sources of revenue. Interest on France's portion of the bonds would amount to about $12,000,000 gold marks yearly. Belgian government issues, however, weakened on the fall in exchange rates.

New financing continues in decreased volume. Early offering of $3,000,000 Eastern New Jersey Power 25-year 6s at about 95 is expected, and reports were circulated that the Pierce Oil company soon would sell an issue of the first mortgage bonds, with a possible issue of debentures later.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Substantial upturns in price for all grain took place today helped by indications of a wheat tariff increase and by a prospective sudden let-up in the movement of corn. Wheat closed firm, 5-8c to 1@1 1-8c. Net higher, May 1.10 5-8 to 1.10 5-8@3-4, and July 1.10 5-8@3-4 to 1.10 3-4. Corn scored gains of 1 1-8 to 1 1-2c. Oats 5-8 to 7-8@1c, and provisions 2c to 12c.

Increased activity accompanied higher prices in the wheat trade and in other grain as well. A notable feature of wheat dealings was reinstatement of lines by bulls who sold out on recent declines. Announcement by the United States tariff commission that the cost of milling and marketing hard spring wheat flour in this country is 58.08 cents a hundredweight, as against 48.03 cents in Canada, was generally taken as evidence that the proposed raising of the import duty on wheat, was becoming more and more of a certainty. Aside, too, from indications of a tariff increase, bulls gave emphasis to shrinkage of the domestic visible supply and to possibility that by reason of crop damage and of curtailed seeding the next wheat crop in the United States will be smaller than the last.

Stormy weather over the entire corn belt led to belief that shelling and shipping of corn would be seriously delayed, and that a decided falling off in the volume of corn receipts would result. In this connection the scantiness of the contract stock of corn in Chicago attracted special attention. Only 211,000 bushels of contract corn is on hand in public elevators here. There was talk current too that export buying of corn is active, but has been kept under cover. Despite heavy profit taking sales, corn closed at the day's top level. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were responsive to higher quotations on hogs.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Feb. 19.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's curb market but the main trend was upward in sympathy with the rally on the "big board."

Prairie Oil and Gas recovered its six point loss of yesterday, closing at 231 and Swan and Finch moved up seven points to 65. Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Standard Oils of New York and Nebraska, Vacuum, Imperial of Canada, Magnolia and South Pennsylvania, Galena Signal Oil broke 3 1-2 points and Eureka and Illinois Pipe Lines two each, the turnover in each case being small.

Dubilier Radio rallied one point on reports that current earnings were running at the rate of $5 a share on the common, the stock closing at 19. Gillette Safety Razor climbed 3 1-2 points to 274 on odd lots sales and gains of a point or so were recorded by Centrifugal Cast Iron and Pipe, Kresege Department Stores and Goodyear Tire and Rubber. Jordan Motor Car no par common was admitted to trading ranging from 31 to 30 3/8. United States Food Products new stock also was admitted to trading, one sale taking place at 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Albro have closed their home and have gone to Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Hattie was very much surprised last Monday noon, Feb. 11 when a number of her friends called to help celebrate her birthday. Each guest brought some kind of refreshment so that a very delicious dinner was enjoyed. She received a number of cards and gifts.

The Men's Social club held its weekly business meeting in the club rooms Wednesday evening. Friday night they held a public whist at which lunch was served.

There was a Valentine supper in the Congregational church, Feb. 14. A good sum was raised. After the supper Ernest Burkanp took a party of young folks on a sleigh ride. They went as far as Bolton and then came back as far as North Coventry where they enjoyed themselves at the hall playing games and dancing after which they were served refreshments.

Miss Alice Johnson, daughter of Rev. Mr. Johnson of the Congregational church had a surprise birthday party Feb. 15.

Mrs. Jennie Potter who has been ill is some better.

Mrs. Elmer Cahoon who was operated on in Willimantic is recovering steadily.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Giant and His Wife

"Mr. Merry Laugh. That's my name," said the big giant I mentioned in the last story, as he shook hands with Little Jack Rabbit. And sitting down on a rock, he gave a great ha, ha! that made all the leaves tremble and the little bushes sway to and fro.

"I'm getting wood for my wife," he explained, pushing his handkerchief, which was as big as a sail into his hip pocker. "She keeps me pretty busy. But I don't mind as long as she bakes nice bread," and he gave another merry laugh that shook a big chestnut tree, almost upsetting a little squirrel.

"Take me home with you," said Little Jack Rabbit. "I'd like to meet a giant lady."

Picking up the little bunny, the big kind man slipped him into his pocket.

Then, shouldering his ax, he strode away. By and by, after a mile or more he stopped before a big stone house.

"Mrs. Merry Laugh, I've brought home a visitor. Have you any lollypops left from breakfast?" he shouted as he opened the door.

Of course, Mrs. Merry Laugh had. Like all good housekeepers she knew how to make a man comfortable and in a few minutes the little rabbit was eating the richest lollypop he had ever tasted. And that is saying a good deal, for the Big Brown Bear owned the best lollypop tree in all Rabbit Land.

"You must spend the night with us," said Giant Merry Laugh. "It's growing late, and the Twinkle, Twinkle Star will soon be shining in the sky. You remember what the Man in the Moon says, don't you?"

"No, your Big Highness," answered the little bunny.

"Well then, you shall hear," replied Mr. Merry Laugh, and striding over to the graphophone, he set in motion

"Oh, the Man in the Moon looks down and cries
From out of his Cheese House in the skies,
'Little children, it's time to be in bed
So here is a dream for each curly head.
Pull the coverlet up to your chin,
Close your eyes till the dream floats in
Through the window that faces the starry sky.
And the soft breeze murmurs a lullaby.'"

Without a finger-longer-Lucy, the tired little rabbit curled up in the giant's big soft chair and went to sleep to dream of Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

TAFTVILLE

Tuesday morning at Sacred Heart church, the marriage of Miss Geneva Carignon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elzard Carignon of North A street, and Anthony Landry of North B street, was solemnized at a nuptial high mass, Rev. Henri F. Chagnon being celebrant. The bride was attended by her younger sister, Miss Laura Carignon, and the best man was Harold Blanchard. Both the bride and her maid were beautifully gowned. After the ceremony there was a reception and wedding breakfast served to relatives and friends of the newly married couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elzard Carignon of North A street. There was a display of many beautiful gifts. During the afternoon, the happy couple left for Boston, Mass., where the groom is employed and where they will make their future home. Both the bride and groom are well known and have a host of friends in the village who wish them prosperity throughout their married life.

Mrs. Joseph Paquin and son Edmund of North B street are the guests of Mrs. Paquin's brother and sister-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bergeron and family of Bristol, Conn.

Mrs. Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue was a visitor in Hartford, on Tuesday.

Mrs. Edmund Hindle of North Third avenue was hostess to the Thimble Club Tuesday evening. After the sewing hour, several tables of Mah Jong were in play. Refreshments were served.

The Community Sewing Class met Monday evening in the Red Cross Rooms in the Ponemah Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paquin of North B street have been recent visitors in Willimantic.

A number of Taftville men attended the luncheon of the Eastern Connecticut Mills Association at Plainfield, Monday evening.

D. D. DesJardins, formerly of Taftville, died Monday evening at St. Francis Hospital in Hartford following an illness with blood-poisoning and pneumonia. Mr. DesJardins had a tooth extracted some time ago and blood poisoning set in and was followed by pneumonia. When he made his home in Taftville he was employed by the late C. W. Grant.

DETERMINES PRIORITY STANDING IN TOTAL OF CLAIMS FOR $53,318.94

Priority of claims and mortgages totaling $53,318.94 upon real estate in Granite street and Bristol street, New London, were determined by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court in a judgment he handed down Monday in the suit of James W. Hillhouse of Willimantic, et al. against Giosue Duca of California, formerly of New London, and others. Judge Brown also approved the committee report made by Hibbard R. Norman before whom the matter was heard.

The following is Judge Brown's memorandum of decision:

No objection was raised to the acceptance of the committee's report as amended and all of the counsel present at the hearing, of which due notice had been given to the parties agreed that it should be accepted as rendered. The report as amended is accordingly ordered accepted.

Upon the question of the judgment to be rendered, the only conflict of claims among the counsel who appeared to be heard, was as to the order in which the several claims should be paid from the proceeds realized under the decree of foreclosure by sale which all agreed should be entered.

In referring to the property in question herein, which, as appears by the committee's report, is divided into two tracts each therein fully described, I refer to the one fronting on Granite street as the Granite street tract and to the one fronting on Bristol street as the Bristol street tract.

It is my conclusion that in so far as the parties to this action are concerned, the claim of the plaintiffs in the amount of $7,027.67 plus interest from Aug. 24, 1921 to the date of this judgment is a first lien upon the Granite street tract; that the claim of Carl G. Carlstrom in the amount of $3,254.30, to the date of this judgment is a second lien upon the Granite street tract, that the mortgage to the Land Mortgage and Title Company for $15,000 under date of Dec. 31, 1920 with interest from that date of this judgment, plus $2,300 with interest from Aug. 4, 1921, $2,809 with interest from Jan. 17, 1922, $3,800 with interest from July 3, 1922, and $2,500 with interest from Jan. 13, 1923 to the date of this judgment, which last four amounts were paid by said company as interest on the first mortgage to prevent foreclosure by the first mortgagee, is a third lien upon the Granite street tract and a first lien upon the Bristol street tract; that the claim of the Raymond and Alexander Lumber Co., in the amount of $2,216.12 plus interest from Nov. 7, 1922 to the date of this judgment is a fourth lien upon the Granite street tract; that the claim of the Thames River Lumber Co., in the amount of $2,194.47 plus interest from Oct. 18, 1921 to the date of this judgment is a fifth lien upon the Granite street tract; that the mortgage to the Land Title and Mortgage Co., for $8,500 of June 10, 1921 with interest from that date to the date of this judgment is a sixth lien upon the Granite street tract and a second lien upon the Bristol street tract; that the claim of Simon L. Ewald in the amount of $1,115.25 plus interest from Oct. 25, 1921 to the date of this judgment is a seventh lien upon the Granite street tract, that the mortgage to the Land Title and Mortgage Co., for $7,200 of Aug. 17, 1921 with interest from that date to the date of this judgment is an eighth lien upon the Granite street tract and a third lien upon the Bristol street tract; and that the claim of Benjamin and Connor for $1,700 plus interest at 7 per cent from October 17, 1921 to the date of this judgment, plus $21.65 costs, is a ninth lien on the Granite street tract.

In accord with the agreement between counsel at the time of the hearing I leave open for determination by agreement of counsel or if necessary by the court then in session after hearing the claims of the parties with relation thereto, the exact terms of the decree of foreclosure by sale which shall be so drawn as to protect the interests of the several parties according to their respective rights as set forth in this memorandum.

NORWICH SINGERS DELIGHT FISHERS ISLAND AUDIENCE

The residents of Fishers' Island were given a real musical treat last Saturday evening when a delightful program of vocal and instrumental music was presented by Miss Sadie Driscoll and Miss Mary Bresnahan, both of Norwich, and Phillip H. Edwards of Fishers Island. The event was sponsored by the Men's Club of the Union Chapel, one of a series of community entertainments. A large and appreciative audience received the work of the singers, and by their insistent calls for encores voiced high praise of the splendid quality of music rendered.

Miss Driscoll, soprano, gave an excellent group of solos, ranging in taste and interpretation, from the lyric to the dramatic. Miss Bresnahan pleased by her technique as a pianist. Her rendition of Chopin's Polonais was artistic indeed. Mr. Edwards sang a happily selected group of popular and classical songs, all of which showed a sympathetic interpretation.

The affair was a benefit for the Chapel, and the generous offering of talent by these young people was warmly commended.

Nelson-Hansen Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hansen of West Thames street announces the engagement of their daughter, Esther Cristine to Rudolph Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Nelson, of Sunnyside avenue.

The wedding will take place in June.

BANKERS ARE AROUSED AGAINST DEMOCRATS' CAUCUS

Aroused by the action of the democratic caucus of the lower house in making the Gardner rates in the pending tax measure a test of Democracy, the American Bankers League, through its president, Chas. de B. Claiborne, has just issued a statement calling upon its members and the public to repudiate the action of any party caucus, by demanding of Congress a non partisan consideration of the measure Notice of this has been sent to Norwich members of the Bankers league.

"We challenge the authority of any groupe of Congressmen to dethron the judgment or despoil the wisdom of their colleagues or to render invalid the Constitutional rights of a sovereign to instruct his representative in Congress" the statement reads.

"The Garner rates are no more of a test of democracy than they are a test of religion. Such procedure strikes down free institutions and makes us a government by politicians, instead of a government by the people. It this government is to maintain the confidence of the American people, Congressmen must consult them on fundamental principles and must realize that those who pay the taxes have an equity in this legislation that cannot be abridged by a political cuscus."

SUGGESTIONS TO PUBLIC FOR BETTER-MAIL WEEK

Better-mail week, in which suggestions to post office employes and to the public are being circulated by the post office department, for the general purpose of improving the postal service, is being carried out this week.

On the side of the public, the following are suggestions made as to addressing, preparing and mailing letters and packages:

To insure delivery, all mail matter should be legibly addressed, and for cities in which there is a delivery service should contain the street address, or if on a rural route the box and route number.

All mail matter should bear the sender's name and address so that if necessary the article may be returned to the sender or correspondence had with the sender. Twelve million letters annually are undeliverable and cannot be returned to the sender because of lack of evidence as to who the sender is or where he may be addressed. Where letters do not bear the sender's name and address and this information is disclosed on opening the letter, a fee of 3 cents is charged for the return to the sender.

For every working day during the month of January 134,615 undeliverable letters were sent to the dead letter office. This is at the rate of 3,500,000 per month and 42,000,000 per year. The failure of this great volume of letters to reach the people for whom intended is due wholly to the failure of the public to supply correct, legible and complete addresses. Every one of these letters would have been delivered had a proper and complete address been furnished. All of the letters above mentioned would have been returned to the writer instead of being sent to the dead letter office had they borne return addresses of the senders.

It is of the utmost importance where there is a change of address that a forwarding order be filed in the post office. Where mail is received by carrier, a form should be secured and the order delivered to the carrier. This insures the prompt forwarding of mail, which otherwise is delayed and eventually be treated as dead.

Thousands of letters reach the dead letter office which could have been delivered had proper forwarding instructions been filed.

Parcel-post packages must be carefully wrapped and packed. Do not complain if the post office employes insist on this. They seek to prevent your parcel from becoming one of the 650,000 sent annually to the dead letter office which cannot be delivered or returned to the sender because so poorly addressed or wrapped that they cannot be delivered or returned to the senders by the postmaster.

General delivery service is maintained for transients only. Permanent residents should arrange for the delivery of their mail through postoffice boxes or by carrier where there is no delivery service. All patrons receiving mail by carriers in cities should provide door slots or mail receptacles and keep the latter in good condition so as to insure safety of the mail after deposit. Receptacles should be located at the front door or, if dwelling is 100 or more feet from the street, at the gate.

Do not hesitate to consult the postmaster or his associates as to postoffice facilities, trouble with mail, or any postal service question. It is their duty to answer questions fully and courteously.

Face all letters one way, separate by state and large cities, and tie in bundles. This helps the post office move your mail faster.

Do not wait until late in the day to deposit your mail. Mail so as to connect with the earliest dispatches for the destination to be reached.

Use the special delivery service where prompt delivery on reaching destination is desired. The special delivery service is misused for the transmission of money and valuable matter. Register mail to insure certain and safe dispatch and receipt. Purchase money orders for transmission of money and insure parcels against loss.

Publishers, merchants and advertisers should arrange their mail in accordance with distribution schemes furnished by postmasters. This will aid in prompt dispatch. If merchants will follow this plan in mailing their monthly bills, more prompt delivery and larger collections will result. Advertisers and firms planning to dispatch large quantities of mail should consult with postmasters for suggestions as to the time and conditions of mailing to secure best results.

Advance notices of heavy mailing should always be given to the postmaster so as to avoid congestion and delay in dispatch. Do not deposit heavy mailings in street letter boxes or office building chute boxes. Arrange to deliver at post office at a time when the most expeditious service may be given.

The use of the permit system or preconceled stamps on large mailings will be a distinct economy both to yourselves and to the post office and at the same time serves to greatly expedite the handling and dispatch of your mail.

When you have any special or unusual mailing, see your postmaster first. He may save you time and money.

The firm using the mails for advertising should arrange for a periodical careful checking up of mailing lists. The effectiveness of advertising is materially reduced by addressing matter to incorrect or obsolete addresses. For a reasonable charge postmasters will correct mailing lists. Records of the dead letter office indicate a waste of not less than $500,000 annually through the use of mailing lists containing obsolete or incorrect addresses.

Will Be Notable Prayer Meeting

The Thursday evening meeting at the Central Baptist church this week promises to be one long to be remembered in the history of the church. Before the meeting the deacons are to meet at the church all those who expect to receive the right hand of fellowship on the first Sunday in March, and at the prayer meeting those who are ready will offer themselves for membership. An impressive baptismal service will bring this great meeting to a close.

REV. E. C. DUNBAR SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A. NOON MEETING

Rev. E. C. Dunbar interested a good audience Tuesday noon under Y. M. C. A. auspices at the Norwich Belt plant. He said in part:

"The difference in men is the different things they see in life. Jesus saw far more in life than any other human being that has yet lived. He saw in the lily an illustration of God's watchcare and Divine providence in human life. He saw in the fallen woman the germ of a future citizen of the Kingdom of God. In a batch of eleven Jesus saw the working of God's power in the world of today. Jesus took a band of near-ignorant fishermen and made them world famous. Today he sees about us and in us possibilities that we are unconscious of. The reason that Jesus saw so much in life was because of the love he had for his Father. If we would get the most out of life let us love God.

"A love for God developes within us a reverence for the highest things in life. Reverence opposes self-conceit. A self-conceited person seldom grows or develops. Reverence quickens the intellect and develops the mind. We have only to turn to the gospel to find illustration of this.

"A love for God makes a well rounded character. The Greek athlete had to develope all his muscles to be a champion. God helps us to develope all sides of our lives. The man without love for God is like a lop-sided baseball. The ball is satisfactory for a game of pass, but to place it into a real game, where the pitcher's curves are necessary and where contact with a bat is probable, the ball is useless. It could not be curved and the stress of the force of the bat would soon break the stitching. A man without God may survive every day affairs for a time, but when the stree and strain of life's problems come he finds himself giving way.

"If the love for God helps make a well rounded character it also helps to develope it. The world's great leaders loved and depended upon God. When they felt the need of God they knew where to find him. God is every where, but He is nearest to those who need Him most. When we were boys our fathers wanted us to be noble men. They did all they could to help us. Our Heavenly Father wants us to develop them."

In spite of the recent snow storms it has been reported that the skaters of the city are experiencing some good skating at Bates' pond. The snow has been removed from the surface of the ice making it a very good place for the skaters.

Graduate Nurse Finds "The Perfect Remedy"

Graduate of National Temperance Hospital, Tells of Remarkable Cases Where TANLAC Has Proved Effective.

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider TANLAC the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly Nature's most perfect remedy," is the far reaching statement given out for publication, recently by Mrs. I. A. Borden, Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, of Chicago.

"I have used TANLAC often in treatment of my patients and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal.

TELLS OF CASE.

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, not even water. I prevailed on her to try TANLAC and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after effects.

"I had another patient who simply could not eat, I got him started on TANLAC and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and had regained sufficient strength to return to work.

"These two instances are typical of my experience with TANLAC. My confidence in TANLAC is unlimited.

TANLAC IS FOR SALE BY ALL GOOD DRUGGISTS. OVER 40 MILLION BOTTLES SOLD. ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS DESIRE THAT DAUGHERTY RETIRE FROM THE CABINET

Senator Lodge, Republican Senate Leader, Has So Advised President Coolidge — Tells of Growing Sentiment Against the Attorney General—Harry F. Sinclair Yesterday Arrived at Quarantine on the Liner President Harding—Ready to Meet Process Servers Awaiting Him at the Dock in New York—Senator Elkins and Harry Payne Whitney Have Entered the Oil Muddle.

Washington, Feb. Feb. 20.—Pressure on President Coolidge to remove attorney General Daugherty was increased today by administration leaders in the senate.

At a White House conference lasting for an hour and half, Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, and Pepper of Pennsylvania, advised the president of the growing insistence at the capitol that Mr. Daugherty should retire.

The result of the conference was not apparent. The senators refused to make any statement and White House officials were equally reticent.

After the president's callers had returned to the senate an impression grew that they had received little, if any indication of the executive's attitude.

Privately there was some suggestion as to the advisability of calling up a pending resolution requesting Mr. Coolidge to demand Mr. Daugherty's resignation. Some senators expressed the belief that this measure could adopt with less opposition in debate than developed to the resolution calling for the resignation of Secretary Denby.

Senators Lodge and Pepper visited the White House after the attorney general had reaffirmed to the president his determination not to resign under fire had issued a public statement defying his critics at the Capitol.

The attorney general denied in his statement the charges made in the Senate yesterday by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, author of the resignation resolution, and said he welcomed opportunity "to meet any charges against my administration."

The representations made to President Coolidge by Senator Lodge and Pepper were not the first that had been conveyed to him by individual leaders in the senate, but they were reported to have been of a much more forceful character than any that had gone before.

The visit of the senators resulted from a number of conferences at the senate and elsewhere in which most of the administration leaders participated. In a large measure Senators Lodge and Peppers acted as spokesmen for these leaders.

While what transpired in the long conversation at the White House remains a sealed book, it is known that the consensus of opinion of those participating in the conferences of the republican senate leaders was that the administration should be cleared of the last of those who have become centers of attack in connection with the oil scandal.

In view of the senate leaders the question of the retirement of Mr. Daugherty has become one transcending all personal considerations. They insist that the matter should be viewed from a broad standpoint, taking into consideration fully party policy.

Emphasizing that there was no desire to infringe upon the president's prerogative of himself deciding who shall be in the cabinet, senators said the administration's record was one on which all members of the party must stand or fall and that there should be a decision regardless of past allegiances or associations.

SINCLAIR ARRIVED IN NEW YORK YESTERDAY

New York, Feb. 20—Harry F. Sinclair arrived on the liner President Harding today. Smiling and willing to discuss the weather. International politics and horse races, the gasoline business in Europe the kindship of Albania—everything but oil and the teapot dome.

As his ship, already delayed by blizzard and heavy seas reached quarantine and lay there for several hours waiting for the rain to lift and the fog to settle, he met reporters and photographers who swarmed aboard with handshakes all around and a prepared statement.

He, with Mrs. Sinclair, M. V. Baldwin, his confidential secretary, and Col. J. R. Simpson, vice president of Sinclair Consolidated, were dining when the newspaper men sent him word they'd like to hear what he had to say about the Teapot Dome affair.

"I'll see you in the tearoom," he replied. "Get that—in the tearoom," and he winked. "I have a very sensational statement for you," and he seemed to wink again.

The statement was several hundred words long. It began "During the year 1924 American petroleum products will be in greater demand in Europe than ever before," and went on to tell what Mr. Sinclair had seen during his three weeks in France, Germany, Belgium and England to justify such a forecast. The statement concluded:

"On account of my absence from home for several weeks I am not entirely familiar with what has happened in connection with the senate investigation of the granting of naval reserve No. 3 to the Mammoth Oil Company. Until such time as I may be able to familiarize myself with what occurred I do not wish to make any comment."

Before submitting to questioning, Mr. Sinclair turned himself over to photographers and posed for a score of still and movie cameras—always smiling or laughing. At last a cameraman said: "Look serious for just one picture, Mr. Sinclair."

"Ah," he complied, straightening himself, planting his cane firmly on the deck and frowning:

"You want my committee face. Well, this is it."

He posed pitching quoits for one picture. But he wouldn't "get up closer" to the camera—and the goal —"for that would be cheating," he said. Colonel Simpson adding, "and sufficient grounds for a congressional investigation."

"Of course I'll go to Washington," Mr. Sinclair said later. "I'm here and ready if they want me. I'll have to go if they ask me to. He had been fully discharged after his last appearance before the senate committee, but was quite ready to believe reports reaching the ship that process servers awaited him at the dock. He was ready for them, he said.

But the only persons to greet him when he disembarked were his aged mother, his daughter, his brother, W. E. Sinclair, and Col. W. J. Zevely, after whom Zev, the race horse was named. He went with them directly to his home in this city.

ELKINS AND WHITNEY ENTER THE OIL MUDDLE

Washington, Feb. 20.—Announcement by Senator Davis Elkins, republican, West Virginia, that he had had transactions in sinclair oil stock furnished the one sensation today in the oil scandal.

Asserting that there was no law against one in his position buying and selling stocks, Senator Elkins said he was perfectly willing to go before the oil committee and tell all about his transactions in this stock, which he said were much smaller than those in issuers of several other companies.

The oil committee took no cognizance of his public statement but members said unofficially that he would not be invited to appear except at a public session and then after the completion of the audits of a number of brokerage firms now in proccess both in Washington and New York.

The senator's statement revealed that he is the senator whose name appears on the record of J. P. Benkard and Company, a New York stock brokerage firm, which were presented to the committee yesterday in executive session.

Coincident with Senator Elkin's statement, the oil committee conferred behind closed doors with Harry Payne Whitney, New York financier and friend of Harry F. Sinclair, who expressed entire willingness to have his business books examined by committee experts.

Unofficial word of the arrival of Mr. Sinclair at New York today from Europe reached the committee during the day, but Chairman Lenroot said he had received no communication from the oil magnate. He declined to say whether a subpoena would be issued for Mr. Sinclair's appearance but some committeemen said that since Mr. Sinclair had hastened his return from abroad to appear before the committee the assumed he would avail himself of the first opportunity to do so.

While there is no present intention of having any more committe sessions until the public hearings are resumed next Monday, members said there might be developments meantime that would make necessary an earlier meeting.

Referring to the secret sessions today and yesterday, Chairman Lenroot said in aformal statement that their sole purpose was to make testimony as to what books were kept and the manner of keeping them. He added that he was sure "The committee has no intention that testimony of any other character shall be taken in secret session."

Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel in the oil cases, plunged today into their work, but it was indicated that they would not be ready to take any steps or institute any court processes for some days, at least.

A tender of the assistance of himself and the department of justice was sent to special counsel during the day by Attorney General Daugherty, who wrote that his department would assist the counsel in every way "to the end that wrong doing may be punished without fear or favor."

POINCARE DECLARES NO INTENTION OF RESIGNING

Paris, Feb. 20—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare served notice on the senate and over the upper house to the country and the world today of his firm intention to continue the task as long as parliament grants him its confidence, thus setting at rest all talk that he was inviting defeat on a question of international politics providing that it implied no reaction of his foreign policy.

"I have no intention of withdrawing", he told the senate. "I intend to bring to a conclusion the heavy task you have intrusted to me. It has been said that I am not averse to going down on a question of difference of opinion between he chamber and the senate on a purely internal matter, but I have too much respect for the senate and for parliamentary procedure to seek such a pretext. I shall continue as long as I have your confidence."

BRITISH DOCK WORKERS' STRIKE HAS BEEN SETTLED

London, Feb. 21.—Terms for the settlement of the dispute between the dockworkmen and the employers were agreed to at a conference of th representatives of both sides held at the ministry of labor after the adjournment of the employers' meeting at midnight.

The minister of labor presided and the employers' representatives accepted the terms, which will be recommended to a conference of the dockers' delegates at the ministry of labor tomorrow evening.

If the delegates confirm the terms, work will be resumed at all ports as soon as possible.

MIDDLETOWN MAN FELL DEAD IN STREET OF NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 20.—A man believed to have been John B. Pond, of Middletown, Conn., fell dead in 42nd street near Fifth avenue tonight. A traveling bag pasted with hotel and steamship labels indicated he had been in Havana, while income and tax papers and Masonic papers gave the clue to his identity. His occupation was listed as foreman of a stone quarry.

Chilean Cabinet Resigns

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 20—The cabinet headed by the young liberal, Jose Maza, has resigned owing to difficulties in carrying out the compromise between the parties under which the cabinet was formed on January 31.

CHURCH BELLS WELCOMED MEXICAN FEDERAL TROOPS

Mexico City, Feb. 20.—(By the A. P.) Church bells pealed forth Morelia's joy on the arrival there Tuesday of the federal troops to take over the city, which lately has been occupied by the rebels. Large chowds lined the streets to receive the loyal troops, as they marched in.

General Jesus M. Aqirre, hero of the battle of Octotlan, crossed the river Tuesday morning at the head of his Mayor Indian soldiers. He was followed closely by General Gonzalo Escobar, with whom he had been for days in relentless pursuit of the rebel generals, Dieguez and Estrada.

Estrada and Dieguez withdrew toward Urupan, which also has been occupied by the federals. The rebels are retreating toward Jalisco in an effort to join Salvador Alvarado at Ciudad Guzman. The rebel generals Renteria Luviano and Gustavo A. Salas withdrew to Eamacambaro, while the rebel governor Pulido fled to Huetamo at the head of a thousand men.

General Escobar has been ordered to continue the pursuit of the rebels and to cooperate in the Jalisco campaign with General Roberto Cruz.

The troops under Generals Heriberto Jara and Adelberto Palacios have had a fight at Oriental with rebel forces commanded by Generals Bertani nad Loyo. The rebels had reached the main plaza of the town. Finally they were defeated with heavy losses, according to dispatches from Puebla.

The rebel chieftain Mayorga, with 100 men, has surrendered to Benecio Lopez at Liera, in the state of Tamulipas, according to Tampico dispatches. Rebels commanded by Modesta Solis and Petro Ruiz have been defeated by Chicamin, state of Vera Cruz, by General Cellis.

The rebels lost six officers and 12 soldiers killed, also a large number of horses and war material.

NEW YORKERS BATTLED WITH SLUSH AND WATER

New York, Feb. 20.—The weather bureau's forecasts of "rain turning to snow, and colder" brought little consolation to New York tonight as the city's six millions wallowed home through the slush and water left by the severest storm of the winter.

A prediction that the temperature might be down to 20 degrees by morning gave little comfort to railway official or the municipal street cleaning department, whose men had ladored all day to keep traffic moving. The railways reported only minor delays, but the condition of the city streets was such that hundreds of employers, responding to an appeal by the transit commission, permitted their workers to leave for home at 4 o'clock instead of at 5, in the hope that the congestion could be distributed before the usual rush hour.

The rain that followed last night's four-inch snow fall was only a drizzle by mid-afternoon, and when it ceased late in the day commuters hoped their favorite railroad would have time to clear its lines before the freeze-up predicted for tonight. The transportation companies, kept their tracks open throughout the storm, but feared more serious consequences should the slush become ice.

Telegraphic communication was badly crippled throughout the east. Many brokerage houses were unable to get wires to southern and central points, while the telegraph companies reported serious interruptations of wire traffic in many districts.

Steamship arrivals were delayed and harbor shipping moved cautiously, for a fog hung over the bay.

New York's street cleaning force, argumented by 9,000 men labored long and hard, but during the worst of the rain the "extra" sought shelter as the men refused to wade in their shoes. When the rain ceased, however, they again took up their shovels.

A score of persons sustained minor injuries from skidding automobile and falls on slippery pavements. The only death attributed to the storm was that of a Brooklyn man who was run over by a truck while beating his way home against the rain.

Three persons were hurt when a truck collided with a surface car in the Bronx. The driver of the truck was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN HOPPE DIVORCE CASE

New York, Feb. 20—Supreme Court Justice Bijur today denied a motion of Mrs. William F. Hoppe, wife of the billiard champion, to have her husband precluded from offering evidence on the trial of his divorce suit in support of charges of misconduct which he made against her.

Mrs. Hoppe cited her husband's complaint, in which he accused her of misconduct with "divers persons" and at "divers times and places." When asked for a bill of particulars specifying definite dates and names Hoppe replied he had no further information whereupon Mrs. Hoppe sought to have him precluded from offering evidence.

Advice by Hughes On Immigration Law

Secretary of State Warns Against "Discrimination of Which Just Complaint Can Be Made."

Washington, Feb. 20.—Secretary Hughes today outlined to congress further objections of the state department to details of pending immigration legislation and forwarded to the house immigration committee a protest from the Roumanian legation which Chairman Johnson described as "impudent."

Writing to Senator Colt, republican, Rhode Island, as chairman of the senate immigration committee, and to Mr. Johnson, Secretary Hughes urged that proposed legislation should avoid any "discrimination of which just complaint can be made." He called attention that the plan of the Johnson bill to substitute 1890 census figures as the basis for future quota restrictions had already "evoked representations from Italy and Roumania," but did not amplify views he previously had expressed regarding the Japanese features of the measure.

"I desire," said Mr. Hughes' letter to Senator Colt, to make no suggestions as to the basis of the quotas further than to state that it is hoped that a basis will be found that will not involve any discrimination of which just complaint can be made."

In his letter to Representative Johnson, Secretary Hughes said that the Johnson bill as now framed, while designed to carry out recommendations of President Harding for avoiding disappointments to immigrants, would not in fact meet the Harding suggestions. Under certain conditions American consuls could not deny immigration certificates, he contended, although they had knowledge that the immigrants would have to be excluded upon arrival in America. He approved suggestions for combining passport vises and immigration certificates to simplify consular work.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Hughes, "that it would be very unfortunate to pass a law generally understood to accomplish something which, as a matter of fact, it does not accomplish. If it is the sense of congress that there should be a thorough examination of prospective immigrants in the (American) consulates to ascertain, as far as possible whether they are subject to exclusion under the immigration law, and that the consuls should have authority to refuse immigration certificates to those who appear to be subject to exclusion, I shall, of course, be glad to meet with the committees for the purpose of formulating the necessary amendments to the bill."

LARGE LIQUOR HAUL MADE IN HARTFORD BY POLICE

Hartford Feb. 20.—In the largest liquor haul ever made by the local police department, Sergeants L. J. Lowe and P. B. Gavin, assisted by County Detectives Hickey and Risley and federal prohibition agent Kelleher, today brought to the police station 305 gallons of alleged alcohol from an underground dugout in the rear of a garage on Front street. Held in aggregate bonds of $4,500 for violation of the liquor law, Thomas Santangelo and Samuel Scalzo, of this city and Colema Cocoma of New Britian will appear in court tomorrow morning.

A complete dugout, three feet below the floor of the garage was found by the police. The dugout, which was about 20 feet long, contained 61 five-gallon cans of the alleged alcohol. The police claim the amount of alcohol taken in the raid would furnish the drinking populace of Hartford with whiskey for more than a month.

MEXICAN BANDITS HAVE RELEASED T. G. MACKENZIE

Hamilton. Ont., Feb. T. G. Mackenzie, Canadian oil man held for $200,000 by the Mexican bandit, Hippolata Villa, brother of the late Pancho Villa, for the past several weeks, was to be released today, said a message from his wife today.

The message, received by Mrs. W. H. Sedgewick, Mackenzie's sister, gave no details beyond saying Mackenzie was in good health.

Friction in New York Anti-Saloon League

Editor Rollin C. Eberhart Has Resigned From the Board of Directors—Sees Anderson Clique.

New York, Feb. 20—Rollin C. Eberhart, editor of the American Issue, tonight submitted his resignation as editor to the board of directors of the Anti-Saloon League of New York declaring that he could not "consistent with my conscience" certify that all was now well with the league following the appointment as successor to William H. Anderson, former state superintendent, of Arthur J. Davis, former head of the Massachusetts League.

Mr. Everhart asserted the appointment and election of Mr. Davis was a "triumph of the members of the board and of the league staff who still adhere to Mr. Anderson" and asserted that the new superintendent was chairman of a committee which investigated the "Anderson imbroglio" in New York and endorsed the former chief.

"The fact that the gereral superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America (Dr. Purley A. Baker), nominated him (Mr. Davis) to the board and urged his election was a mere incident," Mr. Everhart declared in his letter of resignation.

"Had that nomination not coincided with the desires of the group indicated the election wold never have occurred.

Dr. Baker is a sick man, has not been to New York and is not sufficiently acquainted with the fact in the New York situation to pass proper judgment."

Declaring that Dr. Davis was a likable and "in several ways a strong gentelman", Mr. Everhart added that he had been, however, chairman of the committee which investigated the Anderson situation and which reported to the executive committee of the national organization in December, 1923 that it was unable to make a final report on the fact.

"He fought in that committee for the committee's approval of Mr. Anderson's then unratified re-election as superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York and secured it", the latter continued, "as late as February last following the recent trial, he expressed full confidence in Mr. Anderson."

Mr. Everhart said members of the New York staff, with one possible exception, were not asked whether Mr. Davis would be acceptable to them either with or without collateral staff changes.

"Although," he continued, "the staff will be asked to certify to the public and the churches, week to week, that all is now well with the league, I cannot do so consistent with my conscience."

Mr. Everhardt revealed that he had submitted his resignation in November but had continued to fulfill his duties to avoid embarrassing Mr. Anderson, who was tried, found guilty and sentenced to one to two years for third degree forgery in connection with manipulation of the league's books. Mr. Everhart asked that he be relieved of his duties by March 1.

When Mr. Davis took office this morning, he said he planned no changes in his staff but that he would not use the system of paying a commission to league solicitors, which was under figre during the Anderon trial. He said the maximum salary would be $10 000 a year but that fair remuneration would be paid to all.

DEPRECATES GAMBLING IN STOCKS AND COMMODITIES

Washington, Feb. 20—Gambling in stocks and commodities has become a national vice, Senator King, democrat, Utah, declared today in the course of a speech advocating a searching inquiry into the operation of all exchanges.

Senator King had referred to the senate judiciary committee a report by District Attorney Banton, of New York, giving the result of an analysis of 100 failures in brokerage firms and outlining remedial legislation.

Stocks and bonds transferred in one year upon the stock exchanges, Senator King said, represented two thirds the aggregate capital value of every commercial organization in the country, while the transactions last year on the New York exchange were two and one half times the total capital value of firms listed on that "board."

$600,000 SUIT FOR SLANDER AND LIBEL BROUGHT AGAINST FRANK A. VANDERLIP

New York, Feb. 20.—(By the A. P.)—Roy D. Moore, and Louis H. Brush, joint owners of the Marion (Ohio) Star today filed suit in federal court against Frank A. Vanderlip, retired banker, for $600,000, alleging slander and libel as the result of the banker's purported utterances in an address at Ossining on February 12.

Three separate clauses of action asking $200,000 damages each were cited in the papers served on Mr. Vanderlip. The action was taken, according to the paper, on account of Mr. Vanderlip's alleged statements in which he "implicated the sale of The Marion Star in the oil scandal."

The first cause sets forth that Mr. Vanderlip "wickedly and maliciously charged Brush and Moore with bribing Warren G. Harding, then president of the United States, to fail to perform certain of his official duties as president, and that the bribing consisted in the payment to former President Harding $850,000, in the purchase of the Marion Star, which was more than twice its fair value."

The Vanderlip speech it was charged, was regarded as an attack upon the integrity of the last President Harding by implying that the sale of the late president's newspaper was involved in the naval reserve oil leases investigation.

The defendant's statements it was further charged accused the plaintiffs of "being financially irresponsible and insolvent and not able to meet their financial obligations and not entitled to credit." It was charged that the statements injured the plaintiffs and their newspaper.

The second cause of action was based upon the charge that Mr. Vanderlip caused his speech to be printed in the New York Tribune.

The third cause is based upon the admission of Mr. Vanderlip before the senate investigating committee that he approved the copy of the speech which was presented to him in his office in New York on February 12 by a representative of The Associated Press, and which speech later was delivered to Associated Press members.

It was alleged in the complaint that Mr. VanVderlip thus gave his speech world-wide publicitey and that it was read by millions of persons.

Publication of the speech it was stated, was the basis of the libel charges while the address itself was said to be landeron.

A statement issued by Mr. Brush and Mr. Moore read:

"Our decision to file a damage suit against Mr. Vanderlip was reached after very serious and mature deliberation. By initiating these proceedings, it is our desire not only to clear our own records by legal process, but to wipe out the defamation of the name and memory of President Harding.

"Mr. Vanderlip has insisted that he did not broadcast a rumor that he 'merely broadcasted the fact that a rumor was being broadcasted.' This rather fine distinction has had no ameliorating effect on the slander and we are advised by our counsel that there is no legal distinction.

Although Mr. Vanderlip had full opportunity to retract his statements when he appeared before the senate committee, he failed to do so, and has endeavored to excuse his utterances on the ground that h was only 'broadcasting the fact that ugly rumors were being broadcast.'

"The only sure and satisfactory vindication we can obtain is in the courts through the action we have brought."

HOUSE DEMOCRATS PUSHING DRIVE ON THE REVENUE BILL

Republican Insurgents Continue to Join With Practically Solid Democratic Vote—Representative Longworth, Republican Leader, Remains Hopeful of Gaining a Majority to Amend the Garner Plan When the Bill is Brought Up For Passage—Republicans Are Studying Parliamentary Rules With a View to Defeating the Garner Plan.

Washington, Feb. 20.—House Democrats, flushed by their victory in the fight on the income tax rates, continued their drive on the revenue bill today, gaining two important amendments.

Republican insurgents, who made possible the substitution of the Garner income rates yesterday for the Mellon schedule, joined again with a practically solid democratic vote today to make stock dividend profits 12½ regular income taxes rather than to the 12 1-2 per cent capital asset tax, and to extend the provisions of the income tax reductions.

Republicans continued to put up a fight, however, and Representative Longworth, part leader, declared hope was still held of gaining a majority to amend the Garner plan when the bill is brought up for passage, declaring several republicans who voted yesterday for the Garner plan had made indirect overtures indicating a desire to vote for a republican measure.

A vote on the tentative compromise advanced yesterday by Mr. Longworth and carrying a 27 1-2 per cent. maximum surtax rate, with the Mellon normal income rates, was not possible yesterday after adoption of the Garner plan. Republicans are now studying parliamentary rules with a view to defeating the Garner plan and gaining an opportunity to present their compromise.

A clearly cut majority on several parliamentary votes would be necessary, it was admitted, to make such a move successful.

Reading of the measure section by section, each paragraph being open for amendment, proceeded rapidly today under constant urge of Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, in charge of the bill on the floor. When the house adjourned such progress had been made that representative Garner, of Texas, in charge of the democratic fight on the floor, suggested an agreement be reached to bring the measure up for a final vote on passage by next Tuesday. Chairman Green indicated he thought an earlier day might be set, but Mr. Garner asked that it be voted on not before Monday, indicating a desire to make sure of a full party presence which might not be possible on Saturday because of week-end absentees.

Although numerous amendments were offered only those submitted by the leaders received any substantial support. The democrats stood almost solidly behind both the major amendments adopted, which were proposed by Representative Garner. Mr. Green chided them on both sides, not members of the Ways and Means committee, which framed the bill, who sought private amendments which the committee had considered impossible. He declared at one point, in seeking to limit debate, that "you are making a joke of this measure if you continue such actions."

The stock dividends amendment proposed by Representative Garner and adopted by a teller's vote, 162 to 113, provides that stock received either as a stock dividend or as a termed capital assets. Capital assets held by the taxpayer for profit or investment for more than two years is subject only to a tax of 12 1-2 per cent.

Urging adopting of the amendment Representative Rainey, democrat, Illinois, declared it would increase government revenue sufficiently to permit a reduction of the automobile excise taxes. Representative Mills, republican, New York, opposed it.

The amendment to the earned income section, also proposed by Mr. Garner, was adopted on a tellers' vote, 141 to 134, record votes not being possible under the rules. It provides that earned incomes, allowed a 25 per cent. reduction in tax by the bill, should include in addition to the wages, salares and professional, fees and other compensaton received for personal services, "reasonable compensation or allowance for personal service where income is derived from combined personal service and capital in prosecution by unincorporated persons of agriculture or other business."

The amendment is designed to include incomes of merchants and farmers for purposes of this reduction, Mr. Garner said. Representatives Mills New York and Begg, Ohio, republicans, insisted the provision in the bill declaring all incomes of $5,000 earned for purposes of this reduction took care of the farmers, whereas the amendment complicated administration of the provision "to an almost impossible degree." The amendment then was amended on motion of Representative Tilson, republican, Connecticut, to provide that only 25 per cent. of such incomes as the amendment included shall be eligible for the reduction. The bill already restricted the amount of incomes on which the 25 per cent. reduction might be made to a maximum of $20,000.

The section on evasion of surtaxes by incorporation, which was amended in committee from the original Mellon bill draft to require the secretary of the treasury to impose penalties of "unreasonable" profits are withheld from distribution, was read over without question and automatically approved. The section in the original Mellon draft required that the secretary find first that a corporation was evading the law before imposing the penalty.

About 73 of the 242 pages of the committee print of the bill have been gone through tonight. The estate and excise taxes, on which it has been announced contests will be waged for amendments, are in the latter part of the measure.

Representative Longworth today flatly denied a rumor that republicans would seek to make the bill impossible for final adoption by repealing several of the excise taxes, including all on automobiles which return about $145,000,000 in revenue annually. He declared republicans would work to make the measure "as nearly sound as possible." Some republicans were said to favor such a move on the ground that democrats in reducing the income rates had not provided means of collecting sufficient revenue.

Several of the republican leaders who conferred today with President Coolidge said he did not express himself on the bill as now framed. They expressed their own hope, however, they said, that it would be changed, either by final actiod of the house or in the senate, to modify the democratic income rate schedules.

The provision for a 25 per cent. reduction in all 1923 income taxes payable this year is in the last section of the bill. Democrats have indicated they will attempt to make their schedules adopted yesterday retroactive to 1923.

YOUTH CONFESSED THE MURDER OF HIS PARENTS

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 20—Frank McDowell, 19, late today made a signed confession in which he admitted that he shot and killed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McDowell, while they slept last night, and also confessed that he had killed his two sisters in Decatur, Ga., a year ago yesterday.

McDowell's confession did not vary materially from a noral confession he had made earlier in the day. He said when he was 12 years old he committed a sin that had since preyed on his mind and that he felt there was an evil influence hindering him in his efforts to attain greatness.

The youth said that last night he had a dream in which he was directed to slay the two persons in the next room. He stated that he did not at the time realize they were his parents. Later, according to the confession, he realized what he had done and that there would be consequences. He said he inflicted a bruise upon his head and then spread the alarm. He first told the authorities that the bruise had been inflicted by a man who, he said, had killed his parents.

He admitted having written, last Monday, a letter on a heart shaped piece of paper and put it on the bed after the shooting.

He said he was directed by "divine authority" to write the letter.

In confessing the slaying of his mother he said he was directed to absolve the early sin by killing the girls. According to his story he did not realize they were his sisters but thought of them as representing the anti-Christ.

The girls were burned to death when they were trapped in their rooms by a fire.

According to neighbors of the McDowells, Frank had a reputation of being erratic. On the table in his room there was several books of philosophy and one "The Quest for Souls" contained three book marks. On each page so marked there was a chapter or sentence dealing with death or of an exotic nature similar to the type of literature after which the message on the heart is patterned.

CALL MEETING OF THE DEM. STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Hartford, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch of Columbia, acting chairman of the democratic state central committee announced today that she had called a meeting of the committee to be held March 15 at New Haven, to fixez the uniform date for the state-wide primaries for the election of delegates to the state convention at New Haven, May 7 and 8.

The same committee meeting will also act upon the recommandation of the national committee that four women delegates-at-large be added to each state delegation with one-half vote each, the men delegates-at-large having the other half votes.

WATERBURY TAXI DRIVER ARRESTED FOR THEFT

Waterbury, Feb. 20.—Louis Rinaldi, driver for the Black and White Cab company and Paul Variese, charged with theft from person, were arrested tonight and will be arraigned in city court tomorrow morning. Roland Hall, the alleged victim of the theft told the police he was robbed of $160 at midnight after returning from a ride with the two accused men. A third party, not yet under arrest, ran from an alley and seized a roll of bills he had in his hand and fled. Half charges Rinaldi and Variese with collusion.

BRIDGEPORT WHITE WINGS QUIT DURING THE STORM

Bridgeport, Feb. 20—One hundred men hired to remove snow from the city streets and comprising more than two thirds of the force at work, quit on the job during the height of the worst storm this winter, at 11 o'clock this morning. Soaked through, they did not consider $3 a day sufficient to warrant exposure to the elements during the afternoon.

A sewer gang of eight men, a five man coal patch gang, and the "white wings," less than fifty in total, sought in vain to clear the streets for traffic following the walkout.

RETURNS FROM DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES IN LOUISIANA

New Orleans Feb. 20.—On the face of almost complete unofficial returns in yesterday's democratic primary compiled by the Times Picayune tonight, Henry L. Fuqua, of Baton Rouge, superintendent of the state prisons has been nominated for governo over Hewitt Bouanchaud, of New Roads, Lieutenant governor.

The vote from all but 138 precincts gave Fuqua 113,235 and Bouanchaud 87,219.

TABERNACLE ROOF FELL WITH WEIGHT OF SNOW

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 20—Only a few hours before a chorus of 500 singers was to gather in the Lyon tabernacle for a rehearsal, the roof the big wooden structure collapsed late today under the weight of the 10 inches of snow that fell here in today's storm. Two men, inside the building at the time, escaped unhurt.

WILLIMANTIC

All banking institutions, schools, town and city offices will be closed all day, Friday, Washington's birthday. The legal holiday will also be observed by the post office department and there will be no deliveries by the city or rural carriers. The money order and postal savings department will be closed for the day but the post office lobby will be open from 7 to 11 a. m., when the stamp and general delivery windows will be open. The collection and dispatching of mail will be carried on Friday, as usual. The offices in the town building which are to close include that of the town clerk, city clerk, judge of probate and personal tax collector.

A number of the clerks and carriers at the local post office will attend the annual conventions of postal organizations with which they are affiliated. A. P. Ellsworth will attend the annual convention of the Connecticut State Rural Carriers' association which will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building, Hartford. Mayor Richard J. Kinsella will deliver the address of welcome. The post office department will be represented by Inspector E. A. Courtier. An address will be delivered by Rev. J. W. Morgan, of Darien, on the subject, The Crisis and the Challenge. Clarence C. Palmer, Clarence O. Barrows and George K. Allen are the delegates from the local office to attend the letter carriers' convention at New Haven, Friday. Edward J. Eagan and Louis W. J. Moran, as the accredited delegates of the local branch of the Clerks' Association of Postal Employes, will attend the convention of that body in Hartford on the holiday.

A new system, known as primary distribution, was put into effect Wednesday at the local post office. Up to this time patrons have dropped letters into one slot and packages into another but they will now find that the drop slot to the left of the package slot is for mail for local delivery and the slot on the right is for out of town delivery. If the letters are dropped as directed the assorting and delivery of mail will be considerably facilitated.

A sleet storm which was followed by driving rain Wednesday had the customary effect on the several inches of snow which had piled up during the night and traffic was dangerous, if not impracticable in some places. Later in the afternoon the streets and sidewalks were criss-crossed by miniature rivulets which made hard going for pedestrians. The snow plow was run up and down Main street and snow to the height of three was left along the gutters. Automobiles which were thoughtlessly driven over these snow banks were gotten back into the street with a great deal of trouble.

At the foot of Church street, where it joins Main, the gutters became clogged and the crosswalk was flooded with two or three inches of slush and water.

The recent order issued by the common council that all tenants and property owners are required to clean their sidewalks within six hours after daylight was obeyed by some and disregarded by several. The city charter states that a fine of 50c an hour is to be imposed on all violators of this rule and unless all sidewalks are cleared of snow and ice by this (Thursday) morning it is likely that the police will mail out bills to some local residents.

Painters engaged in redecorating the common council chamber of the town building were forced to stop work Wednesday when water began to drip through the ceiling and the plastering became wet. The selectmen were notified and after inspecting the roof of the building they concluded that it would be necessary to make repairs some time soon. Large drops of water drummed merrily on the reporter's table of the room.

Dr. Edwin A. Shaw, an educator in the Royal Educational Clinic of the Graduate School of Education, Harvard university, was the speaker at the last meeting of the Willimantic Women's club. His subject was Talented Measurements, and he held the undivided attention of his audience. Discussing the subject of intelligence, Dr. Shaw said that if we cannot agree on a definition for the word we can and do agree that it can be measured, especially as it concerns children. This movement of measuring intelligence was started several years and in 1904 Bernet was appointed on a committee which was to try to find a way to measure the degree of intelligence in a child. Through this movement was given to us the idea of a mental age as well as a chronological age. If a child is chronologically fourteen years old with a mental development of four, he is an idiot. Dr. Shaw said that he had personally tested 25,000 children and he cited examples to show that mental testing is unsafe in the hands of anyone who is not absolutely conversant with it. A child should receive four or five tests before he is condemned. In concluding, Dr. Shaw said that these tests used in a fair, sane, human sort of way will classify students and accomplish great good. They put the child where he belongs, and children have a chance to meet situations and bring out of them the best that is in them. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Arthur W. Clifford, chairman of the meeting. Previous to the address, pleasing piano solos were given by Mrs. William O. Brooks and O, Beautiful for Spacious Skies, was sung by the assemblage.

Mrs. William J. Burke of No. 406 North Main street, Manchester, until recently a resident of this city, was struck and badly injured by an automobile owned and driven by Fred Roberts, of Manchester Green, at noon, Tuesday. She suffered a fractured rib, a cut on the head and brain concussion. Although she was placed on the dangerous list, Mrs. Burke's condition is not looked upon as likely to prove fatal.

Tuesday night's storm, which turned from snow to hail early Wednesday morning had its effect on the Norwich and South Coventry branches of the Connecticut company trolley line, the early morning trips being over half an hour late.

Personal Tax Collector George J. Timmins has not been receiving as many visitors at his office as he had expected. Of the 6,000 names of men and women on the list, not over one-quarter have paid their assessment to date. The tax was payable February first and if those who are between 21 and 60 years and are liable for the payment, do not settle up within the next eight days they are likely to be inviting trouble. The state authorities have started a drive to force delinquents to pay up on back lists and in New London county they already have hailed scores before the courts. The collector's office will be closed at the town building on Friday, Washington's birthday.

Mrs. Geraldine Knowlton, wife of Robert D. W. Knowlton, died at her home in West Ashford Tuesday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. Mrs. Knowlton was born in England January 1, 1853, a daughter of James and Martha Cole. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, James M. Sunderland of West Ashford, a grandson, Ralph Sunderland, and a nephew, Arthur Wood of Gurleyville, and a niece, Mrs. Mary Simonds, of Gurleyville.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Rachael Silverstein of Leonard Bridge; three daughters, Mrs. Esther Yoncor of Medway, Mass., and Misses Fannie and Sophie Silverstein of Leonard Bridge; and six sons, Harry, Jacob, Abraham, Benjamin, Louis and Samuel Silverstein, all of Leonard Bridge. The funeral services were held at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the Killourey Brothers' undertaking parlors on Union street. Burial was in the Hebrew cemetery at Perkins Corners.

Frank Wilcox, 70, of Windham, died Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's hospital where he was taken Tuesday, after an illness of about three weeks. He conducted a blacksmith shop at Windham Center for years and through this business he formed many friendships in the community. Mr. Wilcox was born in Groton, March 28, 1853, a son of George and Lucyette Loyn Wilcox. He leaves his wife and five children, Frederick M. Wilcox of Rockville Center, L. I., George C. Wilcox of this city, Mrs. Alice Locke of Rockland, Mass., Arthur C. Wilcox and Mrs. Jennie E. Anthony, all of Willimantic.

The funeral of Robert F. Hornberger was held Wednesday morning from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hornberger, 251 Jackson street, at 8.30 o'clock. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. J. J. Papillon. The choir sang special hymns, the organist being Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau. Solos were rendered by Mrs. Eva Aubin, Mrs. Laudia Fortier, Mrs. Louise Beaudry, Miss Anna Aubin, Mrs. Delphis Boucher and Joseph F. Gaudreau. There were beautiful flowers. The body was placed in the receiving vault at St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Papillon read the committal service. The bearers were Arthur Caillouette, Delphis Boucher, Jr., Lawrence Hickey, Russell Hoey, Francis McCarthy and Walter Hornberger.

The funeral of John Bak was held from his home, 28 Winter street, on Wednesday morning. The high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. O. S. Beaumister. Mrs. E. R. Portelance was at the organ. As the body was borne into the church, Mrs. Henry Mathieu sang Nearer, My God, to Thee, at the offertory, O Salutaris and Mother, Dearest, Mother Dear, as a waiting hymn. There were choice floral forms. The body was placed in the receiving vault at St. Joseph's cemetery. Killourey Brothers were in charge of the arrangements.

The funeral services for Mrs. Anne N. Wright were held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at 62 North street, Rev. Charles G. Johnson officiating. The body was placed in the receiving vault of Willimantic cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & VanZandt.

The board of relief held its final meeting Wednesday in the selectmen's room of the town building. Two property owners called in regard to their assessments, the figures disputed being found to be an oversight. Thursday afternoon, Feb. 28, at 2 o'clock, a joint meeting of the board of relief and assessors will be held after which the annual town meeting for the levying of the tax rate will be called by the selectmen.

Frank Lewis of South Windham was in police court Wednesday morning on a charge of intoxication to which he pleaded guilty. The man was arrested late Tuesday afternoon after a complaint had been received from a South Windham resident that Lewis was staggering and falling about in the road and that he had just had a narrow escape from being struck by an automobile. Officer Lariviere found Lewis lying in the road, near Dugway Hill. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $10 and costs, totalling $18.15 and a suspended jail sentence of fifteen days.

CONTROVERSY OVER WORK ON KING TUT'S TOMB

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 20 (By the A. P.) —The dispute between the Egyptian government and Howard Carter over the conduct of the work on Tutankhamen's tomb was suddenly terminated today by a ministerial order cancelling the license of Countess Carnavon under which Mr. Carter was operating. It is believed here that this action ends Mr. Carter's connection with these most wonderful of all Egyptian archaeological discoveries, unless, as has been intimated there is recourse to legal procedure.

The ministerial order after tracing recent events which already have been cabled in detail, describes Mr. Carter's action in closing the tomb and abandoning the work as a grave infraction of the obligation assumed by him. Moreover, it contends that as Mr. Carter himself has avowed, it exposes the treasure to irreparable damage and thus gives the government the right to cancel the license.

This measure was further indicated, says the order, by Mr. Carter's constant disregard of the authority and rights of the Egyptian antiquities service and by his published letter of February 3 in which he openly denied the rights of the state over the antiquities discoverer.

"Having regard to these facts," continues the order, "and on the proposal of the director-general of antiquities, the authorization accorded Lady Carnarvon of July 13, 1923, and expiring November 24, 1924, is hereby cancelled and the director-general of antiquities is charged with the execution of this order. He will immediately proceed with the opening of the tomb, the laboratories and other depots and take urgent measures to safeguard and preserve the antiquities."

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE
People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel: there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In this quiet period of the year it is a very great satisfaction for The Bulletin to announce, exclusively, this morning that Danielson stands in an excellent position to so materially increase one of its established industries in importance among its manufacturing assets that the opportunity fairly calls out for the best that Danielson has to offer.

That is saying a lot without saying very much in one paragraph. Getting down to something more specific, it may be stated that a movement already swinging along with every prospect of successful culmination has to do with the taking over of the Main street plant—formerly the Danielson Cotton company property—by the Paco Manufacturing company—from the Connecticut Mills Co., Inc.

There is nothing visionary about this program. It is a business proposition—pure and simple. The Connecticut Mills company has not used the Main street plant for manufacturing purposes since it acquired it during the world war period. It has stood idle for several years. But during its ownership by the Connecticut mills this mill property has been so thoroughly overhauled, repaired and improved as to make it practically a modern plant. With the scores of tenements and other properties included in the general parcel known for more than two generations as the Sherman mill holdings it stands the Connecticut mills better than half a million dolars as an investment. The Connecticut mills acquired it during the hectic business period incident to the world war. As its rebuilding, as applied to the mill itself, was accomplished, there was a nation-wide slump in business. Like thousands of other concerns the country over, the Connecticut Mills company was hard hit by the slump, though now again on the high road to prosperity, and has never used the plant for manufacturing purposes.

Now comes the Paco Manufacturing company—established here through the efforts of the Danielson Development association and eminently successful in its operations since the very opening of its manufacturing enterprise—seeking expansion.

Quietly, much has been done to satisfy this demand of Paco during the past few weeks. All the work has resulted in the announcement that the purchase of the old Danielson Cotton company property from the Connecticut Mills company is on the verge of accomplishment.

When put through, this deal means that the Paco Manufacturing company will centralize all its manufacturing activities in Danielson. This concern, manufacturing marquisette and other curtain stuffs, will transfer its curtain manufacturing plant, employing 200 people, from Boston to Danielson; will bring its finishing plant here and will increase its weaving facilities by the installation of 150 additional looms. This means a prospect of 500 employes and a payroll approximating $15,000 weekly. Carrying out of this program, means, eventually, the abandonment of the Furnace street plant of the Paco company and the sale of it to another concern that will engage in industrial activities in Danielson. Here is an important development program in Danielson's textile field.

The Paco company has amply demonstrated its worth since it began to do business in Danielson. Today it ranks as the foremost curtain manufacturing concern in the country. It weaves its materials, makes the materials into curtain stuffs and through its own sales force sells its product throughout the United States, direct. Its present productive capacity is 12,000,000 yards annually, while the demands of its sales force call for 16,000,000 yards. In this is the answer to its call for expansion.

The company is in a strong position financially — making money every quarter—but in taking over the old Danielson Cotton company property its resources will be taxed.

A committee of the Danielson Development association that has thoroughly gone over the entire proposition has heartily recommended that the association be assisted in its efforts to centralize its activities here. The report has been received with approval and a committee made up of the following men has been named by the association to take up the detail of closing the proposition: F. E. Storer, Alfred L. Reed, E. H. Keach, D. E. Jette, Dolard A. Grenon, F. E. Bitgood.

As was the case when the Paco Manufacturing company was about to come here, investment subscriptions to make further development possible will be sought of the public. It was asserted Wednesday by F. E. Storer that ample financial guarantees will be given those who aid toward realization of the important proposed project.

More relative to this subject will be printed later. For today it may suffice to state that Danielson has another real opportunity to develop its industrial assets.

Dancing Washington's night at Danielson armory. All welcome. Tuesday, March 4, big free dance.—adv.

The snow plow crews had a day of it Wednesday in this territory. They were out early and worked late. They dealt with the accumulations of a storm that, in turn, dumped snow, sleet and rain upon a countryside already sheathed in ice and upon a people hopefully looking forward for some early sign of spring.

The forenoon was young when the snow plow crews started to work. They were concerned with keeping the state highways and trolley lines open for traffic—and be it said without further delay that they did that very thing and made it seem a far away call to the days when such a storm as that of Wednesday's tied things in a knot. Getting over a state road here was simple operating for drivers who benefited by the highway crews' work. Likewise, on the trolley line, passengers suffered no delays worthy of mention.

When rain came in a downpour, shortly after the noon hour, it contributed to the advancement of the snow clearing work the plow crews had been doing, so the storm amounted to little during Wednesday, as to messing up traffic or traveling schedules.

Included in the gossip of the day is a story that deer are being hunted for market in this territory; that the hunters are disposing of their kill through the Providence market and that they are making money. That at least is an interesting story. In substantiating the story, the claim is made that deer are becoming scarce hereabouts and are not seen as frequently as has been the rule for the past 15 years.

One may well imagine owners of fruit orchards chorusing, "That's a damn good thing," if orchardists ever talk as forcefully as that, and it's a known fact that some of them do. But if the claim is true, the point is immediately raised that deer killing for the sake of selling the carcasses is against the law.

It so happens that this is a period of the year when deer do the kinds of destruction that puts them in such bad favor with owners of farm lands, especially lands where an effort is being made to grow fruit and where the investment in trees represents a very considerable investment and the prospect of heavy earnings in years to come.

Owners of orchards have no false conceptions about the artistic value of deer as a moving feature of the landscape. They rate them as an outright nuisance. They know them for what they do. They would be pleased if deer were exterminated on every acre within 500 miles. That's a practical viewpoint, heartless as it may seem. They hold that a zoo cannot be conducted and fruit growing activities conducted successfully in the same township. And there is a lot in that claim, as anyone might testify who had suffered the loss of 200 to 500 young fruit trees from girdling operations by the deer.

But all of this has nothing to do with the fact that wild deer are alleged to be a source of good revenue for men who are willing to take the risk of detection in killing them to sell. There's nothing of sportsmanship in that. It merely again brings into prominence the oft repeated claim that there should be an open season on deer in Connecticut, giving every man who likes to hunt an opportunity to go out and get one as those who have been willing to take the chance have been doing for years and years. It is held that, from any practical standpoint, there would be as much sense in re-introducing bears in Connecticut, and protecting them under the game laws, as there is in shielding deer. A man who set out upwards of 2,000 paple trees in a neighboring town told the writer Wednesday that upwards of 1,300 of these trees had been girdled and killed by deer, and that the state paid 25 cents each in compensation. In this instnace one fine orchard was practically ruined—that deer might continue to roam about for those to kill who are willing to kill them illegally and for nature overs to see, once or twice each year, at no expense to themselves.

And now comes Careful Clarence, escorting Nice Nellie, inquiring, "Have you any roller skates with balloon tires? I want to be awfully considerate, you know."

At the hospital in Putnam, Jerome Keech is quarantined for scarlet fever, which developed following an attack of appendicitis, for which he underwent an operation. Notwithstanding, he is doing well and his recovery is regarded as but a matter of time.

Killingly and Plainfield High schools quit the season even in their basketball series of two games. Plainfield won decisively at Plainfield Tuesday evening, and balanced accounts for the defeat sustained here a fortnight ago.

PUTNAM

John F. Reardon has been elected president of Putnam Industries, Inc., Asa M. Rose vice president, John B. Byrne treasurer and A. Newton Vaughn, secretary and assistant treasurer, these elections made at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization, which was recently organized and will concern itself with reviving certain industries in this city and in adding new ones to the list possessed by the city. It is anticipated that the organization will be effectively active during the current year.

The budget recommended by the common council for the city of Putnam during the present fiscal year is not materially different from the budget approved last year. Increases are noted in three departments, and a decrease in one department.

The council recommends that the fire department be allowed $13,000 this year, as against $8500 last year and that the appropriation for the police department be increased from $10,500 to $12,000. The only other increase recommended is $100 for the city court expense. The decrease—one of $1,000—is in the general expense account, the estimate for this year being $3,000, as against $4,000 last year.

The recommendation for street lights is $8500 the same as last; for the city court $1800, as against $1700 last year; for sewer upkeep $450, for interest on the bonded indebtedness $4800, for the sinking fund $1,000, for fuel and lights $300, for the city clerk $400 for the city treasurer $400, for the city janitor $480.

An 11 mill tax is recommended as sufficient to raise the money required to take care of the budget.

At this adjourned meeting of the common council reports covering the the past year were received from the chief engineer, Ralph Thurston of the fire department and from the board of water commissioners of the city.

Among improvements advocated by Mr. Thurston is the installation of additional fire alarm boxes at certain points in the city.

The report of the water commissioners show that the income of the city water department during the past year was $89,265.55. During the year a principal item of expense was $33,000, which represents the cost of the new filter system installed at Harrisville, where the pumping station is located. The balance on hand in the water department is shown by the report to be $5,060.79.

The common council voted not to accept the resignation of Prosecuting Attorney John F. Carpenter.

James E. Beaven, 96, one of the oldest men in this part of the state, died at his home in Mechanicsville, where he had been living with his son, Joseph Beaven, for the past four years.

Mr. Beaven was born August 8, 1828, in England, and remained there until he was about 30 when he married and came to this country. He lived at Blackstone, Mass., for a time and in 1880 moved to Westerly, lived there many years and then went to Pascoag to make his home. During all of his active years in this country he was employed as a woolen mill worker.

Mr. Beaven probably was the oldest Mason holding membership in the order in Rhode Island. He was a member of the Masonic order for 52 years.

Besides his son Mr. Beaven is survived by a grand-daughter, Mrs. Charles Tucker and a great-grandchild, James Tucker.

Beginning Monday next, Leon T. Wilson, deputy collector of internal revenue, is to be at the city clerk's office in the municipal building, from 10 a. m. to 1.00 p. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m., to assist those who wish in preparing their income tax returns.

This year, based on an enumeration of 2106 and at the rate of $2.25 each, the town of Putnam will receive from the state $4738.50, toward the cost of maintaining schools, this being the annual state aid allowance.

The body of Dr. John Bessner Huber, who died at Pomfret, where he had come in the interest of his health was forwarded to New York for burial. Dr. Huber was a well Staten Island physician. Mrs. Huber was with him when he died.

In Canterbury Wednesday, Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott, of the bureau of domestic animals, assisted by Deputy James Ellis and Sheriff Charles E. Ayer prosecuted nine cases in which violations of the dog laws were charged. Fines of $1.00 and costs were imposed in each case. The accused were charged with having unlicensed dogs or dogs that were allowed to go about without tags.

Fog set in late Wednesday afternoon, to add to the difficulties of the drivers who were making their way through a storm that had furnished all kinds of weather difficulties since early morning.

Another very successful prize handicap shoot was held by the Ashland sportsmen Monday and Tuesday evening when the shooting gallery was packed with shooters and spectators.

The results of the match were governed by the popular Woodchuck contest rules, a shooter over or under estimating his ability is set back into a hole the like amount, which compares with woodchuck shooting in that the hunter must carefully judge the distance to avoid his shooting over or under his aiming point.

All who were present and took part in the contest were so highly pleased with the outcome that it was decided to continue holding these contests weekly. The shooting master and committee have also been requested to hold a prize crow shoot which is governed by a different set of rules. Following were the prize winners: Frank Stanley, electric lighting outfit; Cliff Congdon, trapping outfit; J. Gilbert, facial massage set; H. Fountain, fireless cooker; T. Liberty and G. Miner, carving sets.

Following were the final scores made: Frank Stanley 100, 50; C. Congdon, 100, 49; J. Gilbert, 100, 48; H. Fountain, 100, 41; T. Liberty, 99, 49; Wm Liberty, 99, 44; M. Reill, 99, 43; A. L. WOMAN'S GREATEST ASSET

Health is woman's greatest asset. Upon it depends charm, beauty, power to attract others, happiness and success, and it is what really makes life worth living. Thousands of women suffer from headaches, backache, nervousness, mental depression and mysterious pains, who could find immediate relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which is made from roots and herbs. For nearly half a century this medicine has been recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

A Raw, Sore Throat
Loses Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole.

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Red Seal Records

		Number	DOUBLE-FACED List Price
{Ciribiribin (Pestalozza) In Italian / Il Bacio (Tm Kiss) (Arditi) In Italian}	Lucrezia Bori / Lucrezia Bori	986	$1.50

Two familiar but entrancing waltz songs, with the joy of the Italian skies in them. The second was composed for Adelina Patti; the first sprang up in Neapolitan streets. You should have them both in your permanent record library.

{Liebeslied (Kreisler) / Serenade (Drigo) (Kreisler)}	Hugo Kreisler / Hugo Kreisler	987	1.50

Famous waltz melodies set for the 'cello; an old one from classical Vienna, and a more modern one, romantically beautiful. Fritz Kreisler accompanies, at the piano, which of itself would make these records unusual.

Light Vocal Selections

{De Coppah Moon / Honey, I Wants Yer Now}	Criterion Quartet / Shannon Quartet	19042	.75

Charming quartet numbers, mingling humor and sentiment. Both have catchy and memorable tunes, humming effects, and agreeable voice-contrasts. Sung without accompaniment.

{If the Rest of the World Don't Want You / Little Pal of Long Ago}	Franklyn Baur / Henry Burr	19243	.75

Doubling a new Victor artist, Franklyn Baur, with the popular Burr in reminiscent tuner songs of special merit.

{Old Fashioned Love (from "Runnin' Wild") / Sweet Henry}	Noble Sissle and Eubie Blake / Noble Sissle and Eubie Blake	19253	.75

Two songs with piano by these favorite colored comedians and composers. The first you know as a fox trot. The other talk of a hero with the ladies.

Melodious Instrumental

{Ross' Ju Ju Man (Banjo Solo) / Ross' Florida Cracker (Banjo Solo)}	"Black Face" Eddie Ross / "Black Face" Eddie Ross	19213	.75

Eddie Ross is more than a great banjoist; he is a master of the "old-fashioned" American style of musical composition, and these Victor recordings do him full justice.

Dance Records

{So This is Venice!—Fox Trot (from "Ziegfeld Follies") / Learn to Do the Strut—Fox Trot (from "Music Box Revue")}	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19252	.75

In the first an "English tourist" sings a vocal refrain, and an accordion plays "The Carnival of Venice," followed by sax colaratoras. Then another fox trot showing Whiteman at his best.

{Tripping Along—Waltz / Arizona Stars—Waltz}	The Troubadours / The Troubadours	19251	.75

A waltz in which the rhythms of jazz are interestingly combined with a smooth waltz melody, in a style new to most of us; then a waltz in more usual manner with a vocal refrain. A record you will want to hear over and over again.

{Oh, Baby!—Fox Trot / Holding Hands—Fox Trot}	Waring's Pennsylvanians / Waring's Pennsylvanians	19254	.75

Snappy, fox trots by an orchestra that has made—and is keeping—a name for itself.

TAX CUTTING IN HOUSE.

When the president in the Lincoln day speech told the country to get busy inasmuch as it rested with the people as to whether the benefits of the Mellon tax bill would be obtained, it was evident that there was not what might be considered smooth sailing for that legislation in congress.

When it was impossible for the republican leaders to reach an agreement with the insurgents on a compromise of the surtax feature, there was further evidence that there were those in sufficient number who were determined to stand by a political measure instead of supporting a sane and scientific tax reduction bill.

The action of the lower house of congress doesn't necessarily settle the amount of the surtax. It is a matter upon which the senate will have an opportunity to act, but that same element which has been making trouble in the house is likewise active in the senate. It is determined to have its own way or to play with the other party, and the other party in this instance is engaged in promoting a tax measure solely for the political benefit which it hopes to gain from it and not because it has established its rates in keeping with the revenue and expenses of the country.

According to the Mellon bill the government will be in a position to give the people the benefit of tax reduction all along the line without creating a deficit. In other words it will cut taxes in accord with the financial situation, but under the Garner plan, where the tax cutting has been done regardless of the means to meet it, the hole that would be made in the revenue means a sizeable deficit at the end of that year.

It is a case where the unsound has been given endorsement simply because of alluring promises regardless of what is back of them. The high surtax of the Garner plan means that those required to turn such a percentage of their income over to the government will continue to keep their funds in those tax exempt securities, against which there has been a refusal to take any action.

PREVENTABLE FIRE LOSSES.

Two points stand out prominently in connection with the tenement house fire in New York where 13 lives were quickly snuffed out.

The fire appears to have started in the cellar in some rubbish, and so quickly did the flames go through the building that there was no chance for the people to escape.

Whether the fire was set or whether it was accidentally caused, it seems clear that great aid was given by the rubbish that existed in the cellar. In a building where so many lives are concerned rubbish in the cellar or in closets constitute a serious menace. Invariably the piles of dirt and litter are made up of highly inflammable material and regardless of its character it is to just such rubbish heaps that those who have firebrands to discard are disposed to contribute. The result is that it is not long before flames are starting in their work. Care is needed when discarding firebrands but a big hazard is eliminated when the rubbish, or accumulations of materials that burn quickly are removed.

Too much care cannot be exercised in connection with buildings used as apartment houses. Repeated instances have shown that fires starting near stairways quickly shoot to the roof and spread out on each floor, quite the same as in elevator shafts, unless there is fireproof construction or fire doors are maintained. The draft soon made the stairway in the New York block a roaring furnace, impossible for anyone to use to escape while it carried the flames to the top so quickly that many were overcome before they could get to the fire escapes.

The loss of human life, to say nothing of property loss, in this country each year from just such fires, where preventive measures might easily have been applied to evacuate the careless or the pyromaniac, is appalling. Nevertheless it can be expected to continue with increasing toll just as long as there is the disposition to ignore the means of avoiding it. All fires may not be preventable but there is a large proportion of them that are, and it is lamentable that greater recognition of it is lacking.

SOFT COAL AGREEMENT.

Soft coal isn't a matter of much concern to the householders of this part of the country. How soon it may be there is no telling, but it has an indirect bearing upon all and for that reason there will be general satisfaction over the agreement which has been reached between the soft coal miners and the operators, whereby the agreement which has been in force will be continued for three years.

It is a development that provides occasion for much relief inasmuch as the possibilities of a coal strike within five or six weeks had not been viewed with anything approaching satisfaction. Now, however, with the terms of the agreement respected by the parties thereto there should be an uninterrupted operation of the bituminous mines for the next three years.

The successful negotiations were indicated as the result of the miners' convention at which advice was given against radical proposals, where attention was called to the aroused public sentiment and which did not ask for terms that would be the basis for strenuous opposition.

Steady production of soft coal means that the railroads, industries, power stations, lighting plants and public utilities are not going to be denied the fuel upon which they place such great dependence. It may not mean that efforts for cheaper power will cease, but it will remove much of the uncertainty which prevails over the possibility that the coal supply will be shut off. The miners will continue under the conditions which have existed, but the feeling among operators and miners is that it may mean the closing of small mines which are not needed in supplying present demands.

What the influence will be upon the anthracite industry is awaited. The agreement doesn't open the way to a reduction in the price of coal except that there is eliminated costs that would have resulted had there been a strike and it may permit the industry to adopt measures that would not be possible under a shorter agreement.

SAFETY OF TRAVELERS.

Efforts are being made by the railroads to have the interstate commerce commission rescind its order requiring the equipment of their lines with automatic train stops. The huge expense involved at a time when opinions differ greatly over the effectiveness of the devices is advanced as one reason, but from the demonstrations which have been made on different roads the reported results seem to be highly successful.

In connection with the appeal it is not surprising that the point is made that the recent railroad wreck, which caused so much insistence for the automatic stops, would not have happened if the grade crossing had not existed at that point.

Elimination of grade crossings is another expensive task to which the railroads are expected to share, and while it is to be admitted that the crossing figured in the cause of the wreck, it is also evident that grade crossing accidents would be eliminated if there was the necessary degree of care exercised at such points.

For the proper protection of the public there can be no question but what both the elimination of the dangerous crossings and the establishment of automatic train stops must go forward. The traveling public is entitled to such safeguards and the need for them is more and more apparent as greater speed is insisted upon and more and more instances are disclosed where the human agency fails to measure up to its responsibilities. Railroad expenditures have been heavy for a number of years but there is little ground for expecting new equipment orders to be greatly changed when the need for greater safety exists.

THE MORGAN MEMORIAL.

Only those with much wealth at their command could have gathered together such a magnificent collection of books and manuscripts as was done by the late J. P. Morgan. He was interested in making such a collection. It was a hobby with him quite the same as collecting stamps or coins is the hobby of many individuals. But there was more involved than the mere enthusiasm of possessing such books. They are valuable from many standpoints. It is a collection the like of which few communities are favored with. In fact there are few who have the more than eight million dollars necessary to acquire rare specimens.

What it means when his son establishes this library, regarded as the most valuable private collection in the world, as a memorial for the late financier can perhaps be best appreciated by those who recognize the value of such a collection for study and research purposes. Not only is the library offered for practical purposes but with it goes an endowment that insures its maintenance at the same high standard as if personally maintained.

It is one thing to establish such a memorial for purposes similar to a museum, where the volumes might be admired behind glass cases, and another to create it for the aid which it may give to those who are in search of assistance—that great army of students which is working over books at all times.

The Morgan memorial library will stand out as the work of a lover of books in which the son is desirous that the public should share the benefits and the pleasures.

KATHERINE'S STORY

"No, Katherine, you cannot write a successful burglar story. Your burglars are all too considerate. Now a burglar has no professional pride. He sneaks over a solitary establishment, though he goes prepared to slay whomsoever he may find. Your story will not do," said Gage as he looked at his wife.

"Why will it not do?" asked Mrs. Gage.

"Well, in the first place, you know nothing about a burglar. We have never been rich enough to tempt a thief; and that last chapter where you have the burglar start at the sound of approaching footsteps, and leaving his bag of silver and his dark lantern, rush headlong from the house—why, my dear, that's absurd! He would never leave the silver, nor rush out. You should change that; have him slink behind a door, draw his revolver, and take a sure aim. See?"

"I don't care if I have never seen a burglar. I know just what they are like. Have I not been alone in this house night after night, when I could imagine they were all over the place? I have experienced every sensation that any one could with burglars, therefore I write from experience," said Katherine Gage, picking up the sheets of manuscript on his desk.

"You'll not be more frightened than usual then, if I am not home until morning?" said Gage, looking at his watch.

Gage was an official of a telegraph cable company, and his wife was accustomed to being alone nights.

As he was leaving the house, he turned to Katherine and said: "Look well after your burglar tonight. Just think of the "local color" you could put in your story if a real burglar should come along about 3 a. m. You could put a few thrills in your story.

After her husband had gone, Mrs. Gage took up her manuscript and read it carefully. She almost regretted the limits of her surroundings, which prevented her from requesting the opinion of a real burglar of literary perceptions.

The clock struck 1—a sharp, sudden stroke that roused Mrs. Gage instantly. She was wide awake in a second, with every sense alert. A little breeze came in through an open window, and she noticed the heavy fragrance of the flowers in her room. She knew she was not dreaming. With wide open eyes she waited; for she felt she was in some immediate danger—that to stir, to make the least sound, would be perilous. She forgot that a neighbor could be easily called from her window, and that her doors were securely bolted. She was conscious merely of a benumbing fear.

She could distinctly hear steps in the lower part of the house, she heard a chair overturn in the living room, then came silence, and the frightened woman gained a little courage.

She crept out of bed and slipped on a dressing gown. Then her fear overcame her. "If I live till morning we shall move from here!" she whispered between her chilled lips, but she opened the bedroom door and went tremblingly down the stairs.

The living room door was ajar, and a dim light shone through the space, but there was no sound. She listened for fully two minutes, and then came the faint rustle of a paper, and leaning over the banister she could see her desk plainly. Before it sat a man; in his hands was the manuscript that she had left two hours before.

As Katherine Gage watched him the tense lines in her face relaxed. For an instant she resolved to sacrifice the family silver; but not. She carefully retraced her steps to her room, and called from her window to the passing police: "Help! Burglar in the house! Help!" In the room below she heard the rush of steps and the slam of a door.

When Mrs. Gage came downstairs to admit the police and the next door neighbors who had heard her cries, she found the living room door open. On the table was an overturned lantern and beside it a bag containing silver. Scattered about her desk and the floor were sheets of a manuscript. Katherine looked about carefully. "We must not touch a thing until Mr. Gage returns in the morning," she told them, with a faint note of triumph.—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lieut. Commander Zachary Lansdowne, who has been selected to command the great U. S. Navy airship Shenandoah, is a native of Ohio, born in Greenville, that state, in 1886. He was graduated from Annapolis in 1909 and for several years thereafter served at sea as a midshipman on the battleship Virginia. Before the outbreak of the war he was assigned to the naval aviation service, received his training at the Pensacola station, and in the summer of 1917 was ordered abroad. In England he had several months of practical experience at various air stations and then returned to Washington for duty in the office of Naval Operations, Aviation Division. During the latter period of the war he commanded a naval air station in France. In the summer of 1919 he made the flight with the British airship R-34 from Scotland to Mineola, L. I., the first transatlantic flight of a heavier-than-air machine. Recently Lieut. Commander Lansdowne has been attached to the Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stolen 25 Years Ago

Mr. Editor: Since reading the item in the Bulletin, about the book, "Ten Years Among the Mail Bags, by Holbrook," it has been recalled that a copy of the book was owned by members of the Sessions family living in Abington, Pomfret town. During the absence of the family, some thirty-five years ago, burglars entered the house and among the things that the thieves carried off was that book. Some of the articles taken were traced to Killingly to a vacant house (at that time) on the Green Hollow road owned, I think by Mr. James. Anyone knowing of said book, please write or telephone to Mrs. William Ingalls, Spring Street, Danielson, Ct.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PUEBLA.

"A war in Mexico almost inevitably involves two early steps: a seizure of Vera Cruz and a battle near Puebla," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society dealing with the region where fighting has recently taken place in the southern republic.

"A base on the east coast means a necessary link with the outside world," continues the bulletin, "and when an advance is made from such a base toward Mexico City the issue is almost sure to be joined at Puebla, which lies on the very edge of the Mexican plateau at the entrance to the great Valley of Mexico, in which is situated the capital.

"Doubtless in the dim past the invading Aztecs swarmed up on to the plateau near the site of present-day Puebla and were met there in battle by the older Toltecs, bent on defending their valley homes. A battle near there in which Cortez defeated the Aztecs opened the door for his advance to the Capital City in 1519. Americans repeated history when they fought the Mexicans there in 1847; and there was the seemingly inescapable battle of Puebla when Maximilian's French troops advanced toward Mexico City in 1863.

"Puebla's full name is 'Puebla de los Angeles,' 'Town of the Angels.' But the modern Mexican has shortened it, seemingly having no more liking for the long geographical names furnished by the Spaniards than his American brother to the north who has clipped to its last two words the original mouth-filling name of California's largest city—Nuestra Senora Reina de los Angeles.

"Though its name is town, Puebla is in reality a full-fledged city of more than 100,000 population. In size it is the third city of the Republic and it has the reputation of being one of the cleanest and healthiest.

"Like most other Mexican cities, Puebla has a great plaza which is the center of its religion, business and social life. Across one side is one of the largest and handsomest cathedrals in America, topped by an expansive dome of glistening colored tile. Opposite, across the central parked space, is the municipal palace; and facing the park on the two other sides are the city's best business buildings and clubs. The wide sidewalks of the plaza business blocks are covered by unbroken arcades. In the covered spaces, known as 'Portales,' are numerous small stands of sidewalk merchants.

"The tall trees of the central plaza, which give it the aspect of a tropical forest, are a demonstration of the favorable climatic conditions of Puebla. During the Mexican war this plaza was a dreary expanse of flagstones on which a little handful of sick Americans, besieged by heavy forces of Mexicans, held out behind barricades for a month until rescued by a party of their countrymen.

"Among the trees that have grown so luxuriantly in the last three-quarters of a century are shady walks, fountains and bandstands, and there in the evening crowds of people congregate.

"Puebla has passed the cobblestone era. Its principal streets are as well-paved with asphalt as Pennsylvania avenue or Broadway. Much of Puebla's modern aspect is the result of developments in recent decades. In a modernizing 'boom' not many years ago workmen tore down numerous viaducts that had spanned the streets for years for the convenience of pedestrians in the rainy season.

"Puebla has put away its horse-cars, but it has not embraced electric traction. The engines of a popular light American automobile have been installed in the cars that mules and horses once pulled and Pueblan 'fares' receive at once the novel, if jumbled, sensations of strap-hangers and flivver-riders."

A Little Talk on Thrift

FOREST EXHAUSTION

One of the important national problems of the immediate future lies in our rapidly disappearing forest supply. It is a serious situation that is steadily being injected into our daily lives in the form of increased building costs and general living expenses.

According to government statistics 23 per cent of the rural homes of the country and from 50 to 90 per cent of urban residences are of wood construction. Only 25 per cent of the current drain on our forest supply is being replaced through growth of new timber, leaving 75 per cent of the consumption as a net loss of supply.

Thus it will be seen how forest depletion is persistently imposing itself as an element in higher living costs.

Forest exhaustion also places a heavy burden on the public through increased transportation costs. Two-thirds of the American demand for wood is said to originate in the central and eastern sections where the timber supply is negligible. This requires shipment of lumber from the south and far west. In 1920 the lumber movement cost more than a quarter of a billion dollars. In the six years preceding 1920 the average haul increased more than 30 per cent and the freight bill advanced $100,000,000.

From the original stand of over 800,000,000 acres of virgin forests the amount now standing has dwindled to less than 150,000,000 acres, in addition to some 250,000,000 acres of cut-over forest land.

The problem of replenishing our forest supply is vital, involving one of our important problems in national thrift.

Individual progress and national well-being demand that constructive steps be taken. The longer comprehensive and decisive action are postponed, the more serious the problem becomes. — American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Let Everybody Have a Chance

A family was soon to have two guests, one a charming widow and the other a business woman, who is a spinster. The widow was to come first and the lady of the house planned some dinner parties for her. Her high school son came into the room and looked over the list of guests.

"Now, mother, you aren't fair," he protested. "Widows don't need any encouragement. You've given this one all the parties, and then when the old maid comes you'll take her to suffrage lectures and such things. I believe in reversing things. People always make this difference."

And the father of the house, who had heard the conversation wagered that the son would be a popular young man.

Important changes in high diplomatic posts are under contemplation by the Washington government as a result of the resignation of Richard Washburn Child, as ambassador at Rome, and the transfer of Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher from Brussels to the Italian capital.

POETRY

The Beloved Unseen

Dear secret friend, who stays with me
To minister invisibly,
You laugh or sorrow with such zest
You lead my life fresh interest.

It matters not that I have passed
Into the Quiet Years at last,
For when you take my hand I find
New pathways ever for the mind.

My days are full of stirring things
Wrought by your far imaginings.
With you I head our time ner specs—
I hit the ball, I rap the Faces.

I speed the motor flaring by,
I guide the plane that trails the sky,
Or sail for billowing miles on miles
To reach the lazing South Sea Isles.

I ride, I ride with shining lance
Across the border of Romance,
And then beneath your magic sway
I sing the song, I act the play!

Your name? 'Tis Youth. Oh, fond and free!
Once you were mine for all to see,
But though 'tis said that you have flown,
Beloved, my heart is still your own.

The Date of Easter

Thirty days hath September
Every person can remember,
But to Know when Easter comes
Puzzles even scholars—some.

When March the twenty-first is past
Just watch the silvery moon,
And when you see it full and round,
Know Easter'll be here soon.

After the moon has reached its full,
Then Easter will be here
The very Sunday after,
In each and every year.

And if it happens on Sunday
The moon should reach its height,
The Sunday following this event,
Will be the Easter bright.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistant colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

SNOW, SLEET, RAIN IN FEBRUARY STORM

Snow that began falling about 11 o'clock Tuesday night continued till about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning with periods of sleet and then changed to rain that continued through the greater part of the afternoon. By 10.30 at night Wednesday the moon was trying to shine through the clouds.

The streets were rivers to slush all day through which automobiles spattered their way and pedestrians paddled fearfully from curb to curb.

The street department had its new motor truck plow out clearing the centers of the streets in the business section towards the latter part of the afternoon.

A number of social and entertainment events for Wednesday evening were postponed on account of the weather.

NOW YOU CAN END RHEUMATIC PAINS

German Chemistry Achieves Another Triumph

Nothing is so important in medical practice as the conquest and elimination of pain. For many years German scientists have specialized on this subject, producing many of the most important medical discoveries of the age, among which are Aspirin for the relief of headache pain and Novocain for painless dentistry. Now, from the same source comes Buhler Oil for Rheumatic pain, a scientific formula that penetrates the skin and tissues rapidly, soothing the pain almost instantly, and in a few minutes produces that comfortable feeling that means so much to sufferers.

Knowing that rheumatic pains must have a definite cause, these German chemists persisted in their experiments, finally arriving at the conclusion that toxic poisoning from clogged intestines was transmitted through the blood to joints and muscles causing inflammation. After that it was a problem of finding the right combination of materials to counteract and quickly end the pain.

Buhler Oil has been used by an immense number of people with almost universal success. Many stubborn, long-standing cases have responded quickly to this remarkable lubricant. So astonishing have been the results and so universal the praise accorded Buhler Oil by users that local druggists are glad to endorse it and will cheerfully refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied. Buhler Oil is for sale in this city by Lee & Osgood, John A. Morgan, George M. Rathbone, Andrew McLaughlin, G. G. Engler.

WEAVE SHED BUILT IN 1915 AT SHETUCKET CO. MILL.

ATLANTIC CARTON CO. COMPLETES DEAL TO BUY SHETUCKET MILL

On Monday of this week an important real estate transaction, which was forcasted two weeks ago in the Bulletin, took place when the Atlantic Carton Corporation entered into an agreement with the Shetucket company for the purchase of the Shetucket mill property on North Main street. Title to the property will pass to the new owners in the near future. The tenement houses do not form any part of the transaction.

The property that changed hands consists of all mill buildings, store houses, boiler house, water rights, etc., and the land lying east of North Main street.

The Carton company originally located in the Turner & Stanton factory on North Main and Golden streets, in Greeneville, and established its business there early in the year 1917. The officers are Walter E. Turner, president and Albert M. Van Wagenen, treasurer and general manager. The business has grown very rapidly and their quarters were found inadequate, necessitating factory additions from time to time. In 1921, the business had reached such proportions that the officers found it necessary to erect a large factory on its present plot. It is one of the most modern factory buildings in this locality, being of slow burning mill construction, three stories and fully equipped with all modern conveniences. Their present plant now covers about 50,000 square feet of floor area with private railway siding service.

With continued success, this industry promises to reach considerable proportions. The increasing demands have made necessary additional manufacturing and storage space and the officers of the Atlantic Carton Corporation, feel that they are fortunate in securing the Shetucket mill property, which will meet their requirements in every particular, giving them about 210,000 square feet of floor space.

Rumors were about some time ago, that this company was looking about for a factory site in another city. The acquisition of the Shetucket property is therefore evidence of their desire to remain in Norwich.

The product of the Atlantic Carton Corporation, consists of folding paper cartons, moisture proof and grease proof packages and paper cartons in general. Their customers include many nationally known manufacturers and distributors, among them being the C. F. Mueller Co., of Jersey City, N. J., the largest manufacturers of macaroni, spaghetti and kindred products in existence and the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co., one of the largest biscuit and cracker manufacturers in the world, the P. Lorillard company, tobacco manufacturers and other national distributors. In addition to supplying packages to these companies, their product finds its way all through the United States and in parts of Canada. Transportation to the southern coast states and to California points, enables them to distribute their merchandise to these centers in competition with western manufacturers. There are probably only a few industries in this locality that distribute their product over a greater area.

At frequent intervals in the past the growth of the Carton company's business has necessitated the installation of new machinery and new contracts will be placed very shortly for still additional equipment, which will double the present output. This equipment is all of the most modern type and with the new multi-color printing presses and cutting and creasing machines to be installed in the newly purchased mill property, this company will be one of the leading and foremost manufacturers of folding paper boxes in the United States.

The Atlantic Carton Corporation has a splendid and efficient organization numbering at the present time about 30. The employes are well treated and everything possible is done for their comfort. Each employe is protected with life and disability insurance in the maximum amount of $1,000, the expense of which is fully paid by the company. The number of employes will be considerably increased in the new plant.

Under the terms of the agreement between purchaser and seller, the Shetucket Company is given three months to get its machinery out of the mill buildings to leave them clear for the installation of the Carton Co. machinery. The Shetucket company has already begun to dispose of the cotton mill machinery which will be moved out as fast as possible.

When the Carton Co., first moves into the newly purchased property, it will have some mill space there for leasing, but ultimately, with the anticipated enlargement of the business, it is planned that the whole of the Shetucket mill buildings will be in use by the Carton company. The present factory building of the Carton Co., will be on market for sale after the company has removed into the Shetucket mill property.

George W. Carroll, who acted as broker for the Shetucket Co., in the transactions for the sale, had more than a personal interest in seeing the deal consummated as he was moved by a feeling of civic pride not to allow the Carton Co., to move out of the city if anything could be done to find a suitable location for them here. That he succeeded will be a matter of congratulations for the citizens that an industry of such promise has been retained here.

Shetucket Mill Began in 1823

What has been known as the Shetucket mill in Greeneville for many years will pass out of existence as a cotton mill just as it has completed 100 years of history. It was started in 1823 as the Thames Manufacturing Co., by William P. Greene, Samuel Mowry and Benjamin P. Greene and was incorporated as the Shetucket Co., in 1837.

From time to time additions have been made to its mill property and once the mill had to be rebuilt after a fire had destroyed it in 1842.

The most notable new construction in recent years was the erection of the new weave shed, 356x84 feet, in 1915, a two story brick building of the slow-burning mill type. A three-story store house, 50x100 on Second street, has been remodeled within the past few years.

The weave shed will constitute the main factory building of the Carton Co., and what has been the dye house of the cotton mill, 110x50 feet, will be the treating room of the Carton Co.

The property includes a boiler house with seven boilers and a water power privilege of 800 horse power. The mill buildings are all sprinkled, heated and lighted.

The corporate existence of the Shetucket Co., will be continued for some time as it has other interests besides the cotton mill business, these including 60 tenements and about 40 acres of land in Greeneville which are to be sold. With the growth of years the Shetucket Co., has come to be a corporation capitalized at $500,000, of which Edwin H. Baker of Greenwich, Conn., is president. The resident management has been under the direction of Charles J. Twist, assistant treasurer and agent, with Oscar W. Carpenter, assistant secretary and paymaster.

For many years the principal product of the Shetucket company's mill was Indigo blue denim, and the Shetucket company denim was considered the best on the market. Of later years awnings, chambrays, sateens, ticks and hickory stripes, were the varied fabrics produced and they also commanded the best market prices. The plant has been one of the most stable industries in this town. Very seldom idle for any length of time, and has given employment to three or four generations in Greeneville.

The living members connected with the corporation are Marion Holmes of Greene avenue, who was 40 years or more secretary or treasurer and Oscar W. Carpenter, who has been connected with the concern 38 years as bookkeeper, paymaster and for a period assistant treasurer and assistant secretary.

DEPRAVITY OF MOTHER OF ELEVEN CHILDREN

(Special to the Bulletin)

Stafford Springs, Feb. 20—Mrs. Daisie S. Booth, who up to last September was living with her eleven children in the town of Union, and who moved with her family to Stafford Springs about Labor Day believes that the way of the transgressor is very rocky here. She was in Stafford Springs only three months when six of her children were taken away from her and sent to the County home. It was recently discovered that Inez Booth, age 16, who was among those committed to the county home is soon to become a mother. Mrs. Booth said she suspected that she was in this condition when she was committed. Inez named Edward Herbert as being responsible for her condition and Monday he was brought before a justice of the peace in the town of Union charged with abusing a female under the age of consent, and was bound over to the superior court under bonds of $1500. Tuesday morning Claude Booth and Harold Booth, two brothers of Inez and sons of Mrs. Booth were held in bonds of $500 and $1,000 respectively for appearance of the April term of court, charged with indecent relations with their sister, Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Booth and Nelson Prairie, Jr., were presented in the borough court of Stafford Springs on a charge of indecent conduct at the Booth home, in the Shahan block. They pleaded guilty and Mrs. Booth was sentenced to six months in jail and Prairie was fined $100 and costs and sent to jail for three months.

When the borough court officials started investigating the Booth affairs, last December, they said that they would make a thorough job of it before they got through and with the assistance of the state and local police it looks as though they have made good their promise. As a result of the activity of the authorities five persons implicated in the Booth family matters are now in jail, six have been committed to the county home and other arrests will probably follow very soon. It is said that the officers have been given the names of other men who have frequented the Booth place.

Mrs. Booth gave her age as 42. She is the widow of Leon B. Booth, who was a hard working farmer in Union. He died from pneumonia in March 1923.

ANNIVERSARY SHOWS GROWTH OF SPIRIT OF ROTARY

Under the direction of Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, chairman of the educational committee the 19th anniversary of Rotary was observed Wednesday noon by the Norwich Rotary club at the luncheon at the Wauregan hotel. Dr. Campbell was assisted in carrying out the anniversary programme by five of the club who all contributed some to show that Rotary is surely making for better business and community relations.

Edwin A. Harris read a very interesting letter from Paul Harris, founder of Rotary, in which the founder of the organization whose motto is "Service Above Self" said that Rotary had far exceeded his expectations. In his letter Mr. Harris said that in 19 years Rotary had grown to such an extent that there are Rotary clubs in 25 countries in the world and it was still spreading. The meaning of friendship has really been exemplified by Rotary and it has come to have a new meaning as it is practiced by Rotarians. We Rotarians now dream of a day of real universal friendship when peace and good will reign throughout the world.

What Rotary has Meant to the Foundry Business Throughout the Country was the topic of a three-minute talk by Joseph W. Curtis. In his talk Mr. Curtis said that practically all the larger foundries in the country were represented in the membership of Rotary and that he could see how it had benefited the industry. He told how several years ago it was almost impossible for the member of one foundry to visit a competitive foundry and if he did so it was really a bad breach of business etiquette. Today things have changed. The foundry man welcomes his competitor to his plant and even gives him much of his time, sitting down and talking over methods of production and other matters pertaining to the business each thereby benefiting by this spirit of cooperation. All of this better business feeling can be traced directly or indirectly to the influence of Rotary.

Lincoln J. Crawford told of the influence he has noticed in the retail shoe business. He told of the better cooperation between manufacturer and retailer and the better feeling between the retailer and the customer, all brought about through the practice of friendship and brotherly love in business dealings.

Eben Learned who was the next speaker said that there was much in common in Rotary and the insurance business, both seeking a close adherence to the Golden Rule and an understanding of service.

The text of the address delivered by the late President Warren G. Harding at the International Convention of Rotary in St. Louis was read by Herbert B. Cary.

In this address President Harding said that service should be the watch word of the world and he hoped that America would never lose sight of the fact that service is one of the principles on which this government is founded.

At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and Charles F. Weller and Casper K. Bailey acted as song leaders. Charlie Wells introduced a novelty when he appeared with a silver Fireman's trumpet to do his announcing. There were a number of song feature's including a solo by Clint Lane. It was voted that if suitable arrangements could be made with a local theatre and with the management of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology class play the "Hidden Idol" would be put on in Norwich in March. There was much discussion of the matter and no definite action was taken.

Secretary J. Nelson Weymouth announced that President Coolidge's message to Rotarians would be broadcasted on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock from several broadcasting stations in the country. Norwich Rotarians will be able to get best results by tuning in on W. E. A. F., New York.

This (Thursday) evening the members of the Norwich Rotary club will be entertained at the Ashland club in Jewett City by the five members of the club who either live in that borough or have their business in that thriving little hamlet. A very attractive programme has been arranged according to Arthur M. Brown, chairman of the Jewett City committee. A supper will be served at 7 o'clock after which the program will be taken up.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell announced that Harold Greene of Boston, treasurer of the Lawton Mills Corp., would be the speaker at the meeting on March 6th.

Through the generosity of Miss Maude Buckingham of the Buckingham Shop, the members of the club were treated to some very delicious candy, Miss Buckingham providing a box of the sweets for each table. A vote of appreciation was given Miss Buckingham for her gift.

During the evening remarks were made by John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of commerce, Herbert B. Cary, M. L. Bergstresser, Henry D. Johnson, chairman of the scout finance committee, E. V. Ross and George L. Ingalls, president of the Norwich Boy Scout council.

The supper was served under the direction of Mrs. L. S. Young and Mrs. Fannie Adams. The waitresses were Mrs. Louis Waters, Mrs. Henry Gee, Mrs. Harry Blackburn and Mrs. Fred Krohn.

The next campaign supper will be held on Tuesday evening of next week.

MOTORCYCLE RIDERS GAVE SURPRISE PARTY

On Wednesday evening about 30 of the motorcycle riders in Norwich gave James P. Donovan a pleasant surprise birthday party at River bend Casino. The party invited Mr. and Mrs. Donovan for a ride down the river and when at the casino invited him in where other members of the party had prepared the surprise. During the evening dancing, music and games were enjoyed. Refreshments were served and Mr. Donovan received a number of useful gifts from his friends.

Found Asbestos Covering Smoking

At 7.20 o'clock Wednesday the fire department was called out by telephone for a supposed fire at the Porteous and Mitchell store. The watchman in the store smelled smoke and immediately sent in a telephone call to the department. The firemen conducted an investigation and in a cellar next to the store conducted by James M. Young and Son, on Water street, found that a section of the asbestos covering on a steam pipe was smouldering. There was no damage.

RICKARD ASKS STATE COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE TICKET SCANDAL CHARGES

New York, Feb. 20.—Events moved rapidly today in the wake of sensational charges by Tom O'Rourke before the boxing repeal hearing at Albany that Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, had aided ticket speculators in connection with the Dempsey-Firpo championship fight last September, turning over to one broker a block worth $135,000 which was later returned unsold.

Rickard ridiculed the charges in a formal statement, calling upon the state athletic commission for an immediate investigation and it was indicated this would be the first step in sifting the situation, despite reports from Albany that O'Rourke's accusations might be turned over to a special grand jury for possible action.

George E. Brower, chairman of the commission, declined to say just what course the boxing points would follow but made public a letter to Rickard warning the promoter that unless speculators who are alleged to operate about Madison Square Garden are curbed, the commission will close the arena and revoke its license.

Brower's letter was in reply to one from Rickard calling the commission's attention to the activities of speculators before a boxing show held at Madison Square Garden last Friday night and, while it bears on a similar situation, had no direct connection with the charges made by O'Rourke.

Rickard asserted today he should not be held responsible for curbing ticket speculation outside the garden, claiming that under the law police are directly responsible, but Brower does not hold the same view. He informed Rickard in his letter today he believed the promoter was chiefly responsible.

"This evil can be stamped out and the commission intends to see that it is," said Chairman Brower's letter. "When a club seeks that unless speculators are chased away from its door, a clean-up soon will be effected." He added that if Rickard's letter was to be taken as an admission of his (Rickard's) inability to control the situation, "immediate action" would be taken.

Brower refused to say whether Rickard or O'Rourke would be called before the commission at its informal session scheduled next Friday.

In answer to O'Rourke's charges, Rickard asserted the Firpo-Dempsey ticket sale was an "open book" and that the commission had all the details. His statement follows:

"There is scarcely any necessity for a denial from me of Tom O'Rourke's charges.

"I simply refer the legislative committee and all who are interested to the New York state athletic commission which has complete control over all matter in connection with boxing in New York state.

"The commission is fully cognisant of the details of the ticket sale for the Dempsey-Firpo contest. For O'Rourke to say that no representative of the commission was present when the receipts of this contest was checked up, is more of a reflection upon the commission than upon me.

"As a matter of fact the commission was not only well represented but there were 15 representatives of the United States government present at the check-up. In accordance with its usual custom the commission removed all 'deadwood,' or unsold tickets, to its office.

"So far from there being any increase in the price of the tickets sold at the gates of the Dempsey-Firpo contest, we had to cut the price of the $20 tickets to $10 and the $10 tickets to $5.

"The commission knows this. The commission knows every detail of my conduct of any boxing contest and that also is quite familiar to O'Rourke because of his former connection with the commission as a deputy.

"O'Rourke has openly charged me with collusion with ticket speculators. My reply to this charge is that I have written the New York state athletic commission inviting an investigation on that count."

SKATING EVENTS AT PLACID ARE POSTPONED

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Owing to a heavy storm that blanketed the ice of Mirror Lake despite the effort of shovellers and scrapers, the two events of the international speed skating championships scheduled for today were postponed until Friday morning. The competitors agreed to remain here although they had arranged to leave Thursday evening for St. John, N. B., for the international indoor championships.

Experts who pinned their faith on Joe Moore, N. Y., to win the international championships, today had shifted their allegiance and were divided in support of Harry Kasky, Chicago, the Olympic team member who has displayed good form since the return of the team to America, and Charles Gorman of St. John, the new national champion. Kasky now has 40 points and Gorman 30.

Tomorrow the one-half mile and three-quarter mile races will be contested and the meet will be concluded Friday with the 440-yard dash and the three-mile contest.

EIGHT MEMBERS OF GIANTS LEAVE FOR TRAINING CAMP

New York, Feb. 20.—Eight members of the New York Giants, five of them unsigned rookies, departed today for the training camp in Sarasota, Fla., in charge of Francis X. McQuade, treasurer of the club. Pitchers "Rosy" Ryan, Walter Huntzinger and Howard Baldwin were the only regulars in the party, the rookie players including Walter Rosner and William Auirssey, local semi-pro pitchers; Joe Leet, former Amherst college pitcher; Thomas McAuliffe, Kingston, N. Y., pitcher, and Bernie Wefers, Jr., recruit outfielder.

The rookies are making the trip with the understanding that if they prove of value to the Giants they will be signed for the season. The second contingent of Giants, including Frankie Frisch, will leave for the south next Thursday.

Nothing had been heard today from the five holdouts and they will be barred from camp until they sign contracts. The holdouts are Frank Snyder, Ross Young, Virgil Barnes, Walter Maun and Wayland Dean.

M'TIGUE MATCHED TO FIGHT STRIBLING, MARCH 31

Newark, N. J., Feb. 20.—Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, and Young Stribling, of Georgia, today were matched to box a 12-round no-decision contest in this city the evening of March 31, it was announced by Dave Culnan, one of the promoters.

Paddy Mullins, manager of McTigue, said the principals would meet at the Pioneer A. C. tomorrow to sign articles for the match. The financial terms were not made public but it is understood that McTigue will receive $10,000 for his end.

This will be the second meeting between the light-heavyweight champion and his youthful southern challenger, a match at Columbus, Ga., last October, resulting in an unsatisfactory draw.

TRYING TO MATCH LEONARD WITH TOMMY O'BRIEN

New York, Feb. 20.—Negotiations are under way for a title match between Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, and Tommy O'Brien, of Milwaukee, to be held as the opening show of the Queensboro A. C. in its new stadium in May, promoters said today.

Kirkwood Leads Field.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Feb. 20.—Joe Kirkwood, Rockwood Hall, N. Y., today led the field in the second annual Corpus Christi open golf tournament with a score of 71-70—141, at the end of the first day's play of 36 holes, a margin of seven strokes over his nearest competitor, John Golden, who shot a 148.

Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Henry Culcu, Bridgeport, Conn., were tied for third with cards of 150.

YALE FIVE WINS FROM DARTMOUTH

WHIRLWINDS HAND CHIPPIES A BAD TRIMMING, 26 TO 2

At Parish hall on Wednesday evening the Whirlwinds of Taftville handed the Chippies, another Taftville basketball team, a terrific beating, 26 to 2. The Whirlwinds lived up to their name and had the Chippies completely blown off the floor. Charlie Adams was the only man of the Chippies to score, he managing after a long run to score one solitary basket. Billy Grey and Bob Pilling had things their own way and accounted for 20 of the points made by the Whirlwinds. The lineups:

Chippies—Mathewson rg, F. Meyer lg, J. Meyer rf, Torrance lf, Adams c.

Whirlwinds—Grey rf, Pilling lf, Pollard c, Seigrist rg, Wohlleben lg.

RAY WINS SPECIAL RACE AT NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Feb. 20.—Joie Ray, Illinois A. C. star, won the two-third mile special race at the Prudential Insurance company games here tonight. His time was 2:48 2-5. Sid Leslie of the New York A. C. was second.

In the seventy yard handicap event, Loren Murchison, Newark A. C. star found the handicap too hard and finished second to H. A. Dotson of St. Bonaventure Lyceum, who had a handicap of 14 feet. Dotson's time was 7 1-5. Harold "Roots" Lever of Philadelphia, finished third.

NOT TO PERMIT BIG FIGHT AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Feb. 20.—Following the receipt of more than fifty letters and telegrams from wealthy summer residents protesting against the proposal to stage a bout between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, for the world's championship on Ocean drive, in Newport's most fashionable section, the board of aldermen tonight decided against permitting a license to be issued to the petitioners.

The Rhode Island department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, had applied for a license to hold the fight on July four.

SCHANG SIGNS HIS CONTRACT WITH YANKS

New York, Feb. 20.—"Wally" Schang, Yankee catcher, returned his signed contract to the New York Yankees today and will leave Friday to join the Yankee delegation boiling out at Hot Springs, Ark., preparatory to leaving for camp at New Orleans.

Charles Olson, pitcher, obtained by the Yankees from Des Moines, Ia., also has signed a contract. Pitcher Herb Pennock notified Secretary Ed Barrow that he would be in New York tomorrow to talk terms before signing.

GRAND JURY INVESTIGATION PROBABLE IN TICKET SCANDAL

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Resale of tickets for boxing bouts in New York city at prices far in advance of their face value will probably be made the subject of a New York grand jury investigation, it was understood here today, as a result of definite charges of ticket speculation in the Firpo-Dempsey fight made by Thomas O'Rourke, veteran boxing promoter, at a legislative hearing yesterday on proposed repeal of the Walker boxing law.

Papner Beats Marchant.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 20. — Mickey Papner of Philadelphia defeated Ted Marchant of England in a hard fought 15-round bout here tonight. Marchant received a severe lacing and only his gameness and generalship enabled him to weather the storm in the late rounds. Papner weighed 139; Marchant, 137 1-2.

Yale Swimmers Beat Brown.

New Haven, Feb. 20. — The Yale swimming team defeated Brown university in a meet here tonight, 47 to 15. Yale took first in every event except the 150-yard dash which was won by Captain Davy Jones of Brown, who beat out Bronson of Yale by 4 yard. Bronson won the 50-yard dash from Jones by inches.

Delaney and Tunney Matched.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20.—Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light heavyweight, has been matched to meet Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, in a ten round bout in St. Paul, March 17, his manager, Mike Collins, announced tonight.

Unknowns Win Again.

The Unknown Cagers defeated the "Y" team Wednesday afternoon by the score of 25 to 12. The Unknowns played a fast and snappy game, completely sweeping the opposing team off its feet.

St. Johns Boxers Win.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 20.—St. Johns Manlius defeated Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a dual boxing meet here tonight, winning all six bouts.

PROBASCO IS DEFEATED BY DOUGLAS HILL

Belleaire Heights, Fla., Feb. 20.—Scott L. Probasco of Chattanooga, medal winner in the annual Washington's birthday golf tournament, was defeated here today on the 21st hole by Douglas Hill of Cincinnati.

Hugh Halsell, senior champion who plays from Dallas, Texas, and Sleepy Hollow, New York, defeated D. N. Tallman of Minneapolis, 4 and 3.

Other results in the first flight were: Alfred Turner of Clearwater defeated C. B. Hollingsworth of Greensburg, Pa., 4 and 3; Dr. A. J. Jurey of Brookline defeated F. A. Steele, Jr., of Canoe Brook, 5 and 4; A. B. Jenks of Manchester defeated Dave Gudger of Biltmore Forest, 3 and 2; L. Beecer of Hillsboro defeated G. J. Patterson of St. Albans, 5 and 4; Dr. J. B. Croft of St. Albans defeated W. J. Nevins of Springfield, Mass., 4 and 3; C. H. Foster of Mayfield defeated E. M. Friedland of Century, 4 and 3.

EXCITING VOLLEYBALL GAMES AT "Y" GYM

Some exciting volleyball games were played in connection with the men's volleyball league in the Y. M. C.-A. gym last night, and as a result the Braves boosted themselves to first place, and the Giants to second place in the league standing. Owing to the failure of two teams to report for play the regular order of games was not followed, but afterward the volleyballers decided to follow the regular schedule, and only those games to be credited to teams.

COLLINS MAY MANAGE CHICAGO INSTEAD OF CHANCE

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Baseball circles heard reports today that Eddie Collins, star second baseman of the Chicago White Sox may become manager of the club if Frank Chance, newly appointed pilot, who is ill in California, is unable to assume charge.

Charles Comiskey, owner of the club, has given no indication, however, that Collins was under consideration for the managership. Rumors were current that Collins arrived here secretly yesterday, but investigation disclosed that he had not left his home in Philadelphia.

AMERICANS BREAK AHEAD IN JAMAICA TOURNEY

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 20. — Play was continued today before a large crowd of spectators in the tennis tournament between American and Jamaican players.

In the championship doubles Evelyn and Clark, Jamaica, won from Carl Fischer and Ralph L. Bagg, United States, 6-3, 7-9, 6-3; Manired Goldman and Mr. Craigin, United States, won from Lake and Brandon, Jamaica, 3-6, 8-6, 6-4.

In the championship singles Vincent Richards defeated Scotter, Jamaica, 6-0, 6-0, and Harold Throckmorton, United States, won from Harris, Jamaica, 6-3, 6-1.

ILLNESS FORCES GLEASON TO QUIT BASEBALL

Cleveland, Feb. 20.—Illness forced "Kid" Gleason to resign as manager of the Chicago White Sox and has driven him from baseball, temporarily at least, it was revealed here tonight in a special despatch to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, from its staff correspondent at Hot Springs, Ark.

The despatch quotes "Red" Faber, veteran White Sox pitcher and probably explains why many offers made to Gleason at the winter baseball meeting in Chicago were not accepted.

Faber branded as untrue stories that Gleason and President Comiskey of the Sox had had a disagreement, saying that Comiskey refused at first to accept Gleason's resignation.

As Gleason had given no hint during the season that he would quit, the story says, the news struck the Chicago players like a thunderbolt. The first intimation they had was after the last game between the Sox and the Cubs in the city series, when the players presented their manager with a traveling bag and toilet case.

"Boys," said Gleason, "it's fine of you to do this for me and it seems funny that you should give me a traveling bag. It is something I needed, but its something I'll probably never use. I am with you now the last time as your manager."

Then for the first time it was learned that Gleason had been sick most of the summer and had gone along on his nerve.

"Maybe some day I'll be able to get back in harness but I don't think it will be next year," he concluded.

Myers Traded to Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 20.—Elmer Myers, Salt Lake pitcher, former Boston and Philadelphia American moundsman, has been traded to the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

President M. H. Sexton of the National Association is to make a trip around the Pacific Coast League and learn for himself just how affairs are being conducted. The visit is at the invitation of Harry Williams, president of the league, who expects to prove to Sexton that there is no syndicate baseball and no discrimination among clubs of the league, as has been charged.

The Houston Club of the Texas League has transferred to its sister club, Fort Smith of the Western Association, Danny Gross, shortstop. Last year Gross played with Decatur in the Three-I League under option from Houston and looked every inch a Class B ball player and better to come, but the necessities of Fort Smith require the transfer of the young man to Class C.

Claude Cooper, outfielder of the Oakland Club, is pulling his annual retirement stuff. Last spring he decided to quit baseball, so the Oakland Club decided to do without his services, but soon he came hustling in, very eagerly making it known that he had changed his mind. Cooper's annual holdout is one of the best jokes the sports writers of the Coast League have to write about.

President Joe O'Brien of the Toledo Club announces that he has arranged to train the Mudhens at Gainesville, Ga. The new head of the Toledo Club also makes several other announcements of interest, including some data on his associates in the ownership of the club and one that he will select some other nickname than "Mudcat" for the team. O'Brien means a new deal all around for Toledo fans, he says.

Changes made in the playing field of the Yankee Stadium, New York, have improved the view of spectators along the first and third base lines, removed dark shadows in autumn, lengthened both foul lines and eliminated a pocket where the grand stand and bleachers join in right field. The diamond has been moved outward ten feet, allowing more room for the catcher, first and third baseman.

Instead of emblems awarded the "most valuable" players in the American League hereafter they will be presented diplomas. That was a decision reached by the league at its recent meeting in Boston. The suggestion came from Babe Ruth, who won the honors for 1923. Ruth said he already had more medals than he knew what to do with, so he suggested a "certificate of merit" that he could hang on the parlor wall. Ruth will get a diploma for 1923 and George Sisler one for 1922.

Ray Winder and Charles (Gabby) Street have made up and Gabby will accompany Winder to Muskogee as manager of the team there in the Western Association. Street, in spite of certain "faults" of which Winder seriously did not approve, made a great record in the Western Association as handler of the Joplin team, and all Winder asked of him, in their negotiations, was that he behave sufficiently to land Muskogee as high as he had put Joplin. Street went Winder one better and promised to behave like a preacher ought to behave.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Feb. 20.—Stock prices turned reactionary after an early period of strength in today's market on the announcement that the house of representatives had adopted an amendment to the revenue bill maxing stock dividend profits subject to regular income tax rates. Practically all important stocks, however, held well above yesterday's low prices.

Crippled wire service through the west and south resulted in a reduced volume of business, sales falling below the million share mark for the first time in several days.

U. S. Steel, Baldwin and some of the other speculative favorites were heavily sold by bear traders at the opening on the theory that the substitution of the Garner tax-reduction plan for the Mellon program by the house would bring about a heavy liquidation of long stocks. This failed to develop, however, and the market soon headed upward in response to active buying of the oil shares. Several commission houses pointed out that any reduction in taxes was a bullish argument and that the 44 per cent. surtax rate in the Garner bill might possibly be reduced before the revenue bill becomes law.

Trade news was rather mixed in character. Weekly steel trade reviews were optimistic, calling attention to heavy railroad buying and the increase in current shipments above those of a month ago. Steel shares failed to make any appreciable response to this news, Republic Steel showing a net loss of 1 1-8 at 55 and the other shares in that group declining fractionally. U. S. Steel Common closed at 102 3-4, off 3-8. Announcement of the increase in the annual dividend on Gulf States Steel from 4 to 5 per cent. was not made until after the market closed. Early strength of iron products and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was based on speculative expectations of increased business likely to result from heavy municipal purchases.

National Enameling broke to 29 1-4 following the announcement of the passing of the dividend but rallied later to 31, where it was off 1 point on the day. Corn Products, which recently recorded a spirited advance, broke nearly 5 points on profit taking.

With the exception of Pacific Oil, which closed more than 2 points higher at 25, the oil shares failed to hold their early gains. The Pan-American issues, Mariand, Phillips and Houston all sold a point or more above yesterday's final figures but the gains were either wiped out or reduced to fractions.

Market in Street Railway issues broke to 7 1-2 points on unconfirmed reports that the $6 rate on the prior preferred was likely to be omitted.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent. but dropped to 4 shortly before noon, closing at that figure. The time money market was quiet, with rates unchanged at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent. Out-of-town banks are the principal buyers of Commercial Paper, the ruling rate for prime names continuing at 5 3-4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary in the early dealings but rallied moderately in the late afternoon. Demand Sterling rose from $4.29 1-2 to $4.30 1-4 and French francs from 4.14 1-2 cents to 4.15.

BOND MARKET

New York, Feb. 20.—Disappointment over the turn in tax legislation was reflected in today's bond market regarding activity and depressing the prices of most issues with the exception of Liberty bonds. Prospect of a higher surtax than the Mellon bill provided for stimulated buying of the U. S. government issues which made a brisk recovery after their recent declines.

Losses in such standard investment issues as Atchison General fours and Pennsylvania railroad general fives were attributed to the general uneasiness over the final outcome of the tax measures, speculative rails, on the other hand, held firm although trading was dull throughout the session.

Widening demand for the new Japanese 6 1-2s sent the price up to 92 3-4 after buying orders for this issue were the heaviest since the bonds were listed on the stock exchange. The dealings in them in them were the feature of the foreign list were mixed price movements occurred in the Mexican issues, the fives advancing a point and the fours yielding almost two.

Private sale was made today of $10,000,000 Burlington railroad first and refunding fives, due in 1971 at 98 to yield 10 per cent. Public offering is expected later of the remainder of the $20,000,000 issue which has been authorized.

CURB MARKET

New York, Feb. 20.—Prices held relatively firm in today's curb market, trading in which was restricted because of serious interruptions to wire service.

Oils were in good demand in the early dealings but lost most or all of their gains in the late wave of selling. Prairie Oil and Gas closed one point lower at 320 after selling as dropped from 154 to 151 and Borne & Scrymser from 179 to 175, although both showed net gains of 2 points on the day. Net gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Imperial Oil of Canada, Gulf of Pennsylvania, Ohio Oil and Standard Oil of Ohio. Standard Oil of Indiana, Mutual, and Vacuum, the three most active issues, closed fractionally higher.

Centrifugal Cast Iron Pipe was the outstanding strong spot of the industrial group, closing more than a point higher at 29 1-8. Fractional improvement was recorded by Kresge, Jordan Motor Car, Durant Motors and Dubilier Radio. Ward Baking issues were active on the announcement of the purchase of the Ward Baking company by the Ward Baking corporation, the Class B stock touching 20 1-4 and then falling to 18 7-8 on profit-taking.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Increased selling both on the part of holders and from bear speculators weakened the wheat market today despite a brisk transient upturn in the price of corn. Liberal supplies of wheat in sight together with a dearth of buying had a bearish effect. At the finish, wheat was unsettled, 1-8c to 5-8c net lower, May 110 1-8 to 110 1-8 a 1-4 and July 110 1-8, with corn at 3-8c to 3-4 decline, and oats unchanged to 1-8c off. Provisions closed unchanged to 15 c down.

An unusual circumstance was witnessed at the opening in the wheat pit. May delivery, which represented wheat grown in 1923, was selling at exactly the same price as July, which stands for the first supplies from the crop to be harvested in 1924. The identity of quotations was taken as showing notable indifference regarding the present demand situation. As a consequence, selling pressure enlarged, especially on the May delivery. The fact that some houses were simultaneously sellers of May and buyers of July sent May soon to a discount under July and Sept. as well, and this relation continued for the remainder of the day.

Word that because of the British dock strike steamship companies were refusing to take grain cargoes to England had some depressing influence in the wheat market. On the other hand, talk about likelihood that the March report about domestic farm reserves of wheat would make a bullish exhibit failed to act as a stimulus to buyers.

Profit taking sales in the corn market more than wiped out price gains which at first had taken place owing to smallness of receipts and from scantiness of the Chicago stock of corn. Oats market flattened out with corn.

Provisions followed the course of hog values.

STATE HUMANE SOCIETY RE-ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The board of directors of the Connecticut Humane society at a meeting held at headquarters in Hartford this week, re-elected Hon. Samuel O. Prentice, president; Francis R. Cooley, treasurer; Mrs. W. B. Williams, secretary; Atwood Collins and Charles Hopkins Clark, vice presidents; Shipman and Goodwin, general counsel; United States Security Trust company, assistant treasurer, and H. Clay Preston, general manager. Wilbur F. Gordy, Miss Gertrude O. Lewis and Mrs. W. B. Williams were appointed the committee on education and Charles Hopkins Clark, Wilbur F. Gordy and Francis Parsons the committee on award of medals.

Henry Guichaud, formerly connected with the Erie County S. P. C. A. in Buffalo, was appointed a special officer and assigned to the Bridgeport district, and Almeron S. Churchill of Newington has been appointed a special officer and assigned to the headquarters' staff. F. H. Wyant of Norwich has been placed in charge of the Norwich-New London district with headquarters in Norwich.

In the animal department the society received from outside sources eighty-three complaints concerning ill treatment of animals and successfully conducted four prosecutions; for driving lame horses on two occasions, improperly feeding and watering farm stock and leaving a horse stand unblanketed. Fifteen unfit horses were taken from work and veterinary care was provided for 17 and blankets for seven, also food, shelter of bedding for 87 animals. Agents destroyed nineteen sick or injured animals and rendered aid to 12 injured animals.

DR. CHARLES H. LEVERMORE TALKS ABOUT HIS PEACE PLAN

Dr. Charles H. Levermore of Brooklyn, N. Y., a native of Mansfield, Conn., author of the peace plan that won the Bok prize of $50,000, told the Foreign Policy Association Sunday that his aim had been the construction of "a sort of temporary constitution containing only a statement of principles and an outline of procedure."

"The agreements to be reached," he said, "must come after co-operation is achieved. I don't believe in loading down a constitution with legislation."

Asserting that hundreds of letters of criticism had kept him from being too fond of his own plan, Dr. Levermore said he did not expect it would please either the "bitterenders" or the "pro-leaguers."

"I felt," he continued, "that a practical plan must be one that would fall in with the best thought of the middle sections of the American people in both parties. It must not be a partisan plan, but one based on foundations we have now and with the door open to those ideals which we all cherish."

Piety and Beauty.

"Piety is indifferent whether she enters at the eye or at the ear. There is none of the senses at which she does not knock one day or other. The Puritans forgot this, and thrust Beauty out of the meetinghouse and slammed the door in her face."—James Russell Lowell.

Notre Dame, the famous cathedral of Paris, is doing away with its woman bell-ringer, and substituting electricity. The cathedral's official bell-ringers for generations have been women of one family.

KEEFE PROPERTY, NEW LONDON, SOLD TO BOSTON COMPANY, FOR $25,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Feb. 20.—The double funeral of Mrs. Nellie N. Beckwith, wife of Howard S. Peckham of 311 Howard street, whose death occurred in child-birth at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, together with that of the infant daughter, Monday, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons. The bearers were Edward Peckham, William Bloomfield, P. Miller and Fred Peckham. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Jack Tobin, 4 Bulkeley place, to be suspended. Tobin, who was employed as bookkeeper by the Frisbie company, operated an automobile belonging to his employers, through a barricade fence on Pequot avenue, destroying the fence and damaging the automobile. He was penalized the following day in the police court by receiving a fine of $25 of the charge of reckless driving.

A commercial automobile, owned and operated by Max Meyer of 147 North Bank street, was struck on Main street this forenoon by a Connecticut company trolley car, the automobile being damaged.

The Economy store was entered by a thief last night and from the character of the break it is believed that the work is that of a boy, for the only plunder obtained was 27 cents in pennies, candy, chewing gum and apples. The break was discovered when the store was opened this morning and a report was made to the police.

Patrolman William Graham found that the thief gained entrance by smashing a light of glass in a rear door, permitting the unlocking of the door.

The fire department had another needless run, early this morning, for a false alarm, rung in from Box 12, corner of Harrison and Tenth streets, the nearest box where false alarms have been pulled in at intervals for the past few weeks. The alarm was sent in shortly after 3 o'clock and with the arrival of the department at the location of the box no signs of a blaze were found and it then developed that vandals had sent in the alarm. As the box has been repeatedly pulled by the mischief makers it is naturally supposed that the alarms are rung in by the same persons. Sergeant Frank Howard made an investigation which did not result in a clue being obtained whereby an arrest was possible. The officer ascertained that two men, evidently foreigners, were observed running through Tenth street shortly after the alarm was sounded, but it is the opinion of the authorities that boys residing in the vicinity where the box is located did the trick.

Master Sol Shalett of Huntington street, Mrs. Joseph Juliette and infant daughter of Goshen street and George Morgan, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Pequot, patients at Lawrence hospital were discharged today.

Isaac and Sarah Frottas have sold a house and lot on Truman street to Edith Reed.

The automobile owned and operated by Nickanor Prestovoit of 30 Woodbridge street and a machine owned by Ilie Carell Lemsky and driven by William H. Payne, were in collision on Bank street, corner of Tilley street, this afternoon. Both cars were somewhat damaged.

During the height of the storm this morning and when the gale assumed hurricane proportions, the wires of the Are alarm system on some of the poles became dislodged, causing the wires to become short circuited and causing frequent blasts of the alarm. Chief Charles Rose and electricians were engaged throughout the morning locating the dislodged wires and perfecting repairs.

W. S. Carr, of 231 Colman street, reported to the police this forenoon that about 1.20 o'clock this morning he was aroused from his slumber by a large sedan automobile containing a man and woman driving to a point in front of his home. The occupants engaged in a quarrel for the loud talking of the couple could easily be heard, but the nature of the altercation could not be determined by Carr. After the talking had continued some time Carr decided to investigate and started to dress. Before he had donned his clothing the woman let forth several screams and before Carr, who hastened for the house entrance, succeeded in reaching the street, the operator had started the car and the machine disappeared through West High street. The police maintained a watch for the car.

The deed transferring the property of Mrs. Bridget A. Keefe, corner of Bank and Tilley street, which has been negotiated for since early last month by the Atlantic Refining company of Boston, was received for record at the office of the city clerk today. The price paid was $35,000. With the transfer of the property Mrs. Keefe also sells to the city for $1,000 two small parcels of land, one on Bank street and the other on Tilley street. The city's acquisition of the land is for the purpose of widening of Tilley street and that dangerous corner, if such a course is decided upon or for highway purposes in the event that it is decided to continue Green street through to Bank street, in order to relieve traffic conditions on Bank street.

The purchasers of the property will have an expensive gasoline filling station erected upon the site without delay. Work will be started within a few days in order that it may be rushed to completion and ready for service in the early spring.

Guiseppe Alfeiro, 26 Grand street, was haled to the police court today to answer for a breach of the peace which consisted, according to the story Mrs. Alfeiro told Judge Prince, in beating her and threatening to do her bodily harm. She was in court with her four children. Mrs. Alfeiro declared that her husband choked her and that he told her if she complained to the police he would kill her, the woman pointing to the palm of her hand to show the sign her husband gave to her. She declared that he was not working and that when he got about in the morning he disappeared and was not seen again until late at night. He used her auto, she said, without any right to do so and was disposed to take to himself the right to use it whether she protested or consented.

Mrs. Alfeiro brought to the court a .38 calibre army revolver, which she declared her husband had in his possession, with a rancy, a five-inch bladed knife and a knife such as is used for cutting linoleum. She said she was afraid of her husband because he had threatened her. Alfeiro entered a general denial of the woman's story and accounted for all the weapons he had. He also declared that at times his wife was not responsible for what she said, and that now she was not telling the truth because she desired to get rid of him. He expressed affection for his children and said he desired to support and take care of them. They seemed much attached to the father. With the testimony before the court coming from the interested parties and being of a conflicting nature the court was puzzled as to what to do in the matter. Finally the case was continued till the third of May and Probation Officer Mansfield was assigned to the task of bringing better relations between the pair. Both husband and wife have court records.

One of the worst automobile collisions of the day occurred just after 6 o'clock this evening when a Reo roadster was sent to the repair shop with a broken right hind wheel. The roadster came out of Truman street just as a White truck laden with furniture and bound from Boston to Washington was hurrying down Bank street on the way over Town Hill. The vehicles came together with a crash and the Reo was driven against the curbing of Garibaldi park. The Reo was owned and driven by George E. Curtain of Broad street and the truck by Max A. Carr of 53 Copeland street, Boston. It is owned by the Warner Company. The Reo was towed to a garage and the truck after reporting the damage continued on toward Washington.

Boys broke a window in the bakery at 117 North Bank street this evening and sent the police chasing them.

The street crossings were in wretched condition today because of the rain and the snow. Tonight a gang of street department laborers is at work clearing them in anticipation of a freezeup. The police are scolded because they do not secure the clearing of the sidewalks of snow, but they are powerless except insofar as they notify the owners or tenants of property. There are walks on the principal streets of the city that have not felt the touch of a shovel today and in spite of the efforts of the police officers the walks remain uncleared of snow tonight. There is an ordinance that provides that once the owners have been notified, it is the duty of the city authorities to clear the walks and llen the property to pay the expense. But this ordinance is not enforced and the dangerous and ice-covered walks are a consequence.

Owners of the stores burned out on Bank street Monday night are anxiously awaiting the adjustment of the insurance to reestablish themselves in business. R. H. Seibler, for more than a generation a tobacconist in this city, was one of the losers by the fire and for the first time is out of business.

W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R., and the Woman's Auxiliary declare that the exercises they had at the Lincoln birthday observance Tuesday evening were the most enjoyable and instructive they have ever conducted. The address by George W. Sisson was of special merit.

One of the first undertakings of the sidewalk department in the spring should be the relaying of walks on the east side of Bank street between Howard and Shaw streets, where at present the surface is in need of repairs. Pedestrians are continually grumbling about the condition of the walk. When the new sidewalks were laid for some reason, said to have been political, the Bank street owners of property were not compelled to lay walks and as a result the tar has worn off leaving gravel and larger stones to be walked over. As there is said to be no politics in the present city government the improvement should be undertaken at the first chance.

This city escaped damage of any consequence from the storm and high wind of Tuesday night and today. At the beach there was an unusually high tide, but no damage of a serious nature was occasioned.

Thursday will bring the last opportunity for property owners who have had their taxes boosted by the assessor to appear and protest. Property owners, many of them, declare that their assessments raised last year by men who were "experts" but those who are not experts have raised the assessment again this year.

A gang of men with the fire department hose might be put at work Thursday to clear the snow and sposh from State street pavement. The slush that covers the street surface could be removed in a few hours by the free use of water. There is an abundance of that so that only time and the use of the fire hose is needed.

It is estimated that the police station is the source of providing exact time to telephone callers more than a hundred times every day. This noon there were twenty-five calls in the period of twenty minutes.

The funeral of Richard E., the three weeks old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon J. Beebe of 29 Brooks street, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents. The committal was in Niantic cemetery, and was conducted by Rev. Charles M. Eldredge.

Miss Agnes Rogers, is spending a few days in New York, being the guest of her aunt, Miss Agnes C. Brennan, formerly of New London.

Isaac Bromley has returned to his apartment at the Hotel Mohican after having spent several days in New York.

Miss Anna Doherty of Boston is being entertained by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Doherty.

Henry C. Chappell is in New York on a business errand.

Police Officer David Nagle did a mighty fortunate piece of work this evening when he tried the main entrance of Parry & Stone's jewelry store, for he found it unlocked and insecure. The door has been ajar for 3 1-2 hours for it was not in this condition till 5.30.

The door has a spring lock on it, but had not been closed when the employes left at 6 o'clock. The watchman goes through the store several times each night, but he does not begin his rounds till 10 o'clock.

REPARATION COMMITTEES TO REPORT EARLY IN MARCH

Paris, Feb. 20—(By the A. P.)—The committees of experts on the German reparations problem now hope to be able to present their report during the first week in March. Premier Poincare has indirectly communicated to the experts the desire of the government for as early a decision as possible and they will do all they can to satisfy him.

The accountants who have been figuring on the total amount of German capital placed abroad have presented their unanimous report to the committee, headed by Reginald McKenna. This committee has discussed these findings and hopes to put its onw decisions on the paper before the end of the week. The sub-committee on the proposed gold bank has completed the preparation of its statutes for the consideration of the full committee. Thus, this question is practically disposed of as the sub-committee's report probably will be accepted with little if any change.

The sub-committee on the budget also has got together the figures applying to the German budget for 1924 and 1925. This work presents a formidable document. Its translation will require much time, but it will be discussed orally, while the translators are engaged in putting into the required languages.

After the full committee has heard a summary of this report the sub-committee will go ahead with the preparation of a similar document on the German budget for subsequent years. This will put the reparation commission in possession of information enabling it to judge just what ought to be the German revenue from taxation to meet its own requirements and to pay reparations.

The experts on monopolies will be heard tomorrow and consideration of this question by the full committee will follow the questions of the bank and the budget.

It appears virtually certain that the experts will exclude from their report any reference to the total amount Germany can ultimately pay on reparations. They will confine themselves to a plan for stabilizing the currency through a new bank of issue, a study of the budgets for the number of years which their report will cover, the guarantees Germany can furnish for payments such as mortgages on the state railroads, and farming of the monopolies, and as nearly as they can get at it the amount of capital that Germans now have abroad. The conclusions reached on these uestions will be the basist of a plan for the general settlement which they will propose to the reparations commissions.

An effort will be made to bring President Coolidge and President Obregon of Mexico togeth er next May at Albuquerque, N. M., as guests of the annual convention there of the U. S. Good Roads association and the Bankhead National Highway association.

LITTLE HOPE FOR THE RECOVERY OF SEN. GREENE

Washington, Feb. 20.—Slight hope was held out tonight for the recovery of Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont. After he showed a slight improvement early today, attending surgeons, who have performed two operations on the senator since he was struck down by a bullet fired during a battle between revenue agents and suspected bootleggers last Friday night, said his condition had taken a critical turn during the day. He was said to be growing gradually weaker.

Senator Dale, his colleague in the senate from Vermont, said in a statement late today that, "most critical symptoms are developing in Senator Greene's condition and the outcome is without much hope."

Mr. Lester B. Greene, the aged mother of the senator, was expected to arrive tonight from Florida, whence she had been summoned by news of the tragedy. Captain Richard L. Greene, a son of the senator, is traveling across the continent to the sick bed of his father.

While medical skill strove to stave off death, investigation into various phases of the shooting of Senator Greene went forward today. United States District Attorney Peyton Gordon continued his investigation into the case and summoned additional eye-witnesses of the shooting for examination. Mr. Gordon also had before him the report of Inspector C. L. Grant, chief of detectives, covering the result of police efforts to fix responsibility for the shooting.

Special intelligence agents of the bureau of internal revenue also are at work on the case.

At a meeting of the house district committee today, Representative Gibson, republican, Vermont, brought up the question of the wounding of Senator Greene and phases bearing on the use of firearms in the district were discussed. Assistant corporation counsel of the district explained existing laws and regulations, and at the suggestion of Mr. Gibson action was deferred until the next meeeting of the committee.

A pending resolution presented by the Vermont representative calls for appointment of a sub-committee, to obtain from District of Columbia and prohibition unit officials the identity of police and agents operating in the vicinity of the shooting and data as to the qualifications for prohibition agents and their instructions on the use of firearms.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Secretary Hughes made further suggestions to house and senate committees regarding pending immigration legislation.

President Coolidge withdrew the nomination of George B. Christian, Jr., to be a member of the federal trade commission.

Chairman Johnson of the house immigration committee described a Roumanian immigration protest on the floor of the house as "imprudent."

Harry Payne Whitney was questioned by the senate oil committee regarding possible stock transactions by public officials.

Senator Elkins, republican, West Virginia, said he had purchased stock in the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company and was willing to tell the oil committee about it.

President Coolidge was advised by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, that republican senate sentiment was growing in favor of Attorney-General Daugherty's retirement. Mr. Daugherty in a statement publicly defied his critics.

House organization republicans were again routed by a democratic-republican insurgent coalition with the result that amendments to the tax bill dealing with stock dividends and earned incomes were adopted.

As Knights of Pythias lodges throughout the United States and Canada were beginning a week's celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the order, Major Adolph Chalm, 80 years old, and credited with being the eldest living knight, died in Chicago at his home.

PAID 5,000 PESOS AS RANSOM FROM MEXICAN BANDITS

Torreon, Mex., Feb. 20—E. D. Bassett, American mining engineer in charge of the Cobre mines at Velardena, Durango, captured recently by bandit followers of Hippolita Villa, has paid five thousand pesos ransom and been released, it was learned here today. Mexican federal authorities have warned Raymond Teal, another American to keep away from his Durango ranch, as the bandits are said to be looking for him in order to obtain ransom.

Many of the first wall papers were brought in England by the merchants of East Indies.

Chappell vs. Frank C. Chappell, passed; Edwin Fisher vs. Fisher dismissed and Annie Fisher vs. Edwin Fisher, granted; Carl D. Goss vs. Julia C. Goss, granted; Mary J. Smith vs. James Smith, granted; King vs. King, granted.

An adjourned session of the Westerly probate court was held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in the office of the Westerly town clerk, before Probate Judge Edward M. Burke. The estate of George Rae was taken up and Samuel H. Davis, one of the witnesses to the will being present the will was received, approved and recorded. Mrs. Jemima Rae Davey was given a life interest in the residential property of the deceased. James Rae was confirmed as executor.

The regular weekly drill of Battery E, 24ard Field Artillery, took place at the state armory on Dixon street Tuesday evening. The new gilt buttons have now been issued this outfit and the men are to have them on their uniforms by the next drill night, Tuesday next. A special night is planned for Tuesday next when a number of musicians are to play. An elimination drill is planned with a prize of five dollars in gold for the winner. It is expected at this time to have the members of the company 100 per cent. in attendance. There will be no basketball game in the armory next Saturday night for the armory has been taken for three days by the members of Merrill post, American legion, and a second annual automobile show will be held in the drill shed. The post committee of arrangements consists of John W. Nield, Jr., Harold S. Barber and Lewis R. Greene. The legion colors, blue and gold, characterize the decorations, which have been in charge of G. Benjamin Spargo.

In common with other lodges of the Knights of Pythias, Bowen lodge, No. 30, K. of P., of Westerly, is to observe the 60th anniversary of the organization of the Pythian knights this (Thursday) evening at their hall in the Welch block on Broad street. Many visiting Knights are expected from the surrounding towns and an elaborate program has been arranged.

A Business Story

Rich in meaning to every motor car buyer

How Studebaker reached the heights

THE story of Studebaker has been told by many men in many ways. Now let us tell it to you.

Studebaker growth has in late years been Motordom's sensation. Sales have mounted until last year 145,000 buyers of quality cars selected Studebakers. They paid over $200,000,000 for them.

All must realize that a new situation has arisen in high-grade cars. You who are interested should now analyse the reasons.

72-year traditions

The Studebaker principles have become traditions in their 72 years of existence. They have never wavered. In all changing conditions they have brought new luster to that name.

Men come and go, but a name like this becomes a heritage to foster and enhance. That's what we've done — we who have that name in keeping for a time.

* * * *

Studebaker has always been a leader. For two generations it led in horse-drawn vehicles, now products of the past.

Most of you remember Studebaker carriages — queens of their time. They were used by multitudes of people who loved quality and style.

When motor cars appeared them, Studebaker became the leader in that field. Any other plan would have been unthinkable.

The only way to the top

A concern of this age has one fast ingrafted in its fiber. The only way to leadership is through superservice.

The leader must excel in all you seek — in quality, in beauty and in value. There is no other way to the top. Every stretch of the road is strewn with wrecks of those who tried another.

What others say — not what you say — determines your place in the long run. In every field of endeavor one must accept that fact.

We had the money, the plants, the prestige. We had the incentive of Studebaker traditions. In time we secured the men.

We told those men to build for us the utmost in fine motor cars, regardless of all costs. We pledged them our good faith and our resources.

The cost was $50,000,000

We built new factories — modern plants. We fitted them with new equipment — 12,500 up-to-date machines. Of the $50,000,000 in our plants and equipment, $12,000,000 has been invested in the past five years. So it represents the last word in efficient manufacture.

We established a Department of Methods and Standards, to fix for every Studebaker detail the maximum of quality.

We created a Bureau of Research and Experiment, employing 125 skilled men. They make 500,000 tests per year to maintain our supremacy.

They fixed countless standards, including 35 separate formulas for steels. Then on the most important steels we offered makers a bonus of 15% to conform to those standards exactly.

We invested $8,000,000 in a drop forge plant to make all our own drop forgings. $10,000,000 in body plants, to build all bodies to our standards.

We employed 1,200 skilled inspectors to see that all standards were fulfilled. There are 30,000 inspections on Studebaker cars during manufacture, before they go out from the factory.

That's the whole story

That's about the whole story. We simply followed the never-changing Studebaker principles. We gave to our buyers the utmost — value they could not match. Then they turned by tens of thousands to Studebaker cars.

Over 750,000 of these cars have gone out. Their performance has developed a demand for 150,000 per year.

Every increase in sales brought a lowered cost, which we promptly gave our buyers. Today these fine cars are offering values which no rivals can approach. They have made us the world's largest builders of quality cars.

We deserve a hearing

Now we demand a hearing. All who contemplate an $1,000 or over should inspect the Studebaker offers. That is fairness to yourself and us. Check one by one the advantages we offer. You'll find them by the score.

Remember that 140,000 users did that last year, chose a Studebaker car. There are nine chances in ten that you'll do it.

Consider our record, our accomplishments, our policies and principles. Consider that we have $50,000,000 at stake on satisfying men like you. Don't buy a car in this high-grade class without seeing what we give.

Find Out Why

People paid over $200,000,000 last year for Studebaker cars.

The result is now a demand for 150,000 per year.

Over $50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment to build the finest of fine cars.

One of these cars, built in 1918, has run 475,000 miles. That means 80 years of ordinary service. In December this car made the trip from coast to coast.

"THE HUMMING BIRD"

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Spending the Night with the Bear

"In a neat brown house in a shady wood
Lives a bear who sells honey and cheese.
A red soldier coat with brass buttons he wears.

But no pantaloons covers his knees."
sang the pretty yellow bird as Little Jack Rabbit hopped out of Giant Merry Laugh's house.

"Hello, little bunny," cried a deep voice as the bunny boy hopped along, "Where are you going this fine day?"

"I'm hunting for a fortune," replied the little rabbit, with a grin.

"There are no fortunes in this forest," replied the big bear. "No siree."

"Dear me! That's too bad. I was in hopes of finding at least one," sighed the bunny boy.

"Come in and sit down," said the big bear kindly. "My cuckoo will soon sing his noon-day song."

Sure enough. No sooner had the little rabbit stepped inside the neat

"Pardon me, your tiny majesty," whispered the bunny boy.

little house than out popped the cuckoo and commenced to sing:

"I cuckoo the hours from the sun
In the early morning up to 1;
And from 1 to 6 in the afternoon

I sing all over this same sweet tune
And when the shadows begin to creep
And everybody is sound asleep
The fairies come from the woody glen
And hark to my song all over again."

"Oh, ho," thought the little rabbit. "If this kind bear asks me to spend the night, maybe I shall see the fairies."

And so it happened. The big Bear invited him to stay until the next day, and when, in the middle of the night, the tiny clock bird came out of his house and cuckooed three times and then nine times more, Little Jack Rabbit awoke with a start. There on the window-sill stood a pretty fairy dressed in a silvery white gown, a tiny gold crown on her head and a pair of pink satin slippers on her small feet.

"Pardon me, your tiny majesty," whispered the bunny boy, politely fearing to wake up the kind Bear. "Where may I find a fortune?"

"I know not," answered the fairy softly.

"But a mile from here, in a farmer's house,
Lives a very wealthy gray mouse.
He wears a cap of squirrel fur,
And hides himself with the pussy cats purr."

Maybe he can tell you.

"Please show me the way to the farmer's house," begged the bunny boy, tiptoeing over to the open window.

"Follow me," answered the little fairy and away she flew on her gauzy wings, into the next story.

AUTo MARKED NUMBERS ARE TO BE NARROWER

The numbers on the automobile marker plates for 1925 will be narrower, although of the same height and style, as those in use in Connecticut up to and including this year. The rapidity with which automobiles are increasing in this state has caused the motor vehicle department to arrange a size of number that will permit an unlimited increase in registration without increasing the size of the plate, and the numbers for next year as announced by Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel, will be sufficiently narrower than those used thus far to increase the registrations to six figures without increasing the size of the present five figure plates.

This does not mean that the markers next year will be less legible than they have been. The block style of number used by Connecticut is the only one that has passed a perfect visibility test conducted by the United States bureau of standards. In 1923 all states submitted markers to the bureau for tests. Out of a possible score of 48 points on various phases of visibility the block style on the Connecticut plate was the only one to make a perfect score.

This style is to be retained. The figures will be of the same height, four inches, but will be narrower and more compressed. The 1924 markers have figure blocks two inches wide. Next year these blocks will be one and three-quarters inches wide. The lines that trace the figures will be about one-half an inch wide instead of five-eighths as at present. The space thus saved will allow the department to issue marker plates bearing six numbers, but no larger than those now in use bearing five numbers.

The plates will again be made at the state reformatory in Cheshire, as has been done satisfactory for the past several years. Superintendant Erskine announced recently that the colors for 1925 will be dark blue and white.

A new feature of the work is that a firm of color experts is now collecting, with the co-operation of the motor vehicle department, the combinations for Connecticut license plates. Commissioner Stoeckel said he has definitely decided to engage experts from the Taylor System of Color Harmony, New York, as consultants in the selections to these experts and approved by them.

In the past every Connecticut plate has been put through visibility tests before it is adopted and every year the combinations have successfully passed these tests. Commissioner Stoeckel's decision to engage color experts is to provide a wider range of color combinations than a layman is able to select. The New York company has made a business of combining all possible colors and shades with a view to obtain the greatest possible visibility and the widest range of combinations. Its work has extended to selections of enamel and methods of baking.

The letter series put in use with the 1924 markers will be retained next year, as it has proven entirely satisfactory in actual use, the commissioner said, and, by using all available letters, will provide for an increase of approximately 25,000 more numbers than are in use now.

CAMP DATES ANNOUNCED FOR NEW ENGLAND MEN

Dates for the camps of the various military activities of the First Corps Area (New England States) have recently been announced.

The R. O. T. C. camp will be held at Camp Devens from July 16 to July 25. This includes the unit from Yale. The C. M. T. C. will as usual be held at Camp Devens during the whole of August.

The National Guard camps are announced as follows: 169d Field Artillery, July 26 to August 9, at Camp Devens. 169th and 170th Infantry, July 5 to 20, at Niantic. 118th Medical Regiment, July 5 to 20, at Niantic.

The Organized Reserve camps for Reserve officers are announced as follows:

76th, 94th and 97th Divisions and Corps Troops, July 19 to August 2, at Camp Devens (less artillery).

Reserve Artillery, August 4 to 18, at Camp Devens.

Coast Artillery Reserve officers, August 1 to 15 and 15 to 30 (two camps).

Air Service Reserve officers; date undetermined, at Mitchell Field.

Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, has sought the assistance of the federal trade commision at Washington, in his fight for lower priced gasoline.

Secured Relief Through Foley's Pills

John R. Gordon, Danville, Ill., writes: "I have suffered with kidney trouble five years; could not sleep at night and was always tired. I was not strong and hard work made my back ache. I got some FOLEY PILLS and after a few treatments I felt better and could work with more ease, became stronger and could sleep better." FOLEY PILLS are a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, make them more active. Get a bottle today. The Lee & Osgood Co.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous, and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and it is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. If never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the Bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

EAST THOMPSON

Mrs. Jane Sheldon, widow of Oscar Robinson, died at her home Friday, Feb. 15. She had been in her usual health until taken suddenly with an attack of acute indigestion, and died in 24 hours.

Mrs. Robinson, who was born here Nov. 26, 1843, the daughter of Asa and Abigail Sheldon, was the last of 12 children and had lived in the house where she died over sixty years.

In 1861 she married Oscar Robinson who died in 1910. Had he lived one year longer they would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. She was converted when quite young and united with the Methodist Episcopal church in East Thompson where she was a devout and faithful worker. She was Sunday school superintendent for several years. She taught a Sunday school class of young ladies for several years along with her other work.

She was a member of Quinnatisset grange, having held nearly every office and at one time was State Floris. Twenty-five years ago she organized the Thompson Woman's Christian Temperance Union with seven charter members. She was elected its first president and held that office for 15 years. On account of ill health she declined to serve in that office any longer, but was honorary president until her death. She was very enthusiastic in the temperance cause, always displayed the white ribbon and urged other members to do the same.

Much credit is due her for the active union here in the town of Thompson.

She was known in her home and in the community as as strong Christian character, and by her life and example gave evidence of the faith she professed. She is survived by an adopted son, George, who lived with her and did everything possible for her comfort. Her nieces are Mrs. Ellen Botham of Webster, Mass., Mrs. Soper of this place, Mrs. George Wilbur of Derry, N. H. and Miss Grace Sheldon of Westboro, Conn. She leaves also a nephew, Harlow Sherman of New Bedford, Mass. The funeral was held Sunday, Feb. 17, at the M. E. church at 2 p. m. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Miller, spoke from these words, "The Master is come and calleth for thee." John 11. The choir sung, Abide With Me, and Home at Last. There were beautiful floral tributes.

NORWICH TOWN

the The Huguenot House, in which they served tea and sandwich's. This is the oldest place in New London. When we arrived at the registration office there were about 180 people there. So father thought that there would be no use in waiting so decided we would enjoy a ride by a different route.

So he took us past the Williams Memorial Institute on to the New London and Hartford state road. We passed by the reservoir. There many marms, barns and houses have been torn down, the land now belonging to the City of New London. We then went through Chesterfield into Salem turned to our right, onto a road three miles long, the worst road we had traveled that day. We arrived home about four o'clock covering about 30 miles.

The First Congregational Home Missionary society is to meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey, at the parsonage on Elm avenue.

Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, and members of that church choir, are to have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

POST OFFICE HOURS FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

The Norwich post office will be open from 7 till 10 a. m. The money order, postal savings and carriers windows will be closed all day. As this is a National holiday no deliveries will be made by either city or rural carriers, a collection will be made at 4 p. m., from the same boxes as collected on Sundays. Outgoing mails will close as usual, the last mail for New York and Boston will close at 8 p. m. No money order business will be transacted at any of the sub stations.

FANCY DRESS SOCIAL BY CHARITABLE CIRCLE

Tuesday evening Charitable Circle of The King's Daughters held a fancy dress social at the home of its leader Miss Katherine Lanz of Boswell avenue. Some interesting costumes were displayed. As it happened to be the birthday anniversary of Miss Lanz the circle presented her a plant. Refreshments were served.

NORWICH TOWN STARTS MOVEMENT FOR NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

A well attended special meeting of the Norwich Rural Association was held in the chapel at Norwich Town Wednesday evening in response to a call issued by Grosvenor Ely, president, and Philip A. Johnson, secretary. Established 54 years ago principally for the purpose of beautifying Norwich Town, the association has gradually broadened its interests and activities and it was decided at this meeting that the association take an active and constructive interest in the school problem with respect to the Town street and West Town St. schools. A thorough discussion developed that the present inadequacy of the buildings and equipment of these two schools is well established in the public minds. It was shown that the school buildings in Norwich are far behind the average towns of Connecticut. There has been a marked increase in the last ten years in the number of pupils.

It was suggested that a sixteen room building erected at Norwich Town could accommodate Town street school, the upper grades of West Town street school and the Yantic school also the kindergarten of all three schools. Transportation of these grades would cost about the same as one teacher. There has been only one modern school building erected in the town of Norwich in the last thirty years. The additional tax for the Mt. Pleasant street school amounted to about 1 mill extra. The congestion of school children in no part of the town save the East Side is so great as in the Norwich Town section.

The meeting was unanimous in the opinion that a move should be made to improve our school facilities. To this end a representative committee was appointed to investigate more thoroughly into the matter and report with recommendations at a future meeting of the association. The interest manifested was indicated by the fact that members of the educational committee of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce were present at the meeting and spoke on the subject.

WAUREGAN HOTEL OWNER WANTS TO SUCCEED HYLAN

Announcement in Miami, Fla., that David H. Knott, a former sheriff of New York county, would be a candidate for mayor of New York to succeed Mayor Hylan has local interest as the Wauregan house in this city is one of the chain of thirteen hotels owned by the company which Mr. Knott heads.

He is 44 years old and has been a member of Tammany Hall since he became of voting age, and has served as chairman of the general committee for several terms. He has always been a liberal contributor to campaign funds and served one term as sheriff. In 1922 he ran for congress in the fourteenth district but was defeated by Representative Nathan D. Perlman.

His friends talked of him for the mayoralty nomination in 1921 and it is known he is still politically ambitious.

In view of the fact, however, that Mayor Hylan's successor will not be chosen for a year and a half the shying of his hat into the ring was not taken any too seriously by Tammany leaders. It is taken for granted that Mayor Hylan will not seek another term, but that he will be able to designate his successor is not conceded by Tammany leaders.

POST OFFICE CLERKS TO MEET AT HARTFORD

The Connecticut State Convention of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks will be held at Hartford, Friday, February 22nd, for which local 147 of Hartford is making elaborate plans to entertain the visiting delegates and their friends.

The Convention will be held in the "Old State House", Main and State streets, at 2 p. m. Mayor Kinsella will welcome the delegates to the city. At Eagle's Hall on Central Row "open house" will be maintained beginning at 9 a. m., for the reception of the visiting clerks.

The use of the Elk's Home on Prospect street has been offered to the Post Office Clerks and they have arranged to have the visiting ladies entertained there. Refreshments will be served, and some of Hartford's best musical talent have been secured to entertain at both places.

The activities of the day will be brought to a close with a banquet at the Hotel Garde at 6.30 p. m. Several prominent speakers have been secured, including National President Leo George of Chicago, Ill.

ENTERTAINMENT NETTED $351.10 FOR ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Sunday morning Rev. P. J. Mooney, pastor of St. John's church, Fitchville, announced to his parishioners that the recent entertainment held in Palmer Hall for the benefit of the church netted the sum of $351.10. The pastor was greatly pleased and expressed his, thanks to his committee and all those that helped to make the affair such a success for a Saturday night event. The entertainment was furnished by talent from Baltic and was greatly enjoyed by all those attending.

Postponed Arcanum Club Night

Owing to the weather conditions and the fact that the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce had sent word that they would be unable to attend, the club night of the Arcanum Club planned for Wednesday evening was postponed to a later date to be announced by Tyler D. Guy, chairman of the amusement committee.

JANUARY SET RECORD FOR SCARLET FEVER

More cases of scarlet fever were reported to the Connecticut State Department of Health in January, 1924 than in any other single month as far back as records are available. The number reported for January in each of the past 10 years is as follows:

Year	Cases	Year	Cases	Year	Cases
1915	210	1918	178	1922	396
1916	172	1919	198	1923	459
1917	132	1920	148	1924	741
		1921	630

Other high points were reached in December, 1920, when 683 cases were recorded and in January and February 1921, when 630 and 670 cases respectively were reported.

The present epidemic started in October, first appearing in New Haven, Waterbury and New Milford. By November, Hartford, New Britain and Bridgeport were reporting an increase in cases. In December, the smaller rural towns began to report the disease. At present all counties are reporting cases. The one bright spot is that the per cent. of fatal cases is smaller than for the past 10 years, only 1.6 per cent. terminating fatally.

Scarletina and Scarlet Fever. Scarlet fever and scarletina are different names for the same disease, so it is important that mild as well as severe cases be given proper care and medical attention.

First Symptoms. Scarlet fever begins in from three to seven days after exposure. The symptoms first noted are fever, vomiting and usually sore throat. The throat may show a slight redness even before the early symptoms appear.

The Scarlet Rash. Scarlet fever gets its name from the bright red rash which appears in from 12 to 24 hours after the sudden onset. In mild cases the rash may be absent or of such short duration that it is barely noticed. In the absence of any marked rash, the sore throat of scarlet fever is sometimes mistaken for an ordinary sore throat, and scarlet fever not suspected until the skin begins to peel a week or 10 days later. The mild cases are especially apt to spread the disease because they are not recognized.

The Treatment of Scarlet Fever. Even in mild cases of scarlet fever the main purpose of treatment is to prevent complications such as deafness, heart disease and kidney disease. Recent studies suggest the possibility of a cure for scarlet fever similar to that for diphtheria, but this work is still in the experimental stage. Serum from convalescing scarlet fever patients is used in treating patients in some Connecticut hospitals.

How the Disease Spreads. Germs of scarlet fever are known to be present in the discharges from the nose, ears, throat and infected glands. It is now known that the discharges are the causes of its spread. Thus, the patients should be isolated until all discharges from running ear, abscesses, nose or throat, cease. It is of special importance to keep younger children away to safeguard them from infection.

Measures for Prevention. All discharges should be destroyed. The cloths used for handkerchiefs should be burned. The attendant should put on a special gown and cap when entering the room and remove it upon leaving. After caring for the patient's the hands should be washed in an antiseptic solution. The patient's dishes should be kept apart from all other dishes and boiled after each use. There should be frequent boiling of the patient's clothing and bed clothing. Persons who handle foods should be excluded from the house during the course of the disease. When the patient recovers the room must be cleansed to the satisfaction of the health officer before quarantine is raised.

BOARD OF RELIEF IS PREPARING REPORT

Wednesday closed the sittings of the board of relief to hear appeals from the grand list assessments made by the assessors. Between now and the last day of this month the members of the board James C. Fitzpatrick, M. Frank Leonard and Francis Beique, will consider the protests that have been made to them and will prepare their report which has to be made by the last day of February.

The members of the board could not say Wednesday how many tax payers had appeared before them to protest the figures that had been put upon their property by the assessors, but said there had been about the average number.

MOTION TO SET ASIDE VERDICT FOR $4,500

A motion to set aside the verdict for $4,500 in favor of Lycurgus M. Sistare of New London has been filed by attorneys for the Connecticut Co., which Mr. Sistare sued for $15,000 damages in an automobile accident. The jury rendered the verdict Tuesday. In the motion to set aside it is claimed that the verdict is against the evidence and the law.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON LUTHERAN MISSION FIELDS

Wednesday evening an illustrated lecture on The Lutheran Mission Fields in India was given at the German Lutheran church, Franklin street, by the pastor, Rev. H. Huntsinger.

The begining of Protestant missions in India and the work of Bartholemew Liegenbalg, C. F. Schwars, C. G. Rhemius will never be forgotten, said Rev. Mr. Hunzinger. The first part of the lecture was devoted to the political, economical and religious life in India. Pictures of the temples, tombs Indian dwelling places and the home and street life of the natives were shown.

The second part of the lecture was devoted to the mission fields. They are located on the southeast coast. In 1872 there was but one American Lutheran missionary in India. Today there are 90, of whom 50 are in the Guntar field. Pictures of the missionaries and scenes from their home life and work were shown.

The St. Mathew's church in Guntar is the largest building in our India mission, said the speaker. The congregation has a membership of 1400 and the Sunday school numbers over 1,000. The congregation supports its own pastor and several "Bible women". Our Bible training school for boys and girls are splendid institutions. Many of the slides were beautifully colored. The lecture was given in German and English.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR BADLY INJURED FINGERS

The following workmen's compensation agreements have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

Day Publishing Co., New London, employer, and William Smith, employe, crushed little ring and second fingers, left hand, small bones fractured and tissue lacerated, dislocated wrist, 27 1-2 weeks at $18.00 for $50 per cent. loss of use of second and third fingers, left hand.

TRYING $4,000 SUIT FOR DEMOLISHING MOTOR TRUCK

The evidence was concluded and all the arguments made Thursday in the superior court at New London before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury in the suit for $4,000 damages brought by Salvatore Sabillo of New London against the Connecticut company and Robert W. Perkins as receiver of the Shore Line Electric Railway company.

After Judge Avery charges the jury this (Thursday) morning the case will go to them for a verdict.

The plaintiff sues to recover damages of $4,000 for the loss of his automobile truck. The accident occurred near Station 5 of the East Lyme trolley road in Waterford, a short distance beyond the New London city line, about 7 o'clock on the evening of Dec. 21, 1921, and is the same in which Mrs. Albina Donatello of Waterford received a decompression of the skull from which she died at the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospital later in the evening. Mrs. Donatello was on the running board of the truck about to climb into the cab when the truck was hit and she was knocked of.

The plaintiff claims on the night in question his truck was backed up to the veranda of the house owned by Frank Piccirillo to get a load of goods, the front wheels being on the trolley track, which at this point are about ten feet from the property line. He claims that the lights on his machine were lighted and that the accident was due to the negligence and carelessness of the agents of the defendant company.

The following is the jury in the case: Albert Hewitt, Frank A. Baier, Allen Penhallow, New London; George E. Cutler, Groton; James McKnight, George Winterbottom, Stonington; William A. Ritchie, Joseph W. Smith, Montville; Calvin R. Main, Peter Hoffman, Solon F. Chapman, Ledyard; Arthur H. Davis, Waterford.

The attorneys are George C. Morgan and Abel P. Tanner for the plaintiff and Charles B. Whittlesey and Charles L. Smiddy for the defendants.

Doctor Tells How NUXATED IRON PUTS BACK INTO YOUR BLOOD VITAL ELEMENTS OF STRENGTH Which are Wasted Every Day and Without Which You Become Weak, Nervous, and Run-down.

EVERY action of your daily life uses up a certain amount of strength, energy and nerve force, saps the iron from your blood and gradually steals away your youthful vigor and active usefulness. Unless you replace the iron which is constantly leaving the body, your blood stream loses the power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain; it becomes thin, pale and watery and cannot provide proper resistance against disease.

If you feel weak, nervous and run-down it is simply because your food does not supply enough iron to make up for the daily waste of this vitally important health-building element. But physicians have found a way to quickly correct such conditions by prescribing a concentrated form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron — which contains iron like the natural iron in your blood.

Iron is the master principle, one of the vital elements, of the blood and blood is life. By enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, Nuxated Iron strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and power into the whole system.

When you get on feeling tired in the morning; when you find yourself nervous, irritable and easily upset; when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease. Simply try taking Nuxated Iron for two weeks and note the amazing change in your health, vigor, energy and endurance. You should be astonished at the results in even a few days time. Success guaranteed or money refunded. At all druggists.

Coughs quickly broken up by the soothing, healing and curative effect of pure flax seed oil and irish moss; two of the ingredients in Linonine. This efficient emulsion promptly relieves the coughing, stops the irritation, strengthens the respiratory organs and helps you throw off the cause of the cough. At the first sign of a cough or cold, take Linonine and prevent serious sickness. For growing children it is a strength-builder and preventive of colds and coughs.

DAUGHERTY TO RESIST EXPULSION FROM CABINET BY POLITICAL ADVERSARIES

Attorney General Writes Senator Pepper That Retirement, Now, Voluntary or Otherwise, Would Be a Concession of the Truth of Baseless Charges—In Defense of His Honor, Mr. Daugherty Threatens to Make Addresses Throughout the Country, Submit All Facts Bearing Upon Accusations, and Plead His Cause Before the Bar of Public Opinion.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Attorney General Daugherty turned on his assailants today with a threat to take to the country his fight to retain his place in the cabinet.

If the senate, he said, already had convicted him without hearing and on "insinuations and falsehoods", nothing remained for him but to plead his cause before the bar of public opinion.

The Attorney General's challenge was issued after it had been disclosed that the oil committee was investigating a report that he dealt in Sinclair oil stock.

This report, brought to Washington by a special investigator, not only has been laid before the committee, but also has been called to the attention of President Coolidge by Chairman Lenroot and other administration leaders in the senate.

In his public statement, which took the form of an open letter to Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, Mr. Daugherty made no specific mention of the reported oil stock transactions or of any of the individual charges made publicly against him. Instead he declared in general terms that some senators were denying him constitutional privileges which are accorded "the basest criminal".

"In the preservation of the orderly processes of the law and the preservation of constitutional rights of no importance be asked, "shall reputations be destroyd and public officials driven from office by clamor, insinuation and falsehood?"

The letter was written to Senator Pepper in response to a note which the senator sent to him late yesterday afternoon after he and Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the republican leader, had urged upon President Coolidge the retirement of Mr. Daugherty.

The attorney general wrote that he noted "with amazement" your suggestion that my interests are not to be decided on the basis of "justice or injustice" even though my honor, reputation and all that I hold dear in this world are at stake". Quoting Senator Pepper that Mr. Daugherty "is on the wrong side of an issue in the mind of the public" the letter said that apparently that statement referred to the charges made in the senate Tuesday by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

"You have then concluded," Mr. Daugherty wrote, "that I am on the wrong side of an issue without hearing, without evidence, and accepted as final and baseless, scandulous and defamatory charges of my political adversaries. * * I will never be a party to such a program."

Senator Pepper said in a statement tonight that he had sent his note to the attorney general after he left the White House because it had occured to him that perhaps in performing "an unfortunate duty" he had been in "the position of saying something about a man behind his back."

He added that he did not regard his communication as requiring a reply and he refuse to comment on Mr. Daugherty's letter.

The attorney general sent a copy of his letter to the white house, officials there said he had not consulted them before he wrote it. They had no comment to make on it, nor would they indicate whether the arguments of administration leaders in the senate had had any effect on the president.

During the day negotiations looking to early adoption of the resolution proposing an investigation of Mr. Daugherty's administration were continued in the senate. Senator Wheeler, author of the proposal, had several conferences with Senator Lodge and it was understood that the majority leader was inclined to accept the personnel of the investigating committee proposed by Mr. Wheeler.

On his part, the Montana senator expressed willingness to eliminate from his resolution the provision naming the committee of five. Under this plan the committee, headed by Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa and a member of the LaFollette insurgent group, would be appointed by President Cummins as it the usual custom.

Heretofore republican organisation leaders have been inclined to favor a different personnel, but it was apparent today that they were not disposed to delay the inquiry or in any other manner to impede the "real investigation" asked for by Senator Wheeler.

It was Senator Wheeler who disclosed that the report of the special investigator indicating that the attorney general had dealth in Sinclair oil stock had been laid by him before members of the oil committee.

"Information came to me from New York through a special investigator," said Mr. Wheeler, "indicating that Mr. Daugherty had dealt in Sinclair oil stock, and I understand that these facts were laid before the president."

Chairman Lenroot said that it was information furnished by Senator Wheeler that he and Atlee Pomerene special government counsel in the oil cases, had presented to the president last Sunday night. Their visit to the white house followed discussions with Senators Wheeler and Walsh, democrat, Montana.

As the story has reached senators, the investments made by Mr. Daugherty, were comparatively small and were without profit since the stock was sold at a lower price than that paid for it. Mr. Daugherty tonight declined to discuss the subject in any way.

Some committeemen disclosed that it was to get at the basis of this story, that an examination of the books of Harry Payne Whitney New York financier, and J. P. Benkard, and Co., New York stock brokerage firm, is being made. Arrangements for such an examination were made with Mr. Whitney and the Benkard officials earlier in the week.

A similar examination of the books of Underleider and Company, a Cleveland brokerage firm, is being made in an effort to establish the truth regarding another report of transactions by Mr. Daugherty in stock of the Pure Oil Company. Some members of the committee said that as this story reached them, Charles G. Dawes first director of the budget; Albert Fall, former secretary of the interior; Mr. Daugherty and other high officials of the government made heavy purchases in the stock of this company.

These transactions are not questioned by the committee, since the Pure Oil Company is in no way involved in naval oil leasing programs. It was explained that the report relating to these purchases was being inquired into in connection with another phase of the investigation which was not disclosed.

The committee experts have completed their examination of the books of the Washington branch formerly maintied by Ungerleider and Company under the management of James Sloane, Jr., a former white house attache. The results have not been laid before the committee and may not be until the accountants have finished their work on the records in the Cleveland headquarters.

Chairman Lenroot said today that no subpoena had been issued for Harry F. Sinclair, who returned to New York yesterday from Europe and he could not indicate when Mr. Sinclair would be heard. He added that he knew of no impending development which would make it necessary for the committee to meet in advance of next Monday, when public hearings are to be resumed.

Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, was subpoenaed as the first witness Monday, Senator Lenroot said, but added that it was not certain that he would be called at that time. Until the return from Pinehurst, N. C., of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, a decision as to what witness will be called will be withheld.

Special government counsel in the oil cases are expected to communicate to the committee some time next week their conclusions as to the inquiry of one witness if immunity would be granted should he disclose to the senate investigators all of the information in his possession.

DAUGHERTY'S LETTER OF DEFENSE TO SEN. PEPPER

Washington, Feb. 21. — Attorney-General Daugherty in a letter to Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania declared his retirement, " voluntary or otherwise," would be a concession of the truth of all the "baseless charges" against him.

He added he never would be a party to such a proceeding.

The letter follows:

"Please accept my thanks for your very kind note of yesterday. Your complimentary reference to my administration of the department of justice is at this time most highly appreciated.

"I note with amazement your suggestion that my interests are not to be decided on the basis of 'justice or injustice', even though my honor, reputation and all that I hold dear in this world are at stake.

"Your expressions of personal regard are most gratifying and keenly appreciated, and I am sure that nothing will ever happen to change our friendly relations.

"Come now to the subject of your letter. I am interested in your statement that I am on the wrong side of an issue in the mind of the public. I assume you have in mind the resolution of Senator Wheeler and his speech on the floor of the senate. You have then concluded that I am on the wrong side of an issue, without hearing, without evidence, and accepted as final the baseless, scandalous and defamatory charges of my political adversaries.

"You further imply that the public has also concluded that I am on the wrong side of an issue, without evidence, on ex parte statements, and baseless charges of those same adversaries. You must realize, as I do, that these charges against me, made on the eve of a presidential election, are made with other motives than that of injuring me.

"My destruction is but the accomplishment of one phase of the program which will be immediately followed by other and more drastic demands by these same adversaries. My elimination voluntarily or otherwise will be a concession of truth of all the baseless charges of our adversaries, and will justify them in claiming that we have thereby admitted their truth, and such admission will accomplish the ultimate end and purpose most gratifying to such adversaries.

"I will never be a party to such a program. You say that my fate does not involve a question of 'justice or injustice'. My dear senator, my personal interests sink into insignificance when compared with the magnitude of the issues now involved. Is the preservation of the orderly processes of the law, and the preservation of constitutional rights of no importance? Shall reputations be destroyed and public officials driven from office by clamor, insinuations and falsehood?

"The basest criminal standing before the bar of justice has a right to trial by his peers. Am I to be denied a right granted even the basest criminal?

"If I am on the wrong side of the issue to which you refer, and it has already been concluded against me by the senate, to which forum I have no access, without evidence as to the truth or falsity of the charges against me, and if the public has likewise, as you claim, without evidence, concluded that I am on the wrong side of such issue, then nothing remains for me to do except to plead my cause before the bar of public opinion, and in order to do so accept some of the numerous invitations to make addresses throughout the country and present before that great tribunal all of the facts bearing upon these matters.

That tribunal, my dear senator, by which we will all ultimately be tried, is the one before whose verdict we must all bow with respectful humility."

The letter was in reply to a note sent the attorney-general last night by Senator Pepper, after he and Senator Lodge had called at the White House and informed the president of senate opinion on the subject of Mr. Daugherty's retirement.

The Pennsylvania senator said today he did not consider it necessary to make the note public; that he merely had notified Mr. Daugherty of what he and Senator Lodge had told the president. He would not comment on the attorney-general's reply.

CATHOLIC CEMETERY IN PROVIDENCE DESECRATED

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 21.—Police from Pawtucket and East Providence were called upon to investigate a strange case of desecration and vandalism in Mount St. Mary's cemetery, one of the largest Roman Catholic burial grounds in Rhode Island, after the discovery today that 99 monuments and tombstones had been broken off at the base or overturned the night before. Property damage running into the thousands of dollars was caused, investigators said tonight.

The work of destruction was evidently carried out by a very powerful man, working alone, who must have toiled at his task throughout Wednesday night, the investigators said. The night, one of the worst of the winter, found the ground covered by nearly 10 inches of snow and sleet which had been soaked by rain late in the day. One man's tracks were found in the snow, leading from one moument to another.

Throughout the cemetery which lies partly in East Providence and partly in Pawtucket. Ten tombstones on the Pawtucket side were broken off and 99 were pushed over on the East Providence side. It was found that the tracks led from a group of cottages in a locality inhabited by foreign born residents near one corner of the Pawtucket side of the cemetery. The vandal left the burial ground through the center gate, facing in the direction of the group of houses which he left in entering the cemetery. In many cases prodigious strength was exerted by the destroyer, iron bars fastening tombstones to their bases, being broken off. Tracks in the snow showed that he had attempted unsuccessfully to overturn many larger monuments.

1,160,000,000 MARKS ADVANCED TO GERMAN INDUSTRY

Berlin, Feb. 21.—(By the A. P.)—A total credit of 1,166,000,000 gold marks has been advanced to German industry, says a government announcement in answer to the interpellation of several reichstag deputies who are eager to ascertain whether the state finances are being endangered by loans, made to assist in the recovery of trade.

Of the foregoing sum a credit of 575,000,000 gold marks was given by the reichsbank to private industrialists within the last six weeks. It is pointed out in the statement that the credit requirements of industry are not yet satisfied, but as further issue of the reichsbank credits might threaten the financial condition of Germany the government reiterates the urgency of financiers arranging loans from foreign countries as soon as possible to aid in the reconstruction of the economic system.

POLICEMAN'S TEAR GAS CLUB EXPLODED IN TEST

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—A tear gas club under test by police today, exploded, the weighed end striking John McEnroe, a traffic office, on the knee, cutting him badly. Dr. J. Hunter Smith, police surgeon, declared McEnroe's stout leather puttee saved him from having a broken leg.

The club exploded as Lieutenant Harry Edwards, police drill master and gas expert, was demonstrating it for a photographer. The blast blew the club apart, but the lieutenant escaped injury.

Ashurst and Phipps Tilt in the Senate

In Debate Over the Appropriation of $250,000 For Irrigation in California and Arizona.

Washington, Feb. 21. — Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado, was accused today in the senate by Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, of voting to put money tino his own pocket when he opposed an appropriation of $250,000 for a hydro-electric plant in the Yuma irrigation project in California and Arizona.

Warning Senator Ashurst not to impute motives, Senator Phipps told the senate he voted as he did not because he was a stockholder in the Southern Sierra Power company, with which the proposed government hydro-electric plant would compete. He explained that he and other committeemen felt that no new expenditures should be made in irrigation projects until after the report of the fact finding commission of the department of the interior investigating those projects is available.

Chairman Smooth, of the appropriations committee, said this was the reason which actuated the committee in eliminating from the interior department appropriation bill the provision which has been recommended by the budget bureau and has been approved by the house. He called attention that similar action was taken with respect to other irrigation projects.

Senator Ashurst was vigorous in his attack on the committee. He charged that official records has been kept of the hearings on other items in the bill, but that when this was reached "the stenographer lifted his pen."

"Now here comes the Southern Sierra High Power company," he declared, "and one of its stockholders sits on the committee. I want to ask him how he voted on it."

"Certainly," replied Senator Phipps. "I voted to cut this item out."

"Ah, that is what I thought," returned Senator Ashurst. "And thereby you put money into your own pocket."

"But——" began Senator Phipps.

"There is no 'but' about it," interrupted the Arizona senator. "When you voted to cut it out and voted to put money into your own pocket and to deprive the farmers of the valley there of the right to have a high power plant, you should have said, 'I refuse to vote.'

"I warn the senator not to impute motives," said Senator Phipps.

"I do not care anything about your warnings, if you are going to warn me," replied Senator Ashurst.

"I wish in my own time," said Senator Phipps, "to make a full and complete statement——".

"The senator had better call it a confession," interrupted Senator Ashurst.

"It will not be," was the retort. "It will be a statement that I shall be proud to make on the floor of the senate."

"There is such a thing as being above pride and below pride" declared Senator Ashurst.

WASHINGTON

Above the clouds, within Heaven's undimmed light,
Rise glittering mountain peaks of stainless white
While gloom of storm enshrouds the lands below;
No shadow drifts across that splendid scene,
Silent, unmoved, serene.

At times there comes to eminence a name
Illustrious made by patriotic soul,
And proudly honored at the hands of Fame,
Emblazoned high on Glory's honor roll;
Above the clouds of envy, storm of hate,
Alone, supremely great.

Such names the World will nevermore forget,
With fond regard will hold them full in sight,
Nor even thus can she discharge the debt
Is due to them by their unquestioned right;
The highest honor paid the foremost one,
The name of Washington.

Coalition Causing Confusion in House

Some of the Insurgent Republicans Are to Return to the Fold For Final Vote on Income Tax.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Democrats jammed on the brakes in the revision of the revenue bill today, after joining republican insurgents in gaining some amendments, and refused to support an amendment offered by this group proposing a tax on undistributed profits of corporations.

In opposing this amendment, Representatives Garret, of Tennessee, and Garner, of Texas, the democratic leaders in the tax fight, declared it was "unsound" and warned their party that it must not so change the bill, already carrying the democratic income rate schedules, that ground would be given for a presidential veto.

The coalition just previously had overruled a decision of the chair that amendment was not in order by a vote of 164 to 150.

With debate on the amendment occupying three hours, little progress was made with the bill today, although Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, in charge of the measure, predicted later a vote on passage would be possible by next Tuesday. An agreement was reached between him and Representative Garner that no vote would be taken before that date.

Consideration of the measure will continue tomorrow although a legal holiday.

A new compromise on the income rate schedule developed in the negotiations during the day between republican organization leaders, who are determined to upset the democratic rates when the bill is up for passage, and some of the seventeen republicans who supported the Garner income tax amendment.

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, said he would be willing to cut the normal rate on incomes below $4,000 from 3 per cent as recommended by Secretary Mellon, to 2 per cent., if the six per cent normal tax on incomes above that amount, the treasury proposal, were retained. The compromise also includes the recent offer of organization republicans to raise the maximum surtax from the 25 per cent rate proposed by Mr. Mellon to 37 1-2 per cent. Such a schedule, Mr. Longworth said, would be acceptable to several of the insurgents.

The vote on the Garner plan was 223 to 196, with eleven republicans absent. A majority must be gained on several parliamentary votes by the republicans to make possible the overthrow of the Garner rates after the bill comes up for final vote.

AWARDS AGAINST GERMANY FOR SINKING LUSITANIA

Washington, Feb. 21.—Under an award of the German-American mixed claims commission involving only part of the claims arising from the sinking of the British liner Lusitania, the German government must pay approximately one million dollars reparation for losses sustained by Americans through death, injury, property damage, or otherwise in that disaster. The decision was handed down today by Judge Edwin B. Parker, umpire of the commission, in 57 cases, represented only the first group of Lusitania claims.

Eighty-eight separate awards were made, the amounts in the cases involving property damage or destruction carrying five per cent interest a year dating from May 7, 1915, when the Lusitania was sunk, to the date of payment, and those in the death cases, the same interest dating from November 7, 1923, when the commission handed down its opinion in the case determining the measure of damages. Forty claims were denied in today's decision.

POINCARE OVERCOMES HIS OPPONENTS IN THE SENATE

French Premier Made the Vote on the Electoral Bill a Question of Confidence—Refusing to Entertain Any Compromise, M. Poincare Was Sustained by a Vote of 156 to 134.

Paris, Feb. 21 (By the A. P.)—The Poincare government weathered in the long-expected crisis in the senate today, when in a test vote on the electoral bill the premier was sustained by a vote 150 against 134.

Unalterable in his determination to stand upon this measure as it was passed by the chamber of deputies and absolute in his refusal to entertain any compromise and in face of the earnest pleas of life-long friends and supporters not to make it a question of confidence, the premier placed squarely before the senate the responsibility of overthrowing him. He imposed his will upon the upper house and defeated the most tremendous odds he has faced in parliament since he assumed power.

The fight turned upon an amendment to the electoral reform bill presented by Victor Peytral providing that "no deputy can be elected unless he has obtained a larger number of votes than his opponent." Senator Peytral produced figures showing that according to the proportional representation plan as sponsored by the government, deputies were elected to the last legislature who polled thousands of votes less that candidates on other lists.

He called special attention to the fact that Leon Daudet had been elected with 19,691 votes while in the same constituency M. Lerolle was defeated although he polled 75,240 votes, Mr. Daudet being elected because he had a larger percentage of royalist votes than M. Lerolle had of socialist votes. The premier was adamant, however, and rejected the amendment.

M. Poincare then took the stand and refusing any compromise made the vote on the electoral bill a question of confidence.

There were times when the senate verbally showed its disapproval of the premier's stand, but when it came to depositing the ballots in the urns, the majority fell into line.

With the battle now won in the upper house, the premier returns to the chamber where he intends to push through the vote upon the remaining articles of the fiscal measures which the government intends to finish before the report of the committees of experts on German reparations is presented.

MEXICAN GOV'T SEEKING LOAN IN UNITED STATES

Mexico City, Feb. 21—(By the A. P.)—The approval of the American state department was sought today by the Mexican government upon the terms of the basic contract between the government and a syndicate of United States bankers involving the proposed loan of $25,000,000 in exchange for certain concessions in Mexico.

It is stated that the Mexican charge d'affaires in Washington, upon instructions from the minister of foreign affairs has submitted the contract to Washington for approval.

The greater part of the proposed loan is understood to be on deposit in New York banks while the basic and subsidiary contracts which already have been approved by the Mexican government are being held in a local bank pending final action.

The first definite step in the tobacco phase of the negotiations was taken today when the Buen Tono Cigarette factory, the largest in this city is reliably reported to have agreed to sell out for $7,500,000. The Lorillard and the British American Tobacco companies are understood to have been the purchasers as representing the tobacco interests participating in the loan.

Tobacco is only part of the proposed security for the loan. According to statements made by A. B. Wolvin, it is planned to secure concessions to cut timber from the national lands, advance money for the development of agriculture and fruit culture in half a dozen tropical states and secure railway facilities to the ports adjacent to the regions it is hoped to develop.

CONDITION OF SENATOR GREENE SEEMS IMPROVED

Washington, Feb. 21. —Increased hope concerning the condition of Senator Frank L. Greene of Vermont, was reflected in a physician's bulletin issued late today after an examination of the patient.

"Senator Greene has been resting quietly during the day and his condition seemed improved," the bulletin said.

Although a right side paralysis now exists, it was learned, the doctors hope this will clear up if the Vermont senator recovers. His temperature late today was normal and he had taken nourishment.

As a direct outgrowth of the shooting of Senator Greene last Friday night when revenue agents and suspected bootleggers engaged in a gun battle less than three blocks from the capitol, Representative Foster, republican, Ohio, introduced a resolution in the house today to make it a felony for bootleggers to possess any firearm or other deadly weapon.

His bond was set at $2,500.

SIX RUM VESSELS LYING 18 MILES OFF CAPE COD

Boston, Feb. 21.—Rum row of six vessels, one of these a steamer and the others sailcraft is lying about 18 miles off Cape Ann with a coast guard cutter and a coast guard motor boat standing guard to prevent traffic with the shore, according to report received today at coast guard headquarters here from Capt. Wheeler of the coast guard cutter Tampa. The Tampa has been keeping touch with the rum fleet for several days, lost touch with them in a gale and picked them up again today off the cape.

The vessels have been identified but names of others could not be made out in thick weather. The British steamer Newton City is the largest craft in the row. The British schooners Douglas B. Conrad and Marjorie E. Blackman also were identified. In a message yesterday before losing touch with the fleet in a storm, Capt. Wheeler reported that two French schooners were included in the six.

The coastguard men reported that several boats came out from Gloucester as if to do business, with the rum fleet, but took to flight on sighting the cutter and the pioneer. Two boats fitted out for fishing also approached the anchored schooners but also made off when they saw that the rum hotilla was under observation.

TEMPORARY RECEIVERS FOR S. H. GREENE & SONS

Providence, R. I. Feb. 21—Temporary receivers were appointed today in the superior court here for S. H. Greene & Sons Corporation, dyers, finishers and bleachers, at Clyde. The concern is said to be nearly 100 years old. The receivers are Francis W. Greene, who brought the petition and Lester B. Murdock, whose joint bond was fixed at $10,000. Citation on the question of a permanent receiver is returnable in this city March 4.

The petition alleges the corporation is unable to pay debts as they mature. The temporary receivers were given authority to borrow $250,000 as a first lien on the assets, to finish goods now in process of manufacture. The total assets are given as between $700,000 and $800,000. There are around $225,000 in bonds, secured by a trust mortgage. Water rights owned by the corporation are said to be worth about $130,000.

In June, 1918 the corporation got $324,636 from the city of Providence in a suit over the Kent dam water right. On an appeal by the city this verdict was settled for $265,000.

CHIEF OF POLICE OF BEVERLY FOUND GUILTY

Salem, Mass., Feb. 21—Chief of police John E. Hayes of Beverly was found guilty today of assault with a dangerous weapon on Evelyn Spinney and John F. Winston, both of Lynn. The jury was out from 11.30 a. m. yesterday until 12.20 p. m. today, coming in with a reported disagreement earlier in the day and being sent back by Judge Walsh for further deliberations.

Hayes admitted on the stand that he fired a shot which wounded the two Lynn high school pupils on the night of June 10 last, but said he had aimed at the ground in order to attract their attention when their automobile was speeding through Beverly.

Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Flynn indicated that he would not move for sentence at present and the court extended the time for filing exceptions until April 15.

JAPANESE PRESS COMMENTS ON AMERICAN NAVY PLANS

Tokio, Feb. 21—(By the A. P.)—Leading Japanese newspapers, commenting today on reports that the American navy plans to build ten gun boats of a special type for the Yangtse river service, seriously direct the government's attention to the antiilpated expansion of American naval power in Chinese waters.

Publications including Nochi, Nichi Nichi, Tomiuri and Chugai Shogyo points out that the new gunboats would give the United States a naval preponderance in China, and assert that the ultimate purpose is to "back up American mercantile efforts to countrip Japanese and British interests," and to establish a Chino-American economic alliance. Chugai Shogyo suggests that Great Britain and Japan follow America's example.

BOSTON FIREMAN INJURED BY GAS FUMES AND SMOKE

Boston, Feb. 21—Gas fumes menaced the firemen who fought a fire in a business block in the Back Bay district early today. District Chief John Kelley suffered serious injury from inhaling gas and smoke and several of his men were overcome. It was thought that the flames, which caused damage placed at $75,000, had burned a gas meter releasing fumes in large quantities.

WILLIMANTIC

When George M. Flint stepped into the position of Superintendent of the streets he was to face more work and criticism than he realized. Since he became head man of the streets the city has been swept by two severe storms, the first on the morning of January 24, when the snowfall changed to a rainstorm and the last storm of Tuesday night and Wednesday. When a pedestrian places his foot ankle-deep into slush and water he is bound to have something to say with regard to the efficiency or lack of efficiency, of the street department and as practically everyone walking in the streets in the town got "soaked" Wednesday or slipped on the ice Thursday, Superintendent Flint's work and the storm were probably condemned many times. Mr. Flint, however, had excellent work done in some sections. The snow plows, drawn by trucks and horses were put into use and nearly all the streets presented a clean appearance Thursday. In some cases where the snow was scraped off an icy surface was left exposed, but Mr. Flint and his men are in no way responsible for this condition. The tractor-drawn plow was run up and down the gutters up to 1 o'clock Thursday morning and considerable of the slush was drained away in this manner.

On the other hand, a number of residents of the hill section and other parts came out of their homes and found their sidewalks covered with glare ice. It has been a question for some time who is responsible for the sanding of sidewalks, but customarily most of this work has been done by the street department and the majority of the tenants and property owners are satisfied that it should remain so.

A number wanted to know why the department caused a plow to be run up and down Main street, pushing all the snow into the gutters and then using men with picks and shovels in an effort to clear the gutters. The work is hardly done when automobiles are backed over the snowbanks and the gutters again choked up. Some pointed out that this procedure of caring for Main street within the past three or four years has cost the city close to $5,000 and some of the taxpayers claim that this practice should be discontinued.

The little town of North Windham is stirred over the sudden culmination of a romance, Saturday evening, Feb. 2, when Arthur Balcolm of Hampton and Miss Thelma Harris only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Harris, of North Windham, quietly slipped out to Clark's Corner, and were married by Justice of the Peace William C. Oliver. Two friends were the witnesses. The couple came back to North Windham and said nothing until Wednesday last, when Mrs Balcolm informed her mother of what had happened. The groom was sent for and he and his bride were given the parental blessings. They will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Harris. The groom is a former student at Windham High school and up to a short time ago was employed in the coating department of the American Thread company plant when he started in to work in Mr. Harris' jewelry manufacturing plant at North Windham. The bride is an accomplished musician and has a violin studio.

Colonial gowns and poke bonnets were worn at the last regular meeting of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief Corps held in the G. A. R. hall, with the president, Mrs. Margaret MacArthur in charge. Fancy cookies and tea were served, Ida Chamberlain poured. Dancing, singing and whist were enjoyed.

During the business session the chairman of the relief committee reported that twelve calls had been made. A communication was read from the department of Connecticut G. A. R., expressing thanks for the gift of $100 from Corps No. 28, given to help defray the expenses of the joint convention to be held in Waterbury next April. Miss Belle Green is a patient at Lawrence hospital, New London, and Mrs. Theresa Manley at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic.

Charles M. Letters, of Putnam, state game warden, was in this city early this week, with several of his deputies in the interests of the state board of fisheries and game. Co-operating with Arthur L. Clark, he arranged the main show window of the Jordan Hardware company with an exhibit of stuffed game, containing four cabinets of various species of birds. The exhibit was loaned to the state board by the Audubon Society of Fairfield and will remain in the local store for about a week when it will be transferred to Tolland. The main idea of the display is to acquaint hunters and others with the state laws as regards the killing and protection of birds. A mechanical device with reading matter explains the hunting regulations and purposes of the rulings. The exhibit, which was recently in Danielson, has evoked much interest here.

Word was received in this city on Thursday of the death of Dr. William A. Lahiff, 56, optician, horseman, singer, politician and member of several fraternal organizations in and about Keene, N. H. He died in the house where he was born, the son of John and Ann Lahiff. For several years he resided in Willimantic where he was engaged as an optician, with a place of business in the Union block. While a resident here Dr. Lahiff was prominent in social circles. He was one of the charter members of the famous St. Joseph's Temperance society. Dr. Lahiff returned to Keene twenty years ago. In 1918 he resumed his optical business which he continued until a few months ago when he was forced into retirement on account of ill health. In 1913 he married Miss Gertrude Smith of Leominister, Mass. He leaves his widow, one son, a brother and two sisters. Dr. Lahiff was a musician and his reputation as a singer was known throughout his home state of New Hampshire. He often officiated as a judge of county fair races. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Catholic Knights of America, Eagles and the Grange. He served several terms as councilman in the city of Keene.

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude E. Clark were held at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon at 63 North street. Mrs. Elizabeth Harlow Goetz of Baltimore, Maryland, officiated. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The attendance of friends and relatives was large and there were beautiful floral tributes. Avery & VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

At 9 o'clock Thursday in St. Joseph's church, Miss Marcella Agnes Kegler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kegler of Windham road, was united in marriage with James G. McNally, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McNally, of Norwich Town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John E. Clark, the pastor, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives. Rev. Father Clark also sang the nuptial high mass. Henry McNally, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Lillian McKenna was maid of honor. Pleasing solos were rendered by Mrs. Henry Mathieu and Arthur Roy, of the church choir. At the offertory Mr. Roy sang Ave Maria. The organ music was by Mrs. E. R. Portelance who played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the church. The ushers were James Kegler and Charles McNally. Mendelssohn's wedding march was the recessional.

Miss Kegler was attired in a gown of white canton crepe trimmed with rhinestones and pearls. She wore a tulle veil with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses, sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Miss McKenna, the maid of honor, wore a peach-colored chiffon gown and a black lace hat. She carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and Ophelia roses.

The groom's gift to the best man was a set of gold cuff links and that to the bride a beaded bag. The bride presented her maid of honor a silk umbrella. She gave the groom gold cuff links. The ushers were given gold penknives by the groom.

Breakfast was served at the home of the bride after the ceremony. Relatives and friends were present from Norwich, Norwich Town, Waterbury, New York, New Haven, Torrington, this city and other places. Mr. and Mrs. McNally are spending their honeymoon in Boston and upon their return will make their home for the present with the bride's parents on Windham road. The bride's going away gown was of blue canton and she wore a hat to match.

Mrs. McNally was graduated from Windham High school in the class of 1918 and has been employed in the local office of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company. Mr. McNally is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy and following a period of employment for the John Hancock Insurance company he is now in the employ of the Yantic Grain and Products company as salesman. The bride received a great number of beautiful gifts.

For Fred LeClair, truckman, City Sheriff Thomas J. Kilkourey Thursday morning placed two attachments on an Oakland automobile owned by Samuel Kushner, of Ash street, for $100 and another for $20, for Joseph Scatkowski, another truckman. The suits are the outgrowth of alleged unpaid bills incurred for moving a load of goods from New York city to this place. The cases are returnable before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean, March 1, at 9 o'clock.

William H. Lincoln has disposed of his holdings in the Stone Row to Mrs. Pamelia LaBelle of this city. The property is located south of the Gulf Refining property on Main street and has a frontage of eighty feet and a depth of seventy feet, a part of which is about two-thirds of one of the stone buildings. The other third is also owned by Mrs. LaBelle. When the Sayles property was sold, some two years ago, Mr. Lincoln's purchase included a part of the stone building which he fitted up into four tenements. Mrs. LaBelle has made no alterations in her part of the building and does not know at present whether or not she will do later. The stone row building in question is in a very poor condition, the tenements altered and rented by Mr. Lincoln being mainly taken by families deprived of homes when the Salvation Army bought houses on Walnut street for the purpose of erecting a citadel. The Stone Row was once the principal residential section of the town, a number of people who are now "well-up" in the eyes of local residents, having once been tenants of this section.

A stag social is to be held at the Y. M. C. A., March 11, it was announced Thursday by Harry W. Standish, chairman of the social committee. The programme is not known yet but the committee intends to make this affair one of the best of its kind at the local Y. Members and their male friends will attend.

A settlement for $1,450 for the insurance carried on the Green place, in Ashford, which was totally destroyed by fire a week ago Monday, was effected Thursday morning through a local agency. The building was considered a total loss and the settlement included an adjustment on furniture.

SHAGBARKS ARE BEST FOR NEW ENGLAND

The species of tree nuts as they are naturally adapted for development in the United States seems to be the pecan for the south, the shagbark for the northeast, the black walnut for the central west and the Persian walnut for the Pacific coast. This does not mean, however, that anyone should not plant in southern New England a few trees of the hardier varieties of the Persian walnut or such good varieties of the black walnut as Stabler, Thomas and Ohio. USE OF OILED WRAPPERS TO PREVENT APPLE SCALD

Approximately 13 million boxes of apples that went into storage last fall were wrapped in oiled-papers [illegible] for the prevention of loss [illegible] scald, and according to the [illegible] obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture, this part of the apple crop should come through the winter in excellent condition and [illegible] free from the most troublesome of scald.

Superficial scald attacks apples while in storage and transit and is extremely [illegible] in its action. Apples may [illegible] storage in excellent condition [illegible] apparently remain so all through the winter while kept under certain conditions of temperature, but upon [illegible] brought on the market soon turn brown and spoil as a result of the presence of scald.

Various theories have been advanced as to the cause of scald and a great deal of effort expended in looking for a remedy. It was early found that [illegible] colored mature fruit scalded much [illegible] fruit that was poorly colored [illegible] green, and later that scald could be entirely prevented under ex[illegible] conditions by giving the apples plenty of air. The discovery [illegible] value of aeration led to further [illegible] on the behavior of apples in storage and finally to the development of the oiled wrapper. The final proof of the value of the oiled paper may not yet have been found, but it affords strong evidence that its [illegible] scald control is largely due to its ability to absorb the esters [illegible] odorous substances thrown off by the apple. The oiled wrappers [illegible] odorous substances just [illegible] and other fats take up va[illegible] these, and when they are re[illegible] from the apples are heavily [illegible] with the apple odor. The oil [illegible] wrappers also has a slight [illegible] upon the life activities [illegible] of the apple, slightly de[illegible] the development of yellow in [illegible] color and probably at the [illegible] retarding the development of [illegible]

[illegible] been customary to [illegible] ordinary wrappers the [illegible] paper entails no extra [illegible] and adds but about [illegible] the cost of each box. [illegible] in price and mar[illegible] are often many [illegible] cent. In May, 1923, oiled [illegible] apples were selling for a [illegible] premium on the New York auction over similar apples in ordinary wrappers, but growers and dealers realize that with the larger use of the oiled wrappers such excessive premiums are not to be expected. The great value of the oiled wrapper lies in the prevention of spoilage from scald, and the resulting benefit in better distribution, greater steadiness of the market, and reduction in claims and adjustments.

OVERCOMING DIFFICULTIES OF GROWING RED CLOVER

The increasing difficulty of securing and maintaining a stand of red clover is one of the serious problems at present confronting the farmer in the clover failure but they may be placed [illegible] responsible, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, for clover failur but they may be placed in five groups as follows: Soil exhaustion; improper seeding methods; [illegible] crops; unadapted seed; diseases and insect enemies; and improper treatment the first autumn.

All of these contributing causes for failure are described in a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, as Farmers' Bulletin 1339. Clover fails more often, however, according to the author of this bulletin, because soils have become poor in lime, phosphorous, potash, or organic matters than for all other causes. If lime is badly needed there is no use wasting clover seed. If phosphorous is the limiting factor the addition of lime alone, even if the land is "sour," will have slight effect. Manure will do more good often than anything else, but when lime is needed the results will be much greater after this need has been supplied than before. By making the soil conditions such as favor the growth of clover, failure can nearly always be turned to success.

ALL ABOUT POTATOES

A series of 12 lessons covering the principal factors of potato growing have been arranged by the vegetable specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural College and are free to any one residing in this state. The subjects covered are:

1. Introduction and Botany.
2. What seed to buy.
3. Seed storage and scab treatment.
4. What fertilizer to buy and why.
5. Cutting seed.
6. Climate, Rainfall, Rotations and Soil.
7. Planting Potatoes, time of planting, spacing, rate, depth, greening the seed, etc.
8. Cultivation of the potato.
10. Harvesting, grading and marketing.
11. Pudging.
12. Cost of growing an acre of potatoes and records.

These lessons do not require the student to answer questions or to send in written papers. They do, however, set forth factors which are necessary for successful potato raising.

PIG CALLED CLEANEST DOMESTIC ANIMAL

What is the cleanest domestic animal we have to care for? It is the pig, the animal that rarely has a chance to follow its natural instinct, says one county agent. That is the chief reason, he adds, why people fail in the hog business. They will keep one or more pigs in the same pen year after year without giving it a thorough cleansing or many times without removing the filth. Now pigs are more susceptible to intestinal parasites than most any other animal, consequently, when the pen that is to keep the pig or pigs once becomes infected with these parasites or their eggs, it is almost impossible to grow good pigs.

They will have what is commonly known as blind staggers, rheumatism, indigestion, or many other ailments which are nothing more or less than filth or because of filth, says Mr. Bodwell. Put the pigs in the spring on clean land that has not had a pig on it for some time, then build a new trough or self feeder, and have all other implements that have been associated with the pigs on the farm for many years put away, or at least cleaned and disinfected, he advises. You will find that your ordinary hog ailments will not materialize and that the litter that you are raising will be more even, and will gain much more rapidly.

It looks queer on the face of it, that when pigs are kept in filthy places that the one that eats the most at the start grows the least. It is because he takes into his system more intestinal parasites that eat almost as much food as he does. This will not be the case, however, when the pigs are placed in uncontaminated places to begin with.

THIRD YOUNG PIGS DIE LOSSES PREVENTABLE

That about one-third of pigs farrowed in the spring die before weaning time, is shown by reports from representative farms in four Corn Belt states. A summary previously issued by the United States department of agriculture showed an average loss of more than 35 per cent on 163 farm in Indianna, Illinois, and Iowa, of 18,837 pigs farrowed in the spring.

Additional information on this subject was recently furnished the department by H. G. Zavoral, livestock specialist of the Minnesota University extension service. The Minnesota survey covered 363 farms. Of 27,415 pigs farrowed on these farms in the spring of 1923, a total of 9,300 were dead before weaning time. This loss of 34 per cent compares closely with a loss of 33 per cent in that state the proceeding year, and also with the percentage for the other states.

The chilling of young pigs can be prevented by proper housing at farrowing time. Those crushed by being laid on by the sow could have been saved in many cases by the use of guard rails around the sides of the farrowing pen to prevent the sow from lying against the wall. The farrowing of weak or dead pigs is preventable in a large degree by the use of vigorous breeding stock and proper care given the sow before the pigs are born.

RESUMPTION OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH MEXICO

Washington, Feb. 21.—Another step in the full resumption of diplomatic relations with Mexico was taken today when President Coolidge transmitted to the senate the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Detroit, to be ambassador at Mexico City. President Obregon, in turn, is expected to name soon an ambassador to represent the Mexican government in Washington.

The selection of an ambassador for the post which has been officiaty vacant for more than five years is regarded here as a further indication of the desire of the Washington government to do what it can to aid Mexico in taking its place among nations having stable and responsible governments. Since the Obregon government was recognized by the United States last summer, a charge d'affaires has represented the Washington government at Mexico City.

GUNBOAT TULSA ORDERED TO MEXICAN WATERS

Washington, Feb. 21.—The gunboat Tulsa has been ordered from Galveston, to Mexican water and is to arrive at Tuxpam today.

Dispatch of the gunboat was ordered by the navy department at the suggestion of Secretary Hughes, after state deparment advices had reported the American citizens at Tuxpam desired increased protection. No actual injury to American nationals or interests have occurred.

Ample opportunity is given those who need assistance in making out their income tax returns to obtain it without charge. Danielson's banks have been very liberal in their arrangements for this public service, and many are taking advantage of it.

A statement was forthcoming on Thursday that Rev. A. E. Gallup, of the Pentecostal church, is chairman of the Killingly Council for Law Enforcement. That is one of the things the public would have been pleased to know when it was circularized a few days ago, with nothing more to identify the senders of the council than a postoffice box address. Being classed as an anonymous communication, the circular was not well received in quarters where it should at least have commanded respect—from citizens who are not breaking the law and have no intention of doing so. Incidentally, it was remarked Thursday that Danielson is one of the few communities of its size in Connecticut to figure in recent months in violation of the liquor laws, with which the enforcement council is chiefly concerned, in such a small way as it has, and that does not apprehend any laxity in enforcement, either.

And in closing, it may be said that it is not for any one to assume that because a citizen who receives a circular does not send it back signed he is not in favor of "the law." There is no logical ground for such assumption and such a suggestion cannot be allowed to stand unchallenged. Many worthy citizens are not concerned with law enforcement insofar as the personal activities are concerned—much the same as they would be content to take a seat in a train without insisting that they be allowed to ride in the locomotive cab and boss the engineer.

A deputy collector of internal revenue will be at the Windham County National bank from February 22 to 27 inclusive to lend his assistance, without charge, in filing income tax returns. All are welcome to call upon him.—adv.

The proposed banquet next month for the members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club is being anticipated with interest by the members.

There is some rather caustic criticism going the rounds because someone pulled in Box 23 for a fire in Brooklyn, Monday night. It is pointed out that the box should not be been pulled for an out of town fire, but that the call for assistance should have been transmitted to Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department. Box 23 is in the heart of the business section and ringing it near midnight for a fire four miles away is regarded as a sorry hoax on the public.

The man who opined that a full moon and the eclipse might bring on considerable of a storm Wednesday is now regarded as having said something.

Bad as the going was Thursday over highways hereabouts, worse conditions prevailed in the borough, where the streets were rutted, as well as being covered with ice.

State officers continue to keep a careful lookout for overloaded motor trucks, as has been the case for a number of months.

Officers charged with rounding up those who have unlicensed dogs in Windham county towns are not at all concerned because some of those prosecuted are peeved about the matter. It is generally known requirement that dogs over six months of age must be registered.

Only two more Sundays before the beginning of the Lenten season, which opens Ash Wednesday, March 5.

A cast that recently presented a minstrel entertainment here for Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows repeated the show at the Bradley theatre in Putnam with success, Wednesday evening, for Israel Putnam lodge of that city.

Carloads of water mains for the Crystal Water company were being unloaded in the local railroad yards during Thursday.

Three different drivers of automobiles were good enough to report to the police or to the owner that their machines had swerved on the icy going Wednesday night and struck a car, owned by Dr. Clarence Adams, and parked near his home on Main street.

If the arrangements can be perfected, Danielson likely will have an automobile show early in the spring.

The Bulletin's story of the prospect of the Paco Manufacturing company taking over the Main street plant of the Connecticut Mills company proved of very great interest Thursday, as forecasting the borough's industrial development.

W. T. Mullally, son-in-law of Attorney Arthur G. Bill, presided, as president of the Sphinx club, at a banquet in New York, when the advertising men who make up the Sphinx club entertained officials of the New York Telephone company.

At this time there is an obligation resting upon many Killingly citizens to pay their annual personal taxes, now due, to Attorney Louis A. Wolgard.

The Bryant and Stratton basketball team of Providence is scheduled to appear this (Friday) evening against the Killingly High school basketball team.

Dr. Elizabeth Ingraham is to speak here Saturday afternoon on Child Welfare Hygeine at an open meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange at Odd Fellows' hall, in the town hall building.

Frozen slush proved during Thursday the hardest walking to travel over that has been experienced this winter. Highways were glare ice and dangerous to drive over.

J. Carl Witter has been at Cromwell, Conn., selling a consignment of horses at auction. A set of six fine dapple grays were taken by agents of the Ringling-Barnum and Bailey circus.

It will surprise many to learn, as set forth in the Putnam news this morning, that milk from Windham county's dairy herds has an annual value of $1,078,879.

The Quinebaug Valley Circuit league is to meet at the Methodist church here this evening.

In observance of Washington's birth day the postoffice will be closed after 10.30 a. m. today and the city delivery and other service will be suspended, as is usual on holidays.

Watching things congressional at Washington, the average man is now convinced that legislation to relieve him of any part of his income tax burden is not likely to be passed prior to March 15, when returns for 1923 must be filed.

Postmasters from this territory will be in New Haven today, the 22nd, attending a meeting of postmasters of Connecticut.

DIVORCE AND $12,000 ALIMONY GRANTED MRS. T. J. CORCORAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Feb. 21.—A divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty is granted Laura B. Corcoran from Thomas J. Corcoran and Mr. Corcoran is ordered to pay alimony approximately $12,000 in a finding filed Thursday by Judge George E. Hinman of the superior court with the clerk of the court in this city. This is the largest alimony award in Windham county in years, and attorneys, out of memory, could not recall Thursday when a defendant in a divorce case tried in this county has been required to pay such a large sum.

The Corcorans were prominent residents of Putnam for a number of years. Mrs. Corcoran is now making her home with her mother in Hartford, while Mr. Corcoran, formely agent of the Fench River Textile company plant at Mechanicsville, is engaged in the mill business at Monson, Mass. The divorce case was tried in the superior court at Willimantic last week Friday. Mr. Corcoran was present in court and was represented by counsel, but did not oppose the granting of the divorce, nor did he accept an opportunity to testify, though given the opportunity.

The alimony provisions in the case are set forth, with other matters pertaining to the action, in the following memorandum filed by Judge Hinman, in passing on the case.

The evidence by and on behalf of the plaintiff, standing as it does, uncontradicted, is sufficient to entitle her to a divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty. The defendant, although present at the trial and even invited by the court to testify as to the merits, chose to leave uncontradicted and unexplained the charges made by the plaintiff. It is a fair inference therefrom that these charges are in substance true and further that, as the plaintiff claims, the defendant's treatment of her was, at least to some extent, actuated by a desire and intent to compel her to separate from and divorce him. His sole concern as manifested here pertains to the amount of alimony to be assigned to her. This attitude can not reasonably be expected to commend itself to the discretion vested in the court as to such award.

Judgment may enter for the plaintiff for a divorce on the ground of intolerable cruelty. Alimony is assigned in the amount of $6,000, payable within 60 days (it being suggested that in lieu of cash the equity in the Putnam house and furniture—the value of which was agreed upon as $6,000—may, if mutually agreed upon, be transferred to the plaintiff) and, in addition, $100 per month, payable monthly for five years from date; provided that the defendant may, within one year, pay the sum of $5,000, in lieu of all said periodical payments which would otherwise accrue after such payment.

HINMAN, Judge.

The Corcoran home on Center street, this city, with its furnishings, has been under attachment for months, pending the trial and disposition of Mrs. Corcoran's divorce action. It is agreed that at quick sale about $11,000 or $12,000 would be realized on the house and its furnishings. There is a mortgage of $5,000 on the property. It is evident, therefore, from the stipulations set forth in Judge Hinman's finding that should Mr. Corcoran decide to allow Mrs. Corcoran to take over the property he will be released from all alimony provisions other than the one requiring him to pay $100 a month for the next five years, or in lieu thereof, cancel the monthly payments by paying his former wife $5,000 within a year.

Incident to the Purebread Bull campaign of the Windham County Farmers' association, County Agent Frank L. Davis has prepared the following interesting statement relative to the dairy herds of the county and what is being done with them.

Although the 10,483 dairy cows of milking age in Windham county produced wealth to the amount of $1,078,879 in the form of milk, cream, butter and cheese, in the last census year, 1919, there remains much room for improvement, according to authorities on dairying.

Measured by the standard of other dairy sections, Windham county cows are quite somewhat below par. Average annual production, according to the census is 3,431.4 pounds of milk. The state average is 4,128 pounds. New Haven county, which leads Connecticut in the quality of its dairy cows, has an annual average production of 4,623 pounds.

Officers of the Windham County Farmers' association have been doing a little investigating in an effort to discover why this million dollar industry falls below the standard for other counties in the state. To all appearance Windham county farmers are just as intelligent and as progressive as any other farmers in Connecticut; the trouble seems to be that they milk poor cows.

As dairy experts figure that the modern dairy cow must produce at least 5,000 or perhaps even 5,500 pounds of milk in a year at present prices to pay for the expensive grain, high cost of labor and other items, and return a small profit, it is evident that at 3,431.4 pounds of milk the average Windham county cow is hardly worth the doubtful pleasure of milking her. What, then, is the answer to this low production?

Part of the trouble, it is agreed, is due to the fact that within recent years the custom of buying cows rather than raising them has taken hold. The high cost of grain and other feeds has made it more expensive to raise calves. Cows for replacement come largely from Vermont, New York, Wisconsin and other states that produce surplus animals. The quality of these animals seems steadily to be getting poorer, although the prices are high.

A very large share of the difficulty seems to lie with the kind of calves that are raised at home. Of the 491 bulls of service age in Windham county, a high percentage are of non-descript breeding and can be classed only as "scrubs."

The solution, lies, according to County Agent Frank L. Davis, in getting rid of scrub bulls, replacing them with purebred animals with bloodlines showing high production ability, and in raising the best heifer calves. There are many dairy farms in Windham county where the average annual milk production is two and some cases even three times that of the present county average. Without exception these are farms where purebred bulls have been kept and where heifer calves have been raised at home.

Dancing Washington's night at Danielson armory. All welcome. Tues., Mar. 4, big free dance.—adv.

The Windham County Farmers' association is beginning a campaign to rid the county of scrub bulls and to induce their owners to buy good purebreds. Help will be given any farmer in the selection of the right kind of purebred bull. A similar campaign conducted in New London county, beginning last summer, has already resulted in replacing more than fifty scrub bulls with purebreds. If the campaign proves as successful here, there is every reason to believe that the dairy industry in Windham county can be made more profitable.

The five days' notice requirement notwithstanding, occasionally a Massachusetts couple continues to come across the border into Connecticut to be married. Few of them vouchsafe any reason for leaving their home towns to enter into the matrimonial state. They just come, file their intention, get a marriage license in due time, get married and go away. Putnam is their Gretna Green.

The latest of these marriages concerns Miss Priscilla Lamoureaux and Philip A. Whalen, each 29, and both residents of Clinton, Mass. They were married here Thursday morning by Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald, acting as a justice of the peace. It was a first marriage for each.

Owen J. White of Woodstock, now teaching at Newington Center, will come to Putnam as principal of the Israel Putnam school, at a salary of $1600, succeeding John J. O'Brien, who will conclude his duties here about March 7. This was made known Thursday, when Mr. White's acceptance was received, following a special meeting of the town school committee at which it was voted to offer him the appointment.

Mr. White is a graduate of Woodstock academy, studied at Clark college, Worcester, later taught in Sterling, this state, and was an instructor at the Kelley summer camp in Eastford. Since September, 1922, he has been principal of a school at Newington Center.

Woodstock and Pomfret were the Windham county towns that were getting the once over Thursday from representatives of the department of domestic animals of Hartford and Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer. Violations of the dog laws were being looked up, and the investigations of Thursday will result in some court appearances today (Friday.) The activites n Pomfret and Woodstock are in line with what the officers have been doing the past two weeks in other towns in Windham county, where too many people flout the dog laws, only to pay heavily for doing so sooner or later.

A date early in March has been set for the annual concert and ball of the Putnam fire department.

Of special interest is the fact that Reuben Maples of Grand View passed his 96th birthday this week. He is one of the oldest men in the county.

Motors on trolley cars on some runs on the Putnam divson were damaged in buckling the storm that the service battled against during Wednesday, but excepting in the early morning hours cars ran on regular schedule during Thursday.

Clarence Webster, who has been seriously ill at his home here for some time, remains in a critcal conditon.

The Day Kimball hospital is caring for close to a capacity number of patients at this tme.

Sidney W. Bard, lay reader, of Brooklyn and Danielson, is to read the Sunday morning service at St. Philp's church in this city.

Many flags will fly in the city today, Washington's birthday, observed as a holiday by the postoffice and banks.

Members of the League of Women Voters held a meeting at the chamber of commerce Thursday afternoon.

Misses Elizabeth and Katherine Byrne and Ethel Tourtellotte of this city will assist in giving the program at the meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange at Odd Fellows' hall in Danielson Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Albert Mione and daughter, Eva, were Worcester visitors Thursday.

GOSHEN

A. B. Kenyon recently lost one of a pair of valuable farm horses.

The funerals of Nathan J. Kenyon was held from his home Tuesday at 2 o'clock. There was a large attendance of neighbors, friends and relatives. The service was conducted by Rev. W. D. Hetherington of Preston City. Mrs. E. L. Waterman sang Softly Now the Light of Day. E. L. Waterman, Alvin Fargo, John Lillie and Samuel Perkins were bearers. Burial was in the family plot in Johnson cemetery. The larger part of the long and useful life of over four score years of Mr. Kenyon was spent in Lebanon (Goshen) on the Ephraim Clark place, on the Scott Hill road. Mr. Kenyon was a kind neighbor and was ever ready to help those in distress. In politics he was a democrat and had held offices of trust of the township.

The severe storm, a combination of snow, rain and sleet, with the cold northeast wind, made Wednesday's storm the worst of the winter, a reminder that there is time enough yet for six weeks' sleighing in March.

ANDOVER

The Girls' League took in $20 at their supper last week. There were about 60 present. The girls were well pleased with their success.

The grange held a meeting Monday night in the hall. A lunch was served.

The Men's club plans to hold a public whist. The women have been requested to bring a box lunch.

There will be a dance in the town hall given by Cecil Smith.

Most of the icehouses in town are filled with 14 and 15-inch ice.

NEW CONCESSION FOR THE COUNTESS OF CARNARVON

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 21. (By the A. P.)—The Egyptian government has granted the Countess of Carnarvon a new concession for excavations at Tutankheamen's tomb, according to information from a responsible quarter today.

(This, it seems probable, would permit the resumption of work at the tomb by Howard Carter, who has been acting for the countess.)

The new concession prepared by the minister of works is understood to be in precise terms, permitting of no misinterpretation, which was one of the complaints regarding the old agreement.

The Egyptian government, it is explained, having established its dignity in circumstances which it considered to call for decisive action, is now willing for a peaceful solution of the disagreeable episode, which nobody deplores more than the government, it is asserted.

FORMER PROBATIONARY PATROLMEN SENTENCED

New York, Feb. 21.—Michael Burke, former probationary patrolman and one-time saloonkeeper, today was sentenced to Sing Sing prison for three to six years for the theft of $26,000 which he and Patrick Twomey, another ex-policeman, had collected from 18 fellow members of the force, promising to use it in influencing the municipal civil service commission to promote the 18 to sergeancies.

In cold countries where snow prevails during a long winter many animals change the hue of their coats to a white tint. The case of the weasel is especially curious: it retains its brown coat until the first snow appears, and then whitens in a few hours.

Diseases traced to constipation are many —get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

Why does constipation breed other diseases? Because it floods your system with dangerous poisons. And the longer you suffer, the more poisons accumulate. That is why constipation should be relieved at once.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. They know it brings results because it is ALL bran. And only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective in relieving constipation.

ALL bran — Kellogg's — sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts as nature acts. It makes the intestine function naturally and regularly. If eaten regularly, it will bring permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation—is guaranteed to do so or your grocer returns your money.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will like the wonderful Kellogg flavor—so crisp and nut-like—so different from ordinary brans, which are most unpalatable.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. And by all means try it in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

FIGHTING FOR THE CHILDREN.

Possibly the temper of most of the country is indicated by the fact that there is something like a score of measures which have been submitted to congress with the idea in view of securing a child labor amendment to the Constitution of the United States. That these vary considerably is to be expected, but there is an unmistakable demand for the restrictions on child labor that would thus be obtained and that were aimed at by the child labor law that was adopted and declared to be unconstitutional.

Instead of endeavoring to proceed in violation of the Constitution the proper course is being adopted in seeking the amendment. Attention will be and of course has been directed to the fact that there are states which have laws at the present time that accomplish just as much as the proposed amendment, based upon the law that was declared illegal. The fact is that it is not such states that make the amendment desirable. Were it a fact that all states took the same view of the situation that has been taken in those instances there would have been no clamor for a federal child labor law, there would have been no legislation for the supreme court to declare illegal and there would not now be a cry for changing the Constitution so that the necessary protective measures may be applied.

The good that has been done in states which have commendable child labor laws is not to be disregarded. It is evident, however, that the good example thus set has not had the needed effect upon others, and it is because there is slight prospect that conditions which ought to be overcome will ever feel the benefit of similar legislation through state efforts that demands for federal action persists.

Hard labor during long hours is what the opponents of child labor are endeavoring to stop. The child has rights that ought to get more attention and respect than they do at the present time. Federal action is the logical course if deplorable conditions are to be overcome and the children of certain states given similar opportunities to those in others.

MENTAL DEFECTIVES.

Time and again the country is shocked at the frightful murder stories that are reported, and even more so over the fact that the person responsible for such deeds is too often some member of the family who is mentally irresponsible.

The latest of these comes from St. Petersburg, Fla., where a son, suffering apparently from a religious mania, shot and killed his father and mother while they slept, while a year ago he caused the death of his two sisters by throwing a pailful of gasoline on their bed and setting it afire.

According to the statements of the young man he suffered from "busy" spells at different times and it seems impossible to believe that his mental difficulties were not known to the family. It was not a case where he had suddenly displayed the indications of brain trouble, but was one of those instances where it must have been known that he was not right, yet nothing had been done to correct his trouble or to see that he was placed where he would do no harm to others or himself.

In this instance it was the family of the young man who became the victims. Too often it is the case that the public is subjected to just such a menace through overconfidence in the belief that there is no danger involved in the unrestrained activities of the mental defectives.

No one can be desirous of forcing others to the restrictions of an institution, but there cannot be overlooked the importance of getting for them the best possible treatment at the earliest moment or of giving protection to others. In the Florida case there seemingly was a willingness to take chances. The mania for killing was not overcome and instead of two deaths the failure to provide the treatment his case clearly called for has resulted in the wiping out of four members of the family.

The menace of the mental defective may be great or small, but for the good of all concerned it ought to be determined and adequately dealt with before other lives are needlessly sacrificed.

OPIUM PRODUCTION.

When it is found after a careful study of the requirements, that there is produced six times as much opium as is needed for medical and scientific purposes, it must be appreciated that the most effective fight against the use of narcotic drugs must come from efforts aimed at the reduction of opium production.

That might be an easy problem, were it a fact that a greater regard existed in the production areas for the havoc that opium causes and a corresponding desire prevailed to put a stop to it. Opium is produced for the purpose of supplying the demand, and that demand is five-sixths for needless purposes, but till opium production can be supplanted by equally remunerative work or until it is stopped or restricted by law, it can be expected that it will continue to be produced and to find its way into the hands of those who care nothing for the demoralization of humanity so long as they get their dollars.

When nations join hands in their endeavor to place a check upon the flood of opium that is produced they are engaged in a highly commendable undertaking. If 500 tons are all that is required to meet the medical and scientific needs of the world the sooner the production can be cut to that point the better. The problem is to get the countries where it is produced to appreciate the need of making such restrictions. There are reasons to anticipate some good will develop from the concerted action that is planned by the health organization of the league of nations in attacking this very thing. Efforts that have been made to exclude opium except upon payment of taxes, and also restricting its sale have given some protection, but the illegal traffic in the drug is enormous, and because it is in violation of the law it is profitable.

For the proper safeguarding of those who have not come under the influence, or the reclaiming of those who have, there cannot be too successful or too prompt results obtained in the cutting of the production. When there is produced no more than is legitimately demanded the horrors accompanying dope using will be effectively dispelled.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Throughout the country today there will be an observance of the birthday anniversary of George Washington. The first president of this government stands out as a leader, a courageous defender, a patriot and a statesman. His career was an inspiration that has never ceased to stand as an example before the nation, and though he was the leader chosen at the launching of the government there is no chance that he will be forgotten. The years that have passed since his administrations have only served to increase the admiration for his services.

Washington gave much advice which has been frequently quoted and employed in the past century and a quarter. In his farewell address, among other things, he placed much stress upon our relations with other nations. He said:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concern. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships and enmities.

"Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interests, guided by justice, shall counsel."

ENFORCEMENT WITH GUNS.

Discharging deadly weapons in the streets of a city or in the neighborhood of buildings is exceedingly dangerous. There is no telling who or what may be the object hit. This is of course true whether the gun is in the hand of a criminal, an official or a person out for pleasure.

The shooting of United States Senator Greene of Vermont while on his way to his home in Washington is an instance of just what is liable to happen when the authorities employ the use of firearms in the chasing of law breakers. There is naturally a desire that those who not only violate the law, but who defy the enforcers of the law should be brought to justice. There are conditions under which a person who is a good shot might be justified in firing at fleeing criminals, but when there is a possibility that such a shot may take the life of an innocent person it is far preferable that the law breaker should get away than to end the life of another.

Much resentment and indignation have been aroused over the shooting down of the senator, and with reason. It is not to be thought that lawless methods will be employed even in seeking the lawless, and the prospects are good that no further efforts of that kind will feature the activity of the enforcement authorities in the national capital. The law needs to be upheld in all respects. Enforcement is necessary if laws are going to amount to anything but it doesn't justify shooting so that the innocent are made the targets, especially when self defense is not involved.

GENTLE STRATEGY

(The girl with the scintillating golden hat speaks over the telephone.)

"Hello, Mr. Regan. That you, Jim? Guess whos speaking.

"You bet. How j'a guess? Say Jim, listen. Guess what I phoned you for.

"Oh, fly away, birdie. You got a grand line and everything, but any time you get away with that stuff—you layin' awake nights wondering why I can't give you a ring.

"You bet! But, say, Jim, listen. Honest, guess what I phoned you for.

Say, you make a noise like a radio. Station S.M.P., K.N.U.T. Nothing upstairs. Give one guess.

"Honest? Well, say, Jim, lookut. Some the—you know—girls—M'ree 'n Est'er and them—wanted me to phone you and I says sure it was all right with me and everything—

And say, kid, listen! We was—you know—going to pull off a, maybe, movie party and all tomorrow night and then go over to M'ree's place and play the phonograph and dance and have some eats and everything and the—you know—girls and them thought you'd maybe horn in along with the rest of the guys.

"But say, Jim, listen. I couldn's never 'a' thought I'd oughta ask you, seeing what I heard about you last evening, only some of the—you know—girls M'ree and Est'er and them—wanted me to.

"Who said I said her? I bet I never.

"But, say, Jim, lookut. I bet you'd think I was—you know—nuts if I was to tell you and everything, seeing how it ain't any affairs of mine and everything.

"Say, you're crazy to know, ain't you?

"Oh, apple sauce! It wasn't nothin' much of anything, anyway. Only some of my friends phoned me last evening and we was just exchanging casualties and all over the phone and they passed some remark like you was — you know — some sheik and everything and how they seen you out in your fly with some nifty queen and everything."

"Oh, real kinda recently. Maybe a couple nights back or maybe just two.

"Well, say, Jim, listen. My friends that told me didn't have no more thoughts — honest, they didn't — only seeing what a marvelous queen you was with and everything—

"Your sister? Well, good night Say, Jim, lookut. I certainly will pan M'ree plenty next time I see her.

"Sure, it was her. But, say, Jim, listen. I don't know as you would call it making trouble between you and I, seeing that you're perfectly free to go with who you want to go with, see?

"But how about your sis and you hitchin' up to the movie party tomorrow night and then sashayin' over to M'ree's and every thing?

"I bet she has. Such a marvelous looking queen! But, how about her and you and her sweetie and some other—you know—Jane?

"Well, I don't know as I'll even go to the movie. Maybe I'll just beat it over to M'ree's and help her ma make the sandwiches and everything. I don't know as I want to—you know—go so awful much to the movies—all the girls havin' their sweeties and everything and me not havin' no special company or anything.

"Arn't you grand? But, say, Jim, listen. I bet you're just askin' me because you got a hunch I ain't got no—you know—company to go with or anything. I bet you're just crazy to ask some swell-lookin' queen—

"Honest, Jim? Ain't you the swellest ever! You bet I will then!

"Honest, Jim? You bet I would! I'm kinda sick of the movies anyway. I'd a whole pile rather go ridin' if it's a real kind of a nice evening than what I would go to a movie. And, say, Jim, listen! We can go to M'ree's after we come back if we come back in time, and even if we don't get back in time the girls and them won't get sore if we don't go to M'ree's or anything, so we don't need to beat it back in such a awful hurry.

"Honest, Jim? Ain't you swell? Well, bye-bye, kid. You be good now! See you tomorrow night!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't Let Gas and Electric Plant Slip Away.

Mr. Editor: In your issue of February 9th, I read a message purporting to come from the gas and electric commissioners that really stirred my ire. It betokens the white feather on their part and I am chagrined at such an intimation.

The most commendable achievement of former Mayor Thayer during his long official capacity was the accession of the gas and electric plant to the city of Norwich.

Water and light are the two fundamental and indispensable factors of all civic or municipal bodies, with the inherent right of management.

Who can compute it any part of a compliment to the board of commissioners to be open to proposals from any private corporation for the purchase or control of the wisely secured plant, or any part of it? Has it become a fact that the city of Norwich, denominated the "Rose of New England," can't produce sufficient competence to manage its own utilities? The message of the commission indicates that predicament. But I am loath to believe that the citizens and taxpayers will ever think of or consent to the disposal or lease of any of its municipal utilities that compose the dominating municipal wealth which is the coveted possession of private corporations.

The very fact of the approach of the Eastern Power company with a proposition to purchase or lease, or to supply the city with light, is convincing to any alert mind that they covet such an opportunity. If the citizens and taxpayers half appreciate the service they are now getting, and with having individual requests granted without stint, they will never consent to delegate its management to any power whose interest is summed up in fat salaries and large surpluses.

Fellow citizens and taxpayers of Norwich, don't be inveigled into any sophistry of that purpose. Be your own masters and managers of what you have and use as much of the product, or as little, as you please. Even if it does cost more to produce it than for private corporations, that is to be expected. But you are getting it at your own cost, with no contributory profits to outsiders.

Municipal management is always more liberal than private corporation or individual management. It's worth something to be independent of any restraint upon the use of essentials. With annual increase of inhabitants, we must expect to keep pace with requirements in lights as well as water.

It would seem possible after so many years of practical experience in electrical plants to find men competent to operate the Norwich plant on a sustaining basis. Yet it is possible that extravagance and waste may be the dominating factors in producing a deficit every year.

It might be well to adopt the plan the town did, back in the '80s, when the town jax crawled yearly till it reached eight mills with a recommendation to the next town meeting to vote a ten-mill tax. But, in lieu of any vote, the Hon. David A. Wells, E. Winslow Williams, Sr., and the Hon. Henry Bill were chosen as a committee to investigate town affairs and report at a future meeting a rate necessary to meet all town expenses. They performed their task and reported that a six-mill tax was sufficient for all legitimate purposes, and it was voted. With a change of managers the tax gradually went down to five mills and we were building a bridge somewhere in the town every year, with the well remembered James A. Brown at the head of the department.

Some of you may know where to look for such a committee competent to scrutinize city gas and electric affairs—I don't. But don't let the old treasures slip away from us, surplus or no surplus.

NEW BOOKS

The Furthest Fury. By Carolyn Wells. Cloth, 320 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

This is another Fleming Stone detective story by the author who has made such an excellent impression with her mystery novels.

When Nevin Lawrence and his widowed sister are found murdered by the same hand, there is no clue save the smashed fragments of an exquisite Tanagra figure. And since both have been unusually well liked in the quiet country village in which they have been living for some time, local detectives are unable to establish a motive. Suspicion finally rests upon young Barker Hasleton, who had quarreled with Lawrence on the "wet" issue. Because of a secret errand of conciliation on the night of the crime, Gladys Lee, Barker's fiancee, is also involved. She finally persuades the elder Hasleton to send for Fleming Stone, who after a long still hunt finds in a trifling occurrence the cue that unravels the mystery.

The Furthest Fury is a novel that will delight the admirers of Carolyn Wells. It combines her gift for spinning the rapid complications of a detective story plot with her equally famous touch of humor in the frank curiosity of the boarding house across the way and the efforts of its volunteer detectives to furnish the latest sensation.

The Personal Relation in Industry. By John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Cloth, 149 pages. Published by Boni & Liveright, New York. Price $1.75.

In this volume Mr. Rockefeller has published a number of addresses that have been made on various occasions relative to industrial relations, and because Mr. Rockefeller has taken the position that he has makes the viewpoints expressed all the more interesting. It is well that these addresses have been combined in one volume.

It is the statement of Mr. Rockefeller that the chief cause of industrial unrest is the fact that capital does not strive to view various questions from the viewpoint of labor, and that labor does not endeavor to look through the eyes of capital. He favors a general recognition that the purpose of industry is quite as much for the advancement of social well being as for the production of wealth. He insists that closer cooperation and understanding, instead of antagonism, between capital and labor is the only solution of industrial troubles and urges industrial representation as the method to bring about this good will. He describes in an interesting way the system of employe representation which was inaugurated by the Colorado Fuel & Iron company following its harsh labor fight and points to the good results.

The book deals with present day problems in a straightforward and instructive manner.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rt. Rev. Theodore N. Morrison, who celebrates his episcopal silver jubilee today, is bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Iowa and one of the most widely known prelates of his denomination. Bishop Morrison is a native of Illinois, born at Ottawa in that state, in 1850. He was destined for the church at birth, being the son of a well known clergyman. The future bishop received his A. B. degree from Illinois college, at Jacksonville, in 1870. Three years later he was graduated from the General Theological Seminary, New York, being ordained the same year as deacon and three years later as priest. For nearly 25 years, from 1876 until his elevation to the bishopric, Dr. Morrison filled the pulpit of the Church of the Epiphany in Chicago. He was elected head of the Iowa diocese in 1898 and was consecrated on February 22 of the following year.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE AMUR

The Amur region of Siberia, reported to have set up an independent "white" government since the death of the Russian leader, Nikolai Lenine, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

'The Amur Province, which takes its name from the Amur river, one of the great streams of the world," says the bulletin, "furnished an important and adventurous chapter in the great epic of Russia's advance eastward to the Pacific—an advance ranking, in its influence on world history, along side the push of other Europeans to the Western world.

"The search for more furs was the particular sort of trade that led Russian adventurers into Asia, and eventually took the banner of St. Andrew there is a reversal of the popular idea that 'trade follows the flag.' Adventurers began feeling their way into Siberia from the Urals during the century after America was discovered. Pushing their way eastward was not easy in the western half of Siberia because the drainage was all accross their route and many broad rivers were encountered. But once past Lake Baikal they soon reached the headwaters of the Amur, and found nature an ally instead of an enemy. For the seventeen hundred or more miles of the river's length extend predominately east and west; and once on its current the pioneers found it possible to reach the far distant Pacific in a matter of weeks. The Amus then, became the great highway for Russian migration in the centuries to follow.

"For a time after the early exploration of the Amur, a treaty with China and wars in Europe brought Russian activities in far eastern Siberia to a standstill, but from about the middle of the nineteenth century onward development was rapid, and in that development the Amur river long played a role like that of our Mississippi in the development of our 'first west.' Large, well appointed steamboats were placed in service on the stream, and travelers could go in comfort for half the year where a short while before only the crudest facilities were available. Little settlements and a few important towns sprang up on the Russian side of the river, largely in the Amur Province of which the stream marks the southern boundary for some 750 miles.

"Across the Amur to the south lies China, or rather Manchuria, which, before the World war, was being rapidly Russianized. Still, the river there is truly an international line, and this was proved, if by nothing else, by the extensive smuggling that went on across it.

"The Amur Province is in the same latitude as Newfoundland and has a climate that in some ways is comparable to the climate of that for northern American land. The winters are severe, the temperature sometimes falling to 40 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. The summers, however, are hot and at times the thermometer climbs to above the 100 mark. The country has extensive forest-covered hills which extend in many places down to the Amur. Other parts of the river's banks, however, are plains originally covered with thickets which have now been cleared away. The soil has proved rich and well adapted to grain growing and to sustaining a verdant growth of grass.

"When the Siberian railway was pushed through at the end of the nineteenth century and the gigantic 'cut-off' was made through Manchuria, it set things back on the Amur for a while. But after the Russo-Japanese war, Russia's hold on Manchuria was weakened and the empire began building the western half of the great railroad just north of the Amur where it would be entirely on Muscovite territory. Tremendous hardships were encountered in traversing bogs and forests and crossing great rivers; but the job was about completed when the World war broke out. This long stretch of railway paralleling the Amur from 50 to 75 miles north of it is one of the most valuable assets of any government that may be set up in the Amur region.

"Blagoveshchensk, on the middle Amur, and connected with the Amur railway by a branch line, is the metropolis of the province, a town of about 45,000 inhabitants. Spread out along the river bank, with its spires and domes showing against the skyline, it makes an imposing appearance to the traveler on the river, especially since it contrasts so noticeably with the little river towns. Across the river is a Chinese town known locally as Sakalin, but appearing under numerous aliases on the maps. Many of Sakalin's inhabitants, too, have their aliases, for it is a haven for smugglers.

"The Amur Province is some 650 miles long, and its greatest width is 340 miles. Its 154,000 square miles of area give it a size close to that of California."

Stories That Recall Others

"Wires" Crossed Too.

A radio outfit was placed in a church for an entertainment to raise money for the church. While the audience sat expectantly, the first number came through the air. It was, "I've got a Cross-eyed Papa But He Looks Straight to Me." The operator tuned in again, and the next offering was "Baby Needs a New Pair of Shoes."

One More Noodle, Please.

Little John had been eating quite heartily for supper, so at that meal his mother planned to make his food light. Therefore his bowl of soup consisted of a few noodles and much broth.

He looked at it intently for a moment, then turned toward his mother, saying in a disgusted voice, "Mother, I'd like another noodle."

RECEPTION AND LUNCHEON FOR ELKS IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 21—Presentation of an oil painting of the Hampden county memorial bridge, the work of John J. La Velley, of this city, to James G. McFarland, of Watertown, S. D., grand exalted ruler of the Elks, was a feature of a reception and luncheon to the head of the order and his attending officers given here today by members of the order representing lodges throughout the western part of the state. Mr. McFarland and his suite came here from Providence, R. I., and will go from here to Hartford, Conn., later in the day.

Six one-armed men were among those who took out hunting licenses this season in Venango county, Pennsylvania. All are said to be crack shots.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

ALLEN'S LUNG HEALER SENT TO FRANCE

To Save a Lynn Boy From Consumption.

Did It Do It? Here Is the Doughboy's Own Statement.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 27, 1919.

I have used Allen's Lung Healer for several years for colds and coughs and always found it very effective. I had a cold when I entered the army, which stuck to me in spite of all I could do. After reaching France, I was under the care of army doctors for two months, but continued to get worse. The cold had developed into a severe lung cough which cut like a knife and the phlegm which I coughed up was streaked with blood. I was pretty well discouraged and wished many times for my old reliable remedy, Allen's Lung Healer. Finally I wrote to a friend in Lynn to send me two bottles by mail. When it came, I began taking it and to my great relief, I began to improve at once, and before the first bottle was gone the cough and soreness disappeared and I began to feel like a new man. I am now a well man. This statement may be hard to believe, but it can be proven by reliable witnesses.

TROTZKY WRITES OF 6TH ANNIVERSARY OF RED ARMY

Moscow, Feb., 21.—(By The A. P.)—Leon Trotzky, commissar for war, who is undergoing treatment in the Caucusus, has sent an article here on the occasion of the sixth anniversary of the Red army.

The Red army, he says, has completed two periods of three years each. The first period was characterized by military communism; in the second, the Red army was under new economic conditions, but the inner structure still remained the same, despite a certain growth of bourgeoise elements, owing to the new economic policy. The proletariat Red army, however, he declared, would only tolerate the new bourgeoise economically and would not give them political rights, still less, arms.

The international situation, in the view of M. Trotzky, is more favorable than heretofore; recognitions of the soviet follow one another, to which the Red army is paying due attention.

"The third period, upon which the Red army is now embarking," says Trotzky, "shows the necessity of its existence. The laboring masses of all countries have nothing to fear from the Red army's bayonets. Its force is only directed against oppressors and exploiters."

TWO ALARM FIRE IN CENTER OF NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Feb. 21.—A two alarm fire in the business section badly gutted the three-story building at 965 Chapel street here tonight. The fire started in the cellar from an unkown cause and made its way to the first floor occupied by the Coombs Flower Shoppe which was completely destroyed. The two upper floors, occupied by several tenants, were badly damaged by fire and water. The damage to the building and contents is estimated at $35,000.

Miss Mildred Pearson, the charming young Norwich singer, visited Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium Thursday, and from 4 to 5 sang for the patients assembled in the dining room. Henry J. La Fontaine was her accompanist.

It is suggested in the submarine base newspaper that a shelter of some kind be built just outside the main gate, on the highway for the convenience of sailors and civilians who may be waiting for the buses to New London or Norwich.

A silk wholesaler is placing on the market a new weave, the appeal of which is based on the present vogue for pleats. Made entirely of silk, the fabric is so woven that perpendicular tucks one-eighth of an inch wide are spaced equally over its surface. It is of crepe texture.

Collectors here will try for the four new commemorative Japanese wedding stamps, the first to be turned out from the partially restored Japanese government printing office at Tokio, which was practically destroyed during the recent earthquake. Their values will be 1 1-2, 3, 5 and 20 sen.

History Club Strawride.

The history club of the Norwich Free Academy, which numbers 35, enjoyed a strawride to Oxoboxo and a dance at the hall there Thursday evening. The arrangements were in charge of President Charles E. Hagberg and Treasurer Austin D. Lathrop.

The balance wheel of a watch revolves 18,000 times an hour, which means that it travels about 2,500 miles a year if constantly in use.

OBITUARY

Rev. Donald Bradford MacLane.

Word was received in this city on Thursday evening of the death of Rev. Donald Bradford MacLane of Leominster, Mass., formerly pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, and late pastor of South church, Utica, N. Y. He had been in ill health for some time and his death occurred Tuesday evening, Feb. 19.

Rev. Mr. MacLane, who was the son of the Rev. W. W. MacLane, was born Jan. 19, 1882, at Steubenville,

REV. DONALD B. MacLANE

Ohio. At the age of ten years his parents moved to New Haven, where he resided for many years. In 1903 he graduated from Yale college where he maintained such a high degree of scholarship work as to entitle him to an election to the Phi Beta Kappa society. He afterwards attended Union Theological seminary in New York city and graduated in 1906. Since graduation he had been assistant pastor in the Presbyterian church of the Sea and Land, an institutional church on the East Side, New York.

On Oct. 28, 1908, while he was pastor at Taftville, he was united in marriage with Miss Winifred Saunders of New Haven, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Saunders of 205 Sherman avenue, New Haven. The ceremony was performed by his father, then pastor of Plymouth church, New Haven.

Succeeding Rev. William Carr as pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, he entered upon his pastoral duties there on the first of February, 1908. During his pastorate he had made a host of friends in Norwich and Taftville. He was a resident in Wilbraham, Jamaica Plains, Boston, and also had a pastorate in South church, Utica, N. Y. He was an accomplished violinist.

Surviving besides his wife are one son, Saunders, and a brother, William B. MacLane, who married Miss Natalie F. Allen of Norwich, now residing in Texas. A daughter, Lois, died a number of years ago.

John F. McMahon

John F. McMahon of No. 1963 Park street, Hartford, died Thursday at St. Francis hospital in that city. He was born in Norwich, a son of Edward and the late Minnie (Counihan) McMahon. He leaves his wife, Elizabeth (O'Connor) McMahon; one son, John F. McMahon, Jr.; two daughters, Virginia and Elizabeth McMahon; his father, Edward McMahon; one brother, Edward McMahon; two sisters, Miss Mary McMahon, all of Hartford and Mrs. Annie Mason of Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. McMahon was employed by the Fuller Brush company.

Mrs. Robert D. W. Knowlton.

Mrs. Geraldine Knowlton, 71, wife of Robert D. W. Knowlton, died at her home in West Ashford Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Knowlton was born in England January 1, 1853, a daughter of James and Margaret Cole. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, James M. Sunderland of West Ashford, a grandson, Ralph Sunderland, a nephew, Arthur Wood, and a niece, Mrs. Mary Simonds both of Gurleyville.

FUNERALS

Clarence Avery DeWolf.

The funeral of Clarence A. DeWolf of Hallville, whose death was caused from asphyxiation at his home in the Hallville section of Preston Sunday night or Monday morning, was held Thursday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of Cummings and Ring, many relatives and friends attending. There was a profusion of floral tributes testifying to the high esteem in which he was held by his many friends who learned of his death with sorrow. Mr. DeWolf was devoted to his children and was well liked by those with whom he came in contact.

Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford, pastor of St. James Episcopal church, conducted the service and read a committal service at the vault in Maplewood cemetery where the body was placed to await burial in the family plot in Gardner cemetery. The bearers were Frank Smith, Frank Smith, Jr., E. Cates and John McChanoc.

PRESTON FARM HAND DROPS DEAD IN ROAD

Andrew Gibson, 57 years of age, and a native of Scotland dropped dead from heart disease on the roadway in North Stonington Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock. Dr. Thurman P. Main, medical examiner for the town of North Stonington, gave permission for their removal to the undertaker's rooms.

Mr. Gibson came from his native city, Glasgow, Scotland, when a young man and most of his life had been spent in Preston. He was employed as a farm hand and was a member of the Preston City Baptist church. As far as is known he has no relatives.

PRESENT WINTER SAVES CITY MUCH IN SNOW CLEANING COST

The appearance of employes of the street department with motor trucks to clear up snow from the streets on Thursday, the first time that it has been necessary this winter for Street Commissioner A. E. Cruthers to order out the men for this work, was a reminder how much less the snow and ice will cost the city this year than it did last season.

In the street commissioner's summary of the work last winter, made in his report to the common council, it was shown that the battle with ice and snow last winter began on Dec 8 and continued without interruption until practically the middle of March. In that time, the street commissioner's reports for December, January, February and March show that a total of 130 men were employed for 221 days in clearing snow and ice at a cost of $9,181.89. This year the expense for removal of snow and ice will be but a fraction of that cost.

In December, 1923, there were 19 men employed for 19 days at a cost of $1,621.37. January showed 34 men employed for a time that represented 32 days at a cost of $3,399.49. February came along with 54 men under employment on the snow and ice job for a total of 56 days and a cost of $2,274.75, while March ended the work with 33 men working for 14 days at a cost of $1,986.28.

In January and February last year, according to the street commissioner's report, the fall of snow and sleet was so continuous that the cleaning and carting of snow, with sanding, constituted all the work that the street department could do, outside of collection of garbage and ashes from all districts, outside work and care of city barn. The expenses due to snow and ice were charged to unexpended balances of all other accounts.

AUTOMOBILE BURNS ON MONTVILLE ROAD

A twin-six Packard automobile owned by A. V. Van Buren of New York and driven by his chauffeur was totally destroyed late Thursday afternoon on the New London-Norwich road near Montville when it took fire and was soon consumed. The machine was being driven to Norwich to be delivered to Henry A. Vignot who was to purchase the car. When near Montville the machine back-fired and almost immediately was a blazing mass. Passing motorists stopped and did all they could to subdue the flames but were unable to save the machine or its contents which included two grips containing personal belongings. The chauffeur of the machine in trying to get out the grips had his hands severely burned.

COSTLY TO MAIL OFFICE RECORDS

President Stanley H. Ballard of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce has announced the appointment of a special committee made up of representative business men to make a study of the present postal laws with the ultimate purpose of asking the Connecticut representatives in congress to work for a revision of the postal laws regarding the shipment by mail of so-called obsolete or inactive records and papers. Under the present postal laws packages of old office papers and records of transactions can only be shipped as first-class mail matters or by express, with the result that the yearly mail bill of Connecticut business has been somewhat out of proportion to the value of the papers and records. The purpose of the study of the postal laws is to work out an amendment providing for the shipment of such papers by parcel post.

The personnel of the postal committee is as follows: F. S. Beveridge, secretary, Fuller Brush company, Hartford; Frank P. Furlong, vice president, Hartford Aetna National bank, Hartford; F. G. Hughes, industrial executive, New Departure Manufacturing company, Bristol; R. W. Myers, secretary, Aetna Casualty & Surety company, Hartford; George R. Porter, purchasing agent, Colt Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing company, Hartford; Daniel A. Read, assistant secretary, Travelers Insurance company, Hartford.

In the development of Connecticut business a number of concerns have opened branch offices in various parts of the country. From time to time these branch offices return to the main offices in this state for permanent filing and safe-keeping old records and papers such as bills of lading, vouchers, affidavits, dispositions, etc. These obsolete papers are shipped by express or as first class mail matter, and the work of the state chamber's committee will be to consider this phase of mail shipment.

It is hoped to get congress to differentiate between packages of letters or records which are mailed for the purpose of carrying a message, and old papers of a similar kind which are merely transferred from one office to another for permanent storage and possible future reference. If this can be done it will mean a large saving each year to Connecticut business on its mail bill.

Visited Rotary Meeting

C. A. Gager, S. B. Palmer and C. W. Taggart, Norwich Rotarians, were visitors in New London Thursday at the club meeting of the organization there.

ROTARIANS HAVE ROYAL TIME AT JEWETT CITY

The thriving little community of Jewett City which nestles among the hills at the confluence of the majestic Quinebaug and the more simple Pachaug was visited Thursday evening by fifty members of the Norwich Rotary club who were the guests of the five members of the club who either claim this community as their home or place of business. The five members of the club who were the "cohosts" for the evening were Grosvenor Ely, Arthur M. Brown, Alex McNicol, Lewis M. Carpenter and Joseph C. Worth. The occasion of the party was the celebrating of the birthday of Grosvenor Ely, who while not giving out his exact age has seen enough summers fly past to make him a legal voter.

The Rotarians were entertained at the Ashland club and to say that each and every one had a good time is putting it very mildly—it was a "whale" of a time and the co-hosts proved royal entertainers. The party went by automobile to Jewett City and on their arrival the Ashland club was thrown open to them and they took immediate possession, and from the arrival of the first guest until the last had said good night there was not a dull moment.

At 7 o'clock Arthur M. Brown who acted as chairman and toastmaster announced that supper was served, in the assembly hall of the club. At a table prettily decorated with the national colors and Washington birthday favors a delicious chicken pie supper was soon made to disappear. The menu which was as follows was served by the young ladies of the Ashland club under the direction of Mrs. P. W. Chase:

Chicken Pie
Mashed Potatoe Mashed Turnip
Celery Creamed Onions Olives
Ice Cream
Small Cakes Cigars
Coffee

Just at the conclusion of the supper a large birthday cake on which were 25 lighted candles, only 25 because there was no room for more, was brought in and placed in front of Toastmaster Brown. Mr. Brown in his usual eloquent manner presented the cake to Grosvenor Ely, delicately refraining from mentioning the age of the recipient. Mr. Ely gracefully accepted the cake and straighway ordered it to be served to the guests. Hardly before Mr. Ely had recovered from his first surprise, L. M. Carpenter presented him a beautiful bouquet of carnations, the gift of the Ashland Cotton Co. Again Mr. Ely was forced to make a speech which he did with becoming modesty. For the third time Mr. Ely was called upon to stand and this time Alex McNicol presented a fountain pen to Mr. Ely, and for the third time a speech of acceptance was forthcoming.

Toastmaster Brown welcomed the Rotarians to Jewett City, referring to the founders of the community and saying that their spirit welcomed the Rotarians to the community. Charles A. Saxton, president of the Rotary club, responded saying that it was indeed a pleasure to be the guests of the Jewett City members.

The program of entertainment began with a clever and interesting French monologue by Mathew Exley who was also heard in a number of French and Irish recitations during the evening. Following this the members of the club adjourned to the bowling alleys where a match game between the single men and the married men was rolled, the benedicts showing their superior skill by winning 490 to 370. Frank P. Welch, however, redeemed the bachelors by taking the individual honors with a high string of 100.

After the bowling match there was a tour of the Ashland Cotton Co., mill which was exceptionally interesting as the mill was in full operation. Supt. Brown conducted the tour and explained the various operations of the cotton industry as he went along.

Upon the return to the club house two reels of motion pictures, two exceptionally fine comedies were shown in the assembly hall. After the pictures there was a program of wrestling and boxing bouts.

The wrestling bout was between Cliff Congdon and Al Parent, two Jewett City boys, the former winning in straight falls, the first coming in 9 minutes and 30 seconds and the second in 4 minutes and 38 seconds.

The first bout of the evening was between Al Rousch of Norwich and Joe Lamphrey of Jewett City and resulted in a draw after four snappy rounds.

The second bout was between Frankie Busch of Norwich and Hen Casey of Willimantic which also resulted in a draw. Hal Chase, director of the Ashland club, refereed the bouts and Lew Carpenter was the official timer.

After the bouts which concluded the evening's entertainment the members of the Rotary club extended a hearty vote of appreciation to their hosts and then adjourned to Norwich after a most delightful evening.

PROPOSE LOCAL VISITORS TO INSPECT ALMSHOUSES

The state commission on public welfare at its meeting in Hartford Wednesday afternoon discussed the matter of having the alms houses of towns throughout the state visited by local persons who would volunteer for the work. The volunteers would be duly recognized by the commission and they would make reports to the secretary of the commission. No positive action was taken but the merits of a plan embodying a system of voluntary visitation of almshouses were admitted.

There is a similar system of visitation in Massachusetts. The visitors in that state make reports to the state inspector of almshouses whose duties are restricted entirely to these institutions. The only position in this state which corresponds with the inspectorship of Massachusetts is that of secretary of the commission on public welfare, which is filled by Charles P. Kellogg. In Massachusetts the system of voluntary inspection works admirably and enables the state authorities to keep in close touch with the almshouses and to be accurately informed of their condition at all times. It is likely that the matter will be taken up at a future meeting in Hartford when some formal action may be taken.

THIRTYONE APPLY TO JOIN CENTRAL BAPTIST

Following the week of visitation evangelism which came to a close last Friday night, thirty one persons presented themselves Thursday evening before the deacons of the Central Baptist church to be received into the church membership by letter or by baptism.

The regular church prayer meeting which was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, was of especial interest and was followed by a baptismal service at which seven persons were baptised by the pastor. Other baptisms are to take place.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE SETS DATE

The democratic state central committee will meet at New Haven on March 15 for the purpose of fixing the date for the democratic caucuses which will be held for the selection of delegates to the state convention to be held at New Haven May 7 and 8. As the caucuses will be held twenty-one days before the date of the convention, the date to be determined will be during the week of April 9-16.

The date for the state central committee meeting was fixed Wednesday at a conference in Hartford of Acting Chairman Fannie Dixon Welch of Columbia, and Secretary Alexander Sydney Lynch of New Haven. The last meeting of the state central committee authorized the chairman and secretary of the committee to call the meeting and in the absence of Chairman Edward M. Yeomans, Mrs. Welch conferred with Mr. Lynch.

The state central committee will also act on the recommendation of the national committee that four women delegates at large be added to each state delegation with one-half vote each, the men delegates to have the other half votes. At this committee meeting Mrs. Welch expects to announce the appointment of a platform committee. It is understood this committee will consist of three men and two women.

Elected at Trinity College.

James B. Burr of Baltic, a member of the basketball team and of Delta Chi chapter of Sigma Nu, has been elected this week to the sophomore dining club, the honorary under-class society of Trinity college, Hartford.

Admits $100,000 Loan To Fall

Edward L. Doheny, head of the oil company to which Albert B. Fall, then Secretary of the Interior, and Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy, leased the Naval oil reserve out of which Doheny testified he expected to make $100,000,000. Mr. Doheny recently testified that he had loaned Secretary Fall $100,000 on an unsecured promissory note to enable him to purchase a ranch in New Mexico.

RICKARD AND O'ROURKE SUMMONED TO APPEAR BEFORE BOXING COMMISSION

New York, Feb. 21.—The course of [illegible] which the state athletic commission will pursue in investigating charges that Tex Rickard was in collusion with ticket speculators in connection with the Dempsey-Firpo heavyweight battle may be determined tomorrow when the boxing solons hold an informal meeting.

George E. Brower, chairman of the commission, who yesterday warned Rickard that speculating at Madison Square Garden must be stopped if the latter is to retain its ring license, would not reveal what his next step would be but it was indicated he desired to consult his colleagues, William Muldoon and James Farley, before deciding on a plan of action.

At the offices of the commission, however, it was said no summons had been issued for Rickard or Tom O'Rourke, who made the allegations against the promoter at a hearing on the pending repeal bill in Albany, to appear before the boxing organization.

PLAINFIELD HIGH BEATS FAST CHAPMAN TECH TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Feb. 21. — On Thursday evening in the fastest game played on the Plainfield court this season the Plainfield High quintet sent the fast Chapman Tech team to defeat, by a score of 34 to 32. The game was filled with thrills, both teams displaying excellent basketball. The lead was continually shifting from one team to the other and the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle. Plainfield showed considerable improvement in all departments of the game and the next game, which will be with Putnam High next Tuesday evening, is being looked forward to with considerable interest. CHAMPION S. W. PEARSON NOT DEFENDING HIS TITLE

Boston, Feb. 21.—A new American individual squash racquets champion will be named at the end of the championship matches which will go through the preliminary and first rounds here tomorrow and will conclude Sunday. Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia, present champion, is not defending his title as he is playing in the national racquets championship tournament which opened here today. Players from nine American cities and an Englishman have entered the national championship [illegible]

Boston's squash racquets team, champion American inter-city champions, will at the same time begin a series to retain its title against nine [illegible], one team being from the [illegible] Isles.

The Boston team will meet Washington in the morning in the only preliminary round match. The winner will later in the day meet Detroit. Many other team matches will be Philadelphia vs. Buffalo, New York vs. Cleveland, and Providence vs. England. The semi-final round will be held Saturday morning and the finals reach that afternoon.

STRIBLING ACCEPTS OFFER OF $10,000 FOR THREE BOUTS

Philadelphia, Feb. 21. — Max Hoff, [illegible] manager of boxers, today announced the acceptance of an offer of $10,000 for Ad Stone, local light heavyweight, to engage in three bouts at the ball park here during the summer months. The offer came from Tex Rickard, promoter of outdoor boxing shows, and stipulated that Stone's opponents will be picked from Mike McTigue, Gene Tunney, Young Stribling and Tommy Loughran. Waxman holds a contract with Joe Jacobs, former manager of Mike McTigue, and for McTigue to defend his title here against Stone on May 30. Every effort will be made to have McTigue live up to this agreement, Hoff said.

The second bout, to be held about the first week in August, will bring either Young Stribling or Gene Tunney against Stone, while the third, to be held in September, would be a special night heavyweight championship contest between Stone and Tommy Loughran.

GEORGETOWN MILE RELAY STARS WIN BIG EVENT

Washington, Feb. 21.—A mile relay team of four picked eastern collegiate stars and an all national quartet featured the program for the twenty-second annual indoor track meet here tonight under the auspices of the Georgetown University Athletic association.

Surprises in the meet, which brought out some of the greatest galaxies of track stars in the association's history, included Joie Ray, Loren Murchison, Karl Christiernsen, Vernon Associate Floration, Pitch, Lewis Clark and other athletes of national and international reputation.

The freshman college relays, the outstanding one of which was the clash between Princeton and the Navy, also were on the program.

NAVY U. S. SKIERS ENTER CANADIAN AMATEUR MEET

Ottawa, Feb. 21. — Probably the greatest array of ski jumping and ski running talent to compete in Canada will gather Saturday and Sunday for the Dominion of Canada amateur championships to be held under the auspices of the Cliffside Ski club at Lake Lake in the Gatineau Hills.

Entries from the United States, Western Canada and as far west as British Columbia have entered.

CONNIE MACK TELLS WHY HE BROKE UP ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia American baseball team, revealed in an interview today why he broke up the great 1914 championship combination. Despite reports that he had received fabulous sums for certain players, he declared that outside of Baker, Collins and Frank Baker, members of the Athletics' famous $100,000 infield, the club had not received big money for its stars, none of the others, he brought more than $10,000.

"The summer of 1914," said Mack, "I was made a Knights of Columbus [illegible] luncheon, "certain players came to me and said they would play out the season, but the next year they would jump to the Federal league. At that time the Federal league was paying fabulous salaries and the athletics were not drawing as good as some of the other American league clubs.

"I tried to humor the players along, but after the debacle in the fall of 1914, when the Boston Braves won four straight games from us in the world's series and the Athletics apparently had shot their bolt, I thought it was time to get another good team together.

"I thought in 1915 and 1916 I would develop a bunch of youngsters. Then came the war. Certain players became dissatisfied and declined to stick with a tail-end club while it developed, and I had to start all over again.

"In the last few years I have seen signs of development among the players. We had a brilliant spurt for a time last year, and it gave me an insight into what my team needed. To remedy the defects we went out and bought three of the best minor league players in the country. Simmons, Bérand and Bishop cost more than $100,000. Simmons will be the most talked of player in the American league before July.

"I look for the Athletics to finish second and expect to see one of the best and closest races ever held in the American league. We'll fight the Yankees tooth and nail, but I think the Yanks will win the pennant."

TWENTY-FOUR COLLEGES IN TRACK AND FIELD MEET

New York, Feb. 21.—A total entry of 1,025 athletes, representing 24 eastern colleges, will compete in the third annual indoor track and field championships of the I. C. A. A. A. A. to be held in the 22nd Regiment armory on March 1. This is the most pretentious field ever entered in this select college event.

Twelve events compose the program, including one and two mile varsity relays and a freshman mile relay. Practically the entire indoor squads of Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Dartmouth, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia, New York university and M. I. T. are entered.

Fourteen teams are entered in the one mile relay event while 15 will take the word in the two mile. The two mile run is the most popular on the program, 96 men being entered for this one event.

Pennsylvania won the 1923 championships while Cornell triumphed in 1922.

MONSEN AND REID WIN SKI EVENTS AT PLACID

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 21. — Rolf Monsen, of the Brattleboro Arctic club, Brattleboro, Vermont, won the 10-mile cross country ski race, the opening event of the United States eastern amateur ski championships here this afternoon. The winner's time was one hour, 50 minutes and 32 seconds.

Robert Reid of the Nansen Ski club, Berlin, N. H., won the 28-mile cross country ski race, a special event held under the auspices of the Snowbirds Winter Sports club of Lake Placid. His time was three hours and 16 minutes.

Members of the American Olympic ski team and 31 others are entered in the championship ski jumps scheduled for tomorrow. Conditions are ideal for the ski contests, with 18 inches of snow on the ground and both senior and junior jumps in excellent shape.

PIRPO AND LODGE COMPLETE THEIR TRAINING

Buenos Aires, Feb. 21.—Luis Firpo and "Farmer" Lodge ended their training today for their fight next Saturday night. Both men are said to be in the best of condition. Firpo is declared by the experts to have shown considerable improvement in the use of his left arm, which he employed constantly against his sparring partners this week.

Benigno Rodrigues Jurado, a member of the boxing commission, will referee the bout.

The preliminaries will begin at 9 o'clock Saturday evening and Firpo and Lodge are expected to enter the ring about 11 o'clock.

CONDITIONS EXCELLENT FOR DOG DERBY RACE TODAY

Ashton, Idaho, Feb. 21.—With snow falling and the temperature gradually going down, trail conditions are expected to be excellent here tomorrow for the 25-mile American dog derby.

"Smoky" Gaston, winner of the 1923 race, is the favorite but the Canadian entry and others also have many backers.

The Canadian entry, sent here by the Montreal winter sports committee, is expected to be well to the fore. Miss Lydia Hutchison of Ashton, who was to drive the Canadian team will not be in the race. May-A-Gans, the lead dog, is sick and "Shorty" Rusich, trainer, will drive a leaderless pack.

YALE WINS RIFLE MEET FROM DARTMOUTH TEAM

New Haven, Feb. 21.—Yale defeated Dartmouth 1819 to 1731 in the first stage of the Northeastern Intercollegiate Rifle League, according to scores sent here tonight by the National Rifle Association at Washington. At the same time Norwich defeated Princeton, Pennsylvania defeated Penn State, Syracuse won from Harvard by default and Columbia beat Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The first stage was held Tuesday night and the second stage tonight. Last year Yale and Dartmouth tied in their scores.

TIERNEY OF HOLY CROSS STAR OF N. Y. A. G. MEET

New York, Feb. 21.—Joseph Tierney, brilliant Holy Cross runner, was the outstanding star of the annual indoor track and field games of the New York Athletic club, held tonight at the 22nd Regiment armory.

Tierney shattered one world's record and bettered another in his only two appearances in the meet. He set the new mark in the Buermeyer "600", lowering the record formerly held by Jake Driscoll to 66 seconds. Shortly afterward Tierney flashed the quarter mile in 49 2-5 second in relay 1-5 of a second better than the world's indoor mark, but his performance will not stand as a record because it was made in a team race. Holy Cross was beaten in this event in spite of Tierney's great work.

R. W. Landan, New York A. C. high jump star, tried for a new world's mark at six feet six inches, but failed by a narrow margin.

Boots Lever, former Penn sprinter, and Marvin Rick, ex-Princeton runner, repeated 1923 victories in the games, the former sweeping a series of three sprints while Rick aided by a 150 yard handicap, vanquished a crack field of distance men at three miles, including R. E. Brown of Boston and Johnny Romig of Penn State.

KIRKWOOD WINS THE CORPUS CHRISTI TOURNEY

Corpus Christi, Texas, Feb. 21.—Joe Kirkwood, Rockwood Hall, N. Y., today won the second annual corpus Christi open Golf tournament with a card of 285 for the 72 holes, a margin of sixteen strokes over Bobby Cruickshank, Westfield, N. J., runner-up.

Kirkwood failed to equal his score of yesterday when he turned in a 141. A stiff breeze contributed to making practically all of the scores higher today.

Cruickshank, who was tied with Tom Boyd, Fox Hills, N. Y., yesterday, with a 151, turned in a 150 today. In taking second place, Cruickshank passed both Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and John Golden, Paterson, N. J., who were tied at the end of the first day's play with a 151. Farrell was third with a card of 302 and Golden won fourth money with a 303.

Henry Cluci, Bridgeport, Conn., and Jack Forrester, Deal, N. J., each with a score of 304, split the money for fifth and sixth places, Joe Turness, Alamford, N. J., was seventh with 306.

GEORGETOWN WINS ANNUAL INDOOR MEET AT WASHINGTON

Washington, Feb. 21.—Georgetown university romped away with its 22nd annual indoor track meet here tonight, scoring 53 points against 18 for the Newark Athletic club, which was second. Pennsylvania scored 8 points for third place, John Hopkins and Princeton tied for furth with six each and Baltimore Athletic club counted two.

Karl Christiernsen, by equalling the indoor track record of six seconds flat for the 45 yard high hurdles in both the preliminary heat and finals, was the outstanding performer.

Loren Murchison, of the Newark Athletic club, won both fifty yard dash events on the program, his time being 5 2-5 seconds in both the invitation and open events.

Joie Ray, mile record holder of the Illinois A. C., was hard pressed in the 1500 metre invitation event by Devanney of the Millrose Association, who had 20-yard handicap, but won out in the stretch.

Gibbons—White Bout Off

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 21.—The Tom Gibbons-Joe White boxing contest which was scheduled for Friday night has been called off, the Olympic Athletic club being unable to obtain a desirable opponent for Gibbons following the injury to White.

White returned to New York tonight with a badly fractured ankle in a cast and will be out of the game for at least a month. He was injured when he stepped in a hole while doing road work. Gibbons returned to his home in St. Paul.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR WILLS-FIRPO BOUT MAY BE CALLED OFF SOON

New York, Feb. 21.—A further hitch has developed in the negotiations of a New York syndicate for a Luis Firpo-Harry Wills heavyweight battle in July which may cause an abrupt end to the project, it was disclosed tonight.

Lew Raymond, spokesman for the syndicate which has obtained the verbal agreement of both Wills and Firpo to terms calling for a half million dollar purse, declared he would not accede to Firpo's demand that a $50,000 preliminary forfeit be posted in a Buenos Aires bank as evidence of good faith.

"We are willing at any time to post the $50,000 to Firpo's credit in escrow in a New York bank to bind our part of the bargain," said Raymond. "But under no circumstances will we put that amount in a Buenos Aires depository. From our point of view there is too much risk involved, together with uncertainty as to Firpo's future situation with two fights, with Lodge and Spalla, on his program in the next few weeks. I have no notified William McCarney, Firpo's representative here, and am waiting for the South American's answer."

Cable dispatches from Buenos Aires yesterday quoted Hugh Gartland, Firpo's business representative, as saying that negotiations with the Raymond syndicate would be called off unless the $50 000 was deposited in an Argentine bank by March 1.

CLINTON AND COLLINS WIN AT AMATEUR BILLIARDS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 21.—John A. Clinton, Jr., of Pittsburgh, and Percy N. Collins, of Chicago, were the winners of the ninth and tenth games, respectively, of the National Class A amateur balkline billiard championship tournament being held here. This afternoon Clinton defeated Dr. Richard Roscow of Baltimore 300 to 156. Clinton's average was 15 15-19 and he had high runs of 74, 42 and 34 while Roscow averaged 2 17-19 and made high runs of 18, 12 and 7.

Collins was pressed to defeat Jacob Klinger, of New York 300 to 227. Collins averaged 3 4-37 and Klinger 1 11-36, the former having high runs of 35, 31 and 26 and the latter high runs of 21, 19 and 18.

Collins, Clinton and Edgar Appleby of New York, are leading in the tournament, each player having won three matches and having not yet suffered defeat.

SIKI GETS OUT OF JAIL ALSO OUT OF KEY WEST

Havana, Cuba., Feb. 21.—Battling Siki, French senegalese boxer, arrived in Havana today for a series of exhibition bouts. He came over from Key West where he had missed a previous boat by reason of getting in jail on charges of creating a disturbance.

It was solely to Siki's sudden fancy to buy suits for two rather scantily clad Key West Negroes that caused the disturbance, accordingly to George Lawrence, a promoter, who with manager Levy, accompanied the big French negro. A crowd of other negroes followed.

A policeman who could not break up the gathering took Siki in tow, but he was released after a few hours.

"BABE" RUTH SCORES HIT WITH BULL TERRIER PUPPY

Boston, Feb. 21.—"Babe" Ruth's first attempt at prize winning in the dog show ring was successful today. The ball player's nine months old bull terrier puppy Cloudland Dot, which has been a pet at Ruth's Sudbury farm, took second prize in the judging at the Eastern Dog club show today in the class for bull terrier puppies.

KAPLAN WINS FROM DEFOE IN FAST BATTLE

Waterbury, Feb. 21. — Kid Kaplan of Meriden, won the decision over Billy Defoe of St. Paul in a bristling 12-round bout here tonight.

Lew Chester of Brooklyn, N. Y., scored a technical knockout over Harry Raskin of Detroit, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

SEVENTH INFANTRY WINS GALLERY RIFLE SHOOT

Washington, Feb. 21.—The Seventh infantry, at Vancouver barracks, Washington, was announced winner tonight of the National Rifle Association's gallery rifle competition among units of the regular army, reserve and national guard. The regiment had a score of 7218 out of a possible 7500.

Lieutenant Sidney R. Hinds, U. S. infantry, Fort Snelling, has won the individual .22 calibre pistol championship of the United States at both slow and rapid fire with T. G. Girtout, of Boston, second, and E. R. Hall, of Milton Junction, Wis., third.

ROUSCH HOLDS THREE YEAR CONTRACT WITH REDS

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 21.—Outfielder Eddy Rousch, and the Cincinnati National League club have come to terms, it was announced today. The terms of the contract agreed upon are for a term of three years, it was stated.

The announcement did not say what salary Rousch would receive, under the contract. He will accompany the team to the training camp at Orlando, Fla.

The deadlock between Rousch and the Cincinnati club has come up yearly, and on only one occasion since he became a member of the Reds had he gone on the spring training trip. This was in 1920.

The opening of the coming season in the Michigan-Ontario league will be notable for the large number of new players who will be seen with the various clubs.

In an 880-yard swimming race at Sydney, Australia, the other day, the boy swimmer, Charlton, beat Arne Borg, the Swedish champion, by fifteen yards in the world's record time of 10 minutes 31 4-5 seconds.

Whitey Witt's bunting, if nothing else, will make it hard for Earl Combs, the slugging newcomer, to crowd the little man off the Yankees this year. Expert hunters aren't growing on every bush. On the contrary, those as expert as Witt are scarce as a season's pennant winners. Moreover, Huggins has a team adept at sacrificing, and Witt fits in nicely into the modus operandi when it's employed. Nor is the Albino a nonentity as a lead-off man.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Ruth Budd Scores Triumph at the Broadway Theatre

A capacity audience was attracted to the Broadway Theatre yesterday by the promise of an exceptionally fine variety program of vaudeville featuring Ruth Budd the famous Ziegfeld beauty star, and the promise was fully realized.

Ruth Budd has the distinction of appearing before the crowned heads. On March 7th, 1921 she appeared at the Palace in London before the King and Queen of England and Princess Mary. She attained wonder success in New York and for twenty-three weeks was featured on the New York roof. Her pretty face, rare expression and refinement have made her much sought after by photoplay producers and she appeared in one picture, a Selznick offering, A Scream in the Night. Miss Budd is already the talk of the town.

Each of the other acts made a tremendous hit judging from the generous applause.

Dean Bernard and Mabel Merrit, two charming young girls scored with a musical and singing offering being compelled to give an encore.

Silvers and Ross, the singing and talking comics followed with a good line of comedy and songs.

Fred Irwin and Freddie Harrison, the comedy stars in the comedy farce entitled "Lonesome" walked away with the comedy honors.

John Regan & Co., assisted by Miss Vera Delores and Gilbert Gray at the piano made an exceptionally fine closing act consisting of songs and dance.

Heot Gibson in Blinky, a comedy drama, was the screen attraction.

Paul Whiteman's Orchestra at the Willimantic Armory

Paul Whiteman's "Steamship" Orchestra which is just off the S. S. Leviathan on furlough for a few weeks and is to play a concert and dance at the State Armory, Willimantic, on February 23, opened their tour in Worcester where they met with wonderful and instantaneous success. More than 1500 lovers of jazz music crowded Mechanic Hall in that place to hear the famous orchestra. The crowd seemed almost equally divided between the devotees of jazz by ear and the devotees by foot, the large gallery being filled to capacity.

Some of the selections which the orchestra renders are "Little Nellie Kelley" "Sitting in a Corner", "First, Last and Always", "I Love You" and other ever-popular songs. The members of the orchestra will appear in regular deck uniforms of white flannel with light blue effects at the collar and cuffs. These dress uniforms were the ones worn by the orchestra while playing on the decks and the various ball rooms of the giant ship "Leviathan".

This is the best equipped dance attraction which ever came to show its wares and the prices charged have been set at the lowest figure that this orchestra has ever worked for. No one can afford to lose this wonderful opportunity to hear a real "Paul Whiteman Orchestra". Remember the date Saturday evening February 23.

At the Strand

Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist and David Torrance are featured players in the Paramount picture, "The Light That Failed," a George Melford production, a wholesome love story which delighted large audiences at the opening showings at the Strand theatre last night.

Mabel Van Buren and Luke Cosgrave head the strong cast appearing in support of the featured players. Others are Peggy Shaffer, Winsten Miller and Mary Jane Irving. "The Light That Failed" is an adaptation of a famous story by Rudyard Kipling.

Short subjects included a comedy and Kinogram News.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The E. A. Buck & Co., kerosene and oil plant was established in Willimantic in May 1921 after the firm had sold its interests in Worcester, Webster and Palmer, Mass., to the Tidewater Sales Corp. Five steel tanks, each having a capacity of 21,177 gallons, were erected on Columbia avenue on land adjoining the railroad property and motor and horse-drawn trucks were put into service. The firm dispensed of a high grade kerosene, motor oils and gasoline and steam cylinder oils and gear compounds which gained such popularity that within a few months the horses were found too slow to render prompt delivery and the tanks were motorized into four trucks of various capacities. The company's business grew in leaps and bounds until after three years it catered to customers throughout eastern Connecticut. At present Buck's oil trucks may be seen as far as Hartford on the west, to East Great Plains on the east, North Somers and other points on the north and Colchester and Gardner Lake on the south. Having for its unequalled motto, "Quality, Fair Prices and Prompt Delivery," the Buck company's products are satisfying thousands of patrons and the sales are increasing daily. George A. Buck, Sr., who is assisted in the managership of the firm's interests by his son George A. Buck, Jr., is a native of Westford, Conn. As a young man he moved to Stafford where he set up a hardware store. Forty-three years ago he began selling oils under his father's firm name, E. A. Buck & Co., which has been retained up to this time. E. A. Buck was a Willimantic man. For years he controlled the E. A. Buck Grain company store in this city to which he is now succeeded by his other son, William A. Buck. E. A. Buck held the position of state treasurer for a number of years.

Palace Theatre

In presenting "Getting Gertie's Garter," at the Palace theatre today matinee and night, the Chicago Stock Players will be seen in one of the most successful farce comedies that New York has presented in theatrical ages, a play that had made hundreds of thousands rock with laughter.

"Getting Gertie's Garter" is the work of two of the most famous writers on the American stage today, Avery Hopwood, who has produced The Bat, and other big successes and Wilson Collison, who wrote Up In Mabel's Room, and a number of other big Broadway hits. The two men have combined and in writing Getting Gertie's Garter, have produced perhaps as great a laugh provoking vehicle as New York has ever seen. This is its first production at popular prices and it is safe to predict the standing room only sign will be displayed early.

The company's most successful engagement will be concluded tomorrow, the matinee attraction being the soul-stirring play The White Sister, a direct dramatization of F. Marion Crawford's famous book of the same, a story of a life and a love. The evening attraction will be the mystery thriller, the play that the critics said outbats The Bat, entitled The Love Test.

Yesterday before two large audiences the company presented a very laughable comedy called Her Temporary Husband. W. James Bedell and Jean White were especially good in the leading roles and the clever comedian Freddie Beaudoin scored again. The balance of the large cast contributed excellent support.

BREED THEATRE

Marshall Neilan's new picture for Goldwyn, The Rendezvous, from the original story by Madeline Ruthven, which is now playing at the Breed theatre and proved to be one of the best productions made by this master of film technique.

The film is an exceedingly dramatic one; its characters are picturesque and the settings exotic. Prince Sergei Tamiroff has been exiled to Siberia for marrying against the Czar's wishes. The wife dies at the birth of their daughter, Vera, and court plotting forces the Prince to flee for his life. The child, Vera, is brought up by the Prince's friend, Vassily Leondidoff. Juan Godunoff, Tartar brigand, becomes Soviet governor and is attracted by the beauty of the 18-year-old Vera. She is saved from his advances by Walter Stanford, an American army officer, but upon the latter's return to America, Godunoff forces Vera to marry him in order to save the man she thinks is her father. But, the same day Godunoff is imprisoned by agents of the Soviet, just before Stanford returns. The brigand escapes and hides in the shrine which the Prince had erected to the memory of his wife, and which had been used as a rendezvous by Stanford and Vera, intending to kill both when they should next visit the spot. But the lovers escape.

From the dramatic point of view, the picture is one of the best that Neilan has made; in technique and in photography and in lighting it is unusual and compelling. The cast contains players of world-wide prominence. Conrad Nagel in the role of the American officer, plays his first part in Goldwyn pictures and has one that exactly suits him. Emmett Corrigan plays the part of Vassily Leondidoff; Elmo Lincoln is the Tartar chieftain, Godunoff; Sydney Chaplin plays the part of a British Tommy with a refreshing sense of humor; Lucille Ricksen has in The Rendezvous her first grown up role and makes it very appealing. Others in the cast are Richard Travers, Kathleen Key, Kate Lester, Cecil Holland, Lucien Littlefield, Eugenie Besserer and R. O. Pennell.

The second chapter of The Way of a Man, the Pathe news and an educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Gloria an Apache Dancer

Gloria Swanson does an apache dance in her latest Paramount picture "The Humming Bird", at the Broadway Theatre Sunday.

"It is a cruel, fierce, wild dance," according to Aurelio Coccia, Miss Swanson's instructor. "Many people believe that it has been exaggerated by dancers but this is not so."

Edward Burns has the leading male role in "The Humming Bird," opposite the star. Others in the strong supporting cast include Mario Majeroni, Jacques d'Auray and Helen Lindroth. Sidney Olcott did the directing.

The picture will be at the Broadway Theatre for four days starting Sunday.

That it will be the talk of the town can be easily forecasted as critics and public alike have been unstinted in their praise about this wonderful production.

Washington Social

A Washington social for the benefit of Sacred Heart parish, Norwich Town, is to be given this (Friday) evening in T. A. B. Hall at 8 o'clock. The entertainment will include cards and dancing. There will be cars for Yantic at 11.30 from Franklin Sq.

The Westerly fire alarm bell was sounded at 11 o'clock Thursday night, from Box 75, corner of Dayton and Pierce streets for a fire in the one-story wooden frame grocery store and garage of Carlesi & Luango, grocers, 3 Dayton street. The fire was discovered by two passers-by, in the north end of the structure used as a garage in which was stored an automobile truck. Kicking in the garage door, the truck was moved out before it could be damaged. The flames, however, gained headway and soon burned their way through the roof, sending up clouds of sparks and smoke from oil stored in the place. The fire then worked its way into the grocery store occupied by Vincenzo Cariesi and Michelego Luango and burned through the ceiling and roof. Combination No. 1 of the Westerly fire department responded to the alarm and under the direction of Fire Chief George Egger two lines of hose were laid from the hydrant, corner of West and Pleasant streets. The water when turned on made short work of the blaze. The truck of the Alert Hook and Ladder company also responded but its services were not needed. The recall was sounded at 11.50. The damage done amounted probably to less than $500.

JEWETT CITY

Anne Brewster Fanning Chapter, D. A. R. held its meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. A. Faust. In the absence of the regent, Mrs. Henry E. Olson, the vice regent, Mrs. B. C. Bliss presided. Miss Alice A. Brown had arranged the program, which was unusually interesting. Miss Ellen R. Prior played a piano solo, and gave two musical recitations. Mrs. G. H. Prior sang two solos. William Stebbins, Witaldo Bakanowski, Roger Vaclion, Earl Robinson, Frank Zerukoski, Bennie Slorisk and Faure Rainville recited the American Creed and gave the meaning of Patriotism.

They then enacted the Capture of Ticonderoga, also the Capture of Major Andre and sang Revolutionary Tea. In the game of Recognition of Pictures of Famous Persons, Mrs. Prior took the first prize and Mrs. A. M. Brown the second. The prizes were framed pictures of historical events. Mrs. Faust as hostess was assisted by Mrs. G. H. Jennings.

The Minstrel given by seven of the men of the Congregational church drew a record crowd at Finn Opera House, Thursday evening. Never has a minstrel been presented here with so few in number for talent. Every man was an end man and proved himself a star. The jokes and local hits were so bright and snappy that the audience was kept in continuous laughter. Especially droll was Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean, a parody by some of the young men. The audience was most generous with applause. The music and songs were splendidly given. Miss Irene Stewart has been the faithful accompanist for all the rehearsals and much of the success of the affair was due to her accompanying. Tyler Gilbert, violin and George Kraus of Plainfield, drums, gave their valuable assistance, Wayland Stetson was stage manager. The stage setting was of black and white panel background, with seats covered with the same. Palms were used as an added touch. Charles Harrington very kindly consented Thursday to sing in the second part taking Mr. Dealtrey's place, as the latter had been ill in bed nearly all day. Alex and Andrew McNicol were the business managers. Cretonne was used for three costumes, while purple and orange colors became some of the performers. The programes were printed by some of the company on the church printing press at the parsonage. The program included these numbers:

Part I—Curtain Song, That Dreamy Melody; opening song, Not Here, Not There; Oh, How She Lied to Me, Everett Hiscox, Jr., and Herbert Thompson, endmen; Say It With a Ukelele, My Coney Island Baby, Entire Company; song, Carolina Mammy, Harry Paul; song, Struttin' Jim, William Marshall; song, Louisville Lou; Herbert Thompson; song, My Sweetie Went Away, Howard Stephenson; song, Broken Hearted Blues, William Dealthey; song, Clawence, Everett Hiscox, Jr.; song, Night-Time in Italy, Earl Hiscox; final chorus, The Gold Digger.

Part II, Sketch, Oyster Stew, two blacks, Harry Paul and Everett Hiscox, Jr.; solo, Wonderful One with That Old Gang of Mine, Charles Harrington; A Hold-Up, quartette, William Dealtrey, Howard Stephenson, Everett Hiscox, Jr., Earl Hiscox; Gallagher and Shean, William Marshall, Earl Hiscox; finale, Tennessee.

The women of the church appreciate the work of the young men who will give the receipts to the Ladies' Society, which raises money for the church needs and improvements.

It's easy to look on the bright side as long as it is turned your way.

Why Cough Your Head Off

Make Your Own Cough Mixture for the Whole Family and Save Money. It's Easy.

When you can make in your own home a wonderful cough mixture far ahead of any you can buy ready made, why not do it?

This home made mixture will stop the most stubborn cough and is fine for chest colds and acute catarrh. Children love it.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength) — to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make half a pint—that's all there is to it.

Like a soothing, healing poultice one costly substance in this home made cough mixture spreads itself completely over the membrane of the throat. This causes the most stubborn hang-on cough to cease almost instantly. No ordinary slow-acting cough syrup contains this expensive ingredient.

Any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

FRANK WYROD, Proprietor.

WILLINGTON

Every seat was filled at the Sunday school rooms Friday evening last by people who listened with great enjoyment to the play, "The Voice of Authority," given by the Columbine club, coached by Mrs. G. W. Smith. Each member showed the result of frequent rehearsal and careful preparation. Fine music was given by John Dvorsky and Frank Parizek violists, and Frederick Tyler, pianist. A number of young people remained to play games.

Mrs. George Lyon, who has been staying with her daughter, Mrs. Robert White at Plainville, is spending a week at her home.

Frederick Tyler is bookkeeper for Harold Burgess.

Sunday Leon Woodworth entertained his brother, Charles Woodworth, his niece Freda, and nephew, Earl Woodworth.

Rev. Mr. Kendricks from Wiusted preached here Sunday. He was accompanied by his family.

W. C. Ruby and family have lost six cats in two weeks from distemper.

Miss Jessie Bennett has gone to Pawtucket, R. I. to attend the golden wedding of her uncle and aunt.

Charles Woodworth has sold one of his kids to his brother Leon. Children are much interested in the goat and kids.

Mrs. Hans Hansen attended the funeral of her aunt in Essex Sunday.

The Boy Scouts are planning a social in the Hill church next week.

Alfred Young is assisting Charles Lyon on the mail route.

Mrs. Gahan, with her pupils plans Washington's birthday entertainment at her school.

Smith and Tyler have sold two thoroughbred heifers to buyer in Hampton, at a good price.

Frank Fuller of Marlborough, Conn., spent a few days this week with his wife, at the home of her sister, Mrs. G. B. Robbins, where she is living.

Mary Pelikan and Mary Altenberger have gone to Hartford, where they have work in a home for nurses.

Frank Pelikan is employed in a shop in Hartford.

Word has been received from Mrs. Robert Cartier, formerly of Willington, that her mother-in-law has had a shock, at her home in Natick, Mass.

Mrs. Emma Dodge of New York came Thursday to spend the holiday with Mrs. Ida Brown.

Lincoln White has received a box of oranges from his brother, Burdette White, from St. Petersburg, Florida, where the latter has an orange grove and spends the winter.

HERRING FURNISH FISH NEWS HEADLINES

If newspapers maintained "fish reporters these men would keep the herring well "covered" for they continually are furnishing big "stories" (which is newspaper parlance for fact, not fiction.)

Dispatches recently told how fiords in northern Norway have been blocked into a semi-solid state by herring shoals.

John Oliver La Gorce, in a communication to the National Geographic Society, writes:

"Huxley has called mankind an association of herring catchers, and if those fish be counted that are caught by fish which feed on them and in turn feed us, he probably has not missed the mark much.

"He also reminds us that single schools covering half a dozen square miles may contain more than three billion Herring; yet many schools have been recorded that covered an area of 30 square miles.

"The herring family includes not only the herrings, but also the sardines, the alewives, the shads, and the menhadens.

"Distributed throughout the entire North Atlantic ocean, the herring, clupea harengus, is probably the most important food fish in the world.

"With so many other species in competition, the herring has never attained the popularity on the American dinner table that it has on those of Europe, where it forms a staple diet for millions; but even in our waters it is widely taken north of Cape Cod. Most of the fish are sold fresh, either for human food or cod bait. Immense quantities of the young ones are packed and sold as sardines.

"Years ago Professor Huxley estimated that three billion herring were being caught annually. With the growth of the fishing industry in European waters, it has been estimated that the annual catch now exceeds ten billion. A single shoal sometimes covers square miles and is estimated to contain at least half as many herring as the whole world catches in a year. Many such shoals are known to exist.

"The herring, unlike most fishes, is particularly fine-flavored at spawning time, and the fisheries are carried on busily during that season. Usually the herring is taken with gill nets anchored below the surface of the waters, in which so many are sometimes enmeshed as to sink the buoys. Other forms of taking it are by means of weirs and torching. The latter is particularly resorted to when cold weather sets in. A torch is set in a boy of the boat. The fish rise to the surface as the vessel glides swiftly along and are scooped in without difficulty.

"The food of the herring consists principally of 'red feed,' a minute surface - swimming crustacean, like shrimp. They are in turn preyed upon by a list of enemies as long as the moral law, ranging from fishes, whales, porpoises, and seals to the dogfish, and squids.

"When schools of enemy fish attack the herring the sea gulls are always on the job to gather up the scraps of the fray.

"The life history of the herring has never been completely worked out. The facts known indicate that it lives in deep water off the coasts, coming inshore to spawn. There seems to be a number of distinct races, differing as to size, spawning time, and various other qualities and traits, each race swimming in a separate school and having its own particular time and ground for spawning. The number of eggs laid by a female ranges from 10,000 to 50,000, it is said."

FOUTH DEGREE K. OF C. ASSEMBLY, NEW LONDON, WASHINGTON BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 21.—Miss Eydilla Stevens of Waller street, Miss Winifred Hine, of Fishers Island, Miss Marguerite Lowenstein of Connecticut College, Benetrio Felvidio, of Westerly, and Paul Horton of Uncasville, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Joseph A. Williams, 50, of 15 Warren street, died this morning at the private hospital, in which institution he had been under treatment some time. Mr. Williams is survived by his widow and had been an employe of the Connecticut Power company many years.

Margaret, the two months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. McCarty of 33 Linden street, died late yesterday at the home of its parents. The body was forwarded to Springfield, Mass., today, where the funeral and burial will take place.

A. W. Daniels, a painter, residing at 36 Golden street, complained to the police earlier in the day that his apartment was entered by a thief and that $135, two suits of clothes and a quantity of bedding was stolen. Of the money alleged to have been stolen three of the bills were of the denomination of $20. Sergeant Frank Howard and Patrolman William Graham were assigned to the case, but they did not obtain any clues that would lead to the recovery of the plunder, nor the apprehension of the thief. It is believed that entrance to the place was gained by using a duplicate key and that the thief had knowledge of the existence of the money there.

As noted Thursday, Patrolman David Nagle in making his rounds on State street last night discovered the entrance of the jewelry store of Perry & Stone unfastened. An employe of the store was notified and secured the place for the remainder of the night. Another place was found unsafe later in the night, when Patrolman George Perkins discovered the front door to the home of Thornton N. M. Lathrop, 495 Montauk avenue, unlocked. The officer was able to secure the place. Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop and family left for Miami, Fla., earlier in the week for several weeks' stay.

The trolley car of the Connecticut company, due to arrive in New London at 2.45 o'clock this afternoon, had a close call from being in collision with an automobile truck of the Central Coal company on Main street. The car, which was late, approached Church street at a fast rate of speed, it is claimed, and just as the truck was about to divert its course to enter Church street. As the machine made the turn the motorman of the trolley car was forced to apply his brakes and reverse his power in order to avoid a collision. A demand was made of John Smith, of 284 Eastern Point road, Groton, by the motorman to show the former's operating license, but as no collision had occurred Smith refused to accede to the demand. Smith, however, made a report of the incident at the police station and claimed that the motorman was operating the car at a high rate of speed, presumably in an effort to make up lost time.

Walter H. Jones, a young man who served in the army during the World war, was in the police court this morning, charged with making and passing on Anton Cabral a check for $30 that was not worth thirty cents. Jones had no money in the bank on which the check was drawn nor did he ever have a drawing account in that bank. He simply swindled Mr. Cabral out of the money. Jones was in New Haven when he was arrested for another offense and was brought here, tried and convicted and today had completed his term of 104 days. Upon his release he found a warrant for his arrest at the jail and he was brought to court for trial on the forgery complaint. Jones had an experience in jail and he did not want more of it. He said he was guilty and must take the consequences, but he pleaded that the court show him mercy. To secure that, he said he would go to work as soon as he could find employment and give over to Cabral as much money as possible until he had made up the loss which the latter had sustained. "I have always been employed at clerical work" said Jones, and he pointed out that he was engaged at Fort Wright in the quartermaster's department and in the transportation department and in those he had an enviable record, but I am willing to do any work I am capable of doing. I will go to work at the first chance and Cabral will not lose his money." Judge Tribbe was disposed to give Jones an opportunity to make good and as Cabral was not inclined to push Jones back into jail the case was continued till the 3d of May. Jones was turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield. Jones has had trouble with his wife, but he has sought her assistance in making a change in his ways of living. Jones was a happy fellow when his case was disposed of as it was today. He had been living inside stone and brick walls more than four months so the change to the open air and the freedom of the city was welcomed by him.

George Deshon assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus held a banquet in the Hotel Mohican this evening, the affair being attended by a large number of members besides members of the auxiliaries at Norwich, Westerly, Saybrook, Mystic and Stonington. The principal speaker was Rev. George J. Donohue of Bridgeport, formerly of Stafford Springs, who took for his subject "Faith and Culture." Father Donohue's address was interesting, eloquent and highly instructive.

Police Sergeant Patrick Murphy, who reported off duty last night because of illness has developed grip and will be incapacitated a week or more.

All trolley traffic in New London including the cars arriving from Norwich and Mystic were greatly delayed, late this afternoon and evening. The delay was caused by heavy traffic and ice and snow on the rails.

Nathan Morris of the Morris Tobacco company, Golden street, complained to the police that while one of his commercial auto truck was on Broad street, between Hempstead and Brainard streets and while the driver absented himself at a nearby store, four cartons of cigarettes were stolen from the automobile. The theft, it is believed, was performed by a boy who saw the chauffeur when he left the machine and entered the store.

That a thief and probably one of the many of the juvenile type, who have operated successfully in New London for a long time, has pinched out stores of the National Economy Company to pilfer, is the supposition for within forty-eight hours two of the company's chain of stores here have been entered and the means of entrance at each place was the same. The last place to be visited was at the store corner of Montauk avenue and Orchard street last night. Patrolman John Sullivan, in making his rounds discovered that the rear door had been tampered with for a pane of glass had been removed, which permitted the door being unlocked. An employe of the store was notified and after inspecting the place stated that no plunder had been obtained. The night before the company's store, corner of Lincoln and Jefferson avenues was entered and a small amount of loot taken.

F. Valentine Chappell has returned, after a brief visit in New York.

Mrs. Forrest L. Sherman is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Sherman of Hartford. Mrs. Sherman was a ccompanied by Mrs. C. D. Prince.

Announcement is made of the marriage, Monday morning, at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church of Mrs. Jane E. Lynch of 43 Washington street and Martin J. Navin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church. Mrs. Navin was attended by Miss Anna Quinn and the best man was Frank Quinn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Smith of Bayonet street left last night for Bermuda. They anticipate being absent from New London about two weeks.

Mrs. Frank C. Cutler has returned to her home on Ocean avenue, having spent a fortnight with relatives and friends in Boston and Worcester.

Miss Dorothy Smith, a student nurse at St. Francis hospital, Hartford, is at the home of her parents, Police Sergeant and Mrs. Nelson S. Smith, 24 Rogers street.

Mrs. Thomas McKenna and Mrs. James Powers have returned to their home on Terrace avenue, having spent several days in Brattleboro, Vt.

Patrolman Walter Rehn is absent from his Ocean Beach beat, being confined to his home on Perry street by an infected hand.

Boys smashed a window in the residence of Nathan Hochman of 112 North Bank street last night. Hochman became angry at the conduct of the youths and complained to the police. Patrolman Edward Daniels ascertained the identity of the youths and an adjustment of the damage was reached between parents of the boy and Hochman.

When the annual state convention of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks takes place at Hartford today (Washington's birthday), among clerks at the local post office who will attend will be Joseph M. Craner, Joseph A. H. Sullivan, Edward Shea, Robert P. Barry, Joseph F. Corcoran, John Harrington, John W. Cuddy, Frank Fitzmaurice, John P. Kelley, Bernard V. Cullen, Robert E. Kelley, Thomas Ryan, William Curtin, Cornelius P. Barry, Joseph Neffgan, Frank Delmore, John J. Flanagan and Letter Carrier John E. Blake. The convention of the state carriers will take place at New Haven and the following carriers from New London will be present: James M. Spellman, John J. Farrell, Eugene A. Cook, Herman F. Staab and Christopher J. Collins.

Uncle Sam moves slowly in filling positions in the service of the government. He has been slow in filling the place of inspector of hulls of vessels at this port. But he has finally acted and Capt. MacDonald, master of a ship running between Boston and the west coast, will come to New London next month to assume the duties which were those of that faithful servant of the government, William E. Withey until death claimed him. Capt. Macdonald was assistant inspector at Boston for a long time, but after the war when the commerce of the nation was reduced he was relieved of his position and took the command of a ship running between Boston and California. That engagement will terminate when the captain returns to Boston early in March and then he will come to New London to take up his duties with the government and to make his home here.

MYSTIC

Residents of the village awoke Wednesday morning to find several inches of snow on the ground and a real old fashioned snow and sleet storm in progress. The snow plow was out for the first time this season, and the children were delighted with the prospects of being able to enjoy coasting at last. However, before noon the storm had changed to rain which lasted several hours, covering the streets with snow posh to a considerable depth and which froze during the night, making very hard walking.

Miss Letitia McGaughey and her brother, William McGaughey, are guests in New London.

On account of the storm Wednesday, only one session of school was held at Mystic Academy, school closing at one-o'clock. At Broadway school the morning session was held as usual but so few pupils returned for the afternoon session that the teachers closed school about 11:30.

Mrs. Marion O. Pomeroy was a recent visitor in Springfield, Mass.

Miss Elizabeth Colby of Boston is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Colby.

Hiram Burnet, who has been in failing health for some time suffered a shock Tuesday evening.

Miss M. Geneva Rathbun is home from Milford for the Week-end.

Today Washington's Birthday, the Post Office will observe the holiday and there will be no delivery of mail by the carriers. The bank will be closed for the day.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church served a meat loaf supper in the Parish House, Thursday evening.

HANOVER

The Men's Club assisted by the Apoquag club gave a very appetizing clam supper Wednesday evening in the parish house. The menu was as follows: Clam chowder, pickles, crackers, boiled ham, rolls, assorted cakes, coffee.

Both the men and women of Hanover have been looking forward to the supper for a long time. The men that they might fulfill their wager that they could get up as good a supper as the other gender; the women taht their boast of an unsurpassed supper should not be nullified.

The men received many compliments for they surpassed all expectation. All went fine until the women insisted on washing the dishes. Mr. Weston and Mr. Bunnell had charge of the meal. The men realized a good sum from the supper. They showed a systematic way when they auctioned off the food remaining. Everything from cracks to cans of milk were sold by auctioneer Charles Kingsley Chapman of Boddwine.

Wednesday evening the executive committee of the church school met to outline plans for progress for the coming months. Several new ideas introduced at the meeting when carried out will be a big addition to the work of the church school.

LIBERTY HILL

Elmer C. Caples who is still having treatment at Hartford Hospital, is able to sit up part of the time.

Rev. W. S. Woolworth went to Hartford Tuesday and called on Mr. Caples. A slight operation Monday will cause Mr. Caples to remain in the hospital longer than was anticipated.

He has had four operations and has been in the hospital seven weeks.

Miss C. E. Goodrich went to New Britain Saturday to care for her sister, who is ill.

Mrs. E. C. Payson is teaching the day school for Miss Flora Bruce, who is ill.

Rev. W. S. Woolworth sermonette was founded on Washington and Providence, Washington believed that his many escapes from bodily harm through his life including those on the battlefield, were due to divine Providence.

The Liberty Hill church has received an invitation to attend the reception to be given to the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Littlefield of Lebanon Baptist church this (Friday) evening, Feb. 22nd.

O. W. Gurley was in Wallingford and New Haven Thursday and Friday on business. He spent Thursday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ralph Reynolds and family in Wallingford.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Calling on the Millionaire Mouse

The big yellow moon dimly lighted the great forest as Little Jack Rabbit hopped out of the last story into this one to follow the tiny fairy. In and out among the trees she flitted on her gauzy wings, sometimes hidden by the underbrush.

"Dear me," thought the anxious little bunny boy, "I mustn't lose her," and he went faster than ever, clipperty, clipperty, clipperty, clip, his little knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red striped candy cane swinging from his left paw.

By and by, after a while, and a bumpy old mile and never a smile, for he was too worried lest he lose sight of the tiny fairy, they came out of the forest and on a broad meadow. Resting on a pretty daisy flower, she pointed to a farm house not far away.

"Over there in that big white house, Lives a millionaire old mouse. He wears a fur cap on his head, And sleeps in a tiny four-post bed."

"Shall I knock on the door?" asked the timid little bunny boy.

"Maybe you can hop down the cellar steps at the side of the house," answered the fairy. "I can go no further with you. Fairies must be careful not to be seen."

Of course the front door was locked and the slanting cellar door over the stone steps was too heavy to lift. Climbing up, the bunny boy at last was able to peek into the house.

All of a sudden:
"Dickory, dickory dock,
The mouse ran up the clock;
The clock struck one
And down he come,—
Dickory, dickory, dock."

"O pshaw!" cried the disappointed the little bunny, "No wonder the fairy said I'd have a hard time of it. I guess all that old mouse would ever answer would be "Dickory, dickory, dock." And, as there seemed nothing better to do, Little Jack Rabbit curled up on the front door mat and went to sleep.

When he woke up in the morning,
The little red rooster
Was blowing his horn
To wake the tramp
All tattered and torn,
Who made up his mind
He'd try to beg
From the pretty white hen,
Her new-laid egg.

Up hopped the bunny boy and parting his hair down the middle of his back, he hopped clipperty, clip into the next story, happy and smiling because the Nightie Bird had flown away on her dark wings and a bright new day was before him.

YOUTH TALKS ABOUT HIS SLAYING OF FAMILY

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 21.—Sitting on a bench in the steel cage of the Pinellas county jail in Clearwater today, Frank McDowell, who admits having killed his father and mother Tuesday night, and having burned his two younger sisters to death just one year ago to the day of killing his parents, talked freely about himself and his crimes.

McDowell, who says he is 19, appears remarkably bright, well educated and well-bred. He said he was possessed of the great ambition to make the world perfect and to be president of this perfect world. However, he realized he must first make himself perfect and to do this must remove all obstacles to perfection.

At the age of 10 or 11 he believed he had committed the unpardonable sin of blaspheming against the Holy Ghost, though now he declares his non-belief in any religion other than a supreme power. He said that belief in a hereafter seemed to him childish and foolish, though he wished it was possible for him to believe it.

The crime committed against the Holy Ghost, McDowell said, occurred when he was living in Forsythe, Ga., he was trying to get a clean shirt on and finding it minus some buttons, he swore at the Holy Ghost.

At the time Mary Birdsey, one month younger than himself, was visiting the home, he said. McDowell said he hoped to see her again.

He said he later attended school in Massachusetts at Dana hall.

Referring to his blasphemy, he said he did not think of it at the time but later he went to church and heard the minister tell of the "unpardonable crime," and realized he had committed it. This preyed on his mind and he was possessed of the idea that three sacrifices of human life must be made to obtain the perfection for which he was striving. Under this hallucination, he declared, he burned his two younger sisters. One year later he was called on to kill again, this time it was his parents. He also thought that a year later must make his third sacrifice of human life before he could be perfect.

Manual Perry, alias Perira, charged with the murder of Charles Costa, of East Hampton in Holyoke last Saturday night, waived the reading of the complaint when brought before District Court for hearing and was bound over to the grand jury.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Charles B. Warren of Detroit, was nominated to be ambassador to Mexico.

The gunboat Tulsa was ordered to Tuxpam as a protection to Americans there.

Lusitania awards to Americans aggregating $1,000,000 were handed down by the mixed claims commission.

A house elections committee recommended the unseating of Representative Sol Bloom, democrat, New York.

Congressional leaders began preparations for a complete investigation of Northern Pacific railroad land grants.

A house resolution, appropriating $100,000 for the oil lease cases was passed by the senate.

Attorney-General Daugherty, in a letter to Senator Pepper, republican Pennsylvania, vigorously assailed his critics.

It was revealed that the senate oil committee is investigating reports that Attorney-General Daugherty had bought and sold Sinclair oil stock.

Senators examining the ballots in the Mayfield election contest said many ballots were being challenged on both sides.

The house irrigation committee voted to call witnesses to testify on power company opposition to the boulder dam project.

Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado, was assailed in the senate by Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, for voting to cut the appropriation for the Yuma irrigation project.

Democrats and republican insurgents in the house joined to gain more amendments to the revenue bill, although the democrats rejected an insurgent amendment to tax undistributed profits of corporations.

The return of about $11,000 received as counsel fees, to the trustee in bankruptcy for the Old Colony Foreign exchange company, was enjoined upon four Boston lawyers in a decision by Judge Lowell, of the federal district court in Boston.

SEE THAT NO CHANCES ARE ALLOWED TO ESCAPE.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"He's a noticin' kind of fella" said Uncle Ike to me, one day, speaking of a certain neighbor. Since then I've heard the phrase several times spoken of others. It always carries with it a measure of respect, too. The intonation is entirely different when some one, asked about a new comer, says "He? Oh, he's a mighty inquisitive critter." There is small indication of respect shown in that last description.

Now, why should it be thought a tribute to say of one man that he's "noticin' ", and a stigma to say of another that he's "inquisitive?"

A stray dispatch from out in Kansas, the other day, put me on the track of an answer to that.

According to this dispatch one J. S. Bryson, a ranchman living on Ten Mile Creek in Seward county, was puzzled just what to do with some land lying along the creek. It seemed pretty good land but was too rough and damp for plowing. He had no stock to speak of which he might have pastured on it. One day it occurred to him that ducks might do well along the creek. So he invested in a few and turned 'em loose.

They did fairly well. That is to say, they picked up most of their own living and made no trouble. They didn't lay many eggs, but they grew fat and strongly suggested the idea of roast duck. One day Bryson got an order for a couple of dressed ducks from a neighbor. In cleaning them, he noticed some small particles in their craws. He had these analysed and found they were pure gold. They were extremely small. The biggest was hardly the size of an ordinary pin-head. But there were a lot of them. It was at once evident that the ducks, seeking grit along the creek banks, had picked up these bits among other fragments of gravel.

Attempts to wash out more gold from the creek gravels by use of the miner's cradle, etc., resulted in the finding of some little metal, but not in quantities sufficient to pay for the labor of washing. The ducks, however, keep right on gobbling up grit and gold indiscriminately. Bryson sells none alive, dressing all that are ordered himself, and burning the craws and entrails. The dispatch does not tell us how many ducks he kills, per annum, but does specify that he gets about $200 from the mint at Denver, every six months, for the gold which he receives from the ashes of the ducks' intestines.

I think you will agree with me that this Bryson must have been a "noticin' kind of fella." First, he noticed that the creek promised to make a good place for the profitable raising of ducks. Some farmers would have simply avoided it. They would have charged it off as a bad investment. They would not have tried to make use of land which was manifestly unfit for their eternal wheat-growing. But, Bryson, being a "noticin'" chap, and having noticed that ducks take naturally to water and mud and creek bottoms, didn't see why he shouldn't get a little something, through their help, out of this otherwise waste strip.

Second, when he was dressing the first duck, he noticed the queer little particles in their crops. He had previously noticed that there was an assayer's office in the nearest city. Taking the hitherto unknown grains to the assayer, he learned what they were. And now he is getting a fairly regular income of $400 a year, in addition to his farm income and his calculated income from dressed ducks, —all because he was a "noticin'" sort of fella.

You'll observe, if you are shrewd, that this was something entirely different from the inquisitiveness which is forever poking its undesired nose into other peoples' affairs. It concerned itself with Bryson's own concerns and made mental minute of what might be for Bryson's personal advantage. It was not in any sense a mix-up with any of his neighbors' affairs. It was simply an ability to see what two and two were chalked up somewhere, and to make four by adding them together.

There are a whole lot of us farmers who can walk around a swamp hole for fifty years without ever noticing by the rank growth of cat-tails and other weeds that it's a veritable mine of fertility. Even if we do notice this enough to deplore the sad waste of soil food, we can't put a spade and a tile ditch together and make a grain to turn it into a garden spot. How many of us would think of making a duck pond of it, if we couldn't discover any better use?

I don't happen to know of any swamps or creek borders in Eastern Connecticut which give promise of supplying ducks with gravel for their crops. Neither did Bryson, when he set his ducks down by the edge of Ten Mile Creek, and told them to dredge out a living for themselves.

But one never can tell. It is still true, as of old, that to him that hath shall be given. The farmer who is "noticin' " enough to make canny use of even the waste corners of this land is very apt to have things added unto him which he didn't anticipate when he began. Good luck is sometimes cumulative. According to the wise man, misfortunes come not singly. Neither do gifts of good fortune. The one is apt to come accompanied as the other.

One thing seems to be suggested by this story of duck mining, anyway. That is the fact that keeping one's eyes open and one's brain alert is sometimes worth $400 a year. This, to be sure, is no tremendous sum. But it's a god deal more than the average farmer of New England nets, as clear profit, from his full year's work. It would come in handy on many occasions. It is not to be sneezed at, especially when the ducks gather the gold for you, merely as a side issue.

A good many farmers seem to look upon the raising of vegetables as something unworthy of their interest. They go in for grains or potatoes or hay. Can you explain to me just why this is so? The University of California reports that four counties in that state last year sold vegetables to the farm value of $12,500,000. Some of them were sold near home; some came as far as to the Atlantic coast. It is stated that there are only eleven counties in the whole United States which sell as much as $3,000,000 worth each of vegetables. Four are in California, and four in New Jersey and Florida. One other lies next to Chicago and one next to Boston.

I don't know how many counties there are in the United States, certainly several thousand. And yet, only eleven of them do a really worth while business in raising vegetables. This, though the demand for really good, fresh vegetables is never fully satisfied, and the prices paid are generally better than for grains or potatoes or hay. When I say the prices are better, I mean better not only in cash receipts but better per acre and better per labor-day. Of course, vegetable production can be run into the ground, just as wheat production has been in parts of the northwest. A widely circulated western paper notes that it costs $1.20 to $2.80 to produce a ton of bituminous coal. The coal sells at the mines for about $5.50 a ton. It costs about $1.28 to produce a bushel of wheat. The wheat sells at the farm for about 85 cents.

This certainly isn't a fair deal for the wheat-growing farmers. But might it not have been a good deal less disastrous to some of them if, instead of putting all their land into wheat, they had devoted a part of it to onions or cabbages or beans or peas or even asparagus? If they had been really "noticin' " chaps, they would have seen, years ago, that this putting all their eggs in one basket was risky business.

I remember an old and fairly successful farmer saying, one time, that no work he ever did in the field paid him so well as the time he spent sitting on the fence and whittling. This wasn't a silly joke, nor a pessimistic croak, either. He meant it. He meant that the time he spent whittling and thinking and "noticin',"—using his eyes and his brains as well as his jackknife,—was usually more productive than the time he spent using just his muscles and his brawn.

One of the newspaper jokesmiths worked out a rather neat definition, recently. He wrote: "A successful agriculturist is one who puts a hive of bees under a bearing fruit-tree."—Catch on? The "noticin' " farmer observes that pear-stealing small boys fight very shy of beehives. They had much rather hunt pears in somebodyelse's orchard than run the risk of stirring up a bunch of angry bees. So he puts two and two together, i. e., the beehive and the fruit-laden tree, and makes a pear crop.

Sometimes a jest is the best form of argument. I'm inclined to think that this casual "columyist" has hit a ten-penny nail square on the head in his seemingly flippant paragraph. It is, after all, the little things, the little observations, the little comparisons, the little actions which are usually the most effective in the long run.

The more modern geologists, those who have inherited the observations and discoveries of their predecessors and have added their own, are generally inclined to hold that the present condition of the earth's surface is due more to the incessant action of small causes persisting over incomputable eras, than to cataclysmal and occasional outbreaks. One eminent geologist goes so far as to say that, he cares not how commanding the eminence on which one may stand nor how extensive the landscape to be seen from it, there is not one single feature visible which is not the result of dew-fall, rainfall, and frost,—three apparently trifling causes, all in as vigorous action today as in the past.

It is certainly so in farming. In New England farming, anyway. We Nutmeggers, with our little farms, often less than half of them arable, can't expect to do any "plunging," or to make any "bonanza" crops. We've got to watch the spigot rather than the bung, and save the tardy drops without hoping to catch any big flow. And we must keep our eyes on so many spigots that, unless we're more than usually "noticin' ", some of our chances will escape us.

I was once out walking with a friend along the bank of the Shetucket. I was gawping around in my usual heedless way, thinging only of a curious rock up near the tunnel which I wanted to get test specimens from, when my more "noticin'" companion stooped down and picked up a practically perfect fish-spear point, worked out from red jasper, and which I had almost stepped on without seeing it. He was not specially interested in Indian relics; so little that he promptly passed over his find to me, on hearing my cry of delight as I saw it. I have it yet, thanks to his generosity. It was simply that he kept his eyes open for anything interesting or important and so naturally saw the little jasper flake.

Mr. Bryson, out on Ten Mile Creek, Kansas, is certainly raking in $400 a year, because he noticed that the creek was made for ducks, and later noticed that those ducks were picking up queer-looking gravel. That means that his "noticin' " habits have capitalized an otherwise worthless creek border at $10,000 savings banks rate of interest.

It would be absurd to say, "Go thou and do likewise," for creeks do not form duck-ponds on every farm, nor would their gravel be apt to contain gold, if they did.

The really "noticin'" man isn't trying to imitate some other fellow. He's keeping his eyes peeled for things interesting or informative or promising on his own fields and in his own walks.

And, when he notices a good chance, he promptly sprinkles salt on its tail before it has the chance to get away.

$1,000 PRIZE IS OFFERED FOR NEW YALE SONG

New Haven, Feb. 21.—Yale men are still in quest of a new Yale song for which an anonymous prize of $1,000 stands. A previous competition for the prize closed December 31 but with no set of words submitted satisfactory to the committee of judges. The plan of the second competition for the prize contemplated two divisions; the first, open to Yale alumni and students only, for words, and the second, open to the general public in competition for a musical setting for the chosen words.

With approval of the donors of the prize words will be received from the first of March, 1924, to the first of October following. If the award of $500 is made for words at that time, a competition for a musical setting will be announced.

George Washington

Upon a wild and lonely coast
A lighthouse sent afar
To mariners its friendly beam
And o'er it blazed a star.
The lighthouse fell into the sea.
But still supremely bright
The steadfast star remained to guide
The sailors in the night.

So names of lesser glory burn
O'er Time's resistless tides,
Then topple and are swept away,
But Washington's abides.
It shines above a storm world
Immutable as Fate,
The bright immortal star by which
We steer the ship of state

The Other Fellow's Job

When you think the other fellow
Has the job you'd like to do—
Don't feel discontented,
He may think the same of you.

He may look with eyes of longing
At this job you'd fain disown—
For every job looks good to someone,
If the job is not his own.

His may look an easy pathway;
He may not even seem to try—
But, depend, he's had his heartaches
Just the same as you or I.

Your road may have its furrows,
Its ruts and hard spots, too;
But don't blame the job, man—
Perhaps the trouble lies with you.

Every man who'd reach Life's hilltop,
Must be prepared to plod his way—
For not magic wand nor aeroplane
Can land you there in just a day.

Be your job a big or small one,
In Life's game it plays a part
In service to your fellowmen;
So plug with all your heart.

There's advancement for the plugger—
For the chap who plays the man;
Who worries not what others do,
But does the best he can.
—Frank A. Collins, in Forbes Magaine.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS FIRM

New York, Feb. 21.—Stock prices displayed a firm understone in today's market, net gains in the active industrial issues ranging from 1 to 2 1-2 points. Business was on a reduced scale because of the approaching holiday and the continued interruption to wire service.

Resumption of buying on the long side was influenced by cheaper money rates, call funds being obtainable in the outside market as low as 3 3-4 per cent.; continuation of record breaking car loadings for this season of the year another advance in lead prices; the recovery in sterling exchange on the settlement of the British dock workers' strike, and a continuation of favorable trade reports.

Short covering was in evidence from the start, in many cases, provided the main impetus for the advance. For the first time since last October, Wall street brokers' loans have taken a drop in the last few days, the total now being estimated at $1,380,000,000, or about $20,000,000 below that of February 1.

Oils gave one of the best demonstration of group strength, Standard Oil of California rising 3 points and Pacific, Mexican, Seaboard, Sinclair, Maracaibo and Tidewater rising a point or more. Buying of these issues was based on the speculative belief that the Washington oil investigation already had exhausted their bearish possibilities, leaving them in a position to respond to any improvement in the crude oil production situation.

Steel also moved up smartly, gains of a point or so being recorded by U. S. Steel common, Republic, Crucible, Bethelehem and Gulf States, the increase in the annual dividend on the last named stock and reports of heavy buying by automobile and railroad equipment manufacturers stimulating the demand for those shares.

One of the sharpest rallies took place in American Can, which soared as high as 114 5-8 and then dropped back to 113 3-4 where it was up 2 3-4 on the day. Baldwin closed nearly 2 points higher at 122 after selling slightly above that figure. The sharp rally in Davison Chemical, which was pushed above 53 and then eased to 51 3-8, up 3 5-8, was attributed to pool operations. Market Street Railway issues which were depressed yesterday on unconfirmed reports that the dividend on the prior preferred was in danger, made partial recovery today, the prior preferred closing 2 1-4 higher at 54 1-4.

Strength and activity of Southern Railway common, which touched 48 7-8, a new high for all time, featured the railroad group. Seaboard Air Line preferred, Union Pacific and Lackawanna also were strong. General Electric and Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred were among the few heavy spots.

Call money held steady at four per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges made good recovery from recent weakness. Demand sterling climbed more than 2 cents to around $4.31 3-4; French francs rose about ten points to 4-25 cents and other European rates improved in sympathy.

BOND MARKET

New York, Feb. 21.—Improving under the influence of a more cheerful tone in the stock market and broadening public interest, bond prices were decidedly firmer today. Substantial advances were recorded in the Liberty bond, speculative rail and public utility groups in moderate trading activity.

Foreign government and municipal issues also strengthened appreciably. Austrian 7's, Belgian 8's, Lyons 6's and Paris-Lyon-Mediterranean 6's closed with 1 point gains, while some of the Mexican government bonds reflected the improved feeling resulting from the regular arrival of funds for interest payments on the debt.

The extent to which bonds were affected by the improvement in stock prices was demonstrated by the convertible sugar and copper issues, which moved up briskly, and by several of the oil issues. Sinclair Consolidated 7's, in line with the activity of the stock, gained almost 3 points. Virginia-Carolina Chemical issues, on the other hand, continued to lose ground as the price of the stock sagged. Low-priced railroad issues were in good demand, with interest centered in Seaboard, Chicago & Alton, Denver & Rio Grande and Missouri Pacific issues.

Strength of the U. S. government issues was explained by renewed institutional buying. After selling Liberty bonds for a transfer of funds higher yielding corporate issues, banks and insurance companies were reported to be favoring these issues again until the outcome of tax legislation could be foreseen more definitely. Early offering is expected of the $6,000,000 Hocking Valley issue, which will take the form of 3 year 5 per cent. notes and probably sell at 99 1-4 yield about 5.40 per cent.

CURB MARKET

New York, Feb. 21.—Heavy buying of the oil shares, much of it representing short-covering, brought about a brisk advance in prices in today's active curb market.

A 40-point jump in Cheseborough to 430 on reports of an early declaration of a stock dividend featured the oil group, the stock dropping to 420 at the close. Solar Refining jumped 7 points to 217. Standard Oil of Ohio climbed 8 to 320 and Prairie Oil & Gas moved up 6 1-2 to 236 1-2. Gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by a number of issues including Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas and New York, Vacuum, Prairie Pipe, Magnolia Petroleum, Imperial of Canada and Gulf of Pennsylvania.

Strong spots in the industrial group included Durant Motors, Kreage, Grand Stores and Dubilier Radio, buying in the last named being based on reports of the construction of a new factory in Brooklyn. American Light & Traction jumped 8 1-2 points on odd lot sales to 125 1-2, a record high on publication of a favorable 1923 earnings statement. Silica Gel voting trust certificates were stronger on news that the underwriters of 109,350 shares of stock had exercised their option to purchase an additional block of 30,600 at $25 a share.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Reports of the virtual settlement of the British dock strike led to something of an upturn in wheat prices today. Closing quotations here were unsettled but 1-4 a 3-8 to 1-2c net higher, May 110 1-2 to 110 5-8 and July 110 3-4 to 110 7/8. Corn finished at 1-8 a 1-4c lower to 1-4c advance, oats at a shade decline to 1-8c gain and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2c.

As a result of news that the dock strike was practically over, European demand for Canadian wheat became the best in weeks and it was estimated that 600,000 bushels of the Canadian grain were taken today for trans-Atlantic shipment. The upward trend of values was also emphasized by gossip current that the crop scare time for domestic winter wheat is only a week or so away. Besides, primary receipts were notably smaller as compared with a week ago, farm reserves were expected to make bullish showing, nad confidence was apparently stronger than ever that the import duty on wheat would be raised before the opening of lake navigation. On the other hand, bears contended that with May wheat selling under the deferred months at this time of the year a bull campaign was untenable. Predictions of a sharp reduction soon in the volume of corn arrivals gave steadiness to the corn market and to oats as well. The predictions were largely based on information that stocks of corn in Illinois elevators are much smaller than usual at this time of the season. There were reports, however, that corn was arriving at Omaha too fast for the demand. Clear cold weather prevailing acted also an an incentive to sell.

Lower quotations on hogs failed to weigh down the value of packing house products.

ARRANGING FOR ANGLO-RUSSIAN CONFERENCE

London, Feb. 21.—(By the A. P.)—M. Rakovsky, soviet representative in London, will leave for Moscow tomorrow to consult his government regarding arrangements for the forthcoming Anglo-Russian conference to be held in London. He plans to return the third week in March when the conference probably will be convened.

Great Britain will be represented by Sir Sidney Chapman, of the board of trade, and J. D. Gregory, counselor of the foreign office. Russia's choice for chief delegate is said to rest between Rakovsky and Krassin.

All matters outstanding between Great Britain and Russia will be divided under two broad heads, economic and political, each section of the conference sitting separately.

The meetings are likely to last for several months, as under the political head along there are nearly 200 treaties, international agreements and special conventions between the two countries to be considered with a view to their validity. Some of these go as far back as 1800 and include all the great international treaties of Europe for the last century in which either nation is concerned.

Feeling is growing that unless both sides are prepared to make sweeping concessions in the matter of war debts, indemnities and reparations there is no great hope of a successful issue.

Russia's claims for damages caused by the counter-revolution armies of Wrangel, Denikine, Yudenitch and Kolchak alone amount to more than the combined pre-war debts of Great Britain, while the British bill against the soviet government for unsettled loans and unadjusted claims of British citizens and corporations runs into nearly a dozen figures.

WHITE WOMAN AND NEGRO MAN IN LEADING PARTS

New York, Feb. 21—A young woman whose name is being withheld has agreed, after one leading actress and many near stars refused, to play opposite a negro leading man in an inter-racial play "All God's Chillun Got Wings", written and soon to be staged by Eugene O'Neill, it was revealed today. The white woman is required, in the closing scene of the play, to kiss the hand of the negro whose wife she has become.

O'Neill's determination to go on with the staging of this play and to make it realistic with a white woman and a negro man in the leading parts, has started talk in theatrical circles. He first offered the leading female role to one of the best-known actresses and when she refused consulted many others before finding one he said was willing to hold art above race prejudice. This young woman has asked that her name be kept from the public at least until the play opens.

The plot of "All God's Chillun Got Wings" deals with intermarriage among negroes and white people and its scenes are laid in the negro district of Manhattan. The opening scene is a busy corner in this section. On the sidewalk are eight children four white and four negro. One little white girl, Ella, holds marbles for Jim Harris, a negro boy. They are portrayed as child sweet hearts, she asking:

"Do you want to be my feller?"

When he answers in the affirmative she wafts him a kiss, saying:

"Then I'm your girl."

Nine years later the players are on the same corner; Ella is being treated brutally by one of the white men she has grown up with and his attitude is contrasted with the kindly way of her negro sweetheart. Ella and Jim are married. Later she becomes insane over the race problem. Her insanity becomes childish happiness when her husband fails to pass a bar examination and remains a simple negro. She kisses his hand and he prays to be made worthy of "the child you sent me for the woman you take away."

FAMOUS PAINTING DEFACED BY AN INK-LIKE MATERIAL

Boston, Feb. 21—Chemical analysis of a black, ink-like material spattered on John Singers Sargent's famous painting "The Synagogue" on the wall of the Boston public library, was ordered tonight by Librarian Charles F. D. Belden. The police authorities have been called in an effort to trace the vandal who sought to destroy the painting.

Library employes discovered the stains on the picture and on the stone balustrade of the stair case yesterday, but officials did not make the fact public until today. It was admitted that there was no clue to the identity of he ink-thrower. While the painting is marred by a dozen spots, it is not destroyed and the librarian expressed hope that it could be restored when the nature of the defacing material had been ascertained.

Sargent's painting had a storm center for more than two years. Objections to the presence in the public library were made by Jews who maintained that in its symbolic presentation of religion of old it is an insult to the Jewish race. Petitions were sent to the legislature asking that the painting be removed from public view.

Two years ago after a long controversy the legislature passed an act directing the state department of education to take the painting by right of eminen domain for use in the teaching of art for university extension work. Dr. Payson Smith, commissioner of education, recommended the repeal of this law in his annual report this year, stating that it has been impossible to use the picture for the purpose intended by the legislature. Hearings are again in progress on the question of removing "The Synagogue" from the library.

Another of Sargent's paintings, that of Henry James, was destroyed by suffragettes in 1913.

MAN KILLED IN BATTLE WITH RUM RUNNERS

Ashland, Ky., Feb. 21.—One man was killed and another wounded in a fight between officers and suspected rum runners near here last night. The dead man was thought to be Roy Miller of Irontou, Ohio. Constable George Hall of Ashland, was beaten and is in a serious condition today.

The constable and other officers encounterede the automobile occupied by the band of alleged runners, on the Belfont Hill road.

The Mexican embassy declared in a statement last night that conditions in Mexico are "rapidly being restored to normal after the decisive defeat of rebels."

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of
CHARLES J. RYAN
Who departed this life on Feb. 22, 1919.

We miss you when the morning dawns,
We miss you when the evening falls,
We miss you here, we miss you there,
Dear Charles, we miss you everywhere.

BROTHERS and SISTERS.

CARD OF THANKS

For the kindness and sympathy extended to us by neighbors and friends our great bereavement—the loss of beloved son and brother—we tender the most heartfelt thanks, as well as to those who sent flowers. All these evidences of friendship will be greatly cherished.

SOME DON'TS FOR OWNERS OF RADIO OUTFITS

Don't expect too much from a one-tube set.
Don't try to increase quality by tuning rheostats on full.
Don't blame your set when what you need is fresh A batteries.
Don't take your telephones apart and tinker with them.
Don't disturb the wiring of your set when it is working O. K.
Don't expect amplification from a loud speaker unless it embodies power-emplifying unit.
Don't let your storage battery run low, keep it as fully charged as possible.
Don't expect to double your distance by doubling the length of your antenna.
Don't make a public nuisance of yourself by careless tuning. Learn to tune properly.
Don't expect to learn to operate a radio set in five minutes.
Don't take all the advice that is offered too seriously; find out what is beste for your set and then leave it alone.
Don't expect too much of your set. Until you have learned to run it properly, and under the most favorable conditions, you cannot properly estimate its range, volume and selectivity.
Don't put the blame on nearby broadcasting stations when what you need is a more selective set.
Don't pull the set apart, or smear it with bad language when the trouble is the result of static or other atmospheric conditions.
Don't forget that the real secret of success in operating a radio set is patience, and more of the same.

How much louder it sounds when some one else slams the door!

PROFESSIONAL INCENDIARY ENDANGERED MANY LIVES

New York, Feb. 21.—A confessed professional incendiary calmly and indifferently told in court today how he had endangered the lives of hundreds of tenement dwellers by setting fires in five laundries during the "laundry war" of the late summer and fall of 1922.

The witness, Louis Wallinger, awaits sentence for third degree arson to which he confessed. Testifying at the trial of Boris Almis, a member of the Wet Wash Laundrymen's association for first degree arson Wallinger described his engagement by the association to set fire to rival laundries. He had been a professional fire setter for years, he said, but never had thought about the number of lives he had menaced.

Almis is charged with having caused a fire in an Orchard street laundry on November 11, 1922. This blaze threatened 48 families living in the tenement above the laundry.

Wallinger testified that he set the five fires at the behest of Almis, whom he characterized as one of the leaders in the plot of the wet wash laundrymen to drive out of business rivals who refused to increase prices. After the Orchard street blaze, he said, Almis looked the job over and paid him a $40 bonus, although he got a salary of $50 a week from the Wet Wash Protective association as a professional fire setter.

Frank Marchesi also has confessed to a part in setting the fires.

Bulletin's Pattern Service

A PRACTICAL APRON MODEL

4495. No buttons or snap fasteners to be considered, easy to adjust so easy to launder—and withal so comfortable and neat. An ideal apron, indeed. The Pattern as here shown was developed in figured percale, and trimmed with rick rack braid. The style is good for all apron materials. In damask with pipings of sateen or linen in a contrasting color, it will be very pleasing.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires 4 5-8 yards of 36-inch material. The width at the foot is 2 1-4 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

Send twelve cents in silver or stamps for our Up-to-Date Spring and Summer 1924 Book of Fashions.

The Thursday Evening Basketry Class met Thursday evening in the Red Cross Rooms in the Ponemah Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustine Beausejour of South B Street have moved to Pawtucket, R. I.

Mrs. Harry McNamara has returned to her home in Hartford after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Yerrington of South Second Avenue.

Sheriff George Stanton of Norwich was a business caller in the village Thursday.

GREAT SACHEM FAIRBANKS VISITED MOHEGAN TRIBE

Mohegan Tribe, No. 64, I. O. R. M., at its meeting Thursday evening in Steiner's hall, was favored by a visitation from Great Sachem W. E. Fairbanks of Naugatuck. The business meeting was called to order about 8 o'clock and there was a good sized attendance. The adoption degree was worked on one paleface and routine business matters were discussed. Past Sachem George F. Farrell was presented a past sachem's jewel.

During intermission, sandwiches and coffee were served and cigars were passed around. After intermission the meeting went into social session. Great Sachem Fairbanks gave a very interesting address on the work of the order and on plans for the future. He offered a Red Man's emblematic ring to the member of Mohegan tribe who brings in the greatest number of palefaces between the present date and April 1.

Several prominent members of the tribe were called upon and responded with brief remarks for the good of the order. The committee in charge of the refreshments consisted of R. D. Harris, Daniel Dean and George F. Farrell. The meeting came to a close about midnight.

GRACE CIRCLE'S BIRTHDAY PARTY AT JOHNSON HOME

Grace Circle of the King's Daughters, Mrs. Austin F. Perkins, leader, celebrated its twenty-ninth birthday Tuesday, meeting at the Johnson home. There was an informal entertainment, Miss Charlotte Fowler giving pleasure by several songs, accompanied by Miss Olive Linton and Mrs. John O. Peckham. Mrs. Peckham gave several humorous readings, and at the close all joined in singing favorite hymns.

Supper was served to thirty, under direction of the committee, Miss Amy F. Burlingame, chairman; Mrs. Grant Troland, Mrs. M. E. Maguire and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson. All enjoyed the delicious creamed chicken in patty cases, buttered rolls, coffee, ice cream, cake and candy.

Of the twenty-six members of the circle, thirteen were present at the birthday celebration. Grace circle has accomplished much excellent work during the year, under the active direction of the leader, Mrs. Perkins.

IMPOSTER APPEARS AS MT. CALVARY PASTOR

That there is an imposter in town representing himself to be pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church is evident from the following experience which Mrs. Annie Drury had Thursday. A man, claiming he was pastor of Mt. Calvary Baptist church, stopped at Mrs. Drury's home and stated that he was soliciting money to be used for the erection of a new church to replace the present Mt. Calvary church. Mrs. Drury asked him how long hand he been pastor of the church and he answered for two years. When Mrs. Drury identified herself as clerk of the church the visitor hastily departed.

The church has been without a pastor for several months past.

STATE ATTORNEY HULL IS REGAINING STRENGTH

Friends of State Attorney Hadlai A. Hull of New London will be pleased to know that he continues to make improvement in health after the long period of illness from which he has suffered and although he is yet in bed on the advice of his physician, he is able to sit up, dictate letters and attend to some business details that call for his attention.

SUES RAILROAD ON CLAIM THAT LOCOMOTIVE SPARK STARTED FIRE

Evidence for the plaintiff was introduced in the superior court at New London Thursday afternoon before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury in the suit of Jacob Bohun of East Lyme against the New Haven railroad company for $7,500 damages for what a fire did on land of the plaintiff. Trial of the case will be continued next Tuesday.

The plaintiff claims that a spark from a locomotive of the company set fire to his property adjoining the property of the railroad at Giants' Neck and that the fire burned 90 acres of grass, a large number of trees, 150 rods of fencing and destroyed the soil.

The jury chosen to try the case is as follows: Albert Hewitt, Frank A. Baier, Allen Penhallow, New London; George E. Cutler, William H. Trail, Groton; Charles F. Champlin, John Jaffrey, George Winterbottom, Stonington; Edwin A. Moody, Montville; Calvin R. Main, Peter Hoffman, Solon F. Chapman, Ledyard.

The plaintiff has George C. Morgan for his lawyer and Attorneys Carpenter and French are looking after the interests of the defendant company.

William R. Proctor, fire warden of the town of East Lyme at the time of the fire in April, 1922, was called as the first witness for the plaintiff and he explained and described the area over which the fire burned, the number of men used to fight it and the fire back and other methods that were employed to combat the flames.

FOURTH DEGREE CONFERRED ON POMONA GRANGE CLASS

A class of a dozen candidates was present for the fourth degree Thursday morning at the February meeting of New London County Pomona Grange, No. 6, P. of H., at Steiner's Hall. There was a very large attendance at the meeting which opened at 10.30 o'clock with Worthy Master J. P. Hollowell of Preston in the chair. The usual routine reports were given and considerable business of a routine nature was transacted.

At noon an appetizing dinner was served by Norwich Grange, 172 P. of H., and about 1.30 o'clock the afternoon session was called to order. The feature number of the lecturer's programme was a debate on Resolved, That Dairying as Practised in Connecticut is Unprofitable and Impoverishes the Soil. The affirmative was taken by G. Warren Davis and E. P. Barnes of Preston Grange and the negative by R. J. Whitham and Hugh Whitham of Konomoc Grange. The decision of the judges, Rev. G. F. Goodenough, Ledyard, F. N. Taylor of Lebanon and C. Palmer Chapman, master of the R. I. State Grange, favored the negative. Recitation songs were given by Alton G. Wheeler of Stonington Grange. The meeting closed with "musical refreshments" by Miriam Beckwith of Franklin Grange. It was decided to hold the June meeting in Lebanon.

APPEALS FROM ALLOWANCE OF BILL BY COMMISSIONERS

An appeal from the action of commissioners Charles W. Cassidy and Gilbert S. Raymond, has been brought in the superior court by Idelle Babcock, administratrix of the estate of the late Charles D. Babcock of Griswold, which was probated in the Norwich court.

Upon appointment by the court to consider a claim for $92.59 presented against the estate by Albertus C. Burdick, but wholly disallowed by the administratrix, the commissioners allowed the claim in full and so reported to the court on Jan. 22, 1924. From this the administratrix appeals.

The claim made by Mr. Burdick was dated Aug. 14, 1920 and was for $100 for a commission for sale of real estate to Ignatius Yagella, plus a charge of $7.15 for insurance and less a credit of $14.56 for dividends on insurance.

ON TRIP TO QUEBEC FOR WINTER SPORTS

A. P. Hardy of 108 Washington St., and Dr. Curtis Bernard were in a party of tourists that left Boston on Thursday for Quebec. They will leave on the return trip Sunday afternoon in order to reach Boston Monday morning. Beside the usual winter sports, curling contests have been arranged, and the party will see the International Dog Sled Derby and a hockey tournament. At the Chateau Frontenac a cabaret show is planned Friday evening and dinner in a private banquet room and a fancy dress ball Saturday evening. Saturday morning a trip will be made to Beaupre, and Sunday morning there will be sleigh rides around Old Quebec.

EX-SERVICE WOMEN ARE TO HAVE BANQUET

The Merrie Mariners, an organization composed of 65 ex-service women and nurses of the U. S. Naval Reserve Force who served at the submarine base during the world war, will hold a banquet at the Mohican hotel, New London, Saturday evening at 7, preceded by a short business meeting.

Mrs. Ethel Fargo of New London, is president, Mrs. Frank Renlill of this city treasurer and Miss Gertrude O'Neil of this city chairman of the reception committee.

A wise man says just enough and then puts the lid on.

SHORT-CHANGE TRIO RAN INTO TROUBLE HERE

Three young fellows from Providence tried a short-change game on a recent evening at the gasoline station of Morris J. Anderson, 110 North Main street, but after realizing $5 by their methods, were caught at Jewett City and obliged to make restitution besides paying something for the trouble they had made for Mr. Anderson.

The three drove up in a Buick roadster and were in such a hurry to get three gallons of gas that they had the pipe nozzle in their machine before Mr. Anderson had hardly opened the door to go out to them. One fellow at once went inside the store, presumably to get a chance at the cash register, but that happened to be locked. When Mr. Anderson came back this one handed him a new ten dollar bill to pay for the 66 cents worth of gas. He said he had nothing smaller, but just as he had been given his change of $9.34, the second man came in insisting he would pay for the gas with a dollar bill which he presented but asking Anderson for change for a five, which by some sleight of hand they made Anderson believe he had received.

The trio then departed in a hurry and Anderson becoming suspicious found out that he was $5 short somewhere in the process. He at once phoned Officer Veglard at Jewett City who caught the car, and escorted the gang to the Jewett City police station. Here Anderson identified the men, much to their great sorrow of making such a mistake, but they were even more sorrowful when the proprietor of a Jewett City restaurant appeared and decided that they were the fellows who worked the same scheme in his restaurant a short time ago. When asked for a settlement the fellows decided to pay Mr. Anderson a part of the required sum sending the remainder when They returned to Providence. This didn't appeal to Anderson and after some argument and trying to picture the dramatic scenes of the wife at home waiting for her delayed husband the full amount was paid to Mr. Anderson. They were then placed under bonds for the so-called mistake, made in Jewett City some time ago. Perhaps when the trio returns to Providence they will not care to make any more such mistakes in this section for a time as these have proved rather unprofitable.

APPROVES APPROPRIATIONS FOR FAIRS IN STATE

Twenty-seven of the fairs held in Connecticut during 1923 have been approved for payment of state appropriation by the state board of agriculture, among which is the New London County Agricultural society that holds its annual fair at Norwich and which has been voted the sum of $500. The appropriations total $12,850 and are computed on the basis of the amount paid in premiums by the fair association. For every state fair except that of the Connecticut State Agriculture society, which receives an appropriation of $4,000, the amounts are computed as follows at $100 for the first $100 in premiums; $50 for each succeeding $100 in premiums, provided that the state appropriation shall not exceed $500.

The list approved, besides the New London county fair, thus far is as follows: Brookfield School Fair association, $100; Connecticut Beekeeper's association, $300; Connecticut Horticultural society, $200; Connecticut Sheep Breeders' association, $150; Connecticut State Agricultural society, $4,000.

Coventy Grange Fair association, $200; Durham Agricultural Fair association, Inc., $500; East Haddam Grange Fair association, Inc., $450; Good Will Fair association, $150; Guilford Agricultural society, $500; Harwinton Agricultural society, $200; Marlboro School Fair association, $100.

Middlebury Agricultural society, $500; New Haven County Horticultural society, $200; Pachaug Grange Agricultural society, $200; Plymouth Fair Corp., $350; Portland Hemlock Grange Fair association, $500; Rockville Fair association Co., $500; Stafford Springs Agricultural society, $600.

Union Agricultural Society, Riverton, $500; Union Agricultural society of Somers, Enfield, Ellington and East Windsor, $150; Washing Fair Corp., $600; Windham County Agricultural society $500; Wolcott Agricultural society, $500; Woodstock Agricultural society, $450.

ACCIDENTS APPEAR AS CHIEF CAUSE OF DEATHS

Probably more persons died from accidents in the United States and Canada last year than from typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria, diarrhea and whooping cough combined. More than eight times as many died by accident as committed suicide and more than eight times as many were accidentally killed as were slain by their fellows.

"The year had, altogether, a very unsatisfactory record on the score of public safety. The accident death rate increased from 58.9 per 100,000 in 1922 to 62.7 in 1923—a rise of more than eight per cent," according to the latest Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company which bases its figures upon the 1923 health record of its approximately 16,000,000 industrial policyholders in the United States and Canada, nearly one-seventh of the combined populations of the two countries.

"Slight increases were recorded for accidental burns," says the Bulletin, "machinery accidents and railroad accidents; and considerable increases for accidental falls and automobile accidents. The only decline registered was for accidental drowning. For this cause the rate was 8.7 per 100,000, which is the lowest ever recorded among the industrial policyholders."

Commenting upon the increased number of automobile fatalities—an increase of 13.2 per cent. over 1922—the Bulletin says:

"This form of accident has now become one of the major causes in American mortality statistics. Its 1923 death rate of 15.4 per 100,000 may be compared with 10.3 five years ago—a rise of approximately 50 per cent.; and with 4.1 ten years ago—an increase of almost 300 per cent. It is obvious that no method has yet been found to safeguard the lives of the American people against this form of accidental death. On the basis of these figures for the insured, we may safely estimate that the total number of automobile fatalities in the United States in 1923 was more than 15,000."

VERDICT OF $1,800 FOR DAMAGE TO TRUCK

Salvatore Sabilio of New London was awarded a verdict of $1,800 by a jury in the superior court there on Thursday morning in his suit against the Connecticut Co. and Robert W. Perkins, receiver of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co. He sued for the loss of an automobile truck which was struck by an East Lyme trolley car near station 5 on the evening of Dec. 21, 1921. He asked for $4,000 damages. The jury received the case at 11 o'clock and was out about an hour.

Mrs. Albina Donatello of Waterford was killed in the accident which was the basis of the suit when she was knocked off the running board of the truck when it was hit by the trolley.

The evidence and arguments in the case were finished Wednesday afternoon and Judge Christopher L. Avery charged the jury Thursday morning.

VETERAN BLOCK ISLAND CAPTAIN DIED SUDDENLY

Capt. Jason A. Mott, one of Block Island's best-known seafarers, died at his island home, the Fern cottage, Sunday morning in his 68th year. The captain's death was due to a stroke of apoplexy which followed complete recovery from a six weeks' siege of pneumonia.

For the past 25 years Captain Mott has catered solely to the summer sportsmen, and his catboat, the Emogene, has become quite famous among the sword fish and tuna enthusiasts from all parts of the country.

He was a native and life long resident of the island and was affiliated with many fraternal organizations and for the past 40 years a member and staunch supporter of the First Baptist church, of which he was a trustee.

To Letter Carriers' Convention

The letter carriers at the Norwich postoffice will be represented by a delegation of three at the annual state convention of Branch 20, National Letter Carriers' association, which meets today (Friday) in New Haven. Those who will represent the local carriers are A. A. Guile, Patrick Hinchey and Edward L. Walsh.

Wall papers were first used in the sixteenth century.

EACH NEW BABY ADDS $400 TAX EXEMPTION

Births, deaths and marriages affect federal income tax returns and alter personal exemptions allowed to taxpayers. Each baby added to the family circle allows the parents, besides the personal exemption for married couples, $400 credit.

Boys and girls who become self supporting and whose parents allow them the use of their earnings without restriction, form an entirely new class of taxpayers. Each must file an individual income tax return and pay a tax on his or her net income if it is in excess of $1,000. The earnings of dependent minor children who have not been "emancipated," that is, allowed the use of their earnings, by their parents, must be included in the income returns made by the parents themselves.

Widows or widowers during the calendar year 1923, unless remarried on or before Dec. 31, last, or unless they are the head of a family, are allowed, in filling their income tax returns for the past year, only the $1,000 exemption granted to a single person.

Taxpayers are reminded that the 15th of March ends the period for filing returns and that failure to do so within that time renders the delinquent liable to pay heavy penalties.

NORWICH LIONS CLUB ADDS TO MEMBERSHIP

The Lions club held its regular weekly luncheon at the Wauregan dining room Thursday at noon. President George A. Finn presided and Lion Tamer Tyler Rogers officiated as song leader. The right hand of fellowship was extended to three new members, Rev. Robert B. Day of Yantic, Edward B. Rich, cashier of the Norwich Gas and Electric office, and Dr. David Sussler. Two visitors, George P. Madden of this city and George Young of Hartford, were present.

The club's charter night celebration committee made a report of progress. Six attractive boxes of Martha Washington chocolates and bonbons were received with the compliments of Miss Maud Buckingham. Several of the boxes were auctioned off to members present and the money realized will be contributed to the War Memorial benefit dance to be given by Grace church in Yantic. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

A. JORDAN WINNER IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

With a score of 56,280, A. Jordan finished first in the West Side Pinochle Club contest which came to a close Wednesday evening. Parker finished in second place, his score being, 52,710 and Boynton finished third score 52,300. The scores made Wednesday evening follows:

Pettis (Harold Hull, sub) 8,100; Bailey 7,910; Underwood, 7,830; Jordan 7,530; Parker 7,430; Shuler 7,060; Peckham 7,000; Pendleton 6,875. A. Jordan (Percy Harwood, sub) 6,200, Boynton 5,250, Haskell 5,195, Lewis (Bryant, sub) 5,140.

The final standing is as follows:

A. Jordan 56,280, Parker 52,710, Boynton 52,300, Pettis 50,700, Bailey 49,670, Shuler 49,020, J. Jordan 48,810, Lewis 48,510, Underwood 48,255, Haskell, 48,155, Peckham 47,510, Pendleton 47,345.

LOUIS A. FRAZIER HAS BADLY CRIPPLED HAND

In a letter to Chief George Linton of the police department, Louis A. Frazier, a former well known meat cutter of this city, writes from Pasadena, Calif., that his hand is still crippled from a bad cut that he suffered a year ago in December. Otherwise his health is good and he enjoys California and says real estate values in Pasadena are booming and that he has had many offers to sell his place there for considerably more than he paid for it, but he is not disposed to sell.

Women's School of Democracy.

At a meeting held in Hartford it was voted by the executive board of the Women's Democratic State Federation and additional representatives from Hartford to hold a school of democracy in Hartford beginning Tuesday, March 18th with a luncheon at noon and concluding the program on Friday noon. There will be a dinner Thursday night. Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch presided at the meeting and plans were immediately formulated for the sessions. The aim of the school is (1) to instruct in material, method and presentation; (2) to increase party membership, (3) to widen the horizon and strengthen the convictions of democratic women, and (4) to point the way to closer co-operation with men of the party for more effective local, state and national service.

Bible Study on Prayer at Y. M. C. A.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather there was a good number at the weekly Bible study class for men at the local Young Men's Christian Association Wednesday evening. The scripture used was Matthew the sixth chapter, with special reference to what is commonly called The Lord's Prayer. One of the most searching petitions in the prayer is "Forgive us as we forgive others." On this basis some of us have a right to expect but slight forgiveness from God. Some of the essentials of successful prayer are as follows: A humble spirit; a sincere reverence; thanks for blessings received; more thought of others than self; a clean life, for "if I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me," and a positive faith, believing that God is able and willing to do for us what we need.

Birthday Party Guests

A pleasant birthday party was held Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Shields, 40 Hamilton Ave., for their daughter, Ella. The house was neatly decorated and the favors were of pink and blue.

Before and after the supper was served many different games were enjoyed.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Bowers and Williams Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Miss Ruth Johnson, Miss Helen Denison, Miss Marion Denison, Miss Mary Peckham, Miss Florence Bushnell, Miss Frances Bushnell, Miss Nellie Chappell, Miss Anna Pedace, Miss Helen Stampos, Miss Laura E. Shields, Miss Ella Shields, Mrs. Burgess, Mr. Van Benscoaten and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Shields.

MOODUS BANK'S SUIT ON COLCHESTER MORTGAGE

The Moodus Savings Bank of East Haddam has brought suit in the superior court for this county for foreclosure of a mortgage for $3,500 against Abraham Joffe of Colchester. Esther Alper of Alper cottage, Coney Island is named as party defendant on her claim to a $5,000 mortgage on the property, which consists of about 80 acres on Town street, Colchester. The mortgage was dated Dec. 8, 1920.

72 Years Old, But Actively On Job

Railroad Man Attributes Good Health and Strength to TANLAC.

Seventy-two years of age, but still in possession of the priceless boon of good health and actively on the job with the Central Vermont Railroad, where he has worked for 40 years, is the remarkable record of H. H. Moore, 24 Messenger St., St. Albans, Vt., who attributes his present health and strength to the use of TANLAC.

"I have never in my life seen the equal of TANLAC," said Mr. Moore recently. "After spending a lot of money on things that proved worthless for stomach trouble of the most obstinate kind, TANLAC made me feel like an entirely different man. For nearly two years I had been gradually getting worse, and my strength and vitality had got so low it was hard for me to attend to my duties. Indigestion, constipation, and nervousness made life miserable before I found TANLAC, but now my health is normal and I feel happy at I work. I shall always be grateful to TANLAC.

TANLAC IS FOR SALE BY ALL GOOD DRUGGISTS. ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTE — OVER 40 MILLION BOTTLES SOLD.

ENTERTAINED MEN'S CLUBS OF EPISCOPAL CHURCHES

The Neighborhood club of Trinity Episcopal church entertained the men's clubs of the several Episcopal churches of Norwich and vicinity Thursday evening at Trinity Episcopal church. Rev. R. R. Graham, rector of Christ church, spoke on The Scope of the Men's Clubs. Rev. Thomas H. M. Ockford of Poquetanuck spoke on Patriotism, and Rev. Robert B. Day of Grace church, Yantic, spoke on The Church and the Sailor, describing the work of the Seaman's Institute. Rev. L. E. W. Mitchell of St. Andrew's church, Greeneville, gave two excellent readings and Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church, spoke on Practical Suggestions for the Work of the Church Clubs. Community singing was enjoyed, with Frank Hill, Jr., at the piano.

As it was a patriotic meeting the church was decorated with flags and bunting. Refreshments of ice cream and wafers were enjoyed and cigars were circulated.

REP. NATIONAL COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN COMES TO THE DEFENSE OF DAUGHERTY

Mr. Adams Takes Issue With Party Leaders in the Senate Who Are Demanding the Resignation of the Attorney General —Declares That the Republican Party Organization Will Insist That No Verdict of Guilty Shall Be Pronounced Until Indisputable Evidence of Guilt Has Been Produced —Asserts That a Few Political Blackguards Are Conducting a Campaign of Slander Against Members of the Cabinet and Others High in Official Life.

Washington, Feb. 22. — Chairman Adams of the republican national committee tonight publicly joined the issue with those of his party leaders in the senate who are demanding the immediate resignation of Attorney-General Daugherty.

"This is not the time," he said in a formal statement, "to yield to the threats of those who are conducting this campaign of political terrorism, or to the demands of those who are frightened by such methods."

The republican party organization, he declared, will insist that no verdict of guilty shall be pronounced until indisputable evidence of guilt has been produced. The statement follows in full:

"The integrity of a former republican cabinet official has been called into serious question because he accepted money while in office from certain oil interests.

"The reputation of three former democratic cabinet members, and other democrats prominent in the Wilson administration, has been affected because they received moneys from the same oil interests, as hire for their political influence with their own administration.

"So much for the facts regarding the use of money disclosed up to date in the oil investigation.

"Taking advantage of this situation a few political blackguards and scandal mongers have launched a general campaign of slander against members of the cabinet and others high in official life.

"One of the victims of this campaign is Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy. The record shows he did not perform a single act in connection with the leasing of the naval oil reserves that was either illegal or immoral—much less a betrayal of public trust or inimical to public welfare.

In Defense of Denby.

"Not one of Secretary Denby's detractors can quote any official record or sworn testimony to the contrary. Not one dare make his accusations outside the halls of congress where he claims protection in the prerogative of uttering slander.

"Now it is being charged that Attorney-General Daugherty was a party to the transactions. He had nothing whatever to do with the oil leases. He was not even consulted regarding them. Those making these charges claim they want a congressional investigation of Mr. Daugherty in order to bring out the facts. But they are not willing to wait for the investigation.

"What they hope to do is to force Attorney-General Daugherty to retire from the cabinet before such an investigation can take place. They hope he will prefer such retirement to the alternative of remaining in office to be harrassed and slandered.

"The republican party organization stands unalterably for clean and honest administration of public affairs. It does not condone betrayal of public trusts or seek to protect those of the party guilty of such betrayal.

"But it is equally insistent that guilt must be proved or shown by evidence that admits of no doubt. Hysteria is not proof. Libel is not truth. Idle gossip and hearsay scandal are not evidence.

Seek to Sacrifice Innocent Men.

"To punish innocent men upon such irresponsible and disreputable grounds often results in letting those who are really guilty escape. It is not without the range of possibilities that those who are now making wild charges against public officials seek to sacrifice innocent men in order that guilt which should be ferretted out and properly placed may escape detection.

"This is not the time to yield to the threats of those who are conducting this campaign of political terrorism or to the demands of those who are frightened by such methods.

"The record shows that most of the charges now being made are merely revamped from those made some time ago by a member of the house of representatives in a demand for Attorney-General Daugherty's impeachment.

"These charges were thoroughly investigated by a house committee which by a vote of 30 to 1 denounced them as untrue and unwarranted. This decision of the committee, the house of representatives concurred in by an overwhelming vote on non-partisan lines. The new charges now being made are nothing but cheap gossip, part of which has already been utterly discredited.

Why Should Daugherty Resign?

"Why should Attorney-General Daugherty resign without a hearing? That is not the American way of doing things. It is time for officials of integrity to face their detractors and place the brand of infamy upon those who make their public office the mouthpiece of foul calumny.

"America, her institutions and her form of government, are not now and never will be, endangered by enemies from without. The menace is from those who for the purpose of elevating themselves into the limelight of questionable notoriety, or of serving the baser purposes of partisanship, seeking to destroy the faith of the American people in their public officials and institutions.

"The time has come for republican leadership to stop acting on the defensive, and to begin aggressive warfare on political traducers, who sat silent while the great orgy of waste, incompetency and corruption that the world has ever witnessed took place in Washington under the democratic administration."

PRESIDENT'S SECRETARY TO BE CALLED AS WITNESS

Washington, Feb. 22.—C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, will be called as a witness in the oil inquiry, probably next Monday.

This was made known today by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, who has taken the lead in pressing the investigation, after he had returned unexpectedly to Washington from a vacation at Pinehurst, N. C.

Mr. Slemp visited Palm Beach last December at the time Former Secretary Fall and Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, were there and he probably will be asked if he talked with them about the oil scandal.

Other members of the committee who concur in the decision to call the president's secretary, said he might be questioned also as to whether he had talked with government officials or others mentioned in the oil cases since the beginning of the sensational disclosures which followed the testimony of Archie Roosevelt on Jan. 22.

Apparently the news that he would be called came as no surprise to Mr. Slemp. It was understood that he had been advised several days ago that some members of the committee were of the opinion that he should be questioned.

Upon learning of Senator Walsh's statement, Mr. Slemp communicated with friends at the capitol and was told that no formal subpoena for his appearance had been issued. None may be as in the usual course high government officials simply are invited to appear before congressional committees.

Decision to call Mr. Slemp was only one development which came out of hurried conferences which Senator Walsh held with committeemen and his colleague, Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, immediately upon reaching his office.

General procedure at the renewal of the public hearings next Monday was discussed by Mr. Walsh and Chairman Lenroot and later it was stated that Milton E. Ailes, president of Riggs National Bank, of Washington, probably would be the first witness Monday.

Senator Walsh declined to disclose the subject matter upon which he will be questioned, but it is known that the committee desires to have information from the records of the bank which might throw some light upon rumors related to those current in connection with supposed oil stock transactions by public officials.

After the examination of Mr. Ailes and Mr. Slemp, the committee probably will call in its expert accountants before proceeding with other witnesses. These accountants have completed their audit of the books of W. B. Hibbs and company, a Washington stock brokerage firm, and also of the books of the former Washington branch of Ungerleider and company, a Cleveland stock brokerage firm.

Senator Walsh also said officials of the Federal-American National bank and the Commercial National bank, both of Washington, would be summoned in connection with the testimony given by Mr. McLean at Palm Beach that he had given Fall checks aggregating $100,000 drawn on these banks, and which subsequently were returned to him unused.

"We shall pursue the inquiry with respect to these checks," Senator Walsh said, "because the general belief is that this transaction never did take place."

Mr. McLean is now in Washington under subpoena, but the time he will be called for the committee has not yet been determined. Senator Walsh said he had conferred last Sunday with William J. Lambert, counsel for Mr. McLean. It may be that some further conferences will be held before Mr. McLean is asked to appear.

BOOKS AND MNUSCRIPTS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Perth Amboy, N. J., Feb. 22.—A rare collection of books and manuscripts, including letters of George Washington, Aaron Burr, and Benjamin Franklin, gathered for the past thirty years by Recorder Harold E. Pickersgill, was damaged here today when fire swept through the Danc building, causing losses estimated at $100,000.

Tonight Mr. Pickersgill and his son were endeavoring to salvage as much as possible of the collection, removing damaged books from the library of The Mosquito, a weekly publication owned by Mr. Pickersgill. Two safes, containing the valuable letters, were still intact. Whether or not their contents have been damaged is yet unknown.

ANNUAL MEETING STATE POSTMASTERS' ASSOCIATION

New Haven, Feb. 22.—The State Postmasters' association held their annual meeting here today and elected the following officers: President, James Geddes, Waterbury; vice president, Charles W. Brierly, New Haven; secretary and treasurer, Albert E. Wellman, Torrington. The association voted to have a summer meeting, time and place to be decided upon later.

NEW YORK BROKER ENDED LIFE BY INHALING GAS

New York, Feb. 22.—Frederick Pulsifer, 63, of the brokerage firm of Clark, Childs and company, ended his life today in his apartment by inhaling gas. Ill health was given as the cause by friends who said his financila affairs were in good condition.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Prince Umberto Has Influenza.

Rome, Feb. 22.—The crown prince, Umberto, has been seized with influenza and obliged to cancel all immediate engagements, one of which was to attend the impending aquatic sports carnival in Genoa.

King Tut's Tomb Opened

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 22—(By the A. P.)—Pierce Lacau, of the Egyptian antiquities department, opened Tutankhamen's tomb this afternoon in the absence of Howard Carter. The sarcophagus was found undisturbed and two hours were spent in making an inventory of its contents.

BRITISH DOCK WORKERS TO VOTE ON WAGE OFFER

London, Feb. 22.—(By the A. P.)—The confidence felt yesterday of an early settlement of the dock strike changed to renewed apprehension today when it was learned that the decision whether to accept the terms which the employers offered had to be referred to the strikers themselves.

The delegate conference sat nearly eight hours today without arriving at an agreement and then decided to adjourn until Monday in order to consult the men. It is hoped the delegates will be able to return from their respective ports on Monday with mandates for acceptance, but this is by no means certain as the big meetings held in some ports today showed a determination to exact immediate payment of the full two shillings advance. In view of this there seems to be no hope of resumption of port work before Tuesday and perhaps not then unless moderate counsels prevail.

One favorable sign today was the first meeting of the representatives of the Blue union with the employers and it is reported that good progress was made toward the settlement of their dispute. This meeting registers recognition of the Blue union which hitherto has been withheld.

All mails from the United States brought by the steamers America and Nieuw Amsterdam now have reached London and are being distributed. No further trouble on this head is expected. Several liners, however, had to cancel their outward sailings owing to the impossibility of getting loaded by tomorrow even had the men resumed work today. These include the Tyrrhenia and Doric for New York, whose passengers have been offered alternative sailings in liners departing later. The Orcoma, from London for South America, managed to sail yesterday with only a portion of her intended cargo and that was embarked partly by the company's clerical staff.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY LETTER CARRIERS' ASS'N

New Haven, Feb. 22.—The State Association of Letter Carriers at their annual meeting here today elected the following officers: President, William R. Cahill, Norwalk; vice president, John R. Sargent, Greenwich; secretary, William A. L'Hommidieu, Meriden; treasurer, John Burns, New Britain; board of trustees, Frank B. Whitney, Hartford; Andrew Morse, Stamford and W. G. Jenks, Waterbury.

John S. Foley, vice president of the national organization, spoke to the carriers on salary and retirement legislation. Other speakers were Clarence Stinson, chairman of the national executive board and Postmaster Robert Whittaker, of Stamford. Next year's convention will be at Norwalk.

A banquet was held in the evening.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT ASKED TO CUT DEBATE

Paris, Feb. 22.—(By the A. P.)—Parliament has been asked to cut short debate on Premier Poincare's taxation plans and to take an early vote on the premier's program. The request is contained in an open letter sent by the general confederation of French production, representing scores of industries, and federations of business men. It was addressed to all the senators and members of the chamber of deputies.

The letter says the fall in the value of the francs has revealed the peril of continuing with an unbalanced budget, and that, as faulty and incomplete as the proposed measures of the premier are, the chief need is immediate action. Parliament is reminded in the letter that business must bear the burden and that therefore it ought to be listened to.

HAVE DETERMINED AMOUNT OF GERMAN CAPITAL ABROAD

Paris, Feb. 22—(By the A. P.)—Reginald McKenna's committee of experts today definitely finished its task of estimating the amount of German capital that has been placed abroad, and then adjourned until March 3, when it will begin to formulate its ideas for attracting this capital back to Germany. This delay is necessary as the committee must await the completion of the conclusions of the Dawes committee in order to thoroughly coordinate the joint full report.

The latter committee devoted today to the hearing of the railroad experts reports on German railway systems and tomorrow will discuss these with the railroad specialists.

The two sub-committees on the proposed German gold bank and on the German budget have presented their preliminary conclusions and their ideas will be considered at a full meeting early next week.

BUILDING IN FRANCE ROCKED BY EARTHQUAKE

Tarbes, France, Feb. 22.—An earthquake this afternoon at 3.32 o'clock rocked buildings here and at Bagneres, Cauteres and other places. The walls of some buildings were cracked while doors were thrown open and furniture was broken. The phenomena lasted ten seconds. The quake was particularly severe at Bagneres, where a number of buildings were badly shaken. Chimneys were thrown down and the populace, panic-stricken, fled from their homes. Nobody was injured and the property damage was relatively slight.

Fire in Providence Means $175,000 Loss

Five Story Furniture Building on North Main Street Entirely Destroyed—Three Firemen Injured.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 22.—Three firemen were slightly injured, a five-story brick structure and a stock of furniture valued at $75,000 were destroyed by a spectacular fire which wrecked the building occupied by A. T. Scattergood company on North Main street shortly after 10 o'clock tonight. The total loss was $175,000, fully covered by insurance.

Three firemen were injured when the first floor caved in, burying them, but they were rescued by comrades and their injuries were so slight that they were able to return to their companies.

The blaze ate its way through the building with startling speed, the roof being a mass of flames within a half hour after the sounding of the first alarm and shortly after it fell in and then a side wall gave way. The building owned and occupied by the Congdon and Carpenter company, which is separated from the Scattergood structure by a brick party wall was guarded by the firemen against spread of the flames although the roof did catch fire it was extinguished without difficulty.

Coalition Still Rules in the House

Pass Amendment Making Tax Returns Subject to Inspection of Certain Congressional Committees.

Washington, Feb. 22—The house democratic republican insurgents coalition wedged another amendment into the revenue bill today, making tax returns subject to inspection by certain congressional committees. This amendment and another adopted by a one vote margin, opening corporation tax returns to inspection of state officials regardless of whether the state imposes an income tax, as the law now requires developed the major controversial issues of the day.

Both amendments drew fire from the republicans, Representative Mills, New York, charging that "this piecemeal destruction of the revenue bill is not only leading to complete distortion of the measure but to destruction of the income tax law itself." He charged the measure was being made an instrument of politics, adding that "instead of bringing relief for the taxpayers it is going to harass them."

Representative Wingo, democratic, Arkansas, in reply denied that amendments thus far adopted had done more than bring relief to a greater number of taxpayers, and declared he would "rather be charged with political motives than personal interest in framing a revenue bill."

The republican stand served to defeat an amendment offered by Representative Moore, democrat, Virginia, which would have opened personal as well as corporation returns to state officers. It was lost, 122 to 74.

Additional changes in the measure were tentatively agreed upon at a meeting of some members of both parties of the ways and means committee. These would increase the estate of inheritance tax and impose a gift tax. What rates will be proposed was not determined, although the schedule advanced recently by Representative Ramseyer, republican, Iowa, to make the maximum rate on the estate tax forty per cent., applying to the amount by which the net estate of a decedent exceeds $10,000,000 was favored by a number of those who conferred.

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, who yesterday advanced a new compromise on the income rate scheduled as a substitute for the democratic rates already voted int othe bill, declared tonight he expected eight or nine of the seventeen republicans who supported the democratic plan to vote for the substitute if an opportunity is afforded when the bill is up for a final vote. The republican compromise fixes the maximum surtax rate at 37 1-2 per cent., instead of the 44 per cent. now in the bill, and decreases the normal incomes below $4,000 to two per cent., the rate now in the bill, but would make it six per cent. above that amount. It would allow no increased exemptions.

However, both Representative Garner, of Texas, leader in the Democratic tax fight and Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, republican insurgent spokesman, insist the compromise will not be adopted.

CALL FOR MEETING OF FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL

New York, Feb. 22.—James A. Farrell, president of the U. S. Steel corporation, today issued a formal call for the national foreign trade council, of which he is chairman, to meet in eleventh annual convention at Boston June 4, 5 and 6. He announced that "our need for wider markets" would be the central theme of the conferences.

Pointing out that the foreign trade of the United States in 1923 averaged $26,500,000 each working day, having been almost evenly divided between exports and imports, Mr. Farrell said: "There are facts that offer inspiration and encouragement to American foreign traders. They indicate opportunities for further extension of foreign trade and call for renewed energy and determination.

"We must be ready to meet the new situations constantly arising. Europe's increasing productivity emphasized the importance of intensified American effort in all markets."

His convention call was extended to "all Americans engaged in foreign trade or connected with any factor of our international commerce—agriculture, commerce, education, industry, finance or transportation; all chambers of commerce, boards of trade, national and state associations and other industrial and commercial organizations as well as firms and individuals."

FEELING IN CANADA ON RUM RUNNING PROBLEM

Ottawa, Feb. 22—Reports of increased activities of rum-runners along the Atlantic coast have given rise to speculation here as to the probable date of the conclusion of the pact between Canada and the United States to curb liquor smuggling.

About a month ago the Canadian government sent proposals to Washington based on the discussions of the Ottawa conference between representatives of the two countries, but it is said that Canada has been unable to accept the drastic measures understood to have been suggested by the United States.

The Dominion government, it is known, did not favor extradition of persons suspected of rum-running. Canada also disapproved the request of the United States that clearances be refused any ship that might divert its liquor to American ports, although the Ottawa government made some concessions for the closer supervision of clearance papers. In some quarters here it is pointed out that the refusal of clearances, if carried out too liberally, would mean a virtual embargo on the export of Canadian liquor to any country on the North American continent.

MEXICAN REBELS NOT NEGOTIATING FOR SURRENDER

Washington, Feb. 22.—Reports from Mexico City that General Daniel Herrera, of the rebel forces, has been negotiating with the federal authorities with a view to surrender were denied as "absurd" in a dispatch received today from Adolfo De La Huerta, the revolutionary head, by Alvarez Castillo, his agent here.

The dispatch said General Herrera commanded the rebel column which yesterday captured Panuco, described as an important petroleum center, twenty miles southwest of Tampico. The report added that the rebel "advance on Tampico from two sides continues."

BUILDINGS SHOW HOW YALE IS EXPANDING

New Haven, Feb. 22—To a large group of new buildings, which are marking the expansion of Yale university will be added with formal exercises tomorrow, Sage Hall, for the Yale school of forestry. The building represents an outlay of $300,000 and is the gift of William H. Sage, Yale 1865, of Albany, N. Y., in memory of his son, De Witt Linn Sage. Mr. Sage will be represented by another son, Henry W. Sage, Yale 1895, at the dedicatory exercises.

Dean Henry S. Graves of the school will preside at the ceremony and President James Rowland Angell of the university will accept the keys. The principal address will be by Professor James W. Toumey, a former dean, and the architect of Sage Hall, William Adams Delano, Yale '05, of New York, will also speak.

A luncheon and inspection of the building will be followed by a conference of foresters with addresses by many of their number who are conspicuously prominent in their profession.

ITALIANS TO COMPETE IN PEACE PRICE CONTEST

Rome, Feb. 22.—Tomasso Tittoni, president of the senate today announced the details of the peace price contest of 200,000 lire, offered by Edward A. Filene, of Boston, which is to be competed for by Italians. Among those serving on the committee with Signor Tittoni are Professor Luigi Luzzatti, former premier and signor Salandra, who also has been Italy's prime minister. The contest will close June 30. The first prize will be 100,000 lire, the second 30,000 and the third 20,000. There also will be 20 awards of 2,000 lire and others for smaller amounts.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE DRAWS LESSON FROM THE LIFE OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

Delivered Radio Address in His Study in the White House in Compliance With Request of International Rotary Clubs —In Tribute Mr. Coolidge Dwelt Upon Washington's Calm and Clear Judgment, His Abounding Courage and His Unselfish Devotion—Recognized Neither Peasantry Nor Any Order of Nobility—Was Great Exponent of the Rights of Man, Founded on Service and Character—American Laws Are Based on the Theory That Each Individual is Entitled to Live His Own Life in His Own Way, Free From Any Kind of Tyranny and Oppression.

Washington, Feb. 22.—President Coolidge in a radio address delivered tonight from the White House, combined with a tribute to Washington an appeal to the American people to accept the responsibilities and continue the sacrifices necessary to make enduring the institutions which Washington founded.

Mr. Coolidge described the part played by Washington in the founding of the American government and declared he accomplished the results "by accepting great responsibilities and making great sacrifices."

"If we are to maintain the institutions which he founded, if we are to improve what he created, we must be like-minded with him, we must continue to accept responsibilities, we must continue to make sacrifices," the president said. "Under all the laws of God and man there is no other way."

The address was delivered by the president in his study in the White House and was made by invitation of the International Rotary clubs, members of which recently asked that the president deliver an address in anniversary of the founding of Rotarianism.

Character of Washington

"Each year the birthday of George Washington gains wider acceptance as being of more national significance," Mr. Coolidge said. "In far off lands people are observing this day by taking thought of the qualities that gave Washington this foremost place among the truly great. They are drawn to this man by his calm and clear judgment, by his abounding courage, and by his unselfish devotion. Beyond that which was ever accorded to any other mortal, he holds rank as a soldier, a statesman and a patriot. Others may have excelled him in some of these qualities, but no one ever excelled him in this three-fold greatness. Yet Washington, the man, seems to stand above them all. • • • We can best estimate him by not identifying him with some high place, but by thinking him as one of ourselves. When all detailed description fails, it is enough to say he was a great man. He had a supreme endowment of character.

"No one can think of America without thinking of Washington. When we look back over the course of history before his day, it seems as though it had all been a preparation for him and his time. When we consider events since then, we can see a steady growth and development of the ideals which he represented the institutions which he founded, world wide in extent. The principles which he fought to establish have become axioms of civilization. It might almost be said that the progress which peoples have made is measured by the degree which they have accepted the great policies which he represented.

The Exponen of Rights

"It is not possible to compress a great life into a single sentence. We look upon Washington as the exponent of the rights of man. We think of him as having established the independence of America. We associate his name with liberty and freedom. We say that he was a great influence in the adoption of the constitution of the United States. All these are centered around the principal of self-government. But when we examine the meaning of independence, of constitutional libert and of self-government, we do not find that they are simple rights which society can beow upon us. They are very complex. They have to be earned. They have to be paid for. They arise only from the discharged of our obligations of one anotherd.

Greatness of Washington

"Washington did not, could not, give anything to his countrymen. His greatness lies in the fact that he was successful in calling them to the performance of a higher duty. He showed them how to have a greater liberty by earning it. All that society can do, all that any government can do, is to attempt to guarantee to the individual the social, economic and political rewards of his own effort and industry. The America which Washington founded does not mean we shall have everything done for us but that we shall have every opportunity to do everything for ourselves. This is liberty, but it is liberty only through the acceptance of responsibility.

"It cannot fail to be worth while to recall som of the activities of Washington and the men of his day • • • Before we complain too much about our hardships in these luxurious days, before we lose faith in the power of the people by relying on themselves best to serve themselves, it is well to consider the early beginnings of this republic • • •

"Self-government does not purge us of all our faults, but there are very few students upon which our institutions proceed gives the best results that have ever been given to any people. When there is a failure, it is not because the system has failed, but because we have failed. For the purpose of insuring liberty for enactment of sound legislation, for the administration of even-handed justice, for the faultful execution of the laws, no institutions have ever given greater promise or more worthy performance than those which are represented by the name of Washington.

Central Idea of Self-Government

"We have changed our constitution and laws to meet changing conditions and a better appreciation of the broad requirements of humanity. We have extended and increased the direct power of the voter. But the central idea of self-government remains unchanged. While we realize that freedom and independence of the individual mean increased responsibility for the individual, while we know that the people do and must support the government, and that the government does not and cannot support the people, yet the protection of the individual from the power now represented by organized numbers and consolidated wealth requires many activities on the part of the government which were not needed in the days of Washington. Many laws are necessary for this purpose, both in the name of justice and of humanity. Efforts in this direction are not for the purpose of undermining the independence of the individual, but for the purpose of maintaining for him an equal opportunity. They are made on the theory that each individual is entitled to live his own life in his own way, free from any kind of tyranny and oppression.

Washington's Ideals

"We have not yet reached the goarl of Washington's ideals. They are not yet fully understood. He was a practical man. He suffered from no delusions. He knew that there was no power to establish a system under which existence could be supported without effort. Those who now expect anything in that direction are certain to be disappointed. He held out no promise of unearned rewards, either in small or large amounts. On the other hand, if no one ought to receive gain except for service rendered, no one ought to be required to render service except for reasonable compensation. Equality and justice both require that there should be no profiteering and no exploitation. Under the constitution of the United States there is neither any peasantry nor any order of nobility, politically economically and socially, service and character are to reign, and service and character alone.

"Such is the meaning of the life of George Washington, who came into being nearly two hundred years ago. He left the world stronger and better. He made life broader and sweeter.'

DARTMOUTH HAS FACULTY OPENING FOR TROTZKY

Chicago, Feb. 22—Dartmouth College, founded in 1766 by Eleazar Wheelock, and aided by the good offices and Franklin and John Adams has an opening on its faculty, according to its president, for Leon Trotzky.

President Ernest Martin Hopkins, addressing the national Dartmouth pow-wow here today, said:

"A man wrote to me protesting a proposed appointment to the faculty, contending that I might as well bring in Lenine or Trotzky as the instructor in question. I replied that if Lenin and Trotzky were available I would certainly bring them in."

Dr. Hopkins was interrupted by applause. The gathering included clergymen, jurists and executives of large corporations.

"I know no man and no interest I would not present if it would stir up the mind of the undergraduate," he added, explaining that open-mindedness, the ability to think, and the formation of personal convictions that had stood the test of challenge were, he believed, among the most cherished aims of the liberal college and the greatest need of the hour. The combined opinion of the alumni, he asserted, would be as nothing compared to the interests of the student.

Trustees, he considered, had been unjustly attacked. He declared he had never known the Dartmouth trustees to act on college matters with other than the highest motives.

CHILDREN OPENED SWITCH AND DERAILED THREE CARS

Huntington, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Children playing at a railroad siding near here today opened a switch through which an eastbound Long Island railroad passenger train ploughed into three cars of a stalled freight train, according to information reaching officials of the road tonight. Twenty persons were injured, none seriously, it was believed, and coolness of attendants averted a panic among 25 insane men and women in one of the passenger coaches, who were being transferred to the King's Park hospital from other institutions.

The switchman on duty at the siding said he had closed the switch after the freight train had been side-tracked. The man said he had seen children playing in the vicinity a few minutes before the wreck occurred and although he had paid little attention to them he believed they had opened the switch.

PRIVATELY-OWNED FLEET OF U. S. MERCHANT MARINE

Washington, Feb. 22.—The privately-owned fleet of the American merchant marine made a net gain of 13 ships, exclusive of tankers, aggregating 83,178 gross tons during 1923, it was shown today in figures made public by the shipping board. The report covered only vessels of 1,000 tons or more.

The increase brought the total number of vessels under private operation to 766 displacing 5,020,651 gross tons. Of the total tonnage under the American flag, 2,385 vessels of 11,866,113 tons, including tankers but exclusive of ships operated on the Great Lakes, the report showed the government owned 1,288, of which 63.4 per cent. were idle on January 1. Private operators owned 1,097, of which 15.5 per cent. were unemployed.

Lincoln and Harry W. Standish, gave a number of selections and Charles H. Jordan and Mr. Caswell entertained with solos. Brief addresses were made by Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's church and Arthur E. Morrill of the Methodist church.

The speaker was Henry F. Burr, formerly of this city, now of New Britain. His talk was on "Schools" and he introduced his subject by explaining the great increase in the expenditures for the school within recent years. The largest single item is the salary of the teachers. The increase in general cost of living should be applied to the schools, as well as to other lines of endeavor. The attendance laws bring into the schools a larger proportion of children and as provisions for these must be made, it means another item in the increased expenditures. The speaker raised the question as to whether or not the increased expense was justified in view of the improvements and his conclusion was that it was. The importance of schools under a democratic form of government was also brought out by the speaker. A lunch was served after meeting.
